

Jerusalem City Council In Uproar Over Acting Deputy's Ideas For City

JERUSALEM — Some members of the Jerusalem City Council demanded this week the rejection of Mayor Teddy Kollek's acting deputy for development and planning when it was reported that he had advocated returning part of Jerusalem to Arab sovereignty.

Says Discrimination In Private Clubs Will Disappear

NEW YORK — A leading industrialist predicted this week that racial and religious discrimination in private social clubs in the United States would be eliminated within 10 years.

Roger P. Sonnabend, president of Sonesta International Hotels Corp., explained to a news conference at the national headquarters of the American Jewish Committee that legal and moral pressures to end such discrimination were bound to escalate as a result of the Supreme Court's recent decision to review whether a private club in Pennsylvania might be deprived of its liquor license for practicing discrimination.

Mr. Sonnabend, a member of the American Jewish Committee's National Executive Council, made his remarks in connection with publication of the most up-to-date and comprehensive overview of social discrimination in America. The paperback book, titled "Better Than You," was written by Mrs. Terry Morris, well-known writer for major magazines, and is one of a series published by the Committee's Institute of Human Relations Press in memory of Mr. Sonnabend's father, A. M. Sonnabend, AJC's twelfth president, who died in 1964.

Mr. Sonnabend cited four other cases — in Massachusetts, New Jersey, Maryland and the State of Washington — where efforts are being made to revoke the liquor licenses or tax-exempt status of private clubs that exclude specific racial or religious groups.

He added that individuals and organizations were placing increased pressure on exclusionist clubs by cancelling memberships and by refusing to hold meetings and social functions at such clubs. He cited an instance last year in which Philip E. Hoffman, president of the American Jewish Committee, wrote to college and university presidents across the country, suggesting that they ask their administrative staffs, alumni associations and other groups affiliated with the universities not to use the facilities of clubs practicing discrimination. In reply, more than 300 presidents strongly affirmed their support of the AJC's request and indicated that they had instructed their affiliated organizations to comply.

LAY CORNERSTONE

REHOVOT — The cornerstone of the Otto Hahn Wing of Europe House at the Weizmann Institute of Science was laid last week. The building, which will be a residence for visiting scientists was built by funds contributed equally by the Governments of Israel and West Germany.

Foreign Ministry officials and Mayor Kollek promptly warned that national policy was in danger of being compromised in local political feuds. This is "particularly unfortunate and unfair," the Mayor said, just a few days before Secretary of State William P. Rogers is due in Israel.

A day of uproar in the council marked the latest chapter in the dispute over Jerusalem, where municipal planning had become a problem of international diplomacy.

The local point of the controversy is Meron Benvenisti, a 36-year-old Councilman known for his persistent defense of Arab interests in the formerly divided city. But in relations with his fellow Israeli politicians, Mr. Benvenisti has won Arab respect for his sensitivity to their problems.

Mr. Kollek named Mr. Benvenisti to the post of Deputy Mayor early this year, charging him with coordinating the controversial urban development problems that had stirred widespread criticism on both political and esthetic grounds. The appointment was to receive formal approval of the governing Labor party caucus in Jerusalem this week.

In the afternoon the newspaper Maariv printed a long article giving the details of a proposal reportedly made by Mr. Benvenisti to the Foreign Ministry calling for a separate Arab municipality in the sectors of the city that had been under Jordanian rule before the six-day war of 1967. He also said to have recommended acknowledgement of Arab sovereignty even before a peace agreement had been reached. Both these are contrary to Government policy in the continuing international peacemaking effort.

What the newspaper did not say, but the Foreign Ministry and the Mayor's office quickly announced, was that this proposal had been submitted by Mr. Benvenisti three years ago, as one of the contingencies that Israel might consider as the political situation evolved.

"Ideas that were prevalent just after the war in 1967," Mayor Kollek said in a formal statement, "have evolved during the last three years and I do not now see any way to separate the subject of Jerusalem from the entire problem of Arab-Israeli relations by specific suggestions concerning Jerusalem in any area."

The Foreign Ministry spokesman acknowledged that various working groups had been set up in the first months after the war to consider political alternatives ahead, but added that "the memoranda and conclusions of the teams are no more than planning material and were never considered by the Foreign Minister or by any other ministerial group."

Mr. Benvenisti, in a terse statement, said, "perhaps such injuries are legitimate in the jungle of politics, but the person who leaked passages from working papers three years out of date just to blacken my name should have realized that what he really did was damage the Government of Israel at a critical time."

How much damage was actually done to the Israeli bargaining position remains to be seen. Mr. Benvenisti's pending appointment was endorsed by the Labor party caucus, as scheduled and on Mayor Kollek's insistence, despite the demands of the opposition Religious party and three smaller hard-line parties that serve with the Labor party in the coalition that controls the Municipal Council.

ISRAELI FASHIONS: Shown above is one of the styles which will be featured at Israel's Birthday Celebration and 1971 Israel Fashion Show which will be held on Thursday, May 6, in the Temple Beth El meeting hall.

Plan Israeli Fashion Show With Birthday Celebration

Seventy made-in Israel fashions, ranging from evening gowns to furs, swimsuits, street and at-home dresses and beach and patio wear, will be presented at Israel's birthday celebration and 1971 Israel Fashion Show to be held on Thursday, May 6, at 6:45 p.m., in the Temple Beth-El meeting hall.

Mrs. Milton Dubinsky is chairman of the Birthday Celebration. Men have also been invited to attend the event, which is sponsored by the Rhode Island Women's Division, State of Israel Bonds. Mrs. Sheldon S. Sollosy is Women's Division chairman.

The sale of Israeli ready-to-wear merchandise on the world market spirals to additional millions each year. This year's ready-to-wear and designer collection is touring sixty major cities throughout the United States and Canada.

Secretary Of State Rogers May Visit Israel, Egypt

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State William P. Rogers is expected to visit Egypt, Israel and several other Middle Eastern countries early next month, informed sources said.

Although plans for the trip are not final, the Secretary is said to be anxious to familiarize himself with the area that has absorbed most of his diplomatic energies during the last two years. It will be Mr. Rogers' first trip to the Middle East.

He is also expected to visit Lebanon, Jordan and perhaps Saudi Arabia. The sources said that he would confer with government leaders in each of the countries on the prospects for a settlement of the Middle East crisis.

The discussions in Israel and Egypt are likely to concentrate on the recent proposals put forth by both sides to reopen the Suez Canal. A new Israeli offer was communicated to Washington by Represented in the show are Lola Beer, Piny Lettersdorf, Jerry Meltz, Gideon Obserson and Rivka Shafir, Israel's leading high fashion designers; and Stefan Braun, Israel's foremost furrier.

Fifteen ready-to-wear firms are also represented, all well known in American fashion markets. They are Linda Abraham, Aled, Begeed-Or, Dorina, Elanit, Elastex, Ero, Galla, Gottex, Jercolt, Maskit, Rikma, Rosen, Pina Shallon and Shelly.

The showing will be staged, coordinated and accessorized by Peerless Company. Roz Goldberg will be the commentator.

All merchandise has been supplied by the Israel Company for Fairs and Exhibitions in cooperation with the Fashion Center of the Israel Export Institute in Tel Aviv.

Reservations may be made by calling Israel's birthday committee at 521-8914.

Israel last week.

The long-delayed presentation of the Israeli proposal cleared the way for the Secretary's trip, in the opinion of specialists here on the Middle East. He was understood to be reluctant to visit either Israel or Egypt as long as the talks between the two countries were at a complete impasse.

Now, although officials here say that much hard bargaining remains ahead, the atmosphere surrounding the negotiations has improved and the Secretary can visit Egypt and Israel without giving the impression of a personal effort to break a deadlock.

If Mr. Rogers visits Cairo as expected, he will be the first Secretary of State to make an official visit to the Egyptian capital since John Foster Dulles conferred with leaders there in 1953.

BAD WEATHER
TEL AVIV — Rain, hailstorms and unseasonably low temperatures plagued Israel April 18 for the seventh consecutive day. A Ministry of Agriculture spokesman placed crop damage at $1.57 million, sustained mainly by vegetables and fruits. In the hills of Galilee the temperature dropped below the freezing mark two nights. Overcoats are in evidence on the streets. Roads all over the country have been flooded or blocked by uprooted trees and downed telephone poles.

Members Of Land-Of-Israel Group Prevented From Entering Hebron

JERUSALEM — About 60 members of the Land-of-Israel movement including several prominent political figures, were prevented from marching to Hebron by security forces. The movement demands Israel's annexation of all Arab territories occupied in the Six-Day War. They were turned back on orders of the military government at the Kfar Etzion junction which is beyond the so-called "green line" separating Israel from the West Bank.

Among the marchers were the Mayor of Netanya, Oved Ben Ami, and Benjamin Halevy, a Knesset member and a former associate justice of Israel's Supreme Court.

Air Officer Estimates 20,000 Soviets Now Living In Egypt

LONDON — A ranking British air officer estimated last week that Soviet military personnel in Egypt numbers 20,000. He said the Russians withdrew their men to positions west of the Suez Canal because they did not want to get involved in any renewed fighting with Israel, not because they consider the Egyptians sufficiently trained to take over the Soviet missile defense system installed in the canal zone.

According to Air Vice Marshal Roderick Jones, addressing a meeting of the Labor Friends of Israel in the House of Commons, the Soviet arms build-up in Egypt was conservatively estimated at $4.8 billion. But, he said, the Russians do not want war but a quick reopening of the Suez Canal so that their fleet can have easier access to the Indian Ocean. He didn't think the Egyptians would resort to an all-out attack on Israeli positions but might revert to their war of attrition in the hope that Israel would retaliate and give them a chance to test their new Russian weapons.

Jones said, "As a former RAF director of flight training, I can say that the Israeli air superiority is based on Israel's air crews and not on her equipment. The Israeli pilots are the best trained in the world."

CRITICAL

VIENNA — A leading Austrian Communist recently published an article here in which he lashed out at the Kremlin for "its violation of basic liberties" including its circulation of "anti-Semitic material" in the Soviet Union. Writing in the dissident Communist journal, "Tagebuch," Eric Aarons, one of the leading members of the tiny 5,000 member Austrian Communist party, termed Soviet propaganda anti-Semitic, "whether in the form of crude anti-religious propaganda or crude anti-Zionism." The Soviets responded to Aarons' article with a highly critical one in Novoe Vremya, a weekly international affairs periodical, accusing him, his brother Laurie and other Austrian leaders of making "unfriendly and even hostile statements" about the Kremlin.

Mrs. Melvin A. Fleischer

Temple Beth El was the scene of the wedding of Miss Natalie A. Jaffa, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron L. Jaffa of 124 Merrymount Drive, Warwick, to Melvin A. Fleischer, son of Mrs. Edna Fleischer of 22 Nancy Street, Pawtucket. Rabbi Jacob Handler, Rabbi Noach Valley and Cantor Karl S. Kritz officiated at the 7:30 p.m. ceremony on Saturday, April 24.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white silk organza fashioned with high neckline and full sheer cuff sleeves. The bodice, A-line skirt train and cuffs were trimmed with Swiss lace. A matching Camelot cap held her illusion veil. She carried her grandmother's Bible cascaded with daisies and white roses.

Mrs. Allan Bezan, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Deborah MacDonald, Miss Robin Rofin, Mrs. John Bahl and Miss Jerri Lynn Jaffa, sister of the bride.

Best man was Neal Brown and ushers were Bart Sayles, Dr. Allan Bezan, Alan Jaffa and David Jaffa, brothers of the bride.

Following a trip to the Bahamas, the couple will live in Warwick.

Mrs. Edward H. Bengelsdorf

Miss Carol Judith Rosenblatt, daughter of Mrs. Theodore Rosenblatt of 330 Grotto Avenue, and the late Mr. Rosenblatt, became the bride of Edward Harold Bengelsdorf of 220 West 10th Street, New York City, on Sunday, April 25. Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen and Cantor Ivan E. Perlman officiated at the 1 p.m. ceremony at Temple Emanu-El. Mr. Bengelsdorf is the son of Mrs. Norma Bengelsdorf of 64-41 Saunders Street, Rego Park, New York.

Watteau train was chapel length. A Juliet cap of pearl-trimmed Alencon lace held the full length veil of silk illusion. She carried a colonial bouquet of white roses and stephanotis. Mrs. Harvey Rosenblatt served as matron of honor for her sister-in-law. She was gowned in a pink and green floral print fashioned with a high ruffled neck and long sleeves, and she wore a matching Camelot cap.

Bridesmaids were Miss Lynda Dember and Mrs. Fredrick Dichter. They wore gowns similar to that of the matron of honor.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Harvey Rosenblatt. She wore a gown of light ivory silk organza with a scoop neckline, trumpet sleeves and an A-shaped skirt, fashioned with an empire effect. Reembroidered Alencon lace accented the sleeves, the bodice and continued into the skirt. The Robert Lennox was best man and ushers were Robert Rosenblatt, brother of the bride, and Fredrick Dichter. Following a wedding trip to St. Croix, the couple will reside in New York, New York.

Rabbi Asks For Groups To Care For Jews In Need

AKRON — Reform Judaism was called upon to establish a ministry of rabbis to specifically care for the spiritual and physical needs of poor Jewish families in large metropolitan centers.

Rabbi David Polish, of Beth Emet Synagogue in Evanston, and vice-president of the Central Conference of American Rabbis, told a forum gathering at Temple Israel, "The Reform movement should undertake a program of service to the Jewish poor, not in the area of feeding and housing them, which is the responsibility of our Jewish Federations and our American welfare agencies, but in the area of looking out for their interests and providing for their spiritual needs."

Rabbi Polish stated that despite notions to the contrary, all Jews were not members of America's middle or upper class. He said, "In Chicago we have thousands of Jewish families and retired persons living a meager or poverty existence." He estimated that while no statistics were available, that there were thousands of poor Jewish families throughout the nation.

Rabbi Polish observed that these individuals "do not have a place in the Jewish community. What have we done to bring help and comfort to the Jewish poor, the neglected remnants of mass-flight from the inner city?"

Rabbi Polish strongly urged the creation of specialized ministries for the rabbinate as have been formulated by the Catholics and Protestants. He said that in addition to working with the poor such specialists could work in many fields vital to Jews in America.

The religious leader warned the Jewish community that "neglect of the poor creates organizations like the Jewish Defense League."

Prior to their involvement with the cause of Soviet Jews, the JDL carried on vigilante methods to protect older and poor Jewish families living in the inner cities.

American Jewish Painter Denies Bomb Attack On Soviet Mission

AMSTERDAM — The American Jewish painter who was arrested and accused of plotting with two others in the bomb attack on the Soviet Mission here has stubbornly denied any knowledge of the conspiracy and continues to assert his innocence.

The man, identified only as "Renee W.," was arrested shortly after his return from Israel where he had worked for four months.

His wife told the Jewish Telegraphic Agency that Renee had celebrated his birthday with her on the day of the bombing, and could not have been in the vicinity of the attack.

She also told the JTA that her husband was not a member of the Jewish Defense League nor of any other Jewish organization. An investigation of the attack is underway and the suspect is scheduled to appear Tuesday before the Amsterdam Public Prosecutor.

The bombing of the Soviet Mission resulted in injury to four persons, including a child. Jewish community leaders openly deplored the bombing as a disservice to their Jewish brethren in the Soviet Union.

My son, The Lawn Doctor.

Smart? My son Marvin is a genius. He's a Lawn Doctor. You know what means a lawn doctor? He makes sick lawns healthy. He calls weeds by their Latin names. He can fix up any lawn . . . shooting away weeds and bugs and fungus. And he can make your lawn so green, it will look like my split pea soup. If your lawn is a mess, do me a favor. Call my son Marvin and let him open his satchel. Believe me, he'll fix everything and it wouldn't cost you much more than the stuff he puts down. You see, Marvin has a machine that lays everything down all at once, so labor costs you next to nothing. Call my son The Lawn Doctor, now. Later on you'll forget.

Armaments Industry Growing

Israel's Home Manufacturers Reduce Need For Reliance On Other Countries

JERUSALEM — The vast armaments industries of Israel are, to all appearances, rapidly reducing the country's long-standing dependence on the United States and other arms suppliers abroad.

This is one of the most pertinent factors in the evolving Arab-Israeli military balance. It is also one on which the least authoritative information is generally available because of its obvious implications for Israel's future war potential.

Defense Minister Moshe Dayan has raised this sensitive issue, but only in passing and without going beyond the generalities with which inquiries on the subject are invariably met.

Speaking at a meeting of newsmen, Mr. Dayan discussed Israel's military preparations, then said: "And here I want to emphasize home manufacture of armaments, so far as possible. We have covered a great deal of very important ground in this respect."

Another disclosure of normally secret activities is coming these days from Lausanne, Switzerland, where a 44-year-old Swiss aeronautical engineer, Alfred Frauenknecht, is on trial on charges of having sold blueprints of the French-designed Mirage jet-fighter engines to Israel.

Mr. Frauenknecht, who was arrested 18 months ago, is charged with having handed over some 200,000 blueprints, thus enabling the Israeli aircraft industries to build and operate machine tools for constructing the same engines as those used by the Swiss Air Force on the Mirage III-SX.

It has been widely rumored that Israeli industries are well on their way to constructing a modern jet fighter of their own, comparable in many respects to the Mirage and the United States Phantom.

Military and civilian sources here are understandably reluctant to discuss any of the research and development programs under way in Israel's own military-industrial complex.

Tens of thousands of Israeli workers are employed in perhaps nearly 100 factories and research facilities across the country — the precise number has never been published.

But a month ago, the director of Israel's Armaments Authority, Dr. Zev Bonen, gave a rare interview to The Jerusalem Post in which he discussed some of the organization's work.

Since the six-day war of 1967, Dr. Bonen said, circumstances have forced Israel to put much more emphasis on fast reactions to new threats, such as those posed by the Soviet involvement in Egypt.

"We found ourselves facing the challenge of highly sophisticated Soviet military technology and operators," Dr. Bonen said. "We do not underestimate them, but I am confident that we are able to give our men at the front the systems that will answer every threat."

Dr. Bonen, who is 44 years old, became the head of the armaments authority one year ago; it is one of the most important — and generally anonymous — positions in Israel today. He is a specialist in electrical engineering and automatic controls. Last year he was awarded the prestigious Israel Security Prize for his work on what was termed "an airplane armaments system."

The Armaments Authority, known in Hebrew as Rafael, was established in 1948, shortly after Israel became a state.

Dr. Bonen listed, as the country's current lines of emphasis, "airplane armaments, small computers, communications systems for specific purposes, electronics systems, explosives, fuses and certain types of aerial bombs and rocket propellents." Most of its technical personnel are drawn from the graduates of the world-renowned Technion in Haifa.

Israel's small size and limited material resources require the maximum of concentration on the most urgent technical problems, as well as the maximum permitted cooperation with overseas industries. But Dr. Bonen said he believed that the country's smallness was not necessarily a disadvantage.

"We have the advantage of compactness, allowing close contact between our scientists and the soldiers who operate our armaments," he said.

The Armaments Authority is the research and development leader of the arms industries, but the giants of the production organizations are the Israel Aircraft Industries, known as Bedek, and the armaments manufacturer, Taas.

Both companies are wholly owned by the Ministry of Defense and both had their origins in the clandestine arms procurement networks that grew up before Israel's statehood.

Aircraft Industries employs more than 10,000 workers, and Taas reports half that number on its payrolls.

In the current fiscal year the Israeli Government is increasing its investment in the arms industries significantly. The Director General of the Defense Ministry, Yeshayahu Lavie, advanced beyond generalities as much as he could in a recent interview saying that Israel had begun an investment program of more than $100-million.

Mr. Lavie noted that the greater the home production, the less dangerous were foreign arms embargoes — for both the obvious practical reasons and more subtle psychological considerations.

"The situation is a dynamic one," he said. "Not only does greater home production diminish our exposure to boycotts or bans. If we have a thriving, variegated and highly technological arms industry, foreign supplier countries are less inclined to apply an embargo."

The chief scientist of the defense industries, Prof. Arie Dvoretzky, went further on this point at a recent briefing for members of the Knesset, Israel's parliament. Excerpts from his talk were made available for publication.

On more than one occasion, Professor Dvoretzky said, Israel had tried to purchase some complex weapons system abroad but had been rebuffed. Only when the foreign suppliers became convinced that Israeli industries were capable of producing the weapons system anyway were they willing to sell it.

In such case, he said, it became purely an economic calculation of whether it would be cheaper to build locally or buy abroad.

Spurred by French Embargo It was the French arms embargo imposed in January 1969, that gave the biggest impetus to the Israeli armament industry. With a major source of light weapons and related equipment cut off abruptly, local arms production in 1969 jumped 50 percent over 1968.

In some highly specialized fields, such as advanced electronics, Israeli industries are competing on the world market in both civilian and military products. The Tadiran Electronics Corporation, for example, sells to more than 20 countries.

Tadiran is partly owned by the Defense Ministry, with a 35 percent interest held by the American-owned General Telephone and Electronics International.

Another branch of the complex military-industrial establishment of Israel is the three-year-old Elta Electronics Industries, a subsidiary of Israel Aircraft Industries.

Though far smaller than Tadiran, Elta has been active in radar development and airborne fire control. It is now working on ship automation systems and industrial control systems for the private sector.

NEGOTIATE JERUSALEM — Negotiations are currently in progress between the Sorbonne University in Paris and the World Zionist Organization's Department of Education to bring teachers from France to Israel for training as teachers of Hebrew in French high schools, the Director of the Israeli organization reported here.

†BREAKDOWN

JERUSALEM — The combined land area of the liberated Arab territories aggregates 68,500 km2, as compared with 21,000 km2 representing the State of Israel prior to the 6-Day War. According to official sources, the breakdown is as follows: Golan Heights - 1,150 km2; Judea and Shomron (West Bank) - 6,000 km2; Sinai Desert - 61,000 km2; Gaza Strip and El Arish - 360 km2. Israel's present size, inclusive of the liberated areas, is now three times larger than it was before June 4, 1967. According to UN sources, there are allegedly some 538,000 Arab 'refugees' living in these territories, but Israeli sources insist that the number is closer to 300,000. There are 19 refugee camps containing 100,000 persons in the West Bank, and 8 camps housing 160,000 displaced persons in the Gaza Strip. The remaining 'refugees' are located in Jerusalem and in the Sinai Peninsula. 50% of the displaced persons are 40 years of age or younger. The total population in the liberated areas amounts to 987,000 as follows: in the Golan Heights - 7,000 Druze; in the West Bank - 600,000 Arabs; in Sinai - 40,000 bedouins; in the Gaza Strip and in El Arish - 340,000 Arabs.

START HOTEL
JERUSALEM — Construction has started on the $2 million Ariel, a fifty unit apartment-house-hotel, financed by a group of South American investors. The twin-towered buildings with units starting at $39,000 will be ready for occupancy in two years and has been planned as a second home for people who are not residents of Israel.

RESCINDS CUT
SACRAMENTO, CALIF. — Governor Ronald Reagan has rescinded his budget cut that would have eliminated rabbis from serving as chaplains in state hospitals. The Department of Mental Hygiene under which the rabbis operate will also have a new director following the resignation of Dr. James V. Lowry.

Trinity Square Announces Capital Fund Drive

Launching of its Capital Fund Drive, aimed at raising money for complete renovation of the Majestic Theatre in downtown Providence, was announced last Sunday evening, April 25, by Trinity Square Repertory Company. At a 5 p.m. Champagne Gala, held at its small Trinity Square Playhouse on Broad and Brigham Streets, campaign workers mingled with press, actors, staff, directors and friends of the theatre.

Highlight of the evening was the announcement of a preliminary donation of $200,000 from the B.B. Lederer Foundation in New York. Among speakers present, campaign chairman Richard Worrell addressed the gathering as did Trinity's artistic director Adrian Hall who presented the "Scrapbook Revue," performed by company members and summing up seven years of theatrical accomplishment in Rhode Island.

Trinity's scenic designer Eugene Lee, lighting designer Roger Morgan and building committee chairman Morris Nathanson unveiled a model of just what will be done in turning the old Providence movie house into what campaign coordinator Phyllis Balducci termed "the most exciting regional theatre in America."

To Hold Israel Festival At Temple Beth Torah

The entire Jewish community has been invited to join in the community-wide celebration of the 23rd anniversary of the independence of the State of Israel at the Israel Festival, to be held at Temple Beth Torah this Sunday, May 2, from 2 to 6 p.m.

The festival will include entertainment by Rachel Gusman, internationally known singer, the Hillel Dance Group, under the direction of Avram Grant, the Senior Young Judaea Dance Group and the Temple Emanu El Youth Chorale.

There will also be folk singing and folk dancing for everyone to join.

Beginning at 2 p.m., there will be Israeli exhibits to tour, a program of magic and Israeli films for children and booths for purchasing Israeli gift items and Israeli foods. Ready-to-eat Israeli foods will also be on sale for those in need of a snack.

The "formal" program will begin at 2:45 p.m. with a welcome by Charles Swartz, chairman of the Israel Anniversary Committee, who will introduce the entertainment.

Following the entertainment program, there will be an Israeli buffet, more films and displays and game booths for children available.

Organizations participating in the planning and sponsorship of this community wide event include American Jewish Committee, Barrington Jewish Center, B'nai B'rith Central New England Council, Hope, Plantations and Roger Williams Lodges of B'nai B'rith, the Cranston-Warwick, Hope and Roger Williams Chapters of B'nai B'rith Women, the Bureau of Jewish Education, Congregation Mishkon Tfiloh, Congregation Shaare Zedek, Sons of Abraham, Branch #41 of the Farband Labor Zionist Order, Ben Gurion Branch 41-B of the Farband Labor Zionist Order, Brown University Hillel, U.R.I. Hillel, Histadruth, the Israeli Students Organization and the Jewish Community Center College Co-Ed Club.

Also, the Jewish Community Center of Rhode Island, the Center Youth Council of the Jewish Community Center, the

FACE STRIKE
NEW YORK — Seven affiliated agencies of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies of Greater New York are facing a possible strike by 800 professional, clerical and maintenance employees, the Jewish Telegraphic Agency learned this week. The dispute in which the major issue is wages, has been under mediation by the State Mediation Service.

The membership of Local 1707 of the Community and Social Agencies Employees, AFL-CIO, voted to authorize its negotiating committee to call a strike at its discretion, according to a spokesman for the union.

Some 400 employees demonstrated and picketed outside of Federation headquarters for several hours earlier in the week.

DEPLORE BOMBING
AMSTERDAM — Jewish leaders here openly deplored the bombing that damaged the Soviet Mission, shattered windows and injured four persons, including a child. Chief Rabbi Aaron Schuster declared: "If the culprits were Jews they have done a disservice to their Jewish brethren in the USSR." A note in English found in the building after the explosion reportedly read: "Never again. Let my people go."

Labor Party Supports Stand Of Government On Peace Terms

TEL AVIV — The Labor Party convention gave all-out support to the government's position on peace negotiations and then adjourned.

The convention was the first since the Mapai, Rafi and Achdut Avodah factions merged two years ago to establish a united labor front.

The convention displayed remarkable unity, especially on the crucial question of future boundaries of the State. The government's position was expounded by Israel Galili, Minister-boundaries of the State. The government's position was expounded by Israel Galili, Minister-Without-Portfolio, who is a close associate of Premier Golda Meir. Galili's political speech at the convention's closing session was a strongly worded rejection of international pressure from any source aimed at forcing Israel to accept anything less than what it considers its minimum security borders.

Galili adhered so faithfully to the government's line that Mrs. Meir cancelled her own address because of the lateness of the hour and because almost everything she planned to say had been said by Galili.

The Minister, who more and more seems to be the foreign policy spokesman for Mrs. Meir's so-called "inner circle" acknowledged the danger of renewed warfare with Egypt and said that in such an event Israel would be subjected to the most severe pressure it has ever known from friendly nations to make concessions. But, he said, Israel will never accept solutions that are not solutions or substitutes for peace that are not peace.

He said Israel was prepared to continue with the Jarring talks and was ready to begin separate talks on reopening the Suez Canal. But, he added, Israel will never retreat from the canal which he called "an excellent water obstacle."

KNESSET ADJOURNS
JERUSALEM — The Knesset adjourned until May 3 for its annual Passover recess. Before adjournment, it adopted a measure to create an official ombudsman to handle citizen's complaints. The post was assigned to Dr. Ernst Nebenzahl, State Controller for nearly 10 years. Dr. Nebenzahl, who has also served as a bank director, city council and Honorary Consul General of Sweden, has a reputation for being fair and independent.

How Come You're Not Rich?

In the "great garbage market" of 1968, says Richard Jenrette of the Wall Street firm of Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette, "the less you knew the better you did." Even after the smash-up of the "cult of performance" era of the late 1960s, says the SEC, "qualification standards for persons responsible for disseminating investment advice are virtually non-existent" and "neither the Federal Government nor any self-regulatory body exercises controls over the competence of persons for the performance of their advisory work." As for the New York Stock Exchange, it does give tests for registered representatives, but the tests, says Donald Regan, chairman of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, "an average 12-year-old could pass."

Measured by the familiar stock averages, the violent bear market of 1968-1970 has long since passed into history. But also measured by the hot tips, raw rumors and pledges I hear to "triple your money in a year," the excesses which led to that stock market crash will make again in the making.

Assuming you want to own stocks but want to protect yourself against incompetent, even fraudulent advice, then how do you get comparatively sound guidance? A sobering analysis of precisely this — along with a scathing denunciation of the entire investment advisory industry — is in a book by John L. Springer to be published this week under the intriguing title "If They're So Smart, How Come You're Not Rich?" (Regnery, $5.95). Here are some of Springer's most important guides for you:

(1) Reject the idea that professional advice is automatically superior. You can be financially ruined by blindly choosing an investment adviser just as you can jeopardize your life by consulting a physician merely because his office is nearby.

Your investment success will depend on your adviser's choice of investments, and thus, emphasizes, Springer, "selection of an adviser is crucial." Since

Voices Protest Against Beryl Segal's Article

Mr. Segal, let me begin with a word of advice, your next column should be entitled "From Holocaust to Holocaust," rather than "From Friday to Friday." Mr. Segal, if you haven't figured it out by now, my intention is to voice opposition to your piece entitled "Of Frogs and Mice."

I am a Jew, a young Jew who, thank G-d, is not disenchanted with Judaism, nor with the struggle of my people. I love my people. What I'm about to say is what I feel, and the opinions are personal.

Mr. Segal, let us go back into history, into a history which every Jew must cry about. I'm not speaking of G-d's giving Moses the Torah, nor G-d's splitting the Red Sea, nor the Ten Plagues visited by G-d on the Egyptians, nor our prophets or our Talmud. The history I'm referring to is now called "The Holocaust."

I recall reading of a man named Hitler, a man dedicated to killing Jews. I recall a place called the Warsaw Ghetto. I recall a place called Auschwitz. I recall a ship the "St. Louis." I recall reading of a place called Dachau, and of the monument at Dachau (a place of Jewish shame) where two words are inscribed, "NEVER AGAIN!" This was a promise. NEVER AGAIN will we remain silent as other Jews are butchered, NEVER AGAIN will we sit on our aspirations as our brothers are turned into soap, NEVER AGAIN will we pontificate while Jewish flesh is fed into ovens and NEVER AGAIN will we, the Jewish Youth, let our apathetic parents stop us from saving our people.

For you see, Mr. Segal, we the Jewish Youth, who have not been lost to the Panthers, or to Fatah, or S.D.S., or to any other cause—be it non-sectarian or anti-Semitic—will listen to only one voice, the voice inside us that is the voice of one Jew killed in the Holocaust. We six million American Jews are different, for we have one body and two souls. One soul is ours and the other soul belongs to a Jew that your generation did not save. Therefore, Mr. Segal, you are correct in saying, "We opened a Pandora's Box and we do not know how to close it." "We" the adults who enjoy T.V.'s and Cadillacs while Jews in Russia suffer and die. "We" who staged only two protests a year. "We" who sat by and watched European Jewry die. Yes, Mr. Segal, "we" is you, and all those like you who thrive on apathy, who thrive on self-pity, who thrive on a pat on the shoulder from your peers, and those who thrive on nothing more than ignorance toward the situation. Yes, Mr. Segal, ignorance is bliss. It was you and your generation who by not caring enough to sit on Pennsylvania Ave., or to chain yourselves to the U.N. or to the White House

Research at the Miriam

By BERYL SEGAL

We were sitting in the spacious office and talking of many things, but always in my mind was what I had seen and observed in the laboratories from which we had just returned. Mr. Jerome R. Sapolsky, Executive Director of the Miriam Hospital, Dr. Robert P. Davis, Physician-in-Chief, and I had taken a tour of the laboratories in which Dr. Davis and his associates are laboring. It was a bewildering tour. With Dr. Davis as guide we were shown complicated instruments unknown to me, delicate experiments the purposes of which were vaguely understood, and explanations of methods which remained a mystery.

So we were sitting and sipping coffee and tried to talk of other things, avoiding diplomatically not to touch on what we had seen and heard in the Research Laboratory. And it occurred to me that this really ought to be the attitude of the layman to research. The layman cannot expect to understand fully what the men of research attempt to do. In our case, we were trying to learn, while standing on one foot, what Dr. Davis has devoted his lifetime to understand, namely the KIDNEYS. Is there any wonder we were bewildered?

We were in a room as cold as a winter day outside, with another smaller refrigeration room where the worker must dress to suit the freezing temperature. In these cold rooms, urine is separated into its various components.

We were shown a room where assistants and students were analyzing urine, testing the permeability and diffusion of the fluid with varying concentration of salts.

There was a can of bladders from toads used for experimentation. These bladders are said to work the same as the human kidneys in concentrating fluids.

Mice and rats were used in the studies of the functions and disfunctions of the kidneys. There were little plastic boxes into which rats were allowed to enter but not to turn around in, their tails sticking out of the doors, and the assistant injecting them with solutions and hormones of known concentrations.

Every experiment aims at finding out why the kidneys, the human kidneys, act one way or the other. And the way the kidneys act is extremely important to the welfare of the human body. Heart and kidneys. Diabetes and kidneys. Hypertension and kidneys. Failure of the kidneys to function. All these matters related to the health of human beings, and they are under investigation at the Research Center of the Miriam Hospital.

I recalled from my Biology studies that the kidneys are the primary excretory organs of the body. Blood and plasma are carried to the kidneys where they are filtered into waste materials and useful parts. The waste material, which consists of about 96 per cent water and the rest solids, is stored in the bladder and is eliminated in the form of urine. The useful material is returned to the blood stream and the process goes on and on.

All this is true when the body functions normally. But should something go wrong with our body the kidneys show it immediately. Blood cells may appear in the urine. The kidney fluids may be cloudy and show pus upon examination under the microscope. Even the layman can tell a healthy urine from a urine that indicates a dysfunction of the kidneys.

But this is all elementary. The problems with which Dr. Davis is concerned are of a more complicated nature, and take years of study and concentrated work.

The efforts in the Research Center have already brought results. It was recently announced that by arrangement with the Health Planning Council the Miriam and Rhode Island Hospitals will jointly launch a program unique in the state. Patients with serious kidney ailments had to go out of the state for treatment. In a few months these patients will find help right at home. The Rhode Island Hospital will perform Renal Dialysis, commonly known as the use of Artificial Kidneys. The Miriam Hospital will transplant kidneys from donors. The transplantation of kidney is not unlike heart transplantations. The phenomenon of rejection is just as much a possibility with heart as with kidneys. Before a kidney transplant is undertaken, the physician must explore all the reasons for rejection and prevent them. This is the subject of intensive research by Dr. Joel Weltman, a close associate of Dr. Davis.

This aid to the patient with kidney ailments is the result of work in the Research Center at the Miriam Hospital. It is an achievement of no small proportion.

Mario Puzo and the Godfather

I was having luncheon at the Algonquin with my friend and editor, Bill Targ of Putnam's. A gossip columnist asked Bill where Mario Puzo was and Bill replied, "I don't know where he is but we will have a story for you later."

"I don't want a story later," said the disappointed columnist, "I want a story now."

Nothing doing. Mario Puzo's novel, "The Godfather," was one of the most successful books Putnam's has ever published. It is in the process of being made into a movie, or was in the process until the Italian-American Civil Rights League began demonstrating against the use of the word Mafia or Cosa Nostra in the movie.

It has created a delicate situation since the Godfather of the title makes his living—and a good living it is—as a Mafia lord. If the movie makers accede to the civil rights pressure they are in the position of having to make Hamlet without the Prince of Denmark.

Naturally everyone wants to know what Mario Puzo thinks about this desecration but Mario is not at hand and Bill has been willy-nilly defending the book's integrity. Personally, I don't think Bill knows where Mario is and I think Mario is acting like a perfect gentleman. He is doing exactly what I would do if someone insisted to me my writings were in error, the South is filled with happy Negroes. I would say nothing and I would try to be where no one would hear my remarks about such an opinion.

It would not be to the interests of the Jews if the Anti-Defamation League tried to convince the public there were no Julius and Ethel Rosenberg and no Harry Gold. There was a Julius and an Ethel and there still is a Harry Gold.

I remember the centennial of Emma Lazarus's birth which was celebrated in New York City on Central Park Mall. Emma Lazarus was the Jewish poet who wrote the inscription which is inside the pedestal of the Statue of Liberty. "Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses yearning to be free. Send these, the wretched refuse of your teeming shore, the tempest-tost'd to me, I lift my lamp beside the Golden Door."

Jewish organizations insisted at the time the "wretched refuse" be deleted from the commemorative ceremonies, as though a line of poetry could hurt anyone. Delete it the city fathers did but it didn't make those bygone immigrants one bit less tired, or one bit less poor.

No one has ever accused me of passing top secret plans to the Russians and I have never met an Italian who could tell me where to place a bet in a pinch. But that doesn't mean the bookies are splitting the take with Scandinavians.

Drop Plans To Destroy Old Dutch Synagogue

AMSTERDAM — The Town Council of Nymegen has dropped its plans to demolish the town's synagogue, one of the country's oldest Jewish houses of worship, following the intervention of Netherlands Minister of Culture Dr. Marga Klompe.

Instead, the synagogue will be renovated at a cost of 600,000 florins ($166,140) with the government contributing 40 percent of the cost and the Province of Gelderland 10 percent.

Dr. Klompe, a Roman Catholic, looks on the synagogue which was built in 1727, as a monument commemorating the Jewish community.

ACHIEVE PROMINENCE
RIO DE JANEIRO — Two Jewish residents recently achieved prominence in Brazil. Jaime Lerner, son of Polish-Jewish immigrants, took office last week as Mayor of Curitiba, the eighth largest city in Brazil, while Mrs. Helena Levin, became the first woman ever to be appointed as Dean of the Social Science Faculty of Catholic University in Rio de Janeiro. The new Mayor of Curitiba, which has about 600 Jewish families, was born in Brazil and speaks Yiddish fluently. Mrs. Levin who is 40 years old and a mother of three children, was born in Sao Paulo to Russian-Jewish immigrants.

They say one never picks up the same hand twice, which is true, yet you would be surprised at how many times you might say to yourself, "It seems we played this hand before." What has happened is that the same situation has come up again. This could happen very often.

Today's hand is another that proves how much better one will do if he listens to and watches what is going on. Almost any Declarer took a finesse that they had been told could not work and thus went down. If they had listened and watched they would have realized this had to happen. There is also an interesting bidding point here which will also be discussed.

Mrs. Rose Lehrer and Mrs. Charles Steingold were North and South, no one vulnerable, East Dealer. The bidding:

E	S	W	N
1♦	2♦	P	2♦
Dbl	2♥	P	3♥
P	4♥	End

After East opened the bidding, South had a perfect hand for doubling, 14 points and good support for either Major. When it came North's turn to bid some of them guessed which Major to bid. Actually they can describe a hand of this type perfectly by bidding whichever Minor the opener bids, in this case, of course, Diamonds. This said nothing about Diamonds merely saying that they had both Majors and enough to jump to two of either. It now left it up to the Doubler. This way they would be sure to play the hand in the Major each had at least four of.

South had little more than her Double, so just bid two of her four card suit. She would have bid higher if she had more, even going to game if she had enough opposite a hand showing at least seven points. North did have a bit extra, so tried one time for game which South decided to go for. The problem now was to make it.

West led the Diamond Queen which should have told Declarer something. It should have pinpointed all the rest of the high cards. Every Declarer received the same lead, for when East had Doubled the Two Diamond bid by North he had expressed a definite desire for a Diamond lead, and had seized that opportunity to say so. At any rate after the two Diamonds were cashed the whole problem rested on the Trump suit. Declarer could afford to lose but one trick there. Most Souths lost two when they played a small Heart over to Dummy and finessed with the Queen. They lost that trick to the King and then had to lose another trick to West's Jack for down one. The astute Declarers thought thus: "If I take the Heart finesse, it must lose to the Queen, which I know East must have, and then I will probably have to lose another trick to the Jack, unless East has that, also and it falls on the Ace. At any rate, I am going to play East for that King and hope it falls doubleton. If so, I will play the Ace, and then a small Heart, and if the King takes that I have achieved my purpose." As you can see, that is just what happened and four was made. Not every pair reached the game, and I do not mind that. The idea is to make the ten tricks, and to do it, that finesse must not be taken.

Moral: The same as at Railroad Crossings—Stop, Look and Listen! Then take advantage of what you see and hear.

Secretary-General U Thant Fears Chance of Peace May Pass

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — Secretary General U Thant declared this week that the announcement of plans for a union between Egypt, Syria and Libya had confirmed him in his conviction that "now is the last chance for peace in the Middle East."

He added in a statement that he feared "all basis for peace in the foreseeable future" might be lost unless present opportunities for agreement were seized.

Officials explained that Mr. Thant felt that the announcement of the union in itself did not close the door for further progress in indirect Arab-Israeli peace talks, but that it showed a hardening of the Arab position and thus heightened the urgency of all diplomatic efforts.

The announcement said that the union, with a president, a flag and a federal capital, would have a common stand on Israel.

Although Mr. Thant did not say so, it was felt that he regarded September 1 — the date set for a plebiscite in the three countries — as a deadline for tangible progress toward a settlement.

Many diplomats here expressed the view that the announcement was a new form of pressure on Israel to make territorial concessions.

Yosef Tekoah, the Israeli representative to the United Nations, immediately took issue with Mr. Thant. He issued a statement saying that "efforts toward peace could not proceed successfully if they were darkened by talk of last chance deadlines and threats."

Diplomats specializing in Mideastern affairs said their governments were still seeking clarification of the precise meaning of President Anwar el-Sadat's statement Saturday. There were differing interpretations and even translations, these diplomats said.

Mr. Sadat had said: "There will be no negotiations or peace agreement with Israel, no abandoning of one inch of Arab territories and no relinquishing or bargaining on the rights of the Palestine case."

However, Egyptian and other Arab officials are understood to have told friendly Western governments that Mr. Sadat's statement was predicated on Israel's refusal so far to enter a commitment on the withdrawal of her armed forces from occupied Arab territory. The Arab officials are understood to have added that the Egyptian President's statement therefore was no fundamental departure from previous Egyptian positions.

Catholics, Jews To Occupy Land In Philadelphia Jointly

PHILADELPHIA, — A 22 acre tract of land in Lower Merion Township, now occupied by the Country Day School of the Sacred Heart, has been purchased by the Federation of Jewish Agencies of Greater Philadelphia in an unusual agreement under which both groups will be able to serve their respective communities at the same location.

Officials of the FJA and the Country Day School at the Overbrook Foundation signed papers providing for joint occupation of the facility. The agreement insures the continuation of the Catholic girls school at the site, and at the same time allows for the immediate establishment of a western branch of Jewish Ys and Centers on the property.

The location is in the center of a large and growing Jewish population. The FJA acquired title to the property from the Institute of the Ladies of the Sacred Heart of the City of Philadelphia. Under the agreement, use of parts of the facility will be programmed for non-conflicting uses during the school day and JYC uses during evening, weekend and summer periods.

The "old" building in which the school currently operates its Montessori Division and Lower and Middle Schools will continue to be used primarily by the Catholic institution. Part of the "new" building, actually a wing of the main building, will be used by the school to house its Upper School, while the other part will be utilized immediately by youth clubs, golden age groups and other participants of JYC facilities. Kitchen and cafeteria facilities will be divided on a scheduled basis.

SKLAR NAMED

NEW YORK — Murray S. Sklar, director of the Department of Community Organization and Fund Raising of the Joint Distribution Committee was appointed JDC Director for France, it was announced by Samuel L. Haber, JDC executive vice-chairman. Mr. Sklar assumed his new post on April 1 succeeding Albert A. Hutler who has returned to the United States after an 18 month tour of duty in Paris, Mr. Haber said. Mr. Sklar will continue to direct the Department of Community Organization and Fund Raising from the JDC office in Paris, he added.

MINE ACCIDENT
TEL AVIV — Security forces are investigating a mine accident that killed one Israeli laborer and injured two others on a road in Upper Galilee recently. The mine was planted on a dirt road frequently used by workers on a Jewish National Fund afforestation project. A truck carrying 33 workers hit the mine while on its way back to Maalot township after the day's work. The fatally injured victim was identified as Victor Hasoun, 46, father of six. Maalot is a mixed Arab-Jewish township in central Galilee. The local council deplored the incident and urged Jewish and Arab residents to maintain their good neighborly relations.

Hello Again!

News of the Sports World by Warren Walden

EVER NEW! When you read this, hockey fans will be awaiting the fourth championship Calder Cup playoff game between the R.I. Reds and Springfield Kings; another game in a long, long series, the rivalry and intensity of which renews itself with each meeting. Back in the early days of professional hockey, the Reds and Springfield, called "Indians" then, were rivals of the first magnitude; their geographical locations being such as to afford fans an opportunity for following their respective teams to the other city. The rivalry has remained keen and razor-sharp down through the years; will be very much in evidence the final games of this big series, the first in which the teams representing Providence and Springfield have met for the final championship of the Can-Am, Int. and American Hockey Leagues; the circuit having been known by other names in the past.

GAGNON, HART AND CHAPMAN. Back in the early days of Providence-Springfield rivalry, Johnny Gagnon (A Testimonial was held for him recently) was an outstanding attraction before he was known as "The Black Cat," a name he gained while playing on the Montreal line with other immortals such as Jollet and Moroz. Johnny was on a line with Art Chapman and Gizzy Hart, forming an immortal trio in the annals of Providence hockey. And who could forget some of the Springfield players of those memorable nights - "Indian" Maracle, Sparky Vall and Everett McGowan, the last named gaining additional fame in Ice Capades in later years when he was featured in an adagio number on ice with his wife, Ruth Mack. And now the Reds and Springfield play for the big trophy after almost growing up together in hockey history in New England.

WHAT AGAIN! The World Champion Baltimore Orioles and the Cincinnati Reds should have no trouble winning again in their respective Leagues, according to the opinion of nearly 400 major leaguers who responded to SPORT magazine's 19th annual player-prediction poll, details of which are in the May issue. The players picked the Red Sox for a fourth place finish, following Detroit and New York...An article in the same mag reveals that Joe Frazier was so dazed during the last round that, shortly after the fight ended, he couldn't recall knocking Ali down...And one more - SPORT has announced the acquisition of pre-publication rights to a new book by Roger Kahn about the Brooklyn Dodger teams of the early 50's.

EITHER OR: After the long waiting period, the R.I. Reds could be called champions of some sort, win, lose or draw in the final playoff series...Boys playing baseball in the street on Vermont Avenue in Providence, right in front of the house where Tim O'Neil, the "Sandlot King" resided. Jewish Chaplains Endorse Compulsory Chapel Service

NEW YORK — The Association of Jewish Chaplains in the Armed Forces has endorsed the retention of compulsory chapel attendance at service academies in a resolution passed at its 25th anniversary meeting.

The resolution stated, in part, that "Jews in the armed forces represent a scattered minority, whose spiritual needs cannot be adequately served by the limited number of Jewish chaplains, and every Jewish officer trained to assume such responsibilities with dignity and pride represents, therefore, a distinct asset to the armed forces and helps fill a fundamental need of the Jewish community."

Mid-East Peace Will Bring End Of Anti-Semitism?

NEW YORK — Peace in the Middle East will speed up the eradication of Western European anti-Semitism, according to the European Affairs Specialist of the American Jewish Committee, Jerry Goodman, in an address before the Spring Conference of the alumni of the Rabbi Isaac Elchanan Theological Seminary at Yeshiva University, linked the reduction of Middle East tensions to an over-all strengthening of the community life of European Jewry.

Goodman said Jews are being accepted as part of Western European society, and "organized anti-Semitism has nowhere near the impact it had in the first part of the century." He pointed to a recently completed study by Louvain University, Brussels, which showed a greater acceptance of Jews by Catholics. Speaking of communal life among Western European Jews, Goodman said, "Jewish communal life is being revived in all countries of Western Europe, in different ways and on different levels. But there is need to fortify this communal life by strengthening the European Council of Jewish Communities. There must be a more intensive and systematic relationship with organizations in America in the areas of culture, religion and community services. Of equal importance is the fostering of closer relationships with Israel's vast resources."

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

By Roger E. Spear

Market Action A Function of Political Cycles

Q: It seems to me I read somewhere that the stock market usually rises in pre-presidential election years. Is this accurate? It is certainly true this year. — C.W.

A: Earlier this year, my staff made a detailed study which confirmed the close correlation between market action and election cycles. The study covered the years from 1937 through the present, a period encompassing eight full presidential terms.

In only one term, 1937-1940, did the pre-election or third year fail to show a gain. In that year - 1939 - mounting threats of war were reflected in the market and the Dow Industrial average declined 2.9%. The next seven political cycles showed the Dow gaining in each third year. For these eight years the Dow gained an average of 16.3%. By comparison, the average decline for the first years of the four year terms (including 1969) was 1.2%. Second and fourth years showed gains of 2.8% and 2.2%, respectively.

For purposes of comparison a similar study was compiled of Gross National Product (in constant dollars) and money supply. GNP scored the greatest gains in the third and fourth years, while money supply was the most plentiful in the second and third years. Both the money supply and stock market rose from the first year to a peak in the third. GNP took a full year longer to gather the steam necessary to reach a third year peak and this momentum carried it over into a fourth strong year.

The logic of these results is evident. It takes at least one year for a more liberalized monetary policy to be translated into higher production, thus the lag. And in reverse, reduced liquidity similarly fails to effectively curb business activity for about twelve months. The stock market, however, is more closely reflective of changes in monetary policies and is considered a leading indicator. Monetary "fine tuning" as a political tool apparently has been used repeatedly to stimulate economic well-being in order to woo the electorate.

U.S. Leasing Has Speculative Potential

Q: I own 500 U.S. Leasing at $14 which I was told was hurt by the jump in interest rates. Now rates have dropped but the stock does not reflect any benefit. Do you think it overpriced relative to potential? — G.M.

A: Now selling at 19x 1970 earnings — mid-range in its 10-year P/E ratio record — U.S. Leasing appears realistically priced. With interest and finance charges accounting for 37% of gross, it is reasonable to assume that a sharp increase in interest rates would reduce profit margins and a decrease would produce the reverse effect. The 148% rebound in share price from May lows is ample market recognition of reduced interest rates.

Earnings benefits from investment tax credits, which expire this year, may be offset by an accounting rule revision now in preparation. Under the new rule, companies owning 20% to 50% of another firm would be allowed to commingle earnings rather than taking only dividends, as received, into income. For U.S. Leasing, with a 20% interest in an English, Hawaiian and a Philippine firm, this could be significant. Shares should be held for speculative potential.

Q: My state taxes the interest on bonds which are exempt from federal taxation. Do all states do this? — A.G.

A: Your situation points up the necessity of clarifying — before purchase — the tax status of a security in your state of residence. Because tax treatment varies so widely from state-to-state, it would take volumes to cover the subject. A local tax specialist or municipal bond man should have available the rules which apply in your state.

As a general rule of thumb, interest on debt securities offered by a state or its municipalities are exempt from income tax in the state of issue. This, though, does not rule out possible personal property tax liability. Yours could also be one of several states which have reciprocal tax agreements. However, interest on Puerto Rican bonds is tax exempt from both federal and state taxes regardless of the owners state of residence.

Calls Defined

Q: I have noticed advertisements in newspapers for calls. Would you explain what they are and how they work? — F.T.

A: Calls are options to purchase a given stock within a specified time limit and at a stated price. In order for a call buyer to profit, the stock must go up in price. A typical call contract is written for 100 shares to be purchased within six months and 10 days. The buyer pays a premium usually about 15% of the current total cost for 100 shares. For shares trading at 30 a call would cost approximately $450.

The "striking price" — buy level specified by the call — is usually close to current trading price. In our example striking price would be around 30, thus in order to make a profit shares would have to rise about 34 1/2, not including commissions. This would cover the cost of 100 shares at 30 plus the $450 call premium.

This call would be exercised simply by buying the 100 shares at 30 any time through the expiration date. Profit, of course, would not be realized until shares are sold.

The advantages of a call are: a proportionally smaller initial investment which increases leverage and a known, limited risk. Regardless of how far shares may plunge, the loss is limited to the cost of the call which is then allowed to expire.

The call, which is in bearer form and therefore negotiable, is held by the broker. Not only do the terms of the option appear on the contract, but also an endorsement by a New York Stock Exchange member firm guaranteeing delivery of the shares within the time limit and at the striking price.

As a general rule, dealers write options on request from potential buyers. Terms vary; thus it pays to have your broker shop around for the most advantageous contract. The advertisements you mention represent a minor portion of a dealer's business, inventory which he has built up through writing other types of option contracts.

DANGER ON BOTH SIDES
LONDON — Simon Frisner, chairman of the Association of Polish Jewish ex-Servicemen, charged that although "the generation of the holocaust is still alive, anti-Semitism is still rampant in many countries." Speaking to more than 700 people attending the 28th commemoration of the Warsaw Ghetto uprising, Frisner declared: "The danger comes not only from the Right but even more from the old and new Left. The Polish Communist regime has accomplished what Hitler did not achieve, and today Poland is almost free of Jews."

NOT WELFARE

TEL AVIV — Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir told the Labor Party convention that bigger welfare benefits will not eliminate poverty in Israel. "You can get rid of poverty by giving people an education, qualification for employment, a decent job and the possibility of acquiring a decent home to live in," Sapir said. Yitzhak Ben-Aharon, secretary general of Histadrut, Israel's trade union federation, told the convention delegates that a "fat, satisfied labor movement" is not capable of feeling the hunger of the have-nots.

SAMARITANS
TEL AVIV — The 430-member Samaritan community of Nablus (Schechem) has asked for Israeli citizenship. Their city is called "the capital of the West Bank," and they do not want to be returned to any Arab state if border lines are changed in a peace settlement.

The Samaritans believe they are the descendants of the Tribes of Ephraim and Manasseh, they have their own version of the Torah, and they still sacrifice a Pesah lamb atop Mt. Gerizim.
 Aside from Nablus, only Holon (near Tel Aviv) has a Samaritan community — a very tiny one of less than 100.

New York: Ed Weisl, who was LBJ's lawyer here is at Presbyterian Hospital... Carder's will have an exhibit of jewelry from Israel next month... Jacques Tati, the French star says he sold his Academy Award Oscar... The widow of Arthur Conan Doyle's son is selling the rights to the Sherlock Holmes stories.
 Rex Harrison and Elizabeth Harris are off to Morocco, to cruise on the Richard Burtons' yacht... Playwright Alan Scott is negotiating with the Desert Inn in Las Vegas for his modern version of "La Boheme... set in the East Village... Shirley MacLaine is writing the woman's angle for an article in a British daily, "What Men Don't Understand About Women." The male angle will be written by Erich Segal.

 Ring Lardner Jr., who won an Oscar for his "M.A.S.H." screenplay, was blacklisted during the '50s. He was one of the group called Hollywood's Unfriendly Ten. Dalton Trumbo was also one of the Ten. Trumbo, whose newest film is his adaptation of his novel, "Johnny Got His Gun," used to write screenplays under assumed names, some of which won Oscars.
 Trumbo wouldn't name the prize-winning movies, saying only, "More than one and less than four."
 Maureen Stapleton was at the premiere of "Summer of '42." It's the fifth time she saw it. Her daughter is in it... Jackie Gleason decided against having his TV sets built into the ceiling at his new home in Ft. Lauderdale's Inverrary after the workers had tested it by watching it from the floor.
 U.S. Customs Court Judge Bernard Newman, who was appointed to judicial posts by a mayor, a governor and a president, has just been assigned by Chief Justice Burger to sit in federal District Court for the next two months.
 There'll be a one-hour TV special to celebrate Jan Peerce's 30th anniversary of his debut at the Metropolitan... August Heckscher received from BOAC Chairman Keith Granville a silver replica of the airline's new 747, at the Rainbow Room... Joseph Wilder whose paintings are at the Allan Stone Gallery, is also chief of surgery at the Hospital for Joint Diseases. He operated on Zero Mostel and last week on Mrs. Mostel.
 Murray Gurfein, who was named to the federal bench by President Nixon last week was admonished not to smoke by President Eisenhower. The general told Gurfein that he gave up smoking on orders from his doctor. Then, when he saw a man smoking he thought, "what a lucky fellow." But years later, Eisenhower said:
 "When I saw a man smoking I thought, 'What a damn fool.'"
 Rod Steiger told David Frost: "I'm a man who grew up in the Navy, and never found the right ocean"... Dr. Harvey Friedman will be seen on long distance Bell's TV special, "Record Makers," because at 18 he became a professor at Stanford University.
 Mrs. Vincent Astor and Joseph H. Hazen will be among the 30 Members of the Museum of the Modern Art's International Council going to Japan for their spring meeting. The museum's film curator, Donald Richie, who's lived in Japan, gave the council members a talk on Japanese etiquette as a guide to the local customs:
 He told them: "Never leave chopsticks in the dish. That's the way of offering food to the dead."
 The late David Burns, who won a Tony nomination for his last Broadway role, has been nominated for an Emmy for best supporting performance in "The Price." He also may win a posthumous Oscar nomination for Cinema Center's "Who Is Harry Kellerman?"... Mayors of 17 major cities will be John Lindsay's guests this week at "Two by Two."
 On the morning after Ryan O'Neal had attended the Academy Awards as a nominee he joined William Holden on the MGM lot to film a barroom brawl for "The Wild Rovers." The director told O'Neal: "I want you to go berserk in this scene. Pretend that everyone you swing at is George C. Scott."
 Tony Award-winner Brian Bedford's "School for Wives" teaches acting twice a week at the Juilliard School.

Younger Religious Group Can See Need For Changes

TEL AVIV — A generation gap has developed within the National Religious Party, whose younger elements see a need to ease the uncompromising Orthodoxy of their elders. Young party leaders have been discussing the possibility of introducing civil marriage in Israel for persons who, for various reasons, cannot be married according to Halacha.

The idea is anathema to the party leadership. Interior Minister Yosef Burg complained recently that "apparently the original values now remain with the elders." Minister for Religious Affairs Ze'arach Warhaftig accused the young party members of "undermining the very basis of the Jewish people's unity."
 But Rabbi Meir Cohen, head of Histadrut's religious department, praised the youngsters. He welcomed their discussion of the subject of civil marriage and expressed the hope that they would have courage to fight for the ideas that will "clear the polluted atmosphere" on the issue of state and religion.

 The subject of civil marriage and other religious reforms was to have been discussed at the recent Labor Party convention but was deferred because Premier Golda Meir and other ministers feared it would offend their NRP coalition partners.
 But the Orthodox religious establishment is coming under increasing pressure to reform from within or face inevitable legislation that would end its exclusive control of religious and family matters in the state. The main issues are marriage and the conversion of non-Jewish spouses of immigrants. The Israeli Rabbinate refuses to recognize conversions performed abroad by rabbis whose Orthodoxy it questions.
 Its recent refusal to issue marriage licenses to two young Israelis because it considered them to be "illegitimate" according to religious law aroused a wave of indignation in Israel and new demands for religious reforms.

B'nai B'rith Says U.S. Money Went To Anti-Semitic Group

NEW YORK — The Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith has criticized the United States government for a half-million dollar grant to an organization it charges is headed by "a professional anti-Semite" who is seeking to establish an anti-Semitic mercenary army.
 ADL general counsel Arnold Forster made that charge in reference to the so-called Blackman's Volunteer Army of Liberation, head by Col. Hassan Jeru-Ahmed, 47, director of the Blackman's Development Center in Washington.
 Forster told the Jewish Telegraphic Agency that Jeru-Ahmed had a background of "racism, bigotry and anti-Semitism," and that it was "totally inappropriate" for him to be given federal funds — $523,000 — for his narcotics-rehabilitation program in Washington and in Spotsylvania County, Va.

$25,000 from the Teamsters' Alliance for Labor Action. The organization's total income last year was $193,343; after expenditures, it had $1,500.
 The Blackman's Volunteer Army of Liberation is run in para-military style, with members wearing uniforms and participating in drills. Jeru-Ahmed's right-hand man, a Maj. Jamal, was sentenced earlier this year to 30 days for carrying a concealed pistol in Washington while distributing leaflets.

The ADL's fact-finding director, Justin Finger, added that Jeru-Ahmed has been "involved with known anti-Semites and racists," such as Willis Carto, head of the right-wing Liberty Lobby. Finger said the ADL has protested the grant to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.
 Jeru-Ahmed, who calls himself the head of the "Provisional Government of the United Moorish Republic," also gets $169,000 from the Narcotics Treatment Administration, also for work with drug addicts. Last year he received $23,000 from the Department of Human Resources, and last month

Children Of Immigrants Learn In Aliyah Schools
 NEW YORK — Nearly 400 children of immigrants from the Soviet Union are among the 11,000 youngsters being educated in Youth Aliyah schools during 1971, according to Joseph Klarman of Jerusalem, member of the Executive of the Jewish Agency and head of its Youth Aliyah department.
 Klarman, who arrived in this country to attend meetings here next week in connection with the reconstitution of the Jewish Agency said that Youth Aliyah plans to spend almost $9 million during the current year.
 Of the almost 11,000 wards of Youth Aliyah receiving their education in its youth villages, kibbutzim and day centers, about 1,200 were brought to Israel without their parents, including a steadily increasing number from the United States, Klarman said.

Synagogues In Washington Are Smeared, Vandalized

WASHINGTON — Swastikas and hammer-and-sickle emblems were painted on the walls of four synagogues and another synagogue was stoned here.

The foot-high desecrations were painted on with black enamel paint and the apparent use of stencils. The daubings — effected at night in a respectable, low-crime neighborhood — victimized Tifereth Israel, a Conservative temple, and Ohav Shalom, Beth Shalom and Agudath Achim, all Orthodox. Summit Hill Congregation, an Orthodox synagogue, was stoned during Passover services by assailants who fled.

Rabbi A. Nathan Abramowitz of Tifereth Israel, former chairman of the Washington Board of Rabbis, said that while a similar incident at his shul five years ago was found to have been committed by youngsters, this time "it looks like a professional job." The worst-marred building was Beth Shalom, suffering its first vandalism in its 13-year existence. All six of its doors were smeared with paint. Ironically, the building has floodlights that are on at night. Observers said the stoning of Summit Hill was apparently not connected with the smearings at the other four synagogues.

Although the neighborhood, in upper northwest Washington, has had its population turn in recent years from predominantly Jewish to significantly black, an official of one of the vandalized synagogues said Jewish-black relations in the area were friendly. Another official noted that the American Nazi Party held a rally here recently in Lafayette Park and that its 11 participants reportedly included four men who were allegedly beaten by Jewish Defense League members outside the White House earlier during a rally for Soviet Jews. He speculated that the neo-Nazis might have vandalized the synagogue to avenge themselves.

Agudath Israel Asks Israeli Government To Stop Pressure

NEW YORK — The Israeli government was asked by an emergency meeting of the executive committee of Agudath Israel of America this week to "halt its pressure tactics to attempt to coerce the Israeli rabbinate to compromise Torah law on conversions and personal marital status."

The call related to the ongoing controversy in Israel over the rabbinate's insistence upon strict adherence to Torah law (Halacha) in conversions to the Jewish faith and in the marital status of its citizens.

The call, which was issued over the signature of the chairman of Agudath Israel's executive committee, Rabbi Moshe Horowitz, declared: "Events in Israel during the past few weeks have pointed to an unprecedented campaign being waged by many people, including members of the Cabinet, against Torah standards for Halachic conversion and personal marital status. These eternal laws of unchanging relevance are being challenged with coercive demands for modification and amendment to suit the wishes of secularist elements."

ESTABLISH NAHAL
TEL AVIV — Another Nahal — para-military settlement — was officially established in the Arava region of the Negev about 20 miles north of Eilat and less than two miles west of the Jordanian border. Named Nahal Katora, it will produce early winter vegetables that thrive in the hot, dry climate. Agriculture Minister Chaim Gvati attended inauguration ceremonies.

French-Trained Spies Arrested In Israel

JERUSALEM — Israeli police disclosed the arrests last week of five French-trained saboteurs working for Arab terrorist organizations. The round-up was described as one of the biggest coups of Israel's counter-espionage service. According to Jacob Turjeman, a police spokesman, it forestalled a wave of sabotage and terror in Israel including a plot to hijack a TWA airliner in flight from Lydda to New York.

Turjeman said details of the affair were passed on to Interpol and to the various police forces in Europe which led to the arrest of a group of terrorists in Rome. He told newsmen at a press conference that the first arrest in Israel was made April 11 at Lydda Airport. Police seized two sisters, Nadia and Madeleine Bardley, aged 26 and 21, who were caught with forged passports and luggage filled with various types of high explosives. The girls reportedly confessed membership in the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine in France. Their father is Moslem and their mother Christian.

On April 12 police arrested 26-year-old Evelyn Brage at Lydda Airport. The German-born woman who was raised in France was said to have been exposed as one of the PFLP members who planned the multiple airliner hijackings of last September. She also reportedly admitted committing sabotage in a West European Country. Police did not release further details.

The most bizarre case revealed by Turjeman was the arrest of two French tourists at a Tel Aviv hotel last week who were found in possession of high explosives concealed in shoe heels, clothing lining and in a lady's handbag. The pair was identified as Pierre Burghalter, 69 and his wife, Edith, 60. According to police the couple was carrying the most sophisticated sabotage device yet known in Israel.

It consisted of articles of clothing soaked in a liquid which, when dried, become explosive. The Burghalters allegedly planned to detonate the impregnated articles in schools and other public places. According to police the couple was paid $2,000 to commit sabotage in Israel.

Students Picket May Co. For Selling Russian Goods

LOS ANGELES — The city's largest department store, the May Company, was picketed by more than 200 students protesting its selling of Russian vodka, caviar and furs and its giving floor space to a travel agency selling tours to the Soviet Union.

The demonstration was coordinated by the Southern California Council for Soviet Jews and the California Students for Soviet Jews. Zev Yaroslavsky, chairman of the SCCSJ, said the demonstrators had "exposed (May's) complicity with the Soviet's oppression of Jews" and "we intend to see to it that Americans stop spending American dollars in the Fascists' dictatorial Soviet Union."

He added that there was "an excellent possibility that May Company will take all Soviet goods off their shelves and will evict the travel agency involved in selling tours to the USSR." But he added: "If they don't make any concessions then we will make hell for May Company."

OPPOSED
WASHINGTON — Sen. Gordon L. Allott, Republican of Colorado, declared his opposition to a Middle East peace force that would include Soviet soldiers. "No sensible solution," he advised his colleagues, "will attempt to legitimize the Russian presence, which he called 'the major source of unresolvable tensions' in the area.

Sadat Meets With United States Official, Supposedly To Promote Suez Agreement

CAIRO — President Anwar el-Sadat conferred for more than an hour and a half last week with a visiting State Department official at a crucial moment in United States efforts to promote an agreement on an Israeli pullback in the Sinai Peninsula and subsequent reopening of the Suez Canal.

The meeting with Michael Sterner, who is the chief desk officer for Egyptian affairs in the State Department, followed a strongly worded article in the authoritative Cairo daily Al Ahram declaring that the Egyptian leadership "categorically rejected" conditions put forth by Israel for acceptance of the pullback proposal.

The Israelis are reported to be insisting on an Egyptian declaration formally ending the state of belligerency, separation of a canal agreement from the broader negotiating effort of Dr. Gunnar V. Jarring, the United Nations Intermediary, and guarantees that no Egyptian or Soviet forces would be permitted to cross the canal once the Israelis pulled back from the area.

Al Ahram's reaction was not necessarily the final word on the issue, but it reflected a growing wariness here on the terms for implementation of the plan.

No details were made public on the talks between Mr. Sadat and Mr. Sterner, who arrived here on what was described as a routine orientation visit. It was

Mr. Sterner who escorted Mr. Sadat on a tour of the United States in 1966.

Earlier, Mr. Sterner met with Salah Gohar, Under Secretary of the Foreign Ministry. Reliable sources reported that Mr. Gohar had emphasized that there could be no breakthrough on the Suez Canal plan before Israel had formally declared an intent to withdraw fully from the Sinai Peninsula. Egyptian sources commented that once such a commitment had been obtained from Israel the details for implementing the Suez Canal plan probably could be negotiated with some give-and-take on both sides.

President Sadat, in an announcement on April 2, offered to reinstate the formal cease-fire — which expired March 7 — for a fixed period if the Israelis withdrew from the eastern bank of the canal. He also suggested the establishment of a neutral zone in the Sinai Peninsula to separate Egyptian and Israeli troops. However, he insisted that Egyptian forces cross to the eastern shore of the canal.

The United States has undertaken the thorny task of promoting an agreement on Mr. Sadat's proposal, and the issue presumably was foremost among the subjects discussed by Mr. Sadat and Mr. Sterner.

Mr. Sadat's reaction to Israel's counterproposals may be decisive to tentative plans by Secretary of State William P.

Rogers to visit Cairo during the first week of May.

The Egyptians have informed Mr. Rogers that he is welcome if he wishes to come. But they seem dubious about the benefit of such a visit, and clearly do not expect him here if the Suez Canal proposal breaks apart.

Egypt's stand on her terms for reopening the canal seems to have been bolstered by Soviet assurances of support to Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad during recent consultations in Moscow.

The Soviet assurances were important to the Egyptian leadership, which has reacted with considerable agitation to news reports about additional deliveries of Phantom fighter-bombers to Israel by the United States, and Israeli requests to buy still more to balance a new build-up of Egyptian air defenses with Soviet assistance.

Despite the agitation, Egyptian officials are stressing that there still remains a possibility of a political solution of the conflict with Israel.

It is being emphasized, however, that the solution must be achieved before Sept. 1, where plebiscites will be conducted in Egypt, Libya and Syria for a federation.

Once the federation takes effect, Egyptians say, Egypt then will be committed to go along with the extremist, no-compromise positions of the Libyan and Syrian Governments toward Israel.

Continues To Attract Foreign Capital

NEW YORK — Israel continues to attract foreign capital at a record pace despite the political situation in the Near East, Yeshapahu Stopper, director of Israel's Investment Authority, said here last week, according to a New York Times article by Herbert Koshetz.

So far this year, Mr. Stopper's agency has approved industrial and commercial ventures involving a total investment of $250-million, and before the year is out, approvals could be double that amount.

In 1970, the authority approved $500-million in new ventures and in 1969 the figure was $300-million, Mr. Stopper said in an interview at the New York headquarters of the agency.

"Israel has never been in a total state of peace," he pointed out, "but I foresee a continued period of quiet and if the Suez Canal is reopened, the atmosphere for foreign investments will be even better."

Israel's law for Encouragement of Capital Investment is designed primarily to funnel investment into export-oriented industries in areas where little industry exists at present. These areas include the Negev, all of Gallilee and the Besan Valley.

Slightly less favorable terms are offered for investment in the more populated areas such as the Northern Negev and the Jerusalem area, and other urban areas.

"Approved Enterprises" under the law get tax concessions, cash grants, development loans and deferment of fees. Such ventures, for instance pay only 33 percent company profit tax for a period of five years, or about half of the normal income tax of other businesses, and are entitled to a depreciation allowance of twice the usual rate.

In most ventures, the Government of Israel will supply up to 60 percent of total capitalization of which up to 20 percent is in outright grants and the balance in loans with interest ranging from 6.5 percent to 9 percent, depending on the area involved. Under the investment program, Mr. Stopper said, Israel will double output of such products as pantyhose and knitted fabrics. Textiles, however, he said, are only a small part of the expansion program financed by foreign capital and government funds.

A large portion of investment approvals this year were for tankers and for the metal industries.

"All metal plants in Israel are in the process of expansion," Mr. Stopper noted, "and part of the growth has been dictated by Israel's defense needs."

Defense spending accounts for 40 percent of the total Israeli budget, or more than $1.6-billion. In the chemical field, Israel has under consideration a project for production of magnesium oxide which is plentiful in the Dead Sea. It is also thinking about establishment of an enterprise to produce magnesium metal.

Mr. Stopper noted that the "approved industries" play a very important role in Israel's exports, which helps to offset its unfavorable balance of trade.

The Government's goal is to double its current exports, now valued at $78-million, in the next five years.

Tourism in Israel has been increasing at a tremendous rate and this has created a need for additional hotel accommodations.

In 1969 and 1970, the Government approved plans for providing 4,000 to 5,000 new hotel rooms. About 1,500 will be ready at the end of this year.

Mr. Stopper said that the Investment Authority is particularly interested in projects that can utilize Israel's high scientific and technological competence.

"Our engineering and scientific costs," he said, "are among the lowest in the world."

He cited the experience of Motorola, which manufactures communication equipment in Israel. In 1970, it exported merchandise valued at $2.2-million. This year, it has export orders for $6-million, he said.

Last year, all John Benson saved was $54.32. This year, he joined the Payroll Savings Plan.

Poor John. Money just seemed to slip right through his fingers. Every time he planned to stash something away, there wasn't anything left.

Then John decided to join the Payroll Savings Plan where he works. Now, an amount he specifies is automatically set aside from his check before he gets it. And invested in U.S. Savings Bonds.

Because John has become such a systematic saver, he's almost forgotten about it. When he gets around to remembering, he's going to have quite a nest egg laid away.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5½% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra ½%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970 . . . with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

If you keep forgetting to save something out of your check, join the Payroll Savings Plan and let somebody else do the remembering for you.

Bonds are safe. If lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace them. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Tax may be deferred until redemption. And always remember, Bonds are a proud way to save.

Take stock in America. Now Bonds pay a bonus at maturity.

Israeli Government Authorizes Further Discussions On Suez

JERUSALEM — The Israeli Government reviewed the latest diplomatic exchanges with the United States and authorized further discussions aimed at finding a formula to reopen the Suez Canal and separate the Israeli and Egyptian front lines.

Foreign Minister Abba Eban reported on the discussions that have taken place in the last week, an official spokesman said. These include the submission of Israel's basic ideas, the follow-up conversation of Deputy Premier Yigal Allon and Secretary of State William P. Rogers, in Washington, and the subsequent contacts preparing for Mr. Rogers' forthcoming visit to the Middle East.

Officials declined to disclose the details of the consultations. But they left no doubt that they were taking the exchanges seriously and saw reason to expect progress despite the wide gulf between the public positions of Israel and Egypt.

From the intensity of the discussion between Israel and the United States, it can be assumed that there is disagreement between them about the tactics of the current delicate diplomacy, but officials here discounted its significance.

A potentially significant nuance seems to have slipped into the Israeli position as it is discussed, a gentler interpretation of a long-standing Israeli condition that might make it easier for Egypt to accept.

This involves the requirement that Cairo accept an "end to belligerency" as one of the conditions for an Israeli pullback from the canal's eastern bank to permit the waterway to be cleared and operated. The Suez Canal has been closed by Cairo since the six-day war of 1967. For 23 years ever since Israel became a state, Egypt and Israel have been in a technical state of belligerency, whether or not there was fighting actually going on.

Israeli officials now use the phrase, in citing their requirements during the current diplomatic activity, "absolute certainty that there will be no resumption of fighting" across the canal if the Israeli forces pull back far enough to allow it to operate.

This is seen here as a more practical statement of Israel's immediate interests, bypassing any ideological meaning that anyone might want to attribute to an "end to belligerency."

ABORTIONS
TEL-AVIV — 65,000 abortions were performed for both married and unmarried women in Israel during the years 1969 and 1970, according to a statement by Dr. Paul Elias, head of the Gynecological Section of a Rehobot hospital.

He filed the report as part of a criminal action in which Dr. Elias stands accused of having carried out illegal abortions in the Kupat Holim Hospital at Rehobot. In defense of his actions, he argued that abortions are taking place in all hospitals of the Kupat Holim and also in private hospitals, and that the government authorities are fully aware of them.

New Federation Of Arab States May Ruin Chances Of Suez Deal

JERUSALEM — Authoritative Israeli sources said last week that the announced federation of Egypt, Libya and Syria virtually kills whatever chances there may have been for an interim agreement with Egypt to reopen the Suez Canal.

However, the sources observed, the federation is not to become effective until Sept. 1 which gives President Anwar Sadat of Egypt ample time to act as if there was no federation. The appraisal of the federation's effect on an interim agreement was based on the terms of the pact which Sadat disclosed in Cairo, particularly Egypt's undertaking not to relinquish an inch of territory occupied by Israel in the Six-Day War and not to hold direct negotiations with Israel.

The feeling here is that Egypt has by its own volition bound itself to a much tighter framework than hitherto and has restricted its freedom to enter into a partial arrangement with Israel at this time. The federation pact was signed at Benghazi, Libya in the early hours of Saturday after three days of round-the-clock meetings. The signatories, Sadat, President Muammer el-Qaddafi of Libya and President Hafez al-Assad of Syria pledged to come to each others aid, even if the state needing aid is unable to request it as, for example, in the case of a coup d'etat.

Sudan, which is linked to Egypt and Libya in a cooperative alliance did not join the federation at this time because of "special circumstances," according to Sadat. It is believed that a strong Communist element in Sudan is resisting adherence to the federation. Plebiscites will be held in Egypt, Libya and Syria Sept. 1 to endorse the federation agreement.

Sources here said a further obstacle toward reopening the Suez Canal emerged in Cairo following a meeting between Soviet Foreign Minister Andre A. Gromyko and Egypt's Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad. Both countries reportedly agreed that the reopening of the waterway could be regarded only as a prelude toward a comprehensive settlement on the basis of the Security Council's Resolution 242 which, by Arab-Soviet interpretation means that Israel must commit itself in advance to total withdrawal from all occupied territories. Such terms are unacceptable to Israel.

Moreover, according to the sources, Israel's attitude is that the waterway is not vital to its interests and any agreement to reopen it would amount to a concession by Israel to Egypt and the Soviet Union. The Israelis say they are not going to "pay a price" in order to make a concession to their antagonists.

In announcing the tripartite federation, Sadat emphasized that the leaders of Libya and Syria agreed to channel the resources of their countries toward the liberation of all Arab territory gate, it was your generation who let the Germans commit atrocities against the Jews worse than frogs and mice, and it was you and your generation that spent millions of dollars on a fiasco called Brussels solely to praise the "Brave Red Army."

Mr. Segal, the revolution is over and the Communists have won. Are your emotional ties to "mother Russia" so sweet that you will not recognize that Russia is now—as before—the enemy of the Jew? Russia is destroying the Soviet Jews and trying with all her might to destroy Israel, yet you contend that we must console "the Soviet office workers who were scared to death by the frogs and mice in New York." You identify, not with Jews but with the Soviets as you say "Today we shall put ourselves in the place of the Soviet Office workers..." Do you feel like switching places with people? How about Mark Dymshitz, is he worthy enough for you to take his place or is he just a lowly Jew? Well Mr. Segal, he's Jewish and proud of it, and that's why he's spending time in Siberia. There is, my dear man, a resurgence of Jewish youth burning with Jewish pride, and the "Pandora's Box" will be closed off by you—if you get off your apathy and do, do, do more.

Secondly, please don't compliment yourself so much by saying the youth are "imitating us... they apply imagination and unwillness to what we did in a sedate, dignified manner." My G-d, you were so sedate that you fell asleep and so dignified as your counterparts were defiled. Dignity, how can you possess such virtue if the life of Russian Jews is so meaningless.

Where was your dignity and Jewish pride after Auschwitz? Where was your dignity when the Jews were herded into gas chambers—that's not dignity that's "respectability" and it is time we Jews buried our respectability before it buries us—again. Again and again I can scream and rant and rave but you and others like you will do nothing. You were born in a generation which generated apathy and you think if you close your eyes it will go away—No, it grows like a cancer until you find it necessary to sympathize with "my" enemies. "Wake Up." Realize what the Soviets have done in the past and what they can do in the future. You are right, the stick has two ends; one end is the Russian enemy, and the other end is not the Soviet Jew as you would like to believe but rather the American Jew, who would like to stay in his comfortable home. You fear turning over the applecart, but if you don't turn over the applecart and the Jews in Russia die, you can put yourself on the applecart and roll it out the window. Incidentally, how is it that I've never seen you at a protest yet; is it that the sidewalks are too hard or are your convictions too weak. Russia understands only one language so we must speak that language—Action, action and more action! We must turn the Soviet Jewish problem into the Soviet Jewish "Issue." That "beautiful scene" of frogs and mice and more and more like it will turn the problem into the issue and that is a beautiful scene.

I will now answer your question regarding our interruptions of the concerts by Soviet artists and I quote once again "of all people to be maligned, artists should be the last ones. Can anyone honestly tell me why a violinist, a pianist, a dancer should be made to pay for the political machinations of the Kremlin? Especially when some of these artists are Jews themselves?"

Mr. Segal, I love culture, ballet, and a good violinist. However, when I listen to these masters of the arts how can I believe that the monsters in Russia can kill; how can one who is so sophisticated, so refined and so sensitive kill; how can a cultured person kill, how—look at the Germans who were considered to be at the apex of cultural development look—they didn't kill, they slaughtered.

Can a butcher be a violinist? Not necessarily, but that violinist is a political weapon, used to anesthetize the American public, and anesthetize it has.

Secondly, concerning this point, Russia needs cultural exchange to help build up its greatly troubled economy. Russia's gross national expenditure is exorbitant; it can't support both guns and butter. Every exchange program which is not cancelled is our sin, because Soviet culture will kill the Jews in the U.S.S.R.

Therefore Mr. Segal, perhaps incidents like these, of frogs and mice, will help you and all like you see the wisdom of our warnings and our ways, as we have seen the consequences of yours.

(5) Double-check the reasoning behind an adviser's recommendation, whenever you can — so you'll have a standard against which to weigh the security's performance.

(6) Beware the adviser who plugs one stock exclusively — for this could be a key clue to a fraud. "Honest advisers and brokers naturally have favorite stocks," says Springer, "but they will not try to shove them down your throat."

(7) Above all, don't expect miracles. No adviser, advisory service, broker or fund can double your money every year, "And anyone who promises to do so is a shyster."

And Springer reminds us that while some pros doubled their clients' assets in 1968, most then halved the assets in 1969.

This would be valuable advice at any time. It's particularly so in this spring of '71, when the "go-go genuses" of Wall Street are once more beckoning to the greedy and gullible.
