2,600-Year-Old Bookkeeping Records Found In Ancient Judean Desert City

TEL AVIV — In the ancient city of Arad in the Judean desert archaeologists have found accounts and vouchers from more than 2,600 years ago, which were kept by Elyashiv ben Ashyahu, presumably the official in charge of the stores in a royal fortress near a Hebrew temple dating back to the period of the Kings of Judea.

The fortress of Arad dominated the great international "highway" of the Kingdom of Judea, said Dr. Yohanan Aharoni of the Hebrew University in Jerusalem, who reported recently on the third season of excavations at Arad. "The excavations showed a picture of life that came to an end suddenly," he said, and added that the citadel was surrounded by a system of impressive fortifications including a wall 16 feet thick.

Speaking at the home of President Zalman Shazar about the latest finds at Arad, Dr. Aharoni said the bookkeeping records of Elyashiv consist of 20 earthenware fragments bearing inscriptions in ancient Hebrew and Aramaic. They were found within a layer of ashes in the very last days of the digging season.

Those deciphered so far are brief and businesslike and each seems to have been carefully dated.

One inscription ordered him to provide "the Hittites" with lodging, wine and bread for four days. Another, also addressed to Elyashiv, ordered him to load a couple of donkeys with leavened bread and send them to the city of Beersheba.

Another inscription aroused special interest among the archaeologists because it referred to the "House of God," which is probably the earliest known reference to the Temple in Jerusalem. The names mentioned in the inscriptions are all names that appear in the Bible as members of the priestly tribe.

This was regarded by the archaeologists as further support for the theory that the temple in Arad was a Hebrew sanctuary built within the Temple of Solomon still stood in Jerusalem.

In the sanctuary area two small altars were found on which there were still the remains of burnt offerings.

The archaeologists found great similarity between the architecture of the Arad temple and the Bible's descriptions of Solomon's Temple in Jerusalem. Both face westward, which is apparently rare in ancient sanctuaries. Near the temple there was evidence of a fire. Nearby several inscribed fragments were found, of which 80 were in Hebrew and the rest in Aramaic. Students of the origins of the Hebrew script consider these inscriptions of great value.

Passover Services

The Herald will list services for the beginning of Passover — for April 16, 17 and 18 — in its next issue. Temples and synagogues should have their service schedules in The Herald's office by next Monday, April 5, for the April 9 issue.

Civil Rights Leaders Charged With Lying

PITTSBURGH — A University of Pittsburgh chaplain, Rabbi Richard L. Rubenstein, charged that James Forman, executive director of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, and other civil rights leaders lied to student demonstrators in Montgomery, Ala. The rabbi's charges were rejected by two Roman Catholic priests and by 48 Pitt students who took part in the demonstration. Rabbi Rubenstein, who also participated in Montgomery, said the civil rights leaders "wanted the dead bodies" of the students, as martyrs.

The Rev. Donald McIlvane, a Catholic priest, said it was not possible in so difficult a situation as that at Montgomery to hand out mimeographed instructions.

"If there was a slight deception," Father McIlvane said, "it was less a sin in the eyes of God than the oppression today in Alabama and Mississippi."

The Rev. Xavier Carroll of Mount Mercy College said he "was full of admiration for the S.N.C.C. leadership." He said they might be immature and smoulder violently beneath the surface but, "I have a violent smouldering within me, too."

Father Carroll disputed Rabbi Rubenstein's accusations that the S.N.C.C. leaders were "activists and revolutionaries" and said he regarded them as "completely devoted to human rights."

Six Pittsburgh students who took part in the demonstration are still in jail in Montgomery and are on a hunger strike.

Eddie Zaretsky To Write Column On Golf For Herald

Eddie Zaretsky, well-known local golf professional, will start his column on Golf in next week's issue of the Herald.

A golf professional for 13 years, Mr. Zaretsky has worked as associate golf pro at the Ledgemont Country Club, and as pro at the Crestwood Country Club. While working in California, he taught golf to such celebrities as Bob Hope, George Gobel and Dennis Morgan.

Associated for many years with one of the great golf teachers, Ernest Jones, Mr. Zaretsky has also been co-producer of the golf show "Trouble Golf."

"We were more truly rabbis during that period than during most of our rabbinical activities around here. Whether among Jews or Christians, we felt we functioned effectively." "While no one expected immediate results, there were immediate results: Negroes worshipped with whites that Sunday, the very weekend of the demonstration." "I stepped out of line onto the sidewalk, for a few minutes. One of the colored people marching said, 'Look at him! There's a white man with a smile on his face.' The other white faces on the sidewalk were scowling." These are the comments of three Providence-area rabbis who went to Montgomery, Alabama.

Rabbi William G. Braude of Temple Beth El, Rabbi Saul Leeman of the Cranston Jewish Center, and Rabbi Nathan N. Rosen, Director of the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation at Brown University, joined the civil rights marchers in a demonstration that vividly recalls, by its positive non-violence, Mahatma Gandhi's march to make salt.

Their reasons for going varied, but in essence were the same. Rabbi Rosen's first pulpit was in Savannah, Ga., where for three years he "witnessed the indignities and injustices visited on the Negro population. They were considered sub-human." As a member of the Governor's Board for Advancement of Negro Culture (the Georgia branch of a national society), he visited Negro schools and saw their "physical lacks. They were broken-down buildings, in miserable slums. On one occasion the president of a Negro college visited me in my temple and had to walk in the back way. This was standard procedure, but it struck me as a fantastic thing. I caught the flavor of this bigotry and intolerance. When this small opportunity came, I felt I had to go."

"I went because it was difficult not to go when one saw pictures of what occurred at Selma; and heard Dr. Martin Luther King calling his brother clergy to stand by him in the fight," said Rabbi Leeman. "We have to be very thankful a man like Dr. King heads this. It could have been Malcolm X or some other hothead."

"When I was a little boy and came to the United States, for the first time I saw policemen who not only didn't harm me but would help me. Little Jewish boys in Russia were afraid of policemen, as little Negro boys are in the South. I wanted to change a situation where boys in America are afraid of policemen, to do what little I could. Also I felt a sense of sympathy with these people who so needed the sympathy of others," said Rabbi Braude.

Rabbis Leeman and Braude were together during the whole visit. They were in and about Montgomery on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, and joined the march for about 13 miles. They distributed leaflets to Negroes urging them to attend a rally, march to the capitol, and register as voters. Like many other sympathizers from the North, they slept in a Negro home.

Rabbi Rosen had planned to leave the National Conference of Hillel Directors, which was meeting in New York, on Tuesday, but the airline had mislaid his reservation so he returned to Providence. One of the students going on a flight chartered by the Rhode Island State Council of Churches gave up his seat to the rabbi, who left on Wednesday with a group of 25 Rhode Islanders. At Logan Airport they were given canteens which they filled with water.

"I thought it strange," said the Brown University chaplain. "We were going to be in the United States, we weren't going (Continued on Page 8)"

BRIDGE

By Robert E. Starr

Two up-and-coming Providence players, Mrs. Meyer Miller,
North, and Mrs. Max Kotler, South, were the heroines in today's hand. By precise bidding they were able to reach the fine slam contract which most other pairs were unable to get to.

South (Mrs. Kotler)

Neither side was vulnerable with North dealer. The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1D	1H	2C	Pass
2D	Pass	2S	Pass
4C	Pass	4S	Pass
4NT	Pass	5H	Pass
6C	Pass	Pass	Pass

West led the 10 of Hearts won by the Ace in dummy. The rest of the play was routine with dummy's entries being carefully preserved while the Diamonds were being set up. With both trumps and diamonds breaking, Mrs. Kotler made seven. She first played the Ace of Diamonds and trumped one, went over to the King of Clubs and trumped another diamond with both opponents playing their last. She now extracted trumps and returned to dummy with the Spade king to run the rest of the diamonds.

Let us return to the bidding.
Although Mrs. Kotler had only 8 high card points, she had 6 — 5 distribution which is in the realm of the freaks. If partner had a fit for either there should be at least a game so she bid normally to give the exact picture of her distribution. By first bidding clubs and then bidding and rebidding a higher ranking suit, she showed exactly her 6 — 5 hand. Mrs.

Miller knew that her two aces would take care of whatever red cards partner had and also that she had a terrific fit in Clubs and the very valuable King of Spades.
Hence, her going to slam.

Today's moral: The partnership with the best communication will come out ahead. The cards usually even up.

For A Happy Passover . . .

There are many reasons why a Jew can be proud to be a Jew. The traditions, the religion, the way of life have always been such that, regardless of how one has been a Jew, just knowing that one is, is a good thing. Perhaps, the tradition of helping others has been the one of which a Jew can be most proud.

Beryl Segal has written of it before; Rabbi David Jehuda of the Providence Hebrew Day School spoke of it on his return from Israel.

In the old days, charity was not the same as it is now — it was not charity — it was part of the way of living. An open container with money was left in a small room in the synagogue. A person went into this room by himself; there were no guards or policemen. If he was in need he took; if he had, he gave. No one knew which. But in this way, the ones who were better off were able to help those in need; those in need could be helped without embarrassment.

In the more complicated society in which we now live, it undoubtedly would be impossible to help those in need in exactly the same way. But there are still ways of helping, of giving.

The Moes Chitim Fund is a continuation of a long tradition of helping those who cannot help themselves to enjoy the holiday of Passover properly. It is difficult enough for many people to keep themselves and their families fed, clothed and with a roof over their heads in ordinary times. To buy the necessary foods for Passover, a time to be happy and thankful, is completely impossible.

Through the Moes Chitim Fund these people are helped to have a happy holiday, and those who receive can be thankful without the embarrassment of public charity.

If you can, it is good to give so that you can be happy in giving, as those who need are thankful in receiving. When they can, they will give, too.

Right Of Peaceful Assembly

The right of peaceful assembly has often been used — and many times misused — to focus attention on injustice.

The famous Boston Tea Party, despite its unquestionable provocation, can hardly be rationalized as a legal or proper use of this right. Organized labor, in its quest for social justice, has often used this and other "rights" to trample on the rights of others. In the name of free speech, some University of California students with dirty placards have been blatantly infringing on the rights of fellow citizens. The sit-ins at the White House may be harmless, but certainly detract from the dignity of that center of government.

On the other hand, the undignified campaign of the suffragettes, some fifty years ago, did right a significant social injustice, without violence to the general society. The same might be said of the progress of the Civil Rights movement as epitomized by Martin Luther King. Despite objections as to the wisdom or seamliness of the rally in Washington last year and the march to Montgomery last week — a walk taken by several Rhode Island Rabbis — these things are within both the letter and the spirit of the law. Seldom in the history of the world has injustice been fought with such prudence.

Historical Notes, Volume 4

By Beryl Segal

The Jewish Historical Association has just sent out to its members and to libraries across the land another issue of the Historical Notes. It is the fourth volume in the series, and like the preceding volumes, it contains articles of interest to Rhode Island.

The content of the volume is: The First Twenty Years of Temple Emanuel, by Rabbi Israel M. Goldman.

Isaac Moses, A Colorful Rhode Island Politician, by Melvin L. Zurier.

A Social Profile of the Jewish Population of Greater Providence, by Dr. Sidney Goldstein.

Early Exponent of Physical Fitness, by Beryl Segal.

The Historical Notes are edited by Dr. Seibert Jay Goldowsky.

The history of Temple Emanuel takes up the greater part of the volume. This is the second article by Rabbi Goldman on the congregation in which he was the central figure. Who else but the Rabbi can tell the story of his own Temple? During his rabbinic tenure, Dr. Goldman carefully saved and arranged every printed word, every letter the temple received or sent, every little note that will turn out of importance. Dr. Goldman was right. The volumes of pasted clippings he preserved proved important when he came to write the history of Temple Emanuel. We wish that all the other Synagogues and Shulim in the city were as fortunate as Emanuel. When it comes to preserving records, few of them, especially the older ones, can compare to Emanuel.

Emanuel was also fortunate in the tenure of its Rabbis. Dr. Israel Goldman was Rabbi at Emanuel from 1925, when he came as a student Rabbi, to 1948. Only a Rabbi who has been with a congregation so many years can write so glowingly, and from such personal knowledge, of the events that shaped the temple.

The Rhode Island Historical Association is very happy to record the fortunes of Emanuel during the first two decades and looks forward to publishing the history of the temple up to this decade.

The article is well illustrated and contains names of people who have been in the midst of the life of our community for many years. The picture of the president of the temple, the late Judge Philip C. Joslin, is on the cover page.

Dr. Sidney Goldstein, Professor of Sociology and Anthropology at Brown University, has performed a pioneering work in Providence. He has undertaken a study of the Jews of Greater Providence, and with the help of many volunteers, he has compiled the first comprehensive Population Study of the community. The study has been financed by the General Jewish Committee of Providence and is a valuable contribution to a better understanding of the needs, the trends, and the status of the Jewish population. It is also a contribution to the understanding of the Jews of America in general. Jewish life in Providence is not much different than it is in other cities in America, and the findings of the study are therefore in accord with similar surveys performed in other cities.

Dr. Goldstein has given us a short summary of the main work which is a bulky volume of over 250 pages containing graphs and statistical charts. Here in the article appearing in the Historical Notes Dr. Goldstein condensed the study and we have in it the most essential facts, and also conclusions about the population of Providence. Those who become interested can go to the greater work which may be obtained from the General Jewish Committee. It tells the main story appearing in the condensed form in the Historical Notes.

Soon after the death of Isaac Moses I received a letter from a lady suggesting that I write about this man who has been such a lively figure on the political scene of Providence. Unfortunately, I did not feel equal to the task since

I did not know Isaac Moses well enough. All I remember of Isaac Moses was his modest car filled with all kinds of printed material, and bearing a sign: "Vote for Good Government." I never heard him speak; I never heard him express his ideas and political convictions. I could not write about the man.

I was, therefore, very happy when a young man, son of an old family in the city, presented to us the story of the life and work of Isaac Moses. Melvin L. Zurier, a new member in the Historical Association, knew Isaac Moses, and what is more important, has admired the man and his political activities. Mr. Zurier has written an admirable profile of Isaac Moses and he has finally, ten years after his death, redeemed him and put up a monument to his name.

We are expecting great things from Mr. Zurier. The next article of his will deal with another figure in Providence politics, Jacob Eaton, a Republican in the North End of the city, and State Representative from that district.

The letter from Dr. Theodore Herzl to Samuel Mason of Providence came to light some time ago when the Honorable Levi Eshkol, the Prime Minister of Israel, was in this country and was presented with the original of the letter for the Herzl Collection in the museum in Israel. The letter was in the archives of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, from which we obtained a copy. The letter is of interest to Rhode Islanders and was reprinted in the Historical Notes.

We wish that we had more information about Samuel Mason who lived in the North End. The letter was sent to Dr. Herzl in the year 1901. At that time, Mr. Mason was planning a convention of Jewish young men to discuss the problem of physical fitness, a problem which is of concern in our day and to our young people. I have learned since then that Mr. Mason was a brother of Dora Mason Fain, thus the Fain family is related to him.

The Historical Notes are printed with much care and the volume will be a valuable addition to its companion three volumes which are kept in the libraries of many universities of the land.

(Mr. Segal's opinions are his own. His views are not necessarily those of this newspaper.)

People You Should Meet . . .

Marion Goldsmith

'Service Is The Rent We Pay For The Space We Take Up In Life'

"We're in the middle of a revolution, between people who care and the cruel, callous people who don't. The people coming to the Intergroup Conference on Sunday are those who care." Marion Goldsmith, Providence chairman of the Rhode Island Conference on Intergroup Relations, was speaking of the hundreds of people who will attend conferences in Providence, Cranston, Warwick, Blackstone Valley, East Providence, Newport and Bristol County this Sunday afternoon.

In Providence the theme will be "A Look at the Poverty Program— and What It Means for Providence." Dr. Harold Lett, national director of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, will speak about the national poverty program, its underlying philosophy and its goals. A panel, moderated by Seth Gifford, chairman of "Progress for Providence," will include Mayor Joseph A. Doorley Jr. of Providence; Christopher Del Sesto, chairman of Action, Inc.; Dr. Charles O'Connor, Superintendent of Providence Schools; Mrs. Catherine Robinson, U.R.I. Cooperative Extension Service; and Frank Carter Jr., director of the Department of Employment Security. They will discuss "Poverty: Providence."

Then come the group discussion meetings, on "Providence, Poverty and You." Mrs. Goldsmith said that people are chosen carefully for the discussion groups, with an eye to varied composition. In the past, when they returned to the larger general meeting, people sat with the groups they had been with for discussion, rather than breaking into little homogeneous cliques.

The important thing accomplished by the conferences (they were first held in 1959) is to remove people from their isolation. "We do all live on separate islands," said Mrs. Goldsmith. "You don't get to see and talk with people from other groups unless you make an effort."

The first conference, she said, was like a catharsis. For the first time, most of the people there heard a Negro woman tell what it feels like to have a door slammed in your face. And she, for the first time, could discuss with a mixed group how difficult it is to know what to say to the child who has been called "nigger." It was really dramatic in its impact, and people met each other who would never otherwise have met.

Mrs. James Goldsmith has been a part of Intergroup Relations from its beginning. She was a recorder in a discussion group at that 1959 conference, and another year was a delegate either from Temple Emanu-El or the Brandeis Women's Committee (the busy chairman can't remember which), but she has taken an active part since Mrs. Martin Miller "came here to Providence and saw all these little groups and began to think in terms of bridges of understanding. She organized it here, and now is doing this professionally, setting up intergroup conferences all over the country."

Marion Goldsmith, a psychiatric social worker for the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation of the Rhode Island Department of Education, said that as a social worker "these aren't problems you read about. I'm in homes like these. I've been lucky enough to be exposed to people all over the city and state. One of the first things you do in case work is establish a relationship. It can be either verbal or non-verbal communication — a smile, or your voice."

The Intergroup Relations conferences have established communication among people of good

WHAT THE MANUALS DON'T TELL YOU ON RETIREMENT

The textbooks on retirement that companies and institutions give their employees are good, and getting better. But they don't like to get away from the platitudes.

This week three people who are retired did.

And those approaching retirement with the idea that they have all the answers might want to listen:

Edward R. Stephens, who remained at home—"When a man retires he usually has made fine resolutions about getting into community affairs, getting another job . . . about being up-and-doing with all his wonderful freedom. Then he goes out and half-does everything he lays hands on.

"He's adjusted now to his reduced finances. He can live with daytime TV. He likes his naps. Why should he be bothered too much with a chairmanship in the Community Improvement League? 'Nuts to that nonsense' becomes a philosophy with him. He takes the job, then goofs it. Or else he works at it with rare energy for three weeks, then gets lost.

"About a year of this, and he's typed. Nobody wants him any more.

"A man must do something active in retirement. So he must approach what he does with the same character he showed when he had to—on his eight-hour day. Or he will surely vegetate."

Edward N. Horr, a Yankee who moved South—"Retirement is not the money. It's what you do with time. For a while you'll travel or take care of things your wife planned for you. Then comes the let-down.

Woman Takes Drinking Test, Shows No Equilibrium Loss

VALHALLA, N.Y. — A test held to show the effects of drinking on driving misfired, as the subject talked with no loss of lucidity and walked with no loss of equilibrium after downing three double shots of whisky before lunchtime. The test was held as a two-day conference on drunken driving opened. The State Traffic Safety Council, which gave the test, the State Police, the State Department of Motor Vehicles and the alcoholism division of the State Mental Hygiene Department are collaborating in the conference.

Ruby Litinsky, a 24-year-old police reporter for the county news bureau of The Westchester-Rockland Newspapers, volunteered to take the test. Although the alcohol content in her blood was shown to be high after the drinks, consumed with nothing but ice in an hour's time, Miss Litinsky baffled the testers.

At 11 A.M., Miss Litinsky, a compact five-foot-tall brunette, walked into the physical education building at Westchester Community College on her 3-inch spike heels. There, in full view of 141 police officials, she began drinking. In the next hour she consumed three two-ounce shots of 100-proof whisky. She drank the liquor with no mixer, just ice. She used no chasers.

At 12:30 P.M., the officials put Miss Litinsky through tests.

"DIRECTED CREDIT"
JERUSALEM — The Israel Government authorized IL 10m. of "directed credit" to help the transport cooperatives finance the purchase of 500 buses from Leyland's Ashdod plant.

The ALA says "motorist who steps on gas soon finds himself under grass."

The alcohol content in her blood registered 0.11 per cent. A mark of 0.15 per cent is usually taken to mean complete intoxication. A device that analyzed her breath, indicated that she must have lost at least some of her faculties.

But then Miss Litinsky got up and with apparent perfect balance walked a painted line on a basketball court, 3-inch spikes and all. "I felt a little numb," she said later, "same as after one or two drinks, but really I was fine."

Miss Litinsky said she occasionally drank Scotch mixed with milk. The testers speculated that it was her youth as well as occasional drinking that had given her this tolerance.

Has Felt Worse
However, Miss Litinsky conceded that in the past she had felt a lot worse even after one drink than she had after the test.

Miss Litinsky stayed at the campus until about 4 P.M. when she and the testers agreed that it would be safe for her to drive home to Dobbs Ferry.

Alperin Appointed Chairman No Southern Hospitality, Say Rabbis

The appointment of Max Alperin, Rhode Island manufacturer and communal leader, as chairman of the Friends of the Providence Hebrew Day School for the school's 18th annual Scholarship Dinner, was announced today by Sheldon S. Sollosy, general chairman.

The dinner will be held Sunday evening, April 25, at the school auditorium.

Following his appointment, Mr. Alperin announced that a meeting of the friends and potential friends of the Hebrew Day School and community leaders will be held at the home of Paul Leviten at 280 Irving Avenue on Wednesday evening.

Mr. Alperin is president of Temple Emanu-El, vice president of the General Jewish Committee and a member of the GJC board of directors, past president of the Jewish Home for the Aged and a member of the board of directors of Miriam Hospital. He is chairman of the executive committee of the Crescent Corporation of Pawtucket.

Mr. Alperin said that in keeping with Jewish tradition no deserving student is turned away from the Hebrew Day School because of inability to pay. He said that in order to maintain this policy of providing education for all those desiring it, it is necessary to continue the scholarship policy of the school and to increase the funds available for this purpose. He urged the support of the entire community in this educational endeavor.

to a desert. But I understood why when we arrived in Alabama. There were the Montgomery police, with their thick necks, clubs in their hands, holding metal helmets, scowls on their faces. . . Southern hospitality was not extended to us."

Rabbi Leeman mentioned other precautions: "We were told to stick to colored cabs only. We were given phone numbers, and names of people to contact if we needed bail or got into trouble. We felt a certain security in the Negro community. Any of us would have hitched a ride with a Negro driving by, but we didn't dare to with whites."

"The march itself was very important symbolically. Let's not minimize the importance of symbols. Here was the governor of a state saying segregation now and forever, here were white citizens who wouldn't permit integration, but the Federal government insisted and the segregationists had to swallow it. Only the armed might of the government separated the hostile camp of whites and Negroes. . . no, the Negroes' was not a hostile camp. . . to prevent bloodshed and violence. The Negroes were brainwashed into love."

Rabbi Rosen, eager to telephone news of his arrival to his wife, watched the cross wires from the main telephone drag to find a house in the Negro section with a telephone. "I was impressed by the warmth of the Negroes," he commented. "They greeted us with heart-warming smiles and expressions of appreciation. This was the general attitude of all Negroes, that the people coming down to take part in the march brought their situation to light, so people would know the injustices they are subject to."

The actual physical discomfort of such a gathering, an unarmed camp ringed with armed and hostile men, was not mentioned by any of the rabbis, except in a matter-of-fact comment by Rabbi Rosen. They arrived at the St. Jude "complex of buildings, a mudhole surrounded by shacks, in the Negro section, at 5 in the morning. From 5 A.M. to 11 A.M., we were milling around this area, until the march got under way. There was no place to sit down."

Rabbi Braude said it was a "tremendous experience. I felt I was a soldier in the Civil War all over again. I walked down Dexter Avenue and the glowering looks from whites on either side made it a canyon of hate."

The only white people who welcomed them with open arms, "knowing what we were," said Beth El's spiritual leader, were a Jew and his wife who gave them food. They had a great deal of trouble getting them to accept any money for the food. The couple said that if there had been such marches 30 to 40 years ago, perhaps the Nazis would not have come to power.

The Providence rabbis mentioned the effectiveness of the march in focussing the country's attention on injustice to some of her citizens. "The march challenged Wallace and the powers that be with the reality that the Negroes there are not alone," said Rabbi Rosen. Rabbi Leeman felt that once the barrier of segregation is broken, as it was in Negro-white worship that Sunday, the precedent is set. "It's no longer a lily-white preserve," he remarked. He discussed also the fact that while demonstrators were ostensibly seeking the right to vote, there are economic and social problems involved, too. "The hungry don't think in terms of power structure, but of getting food. Educational and job opportunities enter into solving this as well as the right to vote."

Last night at Hillel House, some of the clergymen and students who participated in the Alabama demonstration held a panel discussion and evaluation of the march.

(Many Rhode Island rabbis who were unable to go to Alabama joined a civil rights demonstration here in Providence. Rabbi Joseph M. Rothberger of Congregation Ohave Shalom represented the Rhode Island Rabbinical Association on the March 25 march from City Hall to the Statehouse, and gave the invocation.)

will, have helped build bridges of understanding. From this exchange of thinking and talking have grown a new awareness of and sensitivity to other people who live in this community, said the Providence chairman. It's strictly a human relations, not an action group, she added, but action groups such as Women's Intergroup Committee have grown out of the conference.

Marion (Jagoliner) Goldsmith said her parents had "always been interested in and actively engaged in the world they live in." Her husband is equally engaged with the community. He was on the very first housing committee with Irving Fain, she said, and "enough of an idealist" to think a fair housing law would be passed. He is a member of the Social Action Commission, New England Region, United Synagogue of America; chairman of the Temple Emanu-El Social Action Committee, and president of the Rhode Island Association of Insurance Agents.

Four Goldsmiths will attend the conference: Marion and James, Hope High School sophomore Barbara, and David, a Boy Scout Den Chief who is a pupil at Nathan Bishop Junior High. Barbara is vice-president of Councilettes and does volunteer work at Nickerson House and the School for the Deaf. Their elder daughter, Dorothy, a freshman at American University in Washington, was also active in Councilettes.

Mrs. Goldsmith is busier than she meant to be. She was supposed to be co-chairman with Prudence Irving, who took a position away from Providence and left Mrs. Goldsmith as chairman. With Mrs. James R. Phillips as co-chairman, a cooperative husband, and 12 wonderful chairmen under her, everything has been managed.

The conference in Providence on Sunday will begin at 1:30 P.M. at the Brown University Refectory. At 7 o'clock Mrs. Robert Hochberg, public relations director of Bryant College, will summarize the program. Persons unable to attend the dinner may attend the rest of the conference but they should get in touch with Mrs. Julius Michaelson, 78 Lorraine Ave. (861-3056), who is in charge of registrations.

The self-awareness, the exploding of stereotypes and the "sensitizing" which have grown out of the autonomous conferences have brought many Rhode Islanders to an appreciation of the differences and similarities of the varied people who live here. Mrs. Goldsmith, one of the people who care, has been working since October to prepare for the conference. She was hard to reach for an interview, since her afternoons last week were spent at a social workers' conference at Boston University, where she did graduate work (and also at the Boston College School of Social Work and at U.R.I.) after graduation from Pembroke.

She has served as school study chairman with the League of Women Voters, and was state chairman of Parent and Family Life Education of the PTA for three years. Spare moments are given up to antiquing, music and reading, but in their old age, defined as "after the children are graduated and married off," she and Mr. Goldsmith plan to take up bridge, piano and travel.

Whether the spare time for personal pleasures will ever be available is open to doubt, as Marion

Annual Home Show Chooses As Theme Home Improvement

"How to Improve Your Home" is the theme of the 13th annual R.I. Home Progress Show, sponsored by the Home Builders Association of Rhode Island, which began yesterday and will continue through April 4 at the Cranston Street Armory. The National Home Improvement Council is sponsoring a school on home improvements each evening, with feature speakers and live demonstrations. Future job opportunities in the home building trades will be discussed at a series of conferences planned to aid young adults and school drop-outs.

A new method of water-proofing wet basements, by a pressure pumping process in which a permanent water-resistant mineral is applied against the outside basement walls, will be demonstrated.

"Today's American Wall-coverings" and "Contemporary American Landscaping," traveling exhibits from the Smithsonian Institution, will be on display, along with other exhibits.

The Home Progress Show is open to the public from 6 to 10:30 P.M. today, and from 1 to 10 P.M. on Saturday and Sunday.

Pentateuch Recorded For Braille Institute

NEW YORK — Not only the Jewish blind but students of the Bible everywhere will benefit from the first full-length tape recording of the Pentateuch, the five books of Moses, and Rashi's Commentary on the Pentateuch, in both the original Hebrew and an English translation, which has just been completed for the Jewish Braille Institute of America. This addition to the free circulating library of the Institute consists of 64 reels of high-fidelity tape with a playing time of 128 hours. It was recorded by Rabbi Ascher M. Yager of the Inwood Hebrew Congregation over a period of 10 months. By recording very early in the morning or very late at night, he was able to keep the tapes free of street noises and other extraneous sounds.

TEMPLE SPEAKER
LOS ANGELES — Rev. Martin Luther King served as guest clergyman of Temple Israel of Hollywood, as part of its Brotherhood Week observances.

In Hollywood . . .

By Barney Glozer

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Mrs. Joseph Schildkraut presented to the library of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences all the historical material in her possession concerning both her late husband and her father, Rudolf. The voluminous files include an incomparable record of more than 60 years of theatrical and motion picture experience. Recently, Mrs. Schildkraut donated to the New York City Museum the original costumes worn by her late husband in his stage success "Liliom" in which he starred on Broadway in 1921. The late Mr. Schildkraut may be seen in his final role in George Stevens' "The Greatest Story Ever Told," previewed here for the press.

Not once does the film mention the word "Jew" and it comfortably evades any scene that might lend itself to decide. However, it takes such license with the New Testament that a Catholic newspaper correspondent seated next to me finally leaned over and said, "Well, it looks like Hollywood has written its own script again."

He groaned audibly with each change noted, especially when Judas accepted the silver pieces and said, "But I don't want them" and when Judas committed suicide by throwing himself into a vat of flames. Also when a member of the cast said he had seen Jesus walk upon the water and when Jesus himself made claims of his own deity.

Aside from such criticism, the film does have considerable merit for viewing, including its magnificent color, direction, portrayals and musical score. It does not, however, add anything to the religious scene that has not been observed dozens of times previously in other films made about the same subject.

LEONARD BERNSTEIN is discussing with Jerome Robbins a musical dramatization of "The Dybbuk," based on Solomon Ansky's medieval classic. Both men have visited Israel frequently and are steeped in Hebrew folklore.

SAY HELLO to Larry Cohen, who at 28 is now one of the most wanted writers in the teevee industry. According to Hank Grant, of the Hollywood Reporter, Cohen wrote his first teevee play, "Night Cry," for Kraft Theater at 22. It served, incidentally, as the television debut of another Jewish artist, Peter Falk.

Cohen wrote "Branded," Chuck Connors' new series and, with Herbert Brodtkin, has written "Coronet Blue," filmed for a fall '65 start by CBS-TV, said Grant.

He also has two other series creations with excellent network consideration, namely "The Invaders," first science-fiction series with a running theme and continuing star, and "The Survivor," western allegory.

MARILYN MICHAELS—mark that name well because this young Jewish girl is destined to become another of our singing stars. Warner Brothers are beating their drums and have gone out of their minds after recording her first album.

Born in 1943 in New York City, Marilyn is the daughter of Fraydele Oysher and the niece of the late Cantor Moishe Oysher, two of the Yiddish theater's greatest stars. Marilyn has appeared frequently on network shows, but the big push is now on.

EDDIE CANTOR'S Beverly Hills home has been sold for $112,000. Cantor died Oct. 10, leaving his property, not yet fully appraised, to his four daughters.

Legal Status Given To Madrid Jews

MADRID — The Spanish Government has approved a set of laws giving legal status to the organized Jewish community of Madrid for the first time in nearly 500 years, it was announced last week by Max Mazin, president of the Comunidad Israelita de Madrid.

The laws had been presented to the Government by his organization, Mazin said, and have now been "officially approved."

The official name of the organized Jewish community here will henceforth be as Comunidad Hebrea de Madrid.

"This recognition of our legal status," he said, "has been anxiously expected by Spanish Jewry for close to five centuries and constitutes a historical event of capital importance for all the Jews. This act of the Spanish Government puts an end to a long period of mere tolerance for the Jewish community which was up to now devoid of any legal framework."

Scopus Award To Go To Dr. Albert Sabin

Dr. Albert B. Sabin, world-renowned virologist who developed the live virus anti-polio vaccine, will be recipient of the Scopus Award, the highest distinction of the American Friends of the Hebrew University, it was announced by Samuel Rothberg, Chairman of the Board. The decision to honor Dr. Sabin was taken unanimously at a national meeting of the Board in New York City.

A vice president of the American Friends of the Hebrew University.

Caesarea Resort Hotel Changes Management

NEW YORK — Hotel Corporation of America has assumed management of The Caesarea, one of Israel's newest and most luxurious resort hotels, according to a joint announcement made today by Roger P. Sonnabend, President of HCA, and Baron Edmond de Rothschild, one of the hotel's owners.

Located midway between Haifa and Tel Aviv on the Mediterranean coast, the Caesarea was developed in 1963. It has been renamed The Caesarea Golf and Beach Hotel.

One of the Mediterranean's most complete resorts, its 17 acres include the only 18-hole championship golf course in Israel, an outdoor, heated swimming pool, tennis courts, skin diving facilities and riding.

The hotel is part of a major redevelopment program of the Government and the Rothschilds for the area surrounding the city of Caesarea that includes a country club, a series of luxurious apartment villas, and restoration of ruins. The city of Caesarea dates back to 25 B.C. and is one of the few places in the world where various periods of history can be seen in archeological strata, many of which have been unearthed and partially reconstructed. Remains of the Roman, Byzantine and Crusader periods are clearly discernible.

Relics of the past at Caesarea include a Roman aqueduct and amphitheater, which has become a center for music and drama festivals. Jerusalem, Nazareth and the Sea of Galilee are all less than two hours away.

The Lyons Den

by Leonard Lyons

Sopnia Loren has been signed to portray Evita Peron in the movie, "The Diamond Orchid." For years Mrs. Peron dreamed of becoming a movie star herself. She worked in her last movie shortly before she married the Argentine dictator. The film's producer studied the final print and decided it had to be a flop. He presented it to Evita as a wedding gift, with a note that he preferred not to capitalize on her new status as First Lady.

Mrs. Peron released the movie herself, and from it made the first $250,000 of her fortune.

One of Argentina's top actresses during those years was Fannie Navarro. While she was on a supper date with Evita's brother she made a slurring remark about Evita. She felt, erroneously, that his affection for her was stronger than his esteem for his sister. His first reaction was to rush outside and set fire to Miss Navarro's Cadillac, the car he'd given her.

The Commodore Hotel was not displeased by the departure of the N.Y. State Democratic Committee to offices elsewhere. One of the disputes was over some missing air conditioners. . . . Benay Venuta, who will perform in "Carousel" at Lincoln Center, also has been asked to design the poster. She's an accomplished painter. . . . Sybil Burton explained why she was chosen to present Dance Magazine's award to the ballet star, Edward Villella: "I taught him the monkey and the watusi."

Barry Goldwater told Washington's Gridiron Club that things are so quiet for him nowadays, he's thinking seriously of calling Hertz Rent-a-Friend. . . . Goldwater added that he's been offered a government job—as librarian in Indonesia.

Laurence Harvey, whose newest film is "Darling," was asked by producer Joe Levine why he traded his $30,000 Rolls-Royce for a white, gold-initialed custom-made Maserati. Harvey explained: "I'm trying to get rid of that boy-next-door image." . . . Shelley Winters and Raf Vallone will star in the film version of John L.

Carlino's one-acter, "The Snow Angel" . . . Gertrude Berg will do Carlino's other one-acter, "Sarah and the Sax."

John Updike had a story published in the New Yorker recently. The same issue also had a story by Linda Grace Hoyer—the maiden name of Mrs. Wesley R. Updike of Elverson, Pa. She is John Updike's mother. . . . "I started writing more or less for my own entertainment," Mrs. Updike said. "John kept after me to try to get something published." This may have been the first time a mother and son were represented in the same issue.

Dame Edith Sitwell's secretary, Elizabeth Salter, will have her psychological thriller, "Once Upon a Tombstone," published in May. . . . The late Dame Edith's autobiography, "Taken Care Of," will be published this month. . . . Cesar Romero's clothing sponsor, Petrocelli, will be displeased by his role in "Marriage on the Rocks." The fashion-plate actor plays a grimy, ambulance-chasing lawyer, and wears one dirty white suit throughout the movie.

The new issue of Harper's Bazaar contains a full-page Avedon photo of Henry Geldzahler, associate curator of the Metropolitan Museum of Art. The caption mentions his resemblance to "Queen Victoria," because of his long hair. . . . Geldzahler lunched with his parents last week, and described the session: "I am 29 years old, a Harvard graduate who also went to Yale. Yet my parents spent the entire hour telling me I ought to get my hair cut."

The annual report of Time, Inc., sent to all stockholders, has a center-fold photo of researchers checking textblocks and captions. Clearly visible on a researcher's desk is a copy of Time's competitor, Newsweek. . . . Soviet fathers are not permitted to view their new offspring or visit their wives until six days after the baby is born. This hospital rule was waived for Sam Jaffe, ABC-TV's Moscow man, so that he could visit his 8-lb. daughter, Deborah, born last Tuesday.

FACT magazine's next issue will feature "Divorce, American Style," in which 26 notables expressed their opinion. Barbara Hutton's son, Lance Reventlow, said: "I resent large cash settlements in brief marriages." Judith Anderson stated: "Until there are children, I see no reason for marriage." James Michener said: "I subscribe to the Anglo-Saxon tradition which holds that the man is always wrong and lets him pay."

In preparation for a newspaper strike, producer Alex Cohen is taping fragments of "Baker Street," for use as TV commercials. . . . Janet Leigh led the joyous community Watusi dance at Il Mio the other night. . . . Ethel Merman will sing a medley in the "Broadway Answers Selma" show. Ben Grauer, watching the telecast of the recent ski championships, described how he used to cover this event for radio. He had one man atop the runway, to describe the take-off, and another man at the bottom, to describe the landing. Grauer, stationed halfway down the slope, had time only to say—as the skier went by—"Ooooooh!"

Catholics Honored For Saving Children

JERUSALEM — A priest and a Catholic doctor were the first recipients here of newly-struck "Righteous of the Nations" medals in recognition of heroic efforts on behalf of Jewish child victims of Nazi persecution during Germany's occupation of Italy.

Don Arrigo Beccari and Dr.
Giuseppe Monreale, both from Nonentaola, near Modena, were given the medals at a ceremony held at the Yad Vashem Memorial Foundation.

Attending were Israeli officials, Catholic clergy and 100 kibbutz farmers, army officers, teachers and housewives who, as children, had been rescued from the Nazis by Don Arrigo and Dr.
Monreale. The rescuers managed to provide hideouts for them in seminaries, monasteries and the homes of peasant farmers.

Many of them had tears in their eyes as the priest, now in his seventies, raised his hands to bless them "in the name of the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob."

"We started a Christian-Jewish dialogue when it was for-bidden," he said, "and it had to be done with forged identity papers. Now it is our desire to continue it in a spirit of mutual understanding and peace."

Don Arrigo's former wards eventually were brought to Israel through the help of Youth Aliyah, an organization set up to help Jewish children escape from Germany during the Hitler regime.
Eventually the organization expanded to Nazi-controlled countries.

An executive with Stanley-Warner
Corp., motion picture exhibitors,

Opera star Richard Tucker is honorary chairman.

Among the dinner committee's vice chairmen are Samuel Goldwyn, Col. Jack Warner, Leonard Bernstein, Henry R. Luce, Isaac
Stern, Mischa Elman and Jennie Grossinger.

ADULT JUDAISM CLASSES

JERUSALEM — The first three months of the experimental College for Torah and Judaism exceeded the expectations of rabbis and teachers connected with the adult lectures. More than 400 persons are enrolled in the 11 courses.

Adult education in Israel is vigorous and expanding, but suffers from growing pains, according to Dr. A. A. Lieber.

Adult education in Israel is being carried on, on a widespread and active basis through a variety of government and volunteer agencies, despite a serious shortage of professional adult educators, Dr. Lieber said.

Don't fiddle around...
When it comes to gefilte fish,
Mother's knows best.

Because we don't fiddle around when we make gefilte fish! We use only the plumpest, juiciest, young fish—fresh from icy Northern lakes. We add just the right pinch of spices. Then—just like the mothers of old—we slow simmer our gefilte fish to bring out all its tender, delicate flavor. Result: Mother's gefilte fish has that traditional taste and texture that's just like homemade. So for a glorious beginning to the Passover Seder—and for every festive occasion—serve Mother's, the fish for compliments.

Stowaways On Shalom Seek Refuge In Israel

NEW YORK — A 38-year-old woman, who claims she and her 12-year-old daughter are Jewish, took a Caribbean cruise recently on the Israeli liner, the Shalom, which she and her daughter boarded in Haiti as stowaways.

Mrs. Evelyn Marigliano, who was born in Hungary, and her daughter, who was born in France, boarded the liner in Port-au-Prince, Haiti, in the mistaken belief it was bound for Israel where she seeks entry as a Jew.

When the Shalom docked in New York, U.S. immigration officials refused to allow her to land because the only document she had was an expired French passport.

The officials described the pair as persons "without a country."

Officials of the Zim Line, owners of the Shalom, said that she and her daughter had been assigned a cabin and that Mrs. Marigliano had been given "housekeeping duties" for the duration of the cruise.

The officials said that Israeli authorities were investigating the woman's claims to entry under the Law of the Return.

If the claim is accepted, they added, the woman and her daughter could leave the Shalom in Israel.

ENGAGED—Mr. and Mrs. Myer C. Greenstein of 971 Reservoir Avenue, Cranston, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Sheila Deborah Greenstein, to Dr. Benson E. Gold, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Gold of 18 Gallatin Street.

Miss Greenstein is a graduate of Cranston East High School and the University of Rhode Island. Dr. Gold, a graduate of Classical High School, attended the University of Rhode Island and the Boston University School of Oral Surgery. He was graduated from the Loyola University School of Dentistry in Chicago, Ill.

A Sept. 5 wedding is planned.
