Golan Book On Kissinger To Be Released By Censor

TEL AVIV: A revised manuscript of a banned book describing Secretary of State Kissinger's Middle East mediation will be cleared by the Israeli military censor, the author said in Jerusalem.

Matti Golan, the author, a diplomatic reporter of the newspaper Haaretz, said he was so informed by Brig. Gen. Walter Bar-On, the chief censor, who banned the original manuscript early last month.

The original manuscript consisted mainly of highly confidential official documents and transcripts of meetings between Mr. Kissinger and Israeli officials. In addition to banning publication, the censor ordered Mr. Golan to surrender the material.

The grounds for the ban were not officially disclosed, but it was reported that the Government felt some of the candid comments by Mr. Kissinger about political figures were so disparaging that their publication would make it impossible for him to continue in office.

The book, entitled "Confrontation and Disengagement," covers the period from the outbreak of war in October, 1973, to the completion of the separation-of-forces agreement with Syria on May 31, 1974.

In an interview, the author declined to say how the revised manuscript differed from the original. It is assumed the official data was paraphrased.

Mr. Golan submitted the revised manuscript three weeks ago. When he received no reply from the censor, he called a news conference in Jerusalem and planned to protest.

He said that General Bar-On telephoned him shortly before the news conference was to open, and notified him that the bulk of the manuscript would be cleared for publication within a week. The Schocken Publishing House, Ltd., of Tel Aviv will put out the Hebrew edition. Mr. Golan said he had no contracts with foreign publishers.

Rumania Speeds Emigration Of Jews

WASHINGTON: Rumania has speeded emigration of Jews to Israel in the last three weeks in an evident effort to comply with United States stipulations linking that movement to the granting of trade preferences, diplomatic officials reported here.

Congress has a deadline of July 12 for deciding on President Ford's request to grant Rumania equal tariff treatment under the new trade act.

Until recently there was a great deal of skepticism about Rumanian emigration policy on the part of supporters of the Jackson-Vanik amendment, which requires easing of departures as a condition for receiving trading benefits.

In the first five months of 1975 fewer than 400 Jews left Rumania for Israel, according to United States officials. This was well below the average for 1974, which ran about 300 a month.

But, according to information sent here this week from Bucharest, 237 Rumanian Jews left for Israel in June, bringing the total leaving in the first six months of the year to 616.

The informants said airline tickets for 303 had been booked for July. So far this year the authorities have approved exit visas to Israel for 2,000 Rumanian Jews.

In addition, the officials reported, the Rumanian Government has approved 954 applications this year for emigration of Rumanians to the United States — most of them to join relatives living here.

Jordan Revokes Ban On Trepper

TEL AVIV: The Jordanian censor has recently revoked the ban on the "music" and "records" of "conductor" Leopold Trepper and his "orchestra." The man in Amman, officially known as General Controller of Publications, apparently has just discovered that Trepper, now a citizen of Israel, is not a musician and that the "Red Orchestra" he headed was the code name for a highly successful Soviet espionage network in Nazi-occupied Western Europe during World War II. The Jordanian ban was decreed when Trepper came to Israel last year after years of struggle for permission to emigrate from his native Poland. The Jordanian censor meanwhile banned Verdi's opera "Nabucco" from Jordan "in any form" because the work presents an historic event "in a way that sheds a favorable light on the Jews and thus serves the Israeli campaign."

COMMUNISTS

JERUSALEM: Jewish Communists who foresaw the rise of Nazism and the "final solution" scheme originated the idea of the "Red Orchestra" spy net at a time when there was an understanding between Hitler and Stalin, Leopold Trepper, the mastermind behind the net, told a Jerusalem audience this weekend. Trepper, who settled in Israel last February, said the spy net which was established in 1938 included some Jews who were expelled from Palestine by the British.

Israel Postpones Decision On Agreement With Egypt

JERUSALEM: Israel postponed for at least a week a decision on the disputed elements of a new agreement with Egypt on disengagement in Sinai.

After hearing a lengthy briefing by Simcha Dinitz, the Ambassador to the United States, on his talks with American officials last week, the Cabinet decided to seek additional "clarifications and elucidations" of the Egyptian position.

A Cabinet spokesman said that the Ambassador would be returning to Washington "forthwith" to get a more precise understanding of Egypt's minimum position on territorial and other issues.

Bonn Meeting Is Likely

A meeting in Bonn between Premier Yitzhak Rabin and Secretary of State Kissinger now seems likely, Israeli officials said, since further Israeli-American discussions will be required before the Cabinet makes a decision.

Both men will be in the West German capital toward the end of the week, Mr. Rabin on an official state visit and Mr. Kissinger for consultations with Bonn leaders. Mr. Kissinger is also scheduled to confer in Geneva with the Soviet Foreign Minister, Andrei A. Gromyko, Thursday and Friday on the Middle East and other matters.

If Israel learns all she needs to know from contacts such as these this week, officials said, a formal decision on Sinai will be made next week.

Statements Fuel Tensions

Though it was not unexpected, the postponement by the Cabinet did come as an anticlimax. Speculation on the next Israeli negotiations move had been mounting for 10 days since it became known that Egypt rejected

Israel's latest territorial proposals in Sinai and that Washington was urging Jerusalem to ease its stand.

The diplomatic tension surrounding the matter has been fueled in part by public statements from President Ford and Mr. Kissinger in which they called upon Israel to make the necessary territorial concessions so that a new pact could be concluded. In an interview with ABC-TV, Mr. Kissinger said that the degree of future American support for Israel would be linked to her decision in this matter.

The Kissinger interview and other recent statements are regarded as the most obvious kind of pressure on Israel. This view may have been partly responsible for the Cabinet's decision not to make a decision now. Mr. Rabin is known to feel strongly that Israel must not appear to be buckling under overt American pressure, lest she lose all her credibility in the Middle East.

A successful compromise, an Israeli official observed, would be a line that each side could interpret for its own purpose: If Israel were to retain a blocking presence in the eastern mouth of the passes, Egypt might be willing to construe that as evacuation of the passes themselves, while Israel could consider that she had a satisfactory foothold.

Beyond the passes, Israel is seeking "clarifications" about the Egyptian demands for a land corridor south to the oil field at Abu Rudeis, in the middle of the Gulf of Suez coast. Israel accepts this in principle, but the argument continues over the width of the corridor. There are two north-south roads serving the area; Israel has offered to pull back from one but Egypt wants them both.

Rabin Visits West Germany; First Israeli Premier There

BERGEN-BELSEN, West Germany: His face pale, his voice grave, Premier Yitzhak Rabin of Israel stood solemnly before a small stone monument here and read a prayer to the memory of the tens of thousands of Jews who perished in this vast concentration camp 30 years ago.

With his German-born wife, Leah, fighting back tears just behind him, Mr. Rabin intoned the Kaddish, the traditional prayer for the dead. Then he stepped forward and silently placed a wreath of blue and white carnations at the foot of the monument.

A moment later, staring out across the grassy mounds that cover the mass graves, he shook his head and said quietly to an aide: "It's all so green here now. It's hard to believe what went on in this place."

In deference to that history, Mr. Rabin came here this sultry July afternoon as his first act in a four-day official visit to West Germany. It is the first such visit by an Israeli Premier in office, and in the Israeli view at least, it symbolizes a bridge between the past and the future in Israeli-German relations.

Speaking of that on his arrival by special plane at the Hanover airport, Mr. Rabin said: "Bergen-Belsen belongs to the past. It is a past we can never forget, but I and all Israelis look forward to a more hopeful and better future."

This state visit is also important politically for Israel. Mr. Rabin sees it as an opportunity to speak through West Germany to all of Europe and attempt to explain Israel's view of the Middle East crisis.

He and other Israeli leaders are keenly aware that their position in Europe has eroded since the 1973 oil-embargo which affected the European nations most of all. Some Israelis feel it ironic that West Germany should be the country to provide the forum for an Israeli appeal for European understanding, but they welcome the opportunity nonetheless.

NEW BIBLE

PHILADELPHIA: At its 87th annual meeting in Philadelphia, The Jewish Publication Society of America announced plans for a new English-language commentary on the Hebrew Bible.

Orthodox Rabbi Decries Interpretation Of Law By Israel's Rabbinate

FALLSBURG, N.Y.: A leading American Orthodox rabbi decried the interpretation of Jewish religious laws by Israel's Orthodox rabbinate for ignoring the political and social realities of the times.

Dr. Emanuel Rackman, professor of Judaic studies at the University of New York, said:

"Many of us — Orthodox rabbis in Israel and elsewhere — are giving Jewish law a bad image. We are making it appear that Jewish law (Halacha) is concerned only with rituals... we become exercised over violations of the sanctity of Sabbaths and remain silent with regard to unconscionable rates of interest prevailing in the Jewish state despite Biblical and Talmudic prohibitions against them."

His remarks to 500 rabbis at the 39th annual convention of the Rabbinical Council of America at the Pine View Hotel are believed to constitute the first public statement by a major American Orthodox theologian challenging Israel's Orthodox religious leadership. The leadership there controls matters of personal status in the Jewish state such as marriage, divorce and the rights of women.

Failure to Cope

Dr. Rackman's criticism — that Israel's Orthodox rabbinate failed to cope with contemporary problems — was disputed by Rabbi Fabian Schonfeld, president of the Rabbinical Council.

Rabbi Schonfeld contended that the "process of Halachic shaping in every generation requires careful deliberation and it isn't fair to demand immediate solutions for every problem from Israel's rabbinate."

In his address, Dr. Rackman, spiritual leader of the Fifth Avenue

Synagogue in Manhattan, said that Jewish religious law had always emphasized "development and the right to dissent."

Discussing the status of women in Israel, Dr. Rackman said, "There was more creativity in Jewish religious law by the Chief Rabbinate of Palestine before the establishment of Israel as a state than there has been since."

In this connection, Dr. Rackman said that "some Halachic presumptions require re-examination" that would emphasize the equality of women.

Dr. Rackman's views found partial concurrence among other Orthodox scholars here. Rabbi Walter Wurzburger, the Rabbinical Council's first vice president, criticized Israel's religious leadership for its failure to provide "an example of ethical sensitivity in confronting courageously the grave social and moral issues besetting society."

He criticized "this embarrassing silence," saying that "Halachic Judaism cannot thrive in the narrow confines of the religious ghetto isolated from the mainstream of society."

At another session, Rabbi Schonfeld, president of the religious ghetto isolated from the mainstream of society.

At another session, Rabbi Schonfeld, president of the 1,000-member Rabbinical Council, warned that "unless rivalry and fragmentation" are eliminated within the disparate elements of Orthodox Judaism orthodoxy will disappear on the American scene. Institutionally, Orthodox Judaism is fractionalized much more than either the Conservatives or Reform movements.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

DAVID R. SARGENT

Two Funds Concentrate On Utility Stocks

Q: This seems to me to be a good time to invest in the utility industry. Are there any mutual funds which specialize in this industry? G.K.

A: The outlook for utilities has definitely brightened. Oil prices are unlikely to quadruple again, interest rates have dropped, inflation appears to be moderating, the President has proposed special tax credits and state regulatory commissions have accelerated rate increases. The combined effect of these factors should be to generate higher earnings, and therefore dividends, for the industry.

There are two closed-end funds which invest solely in public utilities — Bayrock Utility Securities and Drexel Utility Shares. The former's $12 million portfolio is 72% invested in 20 utility issues; the balance is in short-term Treasuries, CDs and utility bonds. This ASE-listed fund is trading at a 20% discount and yields 9% currently. The dividend rate is 6¢ monthly plus extras for a total of 78¢ annually. The fund is sponsored by Bache & Company, a New York brokerage company.

The second utility fund is sponsored by Drexel Burnham & Company, also a brokerage firm. Securities of about 30 prominent geographically diversified utilities are held in the $9.9 million portfolio. This fund trades at a somewhat narrower discount of 12% from net asset value. The 10¢ monthly dividend rate returns 8½% currently.

Q: I have shares of Empire Financial (NYSE), which will shortly be taken over at about $15. What growth stocks would you suggest as replacements? I think I would like three or four stocks for diversity. B.E.

A: At last report, stockholders would receive between 15¼ and 16½ per share in July, with some further payment expected at a later date. Unless you hold several hundred shares of this savings and loan company, I would limit my reinvestments to no more than three issues.

Among the many attractive stocks for long-term growth, Louisiana Land and Exploration, Pennwalt Corporation, and Simplicity Pattern (all NYSE-listed), are appealing for current investment. Louisiana Land will put down 30 wells this year as part of its stepped-up exploration program. This is a speculative buy on earnings recovery and drilling results. Pennwalt will give you exposure not only in the specialized chemical field, but in equipment, dental products and drugs as well. In spite of the recession, earnings are expected to be up 10% this year and to grow 10% to 15% annually in the future. Simplicity is showing faster than anticipated recovery from the reduced fiscal 1975 earnings and could report $1.00 a share this year. The dividend was recently boosted.

Tidying Up Her 'Messy' List

A: I am 86 and recently widowed. From my stocks — list enclosed — a trust, certificates of deposit and a savings account, I have about $14,000 in annual income. The last four small lots of stock on my list were inherited about ten years ago from my first husband. I would like to sell as they make my list "messy." What would you suggest for changes? Do I have too much in savings? R.S.

A: Judging from your age and portfolio — except the last four issues — you are primarily concerned with income and safety. Toward that end, there is one change which you might consider. By exchanging your shares of National Securities Income Fund for their Bond Fund, you would increase your return on this capital to above 9% from the present return of under 7%. Since the final "messy" four issues on your list are all low yielding stocks, I would agree that they could be liquidated. The money realized on these sales, plus about $7,000 from your sizable backlog of savings, should be invested in 10M face amount of Ohio Power 10-1/8s of 1982. This BBB-rated bond is trading slightly above par to yield 9.9% currently. The dividend rates on several of your securities have been recently raised, so that this, plus the suggested changes, would increase your income by about $1,000 annually.

Q: In addition to utility stocks, I own 150 shares of Avco Preferred, which stopped paying a dividend last year. Is this stock worth keeping? E.D.

A: Avco's list of problems is a lengthy one. The $16 million write-off in 1974 in the credit card division and a $14 million loss on Avco's insurance and real estate operation have still not solved the basic causes of these problems. In fact, financial services were still operating at a deficit in the first quarter of fiscal 1975. Furthermore, the future of Avco's work on the L-1101 program is questionable in view of the situation at Lockheed. In addition to being $12.4 million in arrears on the preferred dividend, Avco has $50 million in debt maturing this year. Their long-term debt stands at $615 million and short term debt at close to $1 billion. This is a highly speculative situation and entirely unsuitable for a person seeking income. I would sell and invest the proceeds in Washington Water Power (NYSE), paying $1.52 annually.

Discouraged By Dividend Cut
Q: My particular concern is the recent dividend action by Savannah Electric & Power (NYSE). Should I give up and sell my 200 shares which cost 15¼? W.T.

A: The action which caused Savannah to declare a stock in lieu of a cash dividend has now

FROM FRIDAY TO FRIDAY A Person Alone And a Lonely Person By BERYL SEGAL

To be alone is not the same as being lonely.

A person can be alone by choice. We want to be alone with ourselves, with our memories, with our thoughts. A person alone is not bitter. No one forced him to be alone. He can, if he so desires, find companionship, go among people and be accepted. If he so desires. But he is just as content when he is alone.

But a lonely person is a rejected person, actual or imaginary. No one wants to be in his company. That person considers himself to be undesirable, unwanted, forgotten by the people with whom he would gladly associate.

A person who is lonely is a bitter person. He talks of nothing but his problems. He is neglected by his children. He is deserted by his friends. And after all he did for them! He thinks of nothing else, he talks of nothing else. He is absorbed in himself.

It is a vicious circle. The more he talks about his grievances the more people shun him, because it is not very pleasant to be in his company, to listen to his oft-repeated stories.

The person alone is happy in his isolation.

The person who is lonely is as miserable as a prisoner in solitary confinement.

Both are not in touch with other people. But the one is voluntarily alone; the other has his loneliness imposed upon him.

The difference is as between a welcome silence and a silence because we have nobody to disturb that silence.

The English saying, "He is a loner" tells the story. A loner is a doer. He is not hampered by the will of others. He plans and executes things for better or for worse, alone. Nor does he depend on the assistance of others. He is a free person. He comes and goes as he pleases. He is his own master.

The Yiddish proverb has it that "Alein is die Neshomo Rein," when you are alone your soul is pure. Nobody irritates you, no one annoys you, and you don't do these things to others, either.

The lonely person is corrupted by his loneliness. He must have the approval of others. In this respect that person is like a child who must be spurred on to activity by the teachers, by his peers, by his playmates. Without that approval, the child sits passively in the midst of activity. But the child enjoys his passiveness. The lonely person, on the other hand, broods over the indifference of his friends and is ready to accuse them of being cruel, ungrateful, and even plotting against him and his expectations.

The person alone is happy. The opposite is true of the lonely person. He is miserable in his aloneness.

The person who wants to be alone is happiest when he attains his aloneness completely, without interruptions. The lonely person can be like a man who sees a table set with good things but is not invited to the party.

Loneliness comes to a person in his advanced years.

When a spouse has departed. When a misfortune has happened.

When he gets old and useless and his advice is no longer sought. When his plight becomes an object of pity.

When people get impatient listening to his tales of woe, which to him are so important, but to others merely a nuisance.

This is where the person who likes to be alone has an advantage over the lonely.

There are so many books he can read, alone.

There is so much music he can listen to, alone.

There are so many places he can see, alone.

There are so many things he can observe, alone.

He can be alone even when other people are listening to the same music, seeing the same things, visiting the same places.

The creative person works alone. Alone with his thoughts.

And the person close to the earth enjoys being alone. When he plants the seeds, cultivates the ground, chops a tree, he is all-

one. Alone with his thoughts. And he enjoys it.

The lonely person is in reality a gregarious person. He longs to be together with others. The rejection by those others hurts.

Have a good summer. I will go to my books, to my garden, to my walks in the park, to my being alone.

And you? Whatever you prefer to do, wherever you desire to go, whether alone or with friends, may you never be lonely. The summer days are too short. Do not spend them in feeling sorry for yourself.

Life-Saving Medical Emblem

"I was driving home from work, hit an icy spot and crashed into a pole. The police pulled me from what was left of the car. On the way to the hospital, they found my Medic Alert bracelet saying I am a hemophiliac and diabetic. Thanks to the warning on my Medic Alert emblem, I am alive today. The doctors were able to know immediately what blood type I have and attended to the diabetic shock." Letter from a Medic Alert member.

"I was admitted to the hospital for severe migraine and dehydration with petit mal seizures and was totally incoherent. Although a friend had taken me to the hospital, he was unable to provide my medical history. My bracelet gave the admitting physicians the necessary information for immediate treatment as well as Medic Alert's phone number to receive additional information on my particular medical needs." Another testimonial from a member with epilepsy and allergies to drugs.

"When I was in San Juan, Puerto Rico, I had an epileptic seizure on the street. The police started to take me to jail — they thought I'd been taking drugs — when they noticed my Medic Alert bracelet. I was immediately taken to the hospital." Still another letter from one of the more than 575,000 members of Medic Alert Foundation International, a non-profit, charitable organization which for over 17 years has been helping to save the lives of people whose specific medical needs are not apparent.

You may be one of the 40 million Americans — one in five — who runs the risk of receiving inappropriate or incomplete medical treatment during medical emergencies. That's the astounding total, says the American Medical Association, who flirts with death because they do not wear emergency medical identification.

The well-known corporation president who was wearing a Medic Alert bracelet when we lunched recently, and whose response to my question about it sent me off on this story, is dangerously allergic to penicillin, for instance. He insists his bracelet has saved his life at least twice. Hospital emergency rooms often receive patients who are unconscious or are in a state of shock and are unable to communicate. Since physicians cannot elicit essential emergency information, they follow the most expedient medical treatment to help save their patient's life.

But, if the patient is allergic, the administering of a particular drug could be precisely the wrong measure. Or, again through no fault of the physician, life-sustaining medications may not be provided to those with congenital diseases.

"There are more than 200 reasons why people become members of Medic Alert," explains John D. McPherson, the foundation's president. In descending order, the top six reasons are diabetes, allergy to penicillin, taking anticoagulants, wearing contact lenses, neck breather and epilepsy.

The system includes an emblem — worn on the wrist or around the neck — which has the internationally recognized caduceus and the words Medic Alert emblemized in red on the outer side. On the reverse side are engraved the member's hidden medical situation (up to four lines), his or her file number, and the phone number of Medic Alert's emergency answering service in Turlock, California. Emergency personnel throughout the world can call this 24-hour number collect to obtain additional information on the patient. There is a back-up wallet card too. The emblem is internationally recognized, is registered in 41 countries in addition to ours, and the foundation has affiliate organizations in 15 foreign countries.

If you're traveling, the system does give you the security that language barriers will not prevent proper medical treatment, should you need it fast.

With this kind of lifeguarding service, it is not surprising that hundreds of medical and civic organizations have endorsed it — including the American College of Emergency Physicians and the American Nurses' Association. In fact, Nevada Blue Shield provides a complimentary lifetime membership to its subscribers if the subscriber's physician requests it. "If we can in any way help avert a hospital stay," says Earl Heckethorne, Nevada Blue Shield's executive director, "all of us benefit."

Lifetime membership costs $7.00. If you are among the one in five who needs the service, write to Medic Alert Foundation International, Box SP, Turlock, California 95380.

MILITARILY SUPERIOR

JERUSALEM: Professor Mordecai Abir of the Hebrew University, at a symposium dedicated to the memory of Professor A. D. Bergmann, told his audience that Israel will still enjoy a military superiority over the Arabs for the next two to three years despite the power of Arab oil.

BRIDGE

By Robert E. Starr

Today's hand presents an entirely different aspect from anything we have had before. The hand cannot be made unless, of course, the Defenders really go absolutely haywire and in this case it is just about impossible. It also shows one of the biggest differences between Duplicate and Rubber Bridge. Every Declarer but one tried to make the hand and consequently went down two. One Declarer felt he had no chance at all to make the hand and settled for down one for a "Top." In Rubber the extra 50 points would be negligible whereas it makes a tremendous difference in Duplicate.

South

 ♣ A K 8 3 2

South was Dealer, no one vulnerable with this bidding:

S 1♠ W 1♦ N 1♥ E 1♠
 INT P 3NT P End

The bidding probably went something like that at every table for each of the twelve pairs that played the hand ended in the same three No Trump contract. I'm pretty sure every West, not vulnerable, put in that Diamond bid for that is the key to this article. If they didn't, I wouldn't blame a Declarer for trying to make the contract, but if they did it's a different story.

West's lead was the Diamond Queen, ducked by Declarer. Next, after that won, every West played a low one, East's King winning as Declarer again ducks. Now the third Diamond which South has to win. Meanwhile it matters little what discards are made from Dummy.

Now comes the real thought. Declarer can cash seven more tricks, five Clubs and the two high Hearts. But where can the ninth trick be found? Between the three high Spades, two can be promoted once the Ace has been knocked out but if West has that Ace he can cash all the remaining Diamonds and he should be holding them for dear life while Declarer cashes his five Club tricks. He can discard his other losers as long as he holds that Spade Ace. True, if East has that Ace he will have no Diamond to lead back to West when he gets in with it and that's what all the other Declarers hoped would happen. So before cashing their two high Hearts, they certainly didn't want to set up Heart tricks for the Spade Ace holder, too, they played a Spade honor. To their dismay it was West who won it and cashed enough Diamonds to set the hand two.

Their attitude was it was their only hope and in Rubber bridge that extra trick set wasn't that big a deal. But this was Duplicate. Think for a minute, would West make that overcall without the Spade Ace? Remember, at trick two East had shown up with the Diamond King so who is practically guaranteed to hold that key Ace? West must have it so giving it to him before cashing out will definitely cause a two trick set. The one Declarer who went down thought correctly. He felt with 27 points between them every pair would be in game and with that Diamond Ace and the natural reluctance to play in five of a minor the game would be No Trump. Once East had played the Diamond King, to him the hand was an open book. He settled for down one by cashing his eight tricks and was rewarded with an absolute Top. Five Clubs can be made but no one played the hand there.

Moral: In Duplicate before you do anything, analyze whether you are in a normal contract. If it is a good one make the safest plays possible. If a bad one do anything to make it even if you go down extra tricks because of it. A bottom is a bottom. If in a good one that others will also be in, do the best you can.

Families Ask To Adopt Victim Of Terrorists

TEL AVIV: Families all over Israel are asking to adopt seven-month-old Assaf Mordechai whose parents were killed by terrorists in Kfar Yuval June 15.

The infant, who underwent surgery for the removal of grenade fragments at Safad Hospital, was reported to be improving. His mother, 22-year-old Simha Mordechai, died in the hospital of wounds inflicted by a grenade. The same grenade killed her husband, Yaacob Mordechai who had joined an army unit assaulting his home in Kfar Yuval where four terrorists were holding members of his family hostage.

All four terrorists were killed, two of them by Yaacob Mordechai himself before he was fatally wounded. His brother, Bezalal Mordechai, also wounded by the terrorists, was recovering in Safad Hospital.

The future of young Assaf probably will be decided by the Kfar Yuval settlement committee. Relatives of the baby have asked to be appointed his guardian but adoption is also possible.

Dr. and Mrs. Lawrence B. Marks

Miss Ellen Joy Kaplan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Kaplan of 415 Elmwood Terrace, Linden, New Jersey, and Dr. Lawrence Bernard Marks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack L. Marks of 24 Wriston Drive, were married on Sunday, June 8, at the Citation Manor in Union, New Jersey. Rabbi Yaacov Peterseil and Cantor Sidney Mandel officiated at the double ring, candlelight ceremony. Following the reception Maurice Gordon conducted the sheva-brachos.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a Victorian styled gown of candlelight silk organza styled with a fitted bodice trimmed with reembroidered Alencon lace and an empire waist accented with seeded pearls. Her full skirt and chapel train were edged with wide matching scalloped lace and seeded pearls. Her matching Juliet cap held her tiered cathedral length silk illusion veil and she carried a Colonial bouquet of white roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Miss Arlene Ruth Kaplan was maid of honor for her sister. Miss Susan Kornstein and Miss Susan Apter were bridesmaids. They wore gowns of pale yellow and carried Colonial bouquets of yellow and white daisies and stephanotis.

Gary Marks, brother of the bridegroom, was best man, and Arnold Kornstein, uncle of the bridegroom, and Michael Kornstein, presented the wedding toasts.

Grandparents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. William D. Strong of South Hillcrest Court, Hollywood, Florida, formerly of Providence.

Following a wedding trip to Quebec and Montreal, Canada, and a motor tour of the eastern coastal states, Dr. and Mrs. Marks will live at the Air Force Base in Valparaiso, Florida. Dr. Marks, a captain in the USAF, has been selected for a residency at the USAF Hospital Eglin. Upon completing the year's residency, Dr. Marks, who will become a major, will be assigned to a USAF hospital to be in charge of the dental clinic.

The bride was graduated this year from the Temple University School of Allied Health as an occupational therapist. While at Temple University, she received the B'nai B'rith Honor Scholarship and was on the Dean's List for four years.

Dr. Marks was graduated this year from Temple University School of Dentistry where he was elected as a member of the Oral Surgery Honor Society, the Periodontal Honor Society and the American Society of Dentistry for Children. While a student at Temple, Dr. Marks was selected by the Air Force to receive a USAF scholarship.

HENDEL-REINKE

Miss Ann E. Reinke, formerly of Northampton, Massachusetts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard H. Reinke of 937 Windward Court, Oshkosh, Wisconsin, was married on Saturday, June 28, to Richard C. Hendel of Austin, Texas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice W. Hendel of 142 Jenckes Hill Road, Lincoln. Judge William

E. Crane officiated at the 1:30 p.m. ceremony which was held at the home of the bride's parents.

Ann L. Dunphy was maid of honor and Sean M. Dunphy was best man.

The couple will reside in Austin. The bride was graduated from the University of Wisconsin in Madison. She was formerly the marketing manager of the University of Massachusetts Press. The bridegroom who was graduated from the Rhode Island School of Design is design and production manager at the University of Texas Press.

SINAI WEDDING

EILAT: The first wedding ever recorded at Mount Sinai, the site where God handed down the Law to Moses, has been celebrated with the marriage of a soldier to a settler from the new Red Sea resort village of Dahab.

The Ashkenazi Chief Rabbi of Israel, Shlomo Goren, who has "adopted" the settlement, conducted the ceremony in the presence of many of the settlers, who chartered an aircraft for the 100-mile flight to the historic mount.

Federal Judge Rejects Request For Kosher Food

NEW YORK: A Federal judge rejected a request by an 18-year-old Orthodox Jew that he be given kosher food while serving two months at a youth correction center. The decision, by Judge Thomas C. Platt in Federal District Court in Brooklyn, contradicts a decision in an earlier case.

The youth, Gary Shlian of 141-50 73d Terrace, Kew Gardens Hills, Queens, had been sentenced after pleading guilty to having a forged draft card. The card was said to have been needed to buy the rifle used to fire four shots into the Soviet Union Nations Mission in October, 1971.

Judge Platt held that Mr. Shlian could get enough food that did not violate his religious beliefs to substitute for foods that did. Citing a contrary opinion by Federal Judge Jack B. Weinstein in a suit brought by Meir Kahane, head of the Jewish Defense League earlier this year, Judge Platt said that the case was incorrectly decided.

SUMMER SPECIAL

Under the direction of "Esthetician" Ms. Audrey, you will experience an invigorating manual massage prescribed for deep-pore cleaning. Ms. Audrey will also utilize today's most advanced European Massage Techniques together with the fabulous "Ionized water-vapor machine" used to soften and bring impurities to the surface. After steaming, your skin will be "vacuumed" to remove blackheads & whiteheads and then sprayed with a toning mixture removing "excess oil" from skin pores. Miss Audrey says in answer to do it yourself methods, "most women are startled when they're told that cleansing at home--while necessary--doesn't really get the skin clean."

Hello Again!
News of the Sports World by Warren Walden

GLOOMY PALL: The week started under a pall of gloom when early Monday morning it was learned that "Ruffian" had been destroyed; "Ruffian," the filly who was following the women's lib movement while matching her speed with a male of the species, the colt "Foolish Pleasure." "Miss Ruffian," undefeated, suffered a badly shattered ankle, underwent surgery but refused to keep the cast on the injured part, forcing the decision of destruction. She passed on still undefeated, losing by default. And the entire sports world seems saddened, affected, by her demise.

NARRAGANSETT: The fatal accident to "Ruffian" and the match race revived stories of the memorable Alsbab-Whirl-a-way duel at Narragansett Park a number of years ago. It also recalls the destroying of another beloved throbred who rests in a grave in the infield at Narragansett. He was an elderly racer named "Adobe Post" who had performed faithfully, consistently sending his backers to the "win" windows. When he was laid to rest in the infield as the bugler blew "taps," there were many eyes blurred by tears just as there were when the news of "Ruffian's" fate became known.

NO PROBLEM THEN: Back when colorful canoes were "the" thing on the Pawtucket River, the high price of gasoline as a mode of propulsion was not a problem. The silent dip of highly varnished paddles beautifully manipulated by manual armpower sent the graceful boats through the dark, peaceful waters. And beautiful and graceful they were! Luxuriously equipped with decorative cushions and pillows designed for comfort; some with phonographs playing records; others with special arrangements for storing refreshments. Club groups and individuals vied for attractiveness. Canoeing on the Pawtucket and also the Ten Mile River was a popular recreation.

ALSO A SPORT: A question, asked here recently, was, "What ever became of the 'Massapiacs' and the 'Ilkiumas'?" Those were the names of groups that sponsored canoeing and canoe racing. The question started tongues wagging, one answer coming from Mrs. Stephen Worrall of Needham, Massachusetts. "I spent many happy hours on the Pawtucket," writes Mrs. Worrall. "I married Steve, who with his brother Philip, were Commodores of 'Ilkiuma Club.'" Mrs. Worrall (Marion) tells of coming in second in a race at "Pumping Station." She still has her green ribbon, green and white being Ilkiuma colors. "Bill McLeod and his girl friend, later his wife, won first prize that day."

Ah yes, those were the days. And they could be brought back with color and interest. Spectacular, to say the least, when an Ilkiuma racing canoe came downstream with its double paddles dipping rhythmically. From a distance is looked like a huge centipede.

THE ALL STAR GAME: Let's shift the scene. Imagine yourself in a crowd of 48,000 gathered in the Polo Grounds in New York for the All Star Game of 1934. Immortal names in the annals of baseball were listed in the lineups that day. Billy Terry of the Giants managed the National Leaguers and Joe Cronin of the Washington Senators piloted the American Leaguers. The National League roster included Frisch, Traynor, Medwick, Terry, Klein, Jackson, Hartnett, Pepper, Martin, Curler, Ott, Paul Waner, and pitchers Carl Hubbell, Dizzy Dean, Warr- eke and Van Lingle Mungo.

AMERICAN LEAGUE: In the American League All Star array were Babe Ruth, Gehrig, Foxx, Simmons, Gehringer, Cronin, Dickey, Cochran and pitchers Harder, Ruffing and Lefty Gomez. What an array of talent! Truly All Stars! Murderer's Row! And to stop Murderer's Row, manager Bill Terry called on Carl Hubbell, a screwballing wizard and one of the great southpaws of all time. Would Hubbell be able to stop the powerhouse sluggers of the American League?

ASTOUNDING: Lefty Carl not only halted the big bat swingers, he came through with one of the greatest pitching feats of all time. Things started badly for the Giant's sniper. The first two men he faced, both good hitters, got on base. And then Hubbell faced a quintet capable of tearing him apart. The first was the mighty Ruth who went down swinging and then the almost as mighty Gehrig who also fanned. Then came "Double-X" Foxx who ended the inning striking out. Starting the next inning, Hubbell sent Simmons and Cronin down on strikes in succession! Five in a row! Trump that Mr. 1975! — CARRY ON!

RAID CASUALTIES

JERUSALEM: Two Israeli soldiers and seven Lebanese soldiers were killed when an Israeli search mission aimed against terrorist concentrations in southern Lebanon escalated into a series of sharp fire-fights with terrorists and Lebanese regulars. Israeli Army Chief of Staff Gen. Mordechai Gur said on a television interview that such operations would continue but expressed regret that Lebanese soldiers were involved.

been rescinded and the company is able to collect the fuel adjustment charge. This enabled the company to report a good increase in revenues and earnings for the March quarter. Nonetheless, the cash dividend has been lowered to 10c in each of the past two quarters, in order to conserve cash. The situation appears to be improving and the shares should be retained for continued recovery.

Q: I'm 68, retired and would like to improve my income, if possible. What suggestions do you have on my portfolio (list enclosed)? M.S.

A: Your $40,000 pays you $3,560 annually, a current yield of 8.8%. This is pretty hard to improve. I would like to mention that the Standard Oil of Indiana floating rate note, which is currently paying 9.7%, will, after July 31, 1975, drop this rate to 1% above the Treasury Bill rate. With three-month bills currently yielding 5.7%, you stand to take a substantial cut in income. I would favor selling this holding in the secondary market, where the quote is just below par.

Host International (NYSE) is not the same quality as the bulk of your portfolio which is made up of utility, pipeline and oil issues. Furthermore, the yield is a low 4.3%. Sale is advised. The proceeds from these two sales should be reinvested in 16M (face amount) of Georgia Power 7-7/8s of 2003. Selling at a substantial discount from par, this BBB-rated bond yields 11% currently. This would add over $200 to your income and increase your return to 9.4%.

Q: Would you please comment on Greyhound Corporation (NYSE)? G.S.

A: In the last two quarters — December and March — Greyhound's earnings failed to cover the dividend and revenues were off, year-to-year, as well. Profit margins were under pressure in the Armour division, reflecting higher costs. Although some improvement is anticipated, longer term, 1975 earnings are not expected to be much better than the $1.37 a share reported for 1974. Because the generous yield on these shares appears none too secure, I would avoid this issue.

100,000 REGISTER
TEL AVIV: More than 100,000 volunteers have registered for Israeli civil defense, it was revealed by Minister of Police Shlomo Hillel. As a result of this outpouring, there was no need to consider a law for compulsory registration for this service. Minister Hillel said that many of the volunteers were students aged 17 to 18. Hillel welcomed this showing, adding it was proof that despite the internal problems of the State the morale of the people was high.

By Harry Golden

The Black Anti-Semite

Jewish sociologists, social workers, psychologists who have studied black anti-Semitism have been able to determine the following:

1. There is indeed such a phenomenon as black anti-Semitism.
2. It is more prevalent among the young blacks than among the older.
3. As black aspirations continue to encroach upon white customs and values, black anti-Semitism will get worse before it gets better.

But it is also true that black anti-Semitism does not grow naturally from the stereotype of the Jew as Christ-killer. Blacks divide their anti-Semitism equally with other hatreds. In Harlem, blacks hate Jewish landlords, and in San Francisco, they hate Italian landlords.

Political anti-Semitism is the concoction of some militant black leaders and, as such, it has an unfortunate attraction for young blacks.

The same is true, however, of a certain portion of whites. There are young whites who proclaim themselves "Third World Activists" and as such condemn Israel and, by extension, the American Jewish community. At the bicentennial celebration in Boston on April 19, parents watched the reenactment of Lexington and Concord while the kids sat up all night listening to Pete Seeger and at noon booed President Ford.

The young believe if they treat nothing as sacrosanct they will get their way. Blacks may not believe this with the fierce devotion of their white counterparts. But they believe with their left hand as it were.

Part of the reason for the estrangement between Jew and black is that when minority groups manage an ascension into the middle class, they sometimes tend to treat groups who have not ascended much as they were once treated.

This is always hard for men of good will to comprehend. We work on the assumption that given a just society, men of all types will seek justice. Plato said this was a naive assumption and the older I get the more I realize Plato's inherent sophistication.

The truth is that anti-Semitism for blacks as anti-anything for anybody is a diversion from the main struggle. And the struggle in the black community for its rights an equality is a far harder struggle today than it was 10 years ago.

No intelligent white — and no intelligent black man — realized 10 years ago how profound a division race creates among a people.

ATOMIC POWER

HAIFA: The idea that a transition form conventional energy installations based on oil to atomic power stations fueled by uranium will free Israel from dependence on foreign energy sources is absolutely groundless, said Professor Anthony Frania of Haifa's Institute of Technology. To begin with, the professor said, Israel will have to purchase its uranium abroad. In the second place, atomic energy will not result in reduced costs but have the opposite effect, and it will be substantially more expensive. The scientist also noted that atomic reactors are a threat to the public good, in that they tend to pollute the water supply and are likely to damage the country's agriculture.

What Is The Reason?

RABBI YAAKOV UVSITZKY

Why is the synagogue not brightly lit on Tisha B'Av?

As a sign of mourning. When the Temple was destroyed, G-d asked the angels, "What does a King of flesh and blood do when he goes into mourning?" "He puts out all his lanterns," the angels replied. Therefore G-d said to them, "I will do likewise," as it is written "The sun and the moon are become black" (Joel 4:15 Echa Rabthi).

Why is it customary to read the Book of Esther from a parchment Scroll and not to read the Book of Lamentations from a parchment Scroll?

Because the holiday of Purim will never cease from Israel, and the book of Esther which contains its story will be retold year after year. As for the Book of Lamentations, the Rabbis were not desirous to have it written down on parchment form for we hope the time will come when Tisha B'Av will be turned into a day of rejoicing and happiness. As a result we read the Book of Lamentations from books of ordinary paper.
