Emanu-El Plans Main Fund-Raiser, 'Donor Brunch'

The Sisterhood of Temple Emanu-El is busily planning for its Mitzvah Donor Brunch, which supports the Temple's youth and senior adult activities. The Mitzvah Brunch, which will be catered, and the entertainment program, entitled, "A Time to Rejoice," will be held on Sunday, November 19, at 11:30 a.m., at the Meeting House. This is the main fund-raising event of the year. Reservations are required, and information may be obtained by calling the Temple office.

Featured artists for the program will be Sidra Gay Cohn, singing actress, and Eugene Bonderman, pianist-composer. Ms. Cohn earned her Bachelor's and Master's degrees in singing and acting from the Mannes School in New York and Boston University School of Arts. She has appeared in musical theater, opera, concerts, and on television and radio. Her own musical production, "Wonder Woman," is being readied for a Broadway opening.

Eugene Bonderman emigrated to America with his parents from the Soviet Union in 1975. He graduated from the Children's Conservatory of the Republic of Kirghizia in 1967, the State College in 1971, and the State Conservatory in 1975. He is heard nightly at the Cafe Budapest in Boston and has produced two recording albums and some single records.

The committee for the Mitzvah event is Sylvia Mandell, chairwoman; Barbara Rosen, treasurer; Velma Felder, publicity; Ruth Horvitz, invitations; Sydelle Sidney, decorations; Estelle Klemmer, Lynda Motamed, Lillian Schwartz, Shirley Bellin, Harriet Baron, Jeanne Feldman, members-at-large; and Vida Barron and Elaine Odessa, ex-officio.

Russian Jewish Artists-Dissidents To Exhibit Works

The seven Russian artists-dissidents whose works are represented in this landmark exhibit of contemporary graphics have all emigrated to Israel in the past few years. Denied links to their past as Jews, these artists created new national and spiritual images while in Russia. Four of them participated in 1975 in an unprecedented underground Jewish art exhibit in Leningrad and Moscow.

Today these seven artists are free to express the complex interaction of the Jewish and Russian experience in their work. Each one has held exhibits in Israel.

As a special addition to our exhibit, several of the works shown were smuggled out of the Soviet Union.

Among the artists featured are Yevgeny Abeshaus, who spent three years as a refusenik and leader of the Leningrad Jewish community, and Anatol Schnitke, a long-time prisoner in Soviet labor camps. Schnitke's stark woodcuts mirror the bleak life of the camps in bold compositions, while work centers on familiar old-world Jewish figures set against delicate, fanciful backgrounds.

Others in the group are Naftali Rakuzin, whose finely drawn etchings are often based on literary sources; Tatiana Kornfeld, who interprets traditional Jewish subjects in a contemporary style; and "Lena," whose bird flying over a remote, peaceful landscape expresses perfectly the concept of freedom. Also in the show are graphics and wood sculptures by Yuri Kalendarev and surrealist Sima Ostrovsky. All the artists are graduates of higher art institutes of Russia.

The exhibit will be open to the public November 7 through 12, from 12 noon to 8 p.m. daily, in the Crystal Room of Alumni Hall, at Brown University, at 194 Meeting Street, Providence. Works may be purchased.

The exhibit is being brought to Brown by Deborah Barshay, chairwoman of the show, and a graduate student in the Slavic Department of the University, and by Michael Rukin, president of Group Aleph, originator of the exhibition and a connoisseur of Soviet Jewish Art.

US Works To Bring Peace Talks Back On Course

WASHINGTON (JTA): The United States worked strenuously this past weekend to bring the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty negotiations back on the track toward early completion. But the West Bank settlements issue continued to divert attention from the treaty itself.

In its efforts to assist Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to indicate to other Arab leaders that he is supporting the Palestinians and Jordan, the Carter Administration is taking the position that Israel is violating the spirit of the Camp David accords.

In addition, the U.S. is making the point that Harold Saunders, the Assistant Secretary of State for Middle East and South Asian Affairs, who is alleged by Israelis as having made promises to Jordan, Saudi Arabia and the Palestinians last week that Israeli settlements on the West Bank would be removed ultimately just as they are to be removed from the Sinai, was within "the scope" of the Camp David agreement.

In his statement last Thursday severely rebuking Israel's Cabinet for announcing it would "thicken" the existing Jewish settlements on the West Bank, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance said the U.S. would "refrain" from saying any more about the issue until the U.S. had heard from Israeli Premier Menachem Begin. Nevertheless, by background briefings and leaks the media has been emphasizing, with attribution to U.S. sources, that Israel is to blame for the temporary lapse in the Blair House negotiations.

No comment was forthcoming immediately in Washington on Begin's reply to a message from President Carter regarding the settlements. Meanwhile, little attention is being given to the Carter compromise with Begin at Camp David that Israel could extend its existing settlements but not build new ones during the peace negotiations. Carter used the word "trade off" for this arrangement, which he said publicly was a good one.

Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan, who arrived last Thursday night from Israel with Defense Minister Ezer Weizman, declared that the Israeli settlements on the West Bank were there to stay. "I want to make it clear we don't feel we have to apologize about it," he told reporters.

Meanwhile, the State Department has thus far refused requests that Saunders hold a new conference or disclose the American responses to Jordan King Hussein's 13 questions regarding the Camp David accords. But Vance issued a public statement on Monday defending Saunders. He said: "I deplore the personal attacks on Assistant Secretary Harold Saunders in connection with his recent conversations in the Middle East. Mr. Saunders is an outstanding public servant who has had more than a decade of experience in dealing with the problems of the Middle East, and I have the utmost confidence in him."

Speaks On Shtetl Life

Dr. Robert G. Weisbord professor of history at the University of Rhode Island, will be the guest speaker at the open dinner meeting of the Westerly Lodge of B'nai B'rith to be held Sunday night, November 12, at 7 p.m. in Westerly's Congregation Shaare Zedek Synagogue on Union Street.

Dr. Weisbord received his undergraduate and graduate degrees from New York University. His Ph.D. thesis was "African Zion: The Attempt to Establish a Jewish Colony in the East African Protectorate, 1903-1905." He has been the recipient of a number of prizes, grants, and fellowships for his work dealing with multi-racial problems, racial relations, and population policies and has had a number of books and articles published on the subjects of Black and Afro-Americans, and Jews. He is a member of the African Studies Association and the American Historical Association.

At the B'nai B'rith meeting on November 12, Dr. Weisbord will show a 12-minute film entitled "Before the Holocaust," taken in 1932 by his father. It depicts life in a Polish shtetl, and those attending the dinner will get a rare view of residents of this Jewish community in various attire, some very traditional and some quite contemporary, driving cars and riding in horse-drawn carts, in front of their homes, businesses, and schools. After finding the film among his parents' possessions, Dr. Weisbord studied the history of the Jewish communities in Poland, and he will discuss the results of his study and make some comparisons with the more assimilated communities of Europe.

The kosher deli dinner, featuring both hot and cold favorites, will be served buffet style and is being catered by Levy's of Norwich. Reservations for the affair may be made by contacting Joseph Lewiss, secretary, at 596-4621. Members, friends, and anyone else desiring to attend are urged to make their reservations by November 9.

Israeli Cabinet To Deal With Peace Talks

JERUSALEM (JTA): The Cabinet met in special session this week to hear the latest reports on the state of peace negotiations with Egypt in Washington. It sat as a ministerial security committee, meaning that the proceedings were classified. This situation has drawn fire from the press. A committee of editors of Israel's daily newspapers met in Tel Aviv on Sunday night to protest the increasingly frequent invocation of security to prevent news of Cabinet deliberations from reaching the public.

The editors charged that this procedure was "anti-democratic" and deprived the public of the necessary information needed for intelligent debate on the peace talks. They said that the information being censored was not of a military or security nature.

No details were released on the substance of Monday's Cabinet session. However, the Cabinet announced the establishment of two ad hoc ministerial committees to study specific issues linked to the peace talks. One concerns the oil wells drilled by Israel in Sinai and the other the nature and extent of U.S. financial assistance for Israel's military pullback from Sinai.

It was understood that some ministers feel the American aid commitments have not been sufficiently firm and expect Premier Menachem Begin to raise the issue with President Carter if they meet during Begin's visit to the U.S. this week.

Women's Awareness Program Set

The Jewish Community Center, in cooperation with the Education and Resource Center of Women and Infants Hospital, is sponsoring a four-part lecture series entitled "Women's Awareness." The series will begin on Monday, November 6, and continue on subsequent Monday nights throughout November from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Center.

Toby Simon, health educator for Family Planning at Women and Infants Hospital, will lead the discussion with the aid of additional resource people.

The lectures are designed to address the many-faceted issues of a woman's identity. On November 6, the topic of discussion will be "My Body." The first hour will analyze a woman's anatomy and physiology: the monthly cycle, menses, menopause, and the hormonal changes which occur and the effect they have on the body. The second half of the evening will address the health concerns of women: good medical care, yearly checkups, monthly breast self-examinations, breast and cervical cancer, and surgery.

The program will continue on November 13 with a discussion of "Sexuality," on November 20 with "Roles," and will culminate on November 27 with an appraisal of the often-asked question "Who Am I?"

The community is invited to attend, and interested adults may choose to register for all four sessions. Attendance is limited to 30 people, so pre-registration is advised. For information about fees and other details, please call Judith Lantos at 861-8800.

Your Money's Worth

By Sylvia Porter

The Gold Bug! Don't Send Money!

ITEM: On July 21, 1978, a California dairy farmer and his wife sent $9,000 to a New York City firm in payment for 200 ounces of gold. They did not know whether they were buying an option, a deferred delivery contract or the actual gold — nor did they consult their local broker, banker or lawyer. A few days later, the telephone salesman, who had in an earlier phone call convinced them to send the money, called back with the good news that the price of gold had increased and they had already made a profit . . . Didn't they want to invest more?

The California couple sent another $13,500. Finally, a concerned daughter-in-law called the New York City Better Business Bureau. More than two months after wiring their money bank-to-bank in the overnight federal funds market, the Californians are in a bitter dispute trying to get back their $22,500. The New York City firm claims the money went for "selling costs."

ITEM: A coal mine superintendent in Ferron, Utah, sent $9,500 to a different company. He has been unable to get written confirmation of his purchase or even to get through to anybody at the company — including his salesman. When he did reach the company, he was told the salesman involved had suffered a nervous breakdown and was in the hospital. That same evening, a spokesman for the company told a BBB investigator that the salesman was on the telephone. Most of the $9,500 went for fees and commissions, but the miner was not told this before he sent in his cash.

ITEM: A Missouri farmer was allegedly told by another gold sales pitchman that there was no commission — and in a second call the same day, this disclaimer was repeated. A few hours later, the pitchman was telling a Better Business Bureau investigator that he had fully disclosed to the farmer that commissions and fees would absorb $2,400 of his $5,000 initial cash outlay.

What about the "unique program" being touted by telephone con men that permits you, a small investor, to buy gold for profit as well as for a traditional hedge against continuing inflation? What about the "dozens of experts . . . watching the minute-by-minute fluctuations in the gold markets," so that they can tell you when to buy, when to sell?

Inflation — The Evil Above All Other Evils — The Dilemma We Face

The chaotic deterioration in the value of the U.S. dollar through most of 1978 has created an almost insoluble dilemma for this nation and is threatening disaster for the Western world.

The Carter White House's own inexperience, inadequacy (if not outright ineptitude) have been prime factors which have brought our country to this near-crisis — and no matter how much can be attributed to Carter's prolonged learning-on-the-job phase, his administration cannot escape the blame.

In the process, these four facts have emerged with blinding clarity:

(1) The fundamental force behind the demoralization in the U.S. dollar — the most revered, desired currency in the world a mere few decades ago — is our relentless, and recently accelerating rate of inflation. This is THE EVIL above all other economic evils. No paper currency can long survive a steep inflation's vicious impact upon its nation's economy, moral standards, confidence, leadership.

None ever has. Ours cannot either.

(2) Inflation has placed us in the horrible dilemma of damned if we do, damned if we don't. And although we could have — with appropriate policies and timing — escaped the dilemma, we didn't.

On the one side, if U.S. economic policy is designed to curb inflation substantially, and to fight the equally dangerous psychology of inflation (which, so often, is self-fulfilling in that expectations of inflation spur inflation), then the danger becomes very real of a business downturn in 1979 — with all that implies about rising joblessness, business bankruptcies, etc.

And the business recession danger has intensified as the Federal Reserve System, determined to do all it can on its own to control the price-wage spiral, has tightened the screws on credit to the point where double-digit interest rates have returned for loans to the nation's prime borrowers for home mortgages, for borrowers across the board.

On the other side, if U.S. economic policy is geared to maintaining production, profits, sales and employment at what are deemed tolerable "political" levels, then the almost certain result is persistent inflation, culminating in what could be the worst depression since the catastrophic 1930s.

(3) Despite the contempt for U.S. economic policy fumbling which other national leaders (Germany, Switzerland, Japan, in particular) have shown to such an embarrassing degree, there is NO OTHER MONEY powerful enough at this time to replace the U.S. dollar as the reserve currency of the world. There is no other currency capable of supporting the expansion of global trade so imperative if world prosperity is to be sustained.

This European financial leaders admit is private, even as they have sneered in public at Carter's shilly-shallying, his apparent inability throughout most of his term to date to pull his international monetary and domestic economic policies into cohesive shapes.

The Swiss franc? The currency of a "postage stamp" nation! The German mark? A strong money, yes, but Germany isn't sufficiently powerful either — and even if it were, Germany says in effect, "thanks, but no thanks" to any suggestion that Germany take on the burden. The Japanese yen? Nonsense! Japan couldn't — and wouldn't — take it on, any more than Germany.

(4) Absymal though U.S. economic leadership has been in the first half of Carter's term, this nation remains in the unenviable position of being the No. 1 equal among equals.

And cliché though it is, the truism remains that when the U.S. sneezes, the rest of the Western world catches pneumonia.

Of course, the economic shilly-shallying within the U.S. cannot go on. Thus the President's phase II anti-inflation policy, to be analyzed in a future column in this series.

Finally, at the top level of our nation, the realization at last seems to have sunk in that we must reduce our current "underlying" annual inflation rate of at least 8 percent which — when compounded so that the 8 percent rests on a previous annual rate of 8 percent which in turn rests on a previous annual rate of 8 percent, etc. — would slash the dollar worth 100 cents in the marketplace today to 43 cents in only 10 years from now!

That alone would destroy our own society from within. That alone would pull down the rest of the free world with us.

FROM FRIDAY TO FRIDAY

The Next Thirty Years

By BERYL SEGAL

Rabbi Arthur Hertzberg, author and co-editor of the monthly Jewish review, Midstream, published by the Theodor Herzl Foundation in New York, addressed a group in Jerusalem, Israel, on "The Next Thirty Years for American Jews." By the next thirty years, Rabbi Hertzberg means the next thirty years in the life of the State of Israel, and the relations of American Jews to the state.

First of all, the Rabbi stresses the prominence of American Jews in the political life of the land. A people who make up less than 3% of the population is, because of its talents, represented in the political and cultural life of America in a much greater proportion than its actual numbers. The Rabbi might have mentioned that a people so small in numbers has given America 50% of its Nobel Prize winners.

The second assertion Rabbi Hertzberg makes is that only half of the Jews in America are affiliated with synagogues and pro-Israel organizations. They are concerned with World Jewry and follow closely Israel's political and economic fortunes. The unaffiliated and unorganized half of American Jews were not influenced at all by the rise of the State of Israel. The rate of intermarriage is the same as in pre-Israel years, and the pattern of assimilation has not been broken.

Which means, according to Rabbi Hertzberg, that we who carried the yoke of Israel on our shoulders until now, will have to carry it in the future, as well, and not hope for any help from the other half of the Jewish community.

As for the future, Rabbi Hertzberg thinks that the Jewish community will have to stress Jewish learning. This is, after all, the major Jewish concern for the next thirty years. Memories of a shared hurt, even of such proportions as the Holocaust, cannot sustain us here in America. Jewish spirituality, Jewish conviction, Jewish historic roots, such as will be taught in Jewish all-day schools, are needed if we are to stem the wave of assimilation. Affluent Jews have long abandoned the public school system, so why not establish day-schools of all kinds, where Jewish spirituality will be transmitted?

Politically, the Rabbi thinks, Jews will have to "draw in their horns." The America of today is not what it was half-a-century ago. We are witnessing the emergence of blacks, some recent immigrants from Hispanic countries, and increasingly visible oriental communities all clamoring for power. Jews, who are only a community of three million, will have to concede to the aspirations of these new Americans.

In foreign affairs, Jews will have to stop being in the forefront of those who advocate a confrontation with the Soviet Union or with the Arabs. The American policy tends to be flexible in its dealings with foreign countries instead of taking a war-like posture. Insisting on getting tough with Russia unless she does certain things, or with the Arabs unless they relinquish certain policies, may not sit well with American policies. America is tired of war-like confrontations with other countries, and any one who advocates tough-mindedness in foreign policies will not be very popular. Accommodation, rather than confrontation, is the key word in American policy towards other people, and it will be wise of American Jews not to push America toward a stance it does not want.

The task of the Jewish community in America is a commitment to Jewish learning, thinks Rabbi Hertzberg. Without Jewish learning, the Jew will disappear and Israel will remain alone, "a Hebrew-speaking Albania," a country without world-wide Jewry to stand at its side.

And Rabbi Arthur Hertzberg ends with these three objectives for the coming thirty years, for the Jewish community: 1) To defend the Jewishness of a World Jewry; 2) To strengthen Israel; and 3) To strive for peace.

Our strengths are greater than our weaknesses. Our unity is far deeper than the differences among us. Our love for each other and of the whole Jewish people is our dominant emotion.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

DAVID R. SARGENT

Once Bitten — Twice Shy

Q: When we retired six years ago we had a good stock portfolio, mutual funds and savings. We were talked into selling all our stocks and investing in more mutual funds. We are 72 and 64 and need income. Now another broker wants us to sell these funds and buy Keystone B-4. This means another load fee. Would you look at our holdings and give us some advice? F.B. Florida

A: Having once paid the load fees to invest your $92,000, forking out another 6% to buy still another fund just doesn't make sense. The objectivity of the advice you have been given is even more questionable in view of the fact that two of your funds have excellent bond funds to which you may transfer for a $5 fee.

Your three fund holdings are yielding $2,665 or 2.9%, a pretty meager yield for a person seeking income. If you switch

Delaware to Delchester Bond Fund and Fidelity Fund to Fidelity Corporate Bond Fund, you will gain $3,500 for an annual return of $6,155. I would leave Vance Sanders as is. It has a good growth record and should provide some inflation protection in coming years. Take your income dividends in cash but leave your capital gains distributions in the fund to build your investment.

Q: Your recommendations concerning my holdings (see enclosed list) and how I might better the quality of my portfolio would be appreciated. I do not depend on my stocks for income. B.T. California

A: Your portfolio is based in some excellent high quality growth stocks — International Business Machines, K mart, Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing, Schlumberger, and Warner-Lambert, all NYSE listed. In addition, a second layer of good stable issues adds to the safety of the whole. You also hold a few stocks that have encountered problems, namely Chrysler and Telex. I would sell both. Rockwood National and Lemans Resources are trading at $2 and 50¢ respectively. Sale would bring in very little cash but would give you a tax write-off.

You have substantial positions in Core Industries (NYSE) and Lee Pharmaceuticals (ASE), which should be reduced by 500 shares each. Gains here may be offset by losses from the sales suggested above. Proceeds from the liquidations may be added to holdings of K mart and Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing.

MR. AND MRS. BRUCE DAVID NELSON

Susan Roberta Kerrigan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Kerrigan of Bainbridge Islands, Washington, was married to Bruce David Nelson, son of Mrs. Dorothy M. Nelson of Providence, and the late Dr. Walter D. Nelson, on August 26, at the couple's home in West Roxbury, Massachusetts. Rabbi Leslie Gutterman officiated at the 7:29 p.m., double-ring ceremony. The reception was at the Copley Plaza Hotel, in Boston.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a handmade skirt and crocheted-lace top created by the bride's sister, Pat, her grandmother, and an artist friend. She carried white roses attached to an antique family bible.

Maid of honor was the bride's sister, Patricia Kerrigan. Best man was Bob Greenbaum, brother-in-law of the bridegroom. Other attendants were Wendy Greenbaum, flower girl, and Todd Greenbaum, ring bearer.

The bride is a graduate of the School of the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston/Tufts University, where she received her Bachelor's of Fine Arts degree. The bridegroom is a graduate of the University of Rhode Island, and received his Master's degree in business from Suffolk University. He is now president of Bruce D. Nelson Associates, a communications consulting firm in Boston.

Following their wedding trip to Bermuda, the couple will reside in West Roxbury.

Admits 'Mistake' To Israel

JERUSALEM (JTA): Gen. Ensio Siilasvuo, commander-in-chief of all United Nations forces in the Middle East, said last week that UN headquarters in Jerusalem had made a "mistake" when it accused Israel on Oct. 16 of organizing a demonstration by Christian militiamen in Lebanon against the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon (UNIFIL) in the border village of Nakoura.

The accusation, contained in an unprecedented public statement issued to the local and foreign press here, brought an angry protest to Israel from UN Secretary General Kurt Waldheim in New York. The UN alleged that Israeli army officers were present and had "fully supported" the demonstration which culminated in the kidnapping of two Lebanese army officers serving as liaison with UNIFIL. Damage was done to UNIFIL property. Siilasvuo told reporters today that he hoped his acknowledgement of the "mistake" would put an end to the entire incident.

Urge Cooperation Between Israel- Diaspora Jewry

PARIS (JTA): One of France's foremost Jewish leaders, Adam Loss, has called for a close, even if at times difficult, cooperation between Israel and diaspora Jewry based on the principles "of Israel's continued existence and the permanent nature of the diaspora itself."

Loss, who is the director general of the Fonds Social Juif Unifié (FSJU), the French central welfare fund, and publisher of France's monthly Jewish review "L'Arche," stressed in an editorial that diaspora Jewry seems destined to remain a permanent factor in Jewish life even if Jewish immigration to Israel were to steeply increase.

First Jewish Food Fair In Johannesburg

JOHANNESBURG (JTA): The delectable delicacies will delight the throngs and the calorie count will climb when the first Johannesburg kosher food fair opens this month at the Simon Kuper Hall. According to Manny Dworcan, organizer of the fair, it promises to be the biggest fun happening in the Jewish community for a long time.

The largest display of kosher food ever assembled under one roof will be supplied by 40 companies. There will be an ultra-modern kitchen, demonstrations of cooking and handy hints for the kosher housewife on the preparation of traditional dishes and many regular dishes "in a kosher way."

All of this will be held against a background of the "Jewish Sound," consisting of music, interviews and other entertainment. For youngsters, the fair will feature puppet shows, fireworks and a demonstration of cows being milked. The South African Army is sending a mobile kitchen to demonstrate how kosher meals are prepared for those Jewish recruits who are observant.

The kosher food fair will be opened officially Nov. 12 by Chief Rabbi B. M. Casper and will continue through Nov. 18.

ANNOUNCES SUCCESSFUL CAMPAIGN: Mrs. Sheldon (Gladys) Sollosy, campaign treasurer for the Rhode Island Israel Bond Committee, has announced the success of the first telethon for cash collection. Rhode Island's goal for October has been reached. This goal is part of an international cash drive to pay tribute to Prime Minister Begin and those who have brought Israel closer to peace.

Calling upon the executive committee and communal leaders, Mrs. Sollosy plans to continue the thrust established, so as to make this "year of peace" monumental in every way possible. Members of the treasurer's committee include Sarah Greenberg, Cranston; Israel Resnick and David Horvitz, Pawtucket; Muriel Leach and Essie Einstien, Providence; and Ella Zelniker, Warwick.

RABBI APPOINTED

NEW YORK (JTA): The Haham, Dr. Solomon Gaon, chief rabbi of the Sephardic Congregations of the British Commonwealth, has been appointed to the Maxwell R. Maybaum Memorial Chair in Talmud and Sephardic Codes at Rabbi Isaac El-chanan Theological Seminary, to become the institution's first Sephardic Rosh Yeshiva, it was announced by Dr. Norman Lamm, president, Yeshiva University, with which the seminary is affiliated.

May Solve Mystery Of Missing Diplomat Who Saved Jews

LONDON (JTA): New information may soon become available about attempts to solve one of the most poignant puzzles of the 20th Century. The Swedish government will consider publishing some of its documents about the case of Raoul Wallenberg, the diplomat who disappeared in Soviet captivity 33 years ago after heroically saving thousands of Hungarian Jews from Adolf Eichmann's death squads.

A report from Stockholm said that the government would decide which of the 7000 documents in its Wallenberg file can be published despite the rule forbidding the disclosure of state papers for 50 years.

The move was greeted as a partial victory by circles in Sweden who have been petitioning for publication of the Foreign Ministry's entire Wallenberg file, its biggest on a single individual. The Swedish government has never been satisfied with the Soviet Union's claim that Wallenberg died in the Lubyanka Prison in Moscow in 1947 at the hands of Stalin's secret police.

Its file contains statements by many people that Wallenberg had been seen alive long after he was supposed to have died and that he had been sentenced to a lengthy prison term. The latest "sighting" was reported in the early 1960s and new evidence is still emerging. Were he alive today he would be 66.

Wallenberg's mother, Mrs. Maj Von Dardel, is now 87 and his step father, Frederik Von Dardel, is 93. Both are well for their age and have not despaired of learning something about Raoul Wallenberg's fate before they die. Last year, Mrs. Von Dardel wrote to Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev about the case. But, as with many previous such letters to the Kremlin, she received no reply.

Public Awareness Revived

Public awareness of the case outside Sweden was recently revived by Simon

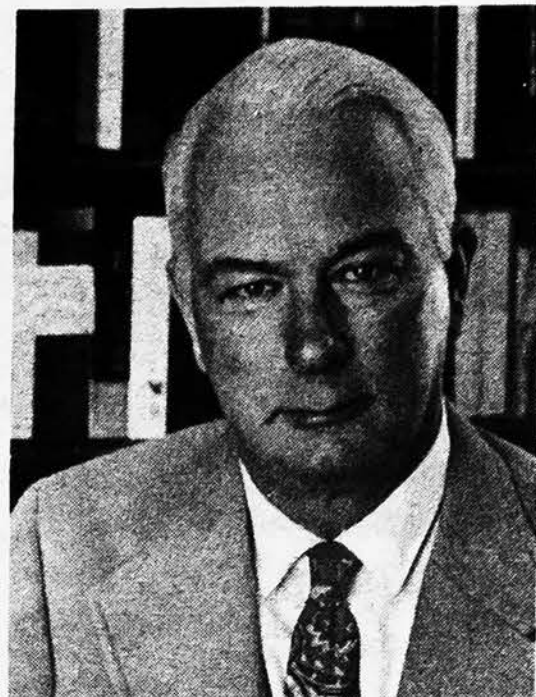

Wiesenthal, head of the Vienna Jewish Documentation Center. Wiesenthal, famous for hunting Nazi criminals, has at least one reliable new witness who testifies that Wallenberg did not die in 1947, as Moscow claims, but was sent to Siberia.

The witness is an Austrian Jewish doctor, Menachem Melzer, who says he treated Wallenberg in a labor camp in Vorkuta a year after the date at which the Kremlin says he died. This supports many similar claims over the years by people who have emigrated from the Soviet Union. Wiesenthal recently suggested that Sweden should threaten to boycott the 1980 Moscow Olympic Games unless the Soviet Union offered to clear up the mystery. Although widely reported in Sweden, this plea has apparently little support there.

Earlier this year, the King of Sweden visited the Soviet Union, a sign that the Wallenberg case has ceased to be the important factor in Soviet-Swedish relations that it once was. It is doubtful whether the matter was even mentioned during the King's visit.

However, Alexander Solzhenitsyn, the exiled Soviet writer, has said that Wallenberg could have survived despite official claims of his death. The author of "The Gulag Archipelago" made this statement in Stockholm four years ago when he received his Nobel Prize for Literature.

The son of a gifted, aristocratic family, Wallenberg was only 32 when he arrived in Budapest in July 1944 as a secretary at the Royal Swedish Legation. Armed with neutral diplomatic status and money from American Jewish funds, his assignment was to set up a special section at the legation to save as many Jews as possible from the "final solution."

TO SPEAK: On Sunday, November 5, the Men's Club of Temple Emanu-El will present Professor Lyman B. Kirkpatrick, Jr., as the featured speaker of their breakfast program. Professor Kirkpatrick has had a distinguished career with the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), and at the time of his resignation in 1965, he was Executive Director-Comptroller of that agency. He is the author of many articles which have appeared in national publications and newspapers. His most recent literary accomplishment is a book entitled The Real CIA. Professor Kirkpatrick has served as the Chester A. Nimitz Professor of National Security and Foreign Affairs at the Naval War College in Newport. He is currently Professor of Political Science at Brown University.

The program begins with services at 9 a.m. in the Chapel, to be followed by breakfast for Men's Club members at 9:45 a.m. Professor Kirkpatrick will speak at 10:30 a.m., and the community is invited to attend. Jason Cohen is chairman of the committee, which also includes Archie Chaset, Jack Feit, Sam Stein, Max Kaplan, Jack Strashnick, and Abe Lippman.

UN Adopts Anti-Israeli Provisions

UNITED NATIONS (JTA): The General Assembly's Social, Cultural and Humanitarian Committee (the Third Committee) last week adopted two draft resolutions with strong anti-Israel provisions.

The first resolution, on the international convention on the suppression and punishment of apartheid, had among its provisions the declaration and program of action adopted recently in Geneva by the World Conference to Combat Racism and Racial Discrimination. The declaration and program of action links Zionism with racism, recalling the infamous 1975 resolution by the General Assembly.

The anti-Israel provision was voted on separately and was adopted by a 97-21 vote with 10 abstentions. Israel, the United States and other Western countries were among those who voted against.

The other resolution, regarding the self-determination of peoples in colonial countries, included provisions condemning Israel's "expansionist activities in the Mideast" and condemned governments which did not recognize the right to self-determination of all people, "notably the people of Africa and the Palestinian people." The vote on the draft was 95-21 with 10 abstentions. The Western European countries, Australia, Canada, New Zealand, Israel and the United States voted against the draft. The two resolutions are expected to be approved by the General Assembly.

Urge US Act On Fascist

NEW YORK (JTA): A man who has been campaigning for almost 30 years to bring to justice Nazi war criminals residing in the United States warned that the efforts to deport Bishop Valerian Trifa, the leader of the fascist Romanian Iron Guard during World War II, may be lost unless there is enough pressure on the U.S. Attorney General's office and the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) to end its continuous postponement of the case.

Dr. Charles H. Kramer, president of the Committee to Bring Nazi War Criminals to Justice in the U.S., who is also president of the Romanian Jewish Federation of America, said that the case against Trifa has been dragging on since May, 1975 "during which there have been three different U.S. Attorneys General and the deaths of some of our most important eyewitnesses against Trifa."

In a letter to Jewish organizations, which he released to the Jewish Telegraphic Agency, Kramer, who is 80 years old, noted that "Trifa's pogrom took place in January, 1941. Our witnesses are over 70 years old. They cannot live forever. Only Trifa is still relatively young — now 64 years old."

Kramer said he has submitted documentation to the Attorney General's office and the INS since 1952 "and last year I undertook a trip to Europe and Israel specifically concerning this issue. I returned with an additional list of over 50 witnesses which I have personally discovered and which I submitted to Martin Mendelsohn, head of the litigation unit of the INS involved with trying Nazi war criminals." Kramer noted that Trifa has reportedly collected $680,000 for a defense fund while "our government is not spending that kind of money to win the case."

Singer Will Visit Israel

Isaac Bashevis Singer, this year's winner of the Nobel Prize for Literature, has accepted an invitation to visit Israel, extended by Mr. Leon Dulzin, chairman of the executives of the Jewish Agency and the World Zionist Organization in Jerusalem. The invitation was tendered to Mr. Singer and his wife at their home in New York by Charlotte Jacobson, chairwoman of the American Section of the World Zionist Organization, and Isadore Hamlin, executive vice-chairman.

Mr. Singer was picked "for his impassioned narrative art, which, with roots in Polish-Jewish cultural traditions, brings universal human conditions to life." He first wrote in Hebrew, but turned to Yiddish because that was the language his characters spoke as they went about their daily lives.

The Nobel Prize winner said that he "accepts the invitation with gratitude and love to all the Jewish people and especially to the Jewish community of Israel." He has, he said, "a great and deep desire to visit the yishuv," after he receives the Nobel Prize.

Mr. Singer said that the exact date of his and Mrs. Singer's visit will be determined by the schedule of his other obligations and may take place in the spring or summer of 1979.

Clash Over Israel At UNESCO

PARIS (JTA): Amadou m'Bow, Director General of UNESCO tried, without apparent success last week, to avert a clash over Israel at the 20th general conference of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization that opened here Tuesday. Departing from the prepared text of his speech, m'Bow stressed that there is "no issue over Israel" or Israel's response to previous UNESCO resolutions.

He also released a report on education in the Israel-occupied Arab territories that contains numerous favorable references to Israeli activities in that field. The Arab bloc and its allies had sought to suppress that part of the report while Israeli diplomats repeatedly pressed for release of the full report which they felt vindicated Israel's policies.

In spite of m'Bow's extemporaneous plea, the Arab rejectionist front said it would try to obtain Israel's condemnation at the current UNESCO conference and its temporary exclusion from the organization.

The Arabs and their allies claim that Israel has failed to respect a UNESCO resolution barring its archaeological digs in East Jerusalem and has refused to permit the appointment of a UNESCO observers team to supervise educational facilities on the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Observers said that m'Bow for his part was anxious to avoid a repetition of the situation that developed in 1974 when UNESCO adopted a series of anti-Israel resolutions. One consequence was the refusal of the U.S. to pay its contributions to the UNESCO budget until last year when Israel was fully reinstated in all UNESCO activities.

Meanwhile, Napoleon LeBlanc, a professor at Laval University in Quebec, was unanimously elected President of UNESCO at the plenary session. The Canadian had been challenged by the Arab and African bloc which supported the Deputy Prime Minister and Education Minister of Jordan, Abdul-Salam Majali, for the office.

Jewish Journalist May Be Released Soon

NEW YORK (JTA): Admiral Emilio Massera, formerly of the Junta that has governed Argentina since March, 1976, has expressed the belief that imprisoned Jewish journalist Jacobo Timerman will soon be released and permitted to leave Argentina.

Timerman is presently under house arrest, Massera said, although the Argentine Supreme Court cleared him of any crime two months ago.

Massera, an influential figure in Argentine political life and chief of the Navy until recently, was a guest of honor last week at a reception given here by the American Jewish Committee, attended by various Jewish leaders. Answering questions about the relations between Argentina's Jewish community and the Junta, Massera said the Timerman affair by no means could be interpreted as indicating anti-Semitic feelings on the part of the Argentine government.

"I'm confident we can go into next year with NO TAX INCREASE."

Being Mayor is a tough job, but a rewarding one. With the new construction we've initiated downtown and in the neighborhoods, the renewal of historic buildings, the new businesses and jobs we've attracted . . . all working to expand our tax base, and with increased revenue from our port we've been able to turn Providence around. Coupling these with sound financial management, I'm confident we can go into next year with NO TAX INCREASE.

Sincerely

mothers and babies

LITTLE KNOWN FACTS

Don't be surprised, pediatricians say, if at around 18 months, your child shows a lack of interest in eating. Some children even refuse to eat for several meals in a row, while behaving perfectly normally in other ways. This slow-down of appetite is very usual as the baby's period of most rapid growth is nearing its end.

Don't be surprised at the attractive outfits available for mothers-to-be these days. One, from Mothercare, retailing specialists for mothers-to-be, babies and children under five, is a pinwale corduroy pantsuit of cotton and polyester, with an attractive drawstring waist on the jacket.

Don't be surprised, doctors say, if your baby crawls differently from others. Creeping is an individual skill. Some babies only use their arms, others crawl backwards. A few never really crawl at all but just start walking.

Don't be surprised at all the prize items of clothing for mothers-to-be available from Mothercare, Mother-to-Be, and Maternity Modes stores.

A good way to keep babies and others safe from the contents of the medicine cabinet is to have a cabinet with a safety-angled top and adult catch from Mothercare, retailing specialists for mothers-to-be, babies and children under five.

A good way to help a baby learn to talk, doctors say, is to use moderate tones and clear-cut speech. Loud sounds can confuse young children.

A good way to send a gift to a baby or a mother-to-be, many people have found, is to get a Mothercare gift certificate from Mothercare, P.O. Box 238, Parsippany, New Jersey 07054.

Crucifixion TV Play Causes Controversy

TORONTO (JTA): A four-hour play on the crucifixion, produced by an emigre Polish film director for the educational television arm of the Ontario government, is threatening to upset the equilibrium of the religious and artistic establishment in this province of Canada.

The play, which costs half a million dollars (a sore point in these days of promised governmental austerities) is called "The Jesus Trial" and it purports to examine the 2000-year-old Christian legacy of the deicide. It is based on an actual courtroom case that took place in 1974 in the French city of Troyes.

A French lawyer named Jacques Isnorn wrote a book, "Le Vrai Procès de Jesus" (The True Trial of Jesus), in which he argued that historically it was not the Jews but the Roman Procurator Pontius Pilate who bears the responsibility for Jesus' execution. He was challenged by a cleric, Abbe Georges de Nantes. A libel suit ensued which eventually was won by the lawyer.

The film enacts the French trial based on its reported text. It also interweaves shots from a Mexican passion play that has been performed in Ixtapalapa for the past 150 years, a performance of startling realism since at times the person playing Jesus has not survived to reach the cross, so acute are the actual tortures.

Also shown are actual films of Nazi concentration and death camps in their full horror (unlike those shown in the recent Holocaust TV program, these are real). In addition, continuing interreligious strife and killing is shown in scene's from today's Ireland and Lebanon.

There are interviews with and comments throughout the production by a wide variety of theologians, scholars, writers and churchmen from Canada, the U.S., Great Britain and Israel, including such persons as Canadian Jewish poet Irving Layton, British writer Hugh Schonfield, Prof. Emil Fackenheim, Rabbi W. Gunther Plaut, Rev. Franklin Littell, Father Gregory Baum, Sister Charlotte Stein and Prof. Northrop Frye.

Pre-Screenings Have Already Caused Controversy

Though the program will not be shown publicly until early November, already pre-screenings have caused considerable controversy and dissent. Roman Catholics have complained that "The Jesus Trial" does not adequately take into account the Second Vatican Council convened by the late Pope John XXIII and all that has happened flowing from this council to alter the church's basic position on the crucifixion and the deicide.

They also point out that Father de Nantes, presented in the film as a typical Roman Catholic spokesman, is now considered virtually a heretic in church circles and is diametrically opposed to current accepted church policies.

El Al May Stop Flights To Mexico

JERUSALEM (JTA): El Al may close down its weekly air service to Mexico which it says has lost about $2 million a year since it was inaugurated two years ago. The reasons are insufficient traffic and high costs, according to a report in Yediot Achronot last week.

But the national air carrier will make no final decision before consulting the government because of the political ramifications involved. The Mexico service was established both to stimulate tourism with that country and as a gesture of good will after a period when Israeli-Mexican relations were strained over the latter's anti-Israel votes in the United Nations.

But the line has been operating at only 34 percent of capacity. It cost the company $4.6 million to maintain during the last fiscal year, due partly to the need to fly a special staff to New York and from there to Montreal which is the stop-over point on Tel Aviv-Mexico City flights.

Succah Mobiles For New York

NEW YORK (JTA): In response to a call for acceleration by the Lubavitcher Rebbe, Rabbi Menachem M. Schneerson, the Lubavitch Youth Organization had 23 Succah Mobiles covering the New York Metropolitan area, it was announced by Rabbi Shmuel Butman, youth organization director. The portable Succahs, built on flatbed trucks, operated during the days of Chol Hamoed Succoth — the intervening days of the Succoth festival.

During these days the succah mobiles visited hospitals, nursing homes, colleges, youth groups and street corners to afford people the opportunity to enter the succah, make the blessings over the esrog and lulav and partake in the refreshments served.

The newest addition to the Succah campaign was a stationary succah, built for the first time, at the Dag Hammarskjold Plaza, 200 feet from the United Nations. The Succah gave the Jews who work in that area a place to eat during the holiday, in addition to giving passersby and visitors to the area a chance to make the blessings over the esrog and lulav.

Hopkins Square Park Dedicated in North End

This past weekend we had the great pleasure of dedicating yet another magnificent neighborhood park that will bring a great deal of pleasure to our children and to our adults in the north end section of our city. And with this dedication of this outstanding facility, we have added to the park system of the City of Providence that makes it a unique community in Rhode Island for its unwavering concern for the proper use of open spaces in our residential neighborhoods. That it was again a community effort, with the very strong and highly creative support of the North End Businessmen's Association should truly be acknowledged, for it was their help in the total effort that has made Hopkins Square Park all that we have wanted it to be.

This $160,000 project includes substantial upgrading of an existing area and such significant new features as the realignment of all walkways, the installation of interlocking modular pavers, a series of wrought iron benches, total resodding of the grassy plots, and the refurbishment of a monument to Esek Hopkins that dates back to the 1800's. Also, we have provided a new lighting strategy, several memorials to the servicemen from this neighborhood of the city who gave their lives for their country, and convenience facilities for the handicapped citizens who will also be able to take great pleasure from the park. To complete our total redesign and modernizing of this delightful green space in the city, we have provided an additional $10,000 of funding from the Mayor's Office of Community Development for a picturesque water fountain, and a series of lights that will brighten the park and focus attention of the nearby Saint Ann's Church, which has long occupied an important place in this neighborhood. We anticipate that the lighting will be available by the Christmas season, and we are now planning for the installation of the fountain as early in the spring as is practicable. When these final changes have been completed, we shall have made this wonderful park an exciting prospect for use by the citizens of this neighborhood of the city and their friends and families.

It is always an exciting moment when the hard work of our planning departments, our community development staff, and all of the other municipal departments engaged in neighborhood renovation and rehabilitation can see our ideas and our creativity turned into bricks, mortar, and magnificent open green spaces. With Hopkins Square Park, moreover, there is an additional satisfaction in its being another of the neighborhood facilities which have been substantially improved through the total cooperation of the residents and the business community. And it is most appropriate for us all to thank the North End Businessmen's Association for their untiring efforts in working with the neighborhood and with my administration to make this such a wonderful reality.

Dissident Will Emigrate

NEW YORK (JTA): Jewish dissident, Benjamin Levich, a well-known Soviet physicist, was granted permission last week to emigrate, according to reports from Moscow.

The 61-year-old scientist told reporters in Moscow last week: "I was assured by Academy of Science officials that I have permission to emigrate and this was confirmed by Interior Ministry officials." The case of Levich, who applied almost seven years ago for an exit visa, received special attention last month by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D.Mass.). Kennedy brought up the case of Levich during a two-hour conversation the Senator had with Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev in the Kremlin.

Levich and his wife, Tanya, were refused permission to emigrate on the grounds of state secrecy. The Leviches said they intend to live in Israel, although Levich has received offers from more than two dozen American universities for teaching positions. The couple's two sons, both scientists, were allowed to leave the Soviet Union three years ago.

Kennedy's intervention on behalf of Levich was seen as the reason for the Soviet consent to grant Levich permission to leave.

Arab Bloc Suffers Defeat At UNESCO

PARIS (JTA): The Arab bloc and its allies suffered a decisive defeat last week in a surprise bid for the presidency of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO). Napoleon LeBlanc, of Canada, won a 60-54 victory in the nominations committee over Abdul-Salam Majali, Deputy Prime Minister and Education Minister of Jordan. Majali then withdrew his candidacy.

Until now, the presidency of UNESCO has been rotated, without challenge among the five regional groups making up the organization. This year, it is the Western group's turn and LeBlanc, the selected candidate, is expected to be approved without opposition. But the Arab states, grouped with the Africans, had insisted the time had come for one of their members to take the chair regardless of the sequence of rotation.

Knesset Will Stay Kosher

JERUSALEM: At last, mothers of "my son, the politician," can relax. The members' dining room of the Knesset, where most political transaction of any importance are made over schnitzel and an inexhaustible supply of fresh bagels, will, after all, remain kosher.

For a while, it seemed that Israel's most important eatery would be without a kosher certificate, an unthinkable state of affairs in the very seat of Jewish government.

The Jerusalem Hilton Hotel, which was about to take over the catering contract at the Parliament, had its kosher license revoked by the city's Rabbinate last month for alleged "irregularities" in observance of the dietary laws and of the Sabbath.

The problem goes back to early this year, when the city Rabbinate wrested control of supervision of the dietary laws from Israel's Ashkenazi chief Rabbi, Shlomo Goren, renewing an old battle over responsibility for restaurant monitoring. To assert his authority, Jerusalem chief rabbi Bezalel Zolti cracked down on the Hilton, charging that unbled meat was found in the kitchen.

After a series of angry exchanges a deal was struck and the hotel agreed to a long list of strict Rabbinate demands, including: no smoking in the dining room, all stores closed on Sabbath, no foreign-made wines on the menu and an end to the annual Christmas party.

In the end, the hotel got back its kosher license, and the Knesset was assured once again of kosher meals. The Hilton will, after all, remain kosher, and religious Knesset members will have one thing less to atone for next year.

Anti-Semitic Violence In Uruguay

NEW YORK (JTA): Acting on reports on anti-Semitic violence in Uruguay during the recent High Holy Days, the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith has disclosed it had obtained assurances from Uruguay's ambassador to the United States that those responsible would be apprehended.

According to ADL's Latin American affairs director, Rabbi Morton M. Rosenthal, who met with Ambassador Jose Perez Caldas in Washington to discuss the Yom Kippur bombing of a synagogue and subsequent cemetery desecration, the diplomat stated: "The government and the people of Uruguay categorically repudiate the actions committed against institutions belonging to the Jewish community of Uruguay. I can assure you that the competent agencies of my country will do all that is necessary in order to identify the perpetrators of these outrages."

Rosenthal said it was the second time in six months that the Jewish community was shaken by anti-Jewish violence. The most recent rash began with a powerful blast through one of the country's largest synagogues in Montevideo, Vaad Lehisuk Hadat, only hours after the congregation had completed its Yom Kippur service. No one was injured, but the main door was blown to pieces, windows shattered and neighboring buildings damaged.

The explosion in the heart of the city's Jewish section brought immediate condemnation from the Comité Central Israelita del Uruguay, the representative body of the Jewish community, which called the attack a "savage form of anti-Semitism and an act of terrorism." The Committee expressed hope that the authorities would take all necessary measures to identify those responsible for "this vandalistic act" which "constitutes an insult to the nation."

Three days later, vandals struck again, this time defacing a Jewish cemetery with anti-Semitic slogans and swastikas.

NEWS OF HEALTH

Help For The Hung Over

There's good news for everyone who's ever suffered from a hangover—and better news for everyone who will. A new product has been developed especially for hang-over sufferers.

A hangover is caused by excessive eating or smoking, but is most often a result of overindulgence in alcoholic beverages and usually combines a headache, dehydration, fatigue, stomach upset and irritation.

YOU MAY BE ABLE TO MAKE the morning
after a little less awful.

The headache comes from the alcohol dilating the blood vessels in the brain. As the alcohol is gradually burned up, these stretched vessels return to normal, but in so doing, they tend to put the nerves that serve them a little on the stretch, and that causes pain. The stomachache comes about because alcohol is one of the few substances absorbed directly from the stomach into the bloodstream, and when this occurs in great volume, the secretion of gastric juices is altered, causing discomfort.

The dehydration is caused by the alcohol stimulating the kidneys to remove more fluids than the body takes in.

Fortunately, a new product called Quick-Over contains a combination of ingredients that each do something for the hangover victim.

Many doctors also suggest you sleep later, drink plenty of liquids and eat bland foods for awhile.
