ADL Commends R.I. Leadership Over Disclosure of Nazi Candidate

Former Rhode Island Nazi leader Patrick C. Labbe has formally withdrawn his candidacy for the State Senate in the 40th District following a 2½ hour meeting held late last week at state Republican headquarters in Providence.

According to Ronald Civins-Mills, executive director of the state GOP, Labbe's letter of resignation was delivered to the Board of Canvassers by J. Collin Dawson, chairman of the Pawtucket Republican City Committee. Civins-Mills however, would not say whether Labbe was asked to withdraw from the race.

The meeting was called when Civins-Mills and several other GOP officials learned the Labbe, for the past three years, has headed the local R.I. chapter of the National Socialist movement (NSM)—a Nazi group, Labbe, who stated that his role as leader of the Movement was only a 'ploy' to obtain information for a book his wife, Linda, was writing on Nazism, admitted to publishing and distributing a newsletter, along with a number of flyers, dealing with anti-Semitic themes and which attempted to enlist members for the NSM.

Labbe also stated that in preparation for declaring his candidacy, he had disbanded the NSM unit, dismantled a display of Nazi memorabilia he had set up in his home, and renounced all affiliations with NSM.

Although Civins-Mills would not discuss details of his meeting with Labbe, it is known that Dawson had been gathering information on Labbe's activities in the NSM since earlier in the week.

In response to a R.I. Herald phone call, Leonard Zakim, New England Regional Civil Rights Director for the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, stated that the ADL will continue its full investigation into the activities of the National Socialist Movement's Rhode Island branch.

He added that ADL area chairpeople, Herman Selya and Sam Shlevin, have been in steady contact with Providence and Pawtucket law enforcement authorities and that he had discussed the situation in depth with the U.S. Justice Department's Community Relations Service.

Zakim declared that the recent withdrawal of the neo-Nazi candidate from the race only one day after his neo-Nazi affiliation was made public, demonstrates that the Rhode Island community, Jewish and non-Jewish, will not tolerate the attempted subversion of America's democratic ideals and spirit by this type of deplorable political group.

Zakim commended the Providence and Pawtucket leadership and the media for working together to inform the public of the neo-Nazi component to this race.

Two Prominent R.I. Leaders Assail Begin Policies

JERUSALEM — At a meeting held here on Wednesday which included Dr. Jacob Neusner, professor of religious studies at Brown University in Providence, and Sylvia Hassenfeld, also of Providence, who is a member of the Board of Governors of the Jewish Telegraphic Agency, more than 50 other influential American Jewish leaders expressed their dissatisfaction with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin's policies.

In signing a statement which denounced extremism with the Israeli government the group represented the first major split between leading members of the American Jewish community and the Israeli government. Dr. Neusner and Ms. Hassenfeld signed the statement, which was drafted by the leftist Peace Now movement, along with the other leaders present at the meeting. The statement already bore the names of 250 prominent Israelis, including five former generals.

The American signatures represent a dissatisfaction with the Prime Minister's Likud government regarding policies in the West Bank, budget cuts and appointments within the cabinet.

Two R.I. Temples To Merge

WARWICK — Two Rhode Island Conservative Jewish congregations will become one on Monday, July 7, at a ceremony to be held at Temple Beth Am, 40 Gardner St., in Warwick.

Papers will be signed formalizing the merger between Temple Beth Am and Temple Beth David-Anshei Kovno of Providence. The signing ceremony will take place at a meeting of the Temple Beth Am Board of Directors.

The documents will be signed by the presidents, of both congregations, Arthur Poulsen of Temple Beth Am and Samuel Kagan of Temple Beth David, and the secretaries, Mrs. Carl Kortick of Beth Am and Mrs. Abraham Shuster of Beth David.

The result of the merger will be a single congregation with the official name of Temple Beth Am-Beth David-Anshei Kovno and its house of worship at Temple Beth Am here.

The building, on Oakland Ave., in Providence that Temple Beth David has called its home since 1954 has been put up for sale. It will continue to be used, however, for daily services and other activities until it is sold.

The nearly 80 members of Temple Beth David will become members of the new congregation, Temple Beth Am currently has nearly 275 families in its congregation.

"The merger of our Temples creates a stronger, more diversified congregation here at Temple Beth Am," Poulsen said. "We welcome the members of Temple Beth David and their participation in all Temple activities. Their devotion and loyalty to their Temple over the years has made Temple Beth David one of the most respected conservative congregations in our state . . . and we hope this pride and devotion will now be directed to help Temple Beth Am achieve its growth goals."

Kagan said the merger was "meant to be. The population shifts in recent years have created a situation for our congregation which called for such a merger. Nearly half of our current membership has moved to the suburban communities served by Temple Beth Am — Cranston, Warwick, West Warwick and East Greenwich, in particular."

Temple Beth David was founded in 1892 as Congregation of the Agudas Hachollei. In 1892 the cornerstone was laid for its original building on Chalkstone Avenue in Providence. In 1911 the Ahavas Achem Anshei Slavita Congregation from Shawmut Street merged with the Chalkstone Avenue congregation and from that time it was known as Beth David.

Its building on Oakland Avenue was dedicated in 1954 and in 1970 Temple Beth David accepted another congregation, Anshei Kovno.

Temple Beth Am celebrated its 25th anniversary last year. It is considered one of the most active conservative Temples in the state with a diversified congregation, but with an emphasis on youth as shown by its Hebrew School of nearly 120 students. Its membership is comprised, for the most part, of families from Warwick, Cranston, East Greenwich, West Warwick, Coventry and North Kingstown.

The Temple expects to break ground this fall for a new permanent sanctuary that will accommodate more than 250 congregants with an overall capacity for upwards of 900.

Leader Assails Group Over Israel Debate

Howard M. Squadron, chairman of the Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organizations, stated recently that he deplored the public debate that erupted this week among many prominent American Jews over Israel's territorial policies.

Referring to an incident which took place earlier this week when a group of 56 American Jews, including two of the chairman's predecessors, endorsed a statement criticizing extremists in the Israeli Government, Squadron remarked that "Such debate is always unhelpful and divisive."

The group, which made the statement at a news conference held in Jerusalem, also advocated a compromise of the occupied Arab territories.

In a later statement, two former conference chairmen, Rabbi Alexander M. Schindler and Theodore R. Mann stated that they did not agree with the criticism of Prime Minister Menachem Begin that was made by Leonard Fein, a professor of contemporary Jewish studies at Brandeis University. They called Fein's comments "abusive" and "utterly inexcusable."

RABBI ERWIN HERMAN, of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, reads from the "Yano Torah," a "cannibalized" Torah composed of pages from various editions of the Torah which were smuggled, page by page, into the Nazi concentration camp at Yanov during World War II. Laboriously reassembled after the liberation, the Torah was given to a Russian physician who recently immigrated to the United States. The unusual treasure was recently displaced by Rabbi Herman, an authority on Torahs that survived the Holocaust, at a meeting of the UAHC's board of trustees in New York.

N.E.A.T. To Host N.C.S.Y. Summer Program

During the week of July 6 to 13 the New England Academy of Torah division of the Providence Hebrew Day School will host approximately 20 N.C.S.Y. (National Conference of Synagogue Youth) girls, hailing from various points in the northeast. These girls, between the ages of 13 through 18, have been exposed to Judaism at N.C.S.Y. weekend functions (Shabbatonim), and now wish to study Judaism in a more serious and rigorous manner.

To this end the national organization has selected the New England Academy of Torah as the school to provide an intensive week-long educational program. The girls will be housed in one of the school's dormitories, and taught by the school's faculty.

A wide range of subjects will be covered: Basic Jewish rituals; how and why; Jewish law in the written and oral Torah, with special reference to laws between man and his neighbor; the concept of prayer in Judaism, and the structure of Jewish prayers; Textual analysis; a detailed reading of sections of Biblical narrative.

Fundamental topics in Jewish thought, e.g., believing in G-d, and understanding the Sabbath will be discussed in the context of sessions devoted to the study of the Ten Commandments.

Time has also been allotted for leisure activities such as trips, picnics, and late-night songfests, in order to allow for informal contact between students and the school's faculty.

The goal of the program is to impress upon the girls the value of a yeshiva education and influence them to begin their own studies in yeshiva in the coming year.

French Ministry Receives Deported West Bank Mayors

PARIS (JTA) — The two West Bank mayors expelled by Israeli authorities last month have been received at the French Foreign Ministry. Mayor Fahd Kawasme of Hebron and Mayor Mohammad Milhim of Halhoul urged France to extend official recognition to the Palestine Liberation Organization as "the only Palestinian representative organization" and to "turn into facts" the sentiments of the PLO.

Kawasme and Milhim were accompanied to the Ministry by Ibrahim Suss, the PLO's permanent representative in France. They met with French Communist Party leader Georges Marchais. Afterwards, Marchais called on "all peace-loving elements" to write or cable the Israeli Embassy in Paris protesting the mayors' expulsion.

The two were deported on grounds that their extreme nationalistic, anti-Israel statements created the atmosphere that gave rise to the July 2 ambush attack in Hebron which took the lives of six yeshiva students and wounded 16 others.

Since their ouster from Israel-occupied territory, the mayors have visited the U.S. and are now touring Europe. They are believed to be part of the PLO's new diplomatic offensive aimed at obtaining official recognition from the West European countries as well as American recognition of the Palestinians as valid negotiating partners in the Middle East peace process.

Rabbi Calls For Elimination Of Jewish Inter-marriage

MIAMI BEACH, FLA. (JTA) — The newly-elected head of the Rabbinical Council of America has declared that "inter-marriage represents a silent spiritual Holocaust," which is taking a heavy toll of the entire American Jewish community and is jeopardizing its very survival.

Rabbi Sol Roth, Atlantic Beach, N.Y., the newly-elected president of the organization of Orthodox rabbis, made those remarks in his official acceptance address before several hundred delegates here.

Rabbi Roth called for "the elimination from leadership roles in Jewish public life of all those who marry out of their faith, and rabbis who perform marriages between Jews and non-Jews. The time has come for drastic steps to stem this suicidal tide which represents a self-inflicted Holocaust and offers Hitler the possibility of a posthumous victory." He spoke at the 44th annual convention of the Rabbinical Council.

"The Rabbinical Council has decided that it will exercise its veto powers against the selection of such individuals in organizations like the Synagogue Council of America, the Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organizations, the JWB Charolancy Commission, and the National Jewish Community Relations Advisory Council," he said.

Newest Kibbutz Won't Pursue Agriculture

TEL AVIV (JTA) — President Yitzhak Navon and his wife Ophira attended the inauguration this week of Kibbutz Kishor in western Galilee, a settlement unique in the history of Israel's kibbutz movement.

Sponsored by Mampam's Kibbutz Artzi, Kishor will be based exclusively on industry. Perched on a hilltop, it is believed to be the first kibbutz with no agricultural land to cultivate.

Young Woman Accused Of Draft-Dodging

JERUSALEM (JTA) — A young woman accused of avoiding the draft by falsely stating that she was religious was sentenced to three months imprisonment and an IL 10,000 fine by a Jerusalem district court.

She was arrested after a detective working for the Defense Ministry reported he saw her driving a car on the Sabbath.

Resource Center Established For Holocaust Studies

HACKENSACK (JTA) — Plans for introduction of courses on genocide and the Holocaust in elementary and high schools of Bergen County and periodic seminars and workshops to prepare educators to teach such courses were announced by the United Jewish Community of Bergen County (UJC).

The disclosure was made as part of an announcement that the UJC had approved establishment of a Resource Center for Holocaust and Genocide Studies. The center will be co-sponsored by Ramapo College and housed on its Rahway campus, according to Rabbi Joseph Rudavsky and Dr. Robert Webber, co-chairmen of the Holocaust subcommittee of the UJC.

Rabbi Rudavsky said the resource center would serve northern New Jersey as a repository and central resource center for materials on genocide and the Holocaust. The two officials said the projected center would work with the Bergen County superintendent of schools to develop and implement curricula for programs in the county's elementary and high schools. They said there will be periodic seminars and workshops to prepare educators to teach such courses in the public schools.

They said the center will seek to develop college level courses and a speakers bureau, as well as programming help for libraries, civic organizations, churches and synagogues.

Dr. Webber said that "only by understanding the Holocaust and genocide in the framework of 20th century political systems can we hope to prevent the resurgence of such tragedies in the future." He said membership in the projected center will be open to synagogues, organizations and individuals, adding that involvement by members of the community would be welcomed.

Fund-Raising Efforts Improving

JERUSALEM (JTA) — The Keren Hayesod has reported that its world-wide fund-raising efforts have taken an upswing for the first time since the Yom Kippur War. Avraham Avi-Hai, chairman of the agency, told reporters that it raised $110.2 million in the fiscal year which ended last March 31 compared to $100.6 million in the previous fiscal year.

The Keren Hayesod-United Israel Appeal operates in countries throughout the world except the United States, which is covered by the United Jewish Appeal.

Avi-Hai said the latest results represent a turn for the better and portend continued improvement in the years ahead.

In Search Of An Israeli Political Center

By UZI BENZIMAN

With the political community in Israel abuzz with speculation regarding the possibility of early election, a number of parties and individuals have been busy studying the prospect of forming a new "centrist bloc."

Their ambitions are encouraged by the phenomenal success in 1977 of the Democratic Movement for Change (DMC) which started from nothing and won 15 seats in the Knesset, an unprecedented feat in Israel's notoriously conservative politics.

That success was achieved at the expense of the Labor Alignment, which lost 19 of the 51 seats it held in the previous parliament. In the 1977 elections a serious segment of the Israeli electorate demonstrated its longing for a new political force to replace the veteran leaderships of the traditional parties.

THE DMC'S FAILURE

But, while the Democratic Movement made an impressive showing at the ballot boxes, it failed to fulfill its declared intention to become the balancing force in the Knesset. Menachem Begin succeeded in establishing a coalition cabinet (supported by 62 Knesset members of Likud, the National Religious Party and Agudat Israel) without recourse to the DMC. Thus, the new political force lost its leverage and, when later it did join the coalition, it had to adapt itself to Begin's conditions.

The DMC's condition to join Begin's Cabinet carried the seeds of the party's destruction. An important section of the party could not accept the Begin government's political and social views. The group that was concentrated around MK Amnon Rubinstein did not conceal its dissatisfaction with the government's policy.

The disgruntlement of this component finally resulted in a split. The Rubinstein group seceded from the coalition, thus dividing the party into two groups — one in the opposition and the other, headed by Deputy Premier Yigael Yadin, still part of the government. Subsequently, further defection took place in both factions.

Even though, in the final analysis, the Democratic Movement's experience proved to be a total political failure, attempts to establish a similar centrist force in advance of the next elections are proceeding with vigor. The idea that lies beneath this new activity is that the Israeli voter is fed up with the veteran politicians who head both Likud and the Labor Alignment. Sample polls that are taken regularly show that some 30 per cent of the voters are "don't knows."

VOTERS DISILLUSIONED, SUSPICIOUS

Disillusionment with Likud and suspicion of Labor, trends that are clearly shown through these polls, encourage the initiative to establish a new centrist party.

At the heart of the new efforts stands the original group that three years ago established the core of the Democratic Movement.

Rubinstein, a leading constitutional lawyer, and his supporters, are trying again to create a political body responsive to the "middle of the road" sector of the Israeli electorate. But Rubinstein carries with him the image of a political amateur who has failed once before. He is accused by some would-be sympathizers of failing to foresee the harmful impact on the credibility and inner stability of the Democratic Movement of the accession to the party in 1977 of long-time political maverick Shmuel Tamir, now Minister of Justice, and of the nominating of Yadin, a world famous archaeologist, as its leader.

Rubinstein's current maneuvers to re-establish a significant centrist force are viewed by many, therefore, with reservations. But Rubinstein is not the only politician who dreams about a new party; there are several other ambitious persons in the political arena who share the same dream.

According to popular speculation, frequently reported in the press, a centrist party could emerge composed of sections of Likud — the liberal faction and ex-Defense Minister Ezer Weizman — the Independent Liberals, and one of the two segments of the Democratic Movement.

Whether or not this dream materializes, it seems clear that the shape of the Israeli political scene may undergo significant changes in advance of the next elections.

Women And The Mid-Decade Conference: /A Sounding Board For The PLO

by Marion A. Wilen

Copenhagen, Denmark, from July 14 through 30, with the avowed aim of working for the alleviation of problems faced by women in the area of health, education and employment.

Several workshops were held recently in Philadelphia in preparation for the Copenhagen conference. The discussion covered such weighty subjects as women in education and in the developing world, women's legal rights, employment opportunities, etc.

Enter The PLO

While most delegates to the conference undoubtedly expect to deal with these matters, some of the planners would rather use it as a forum for virulent anti-Israel rhetoric. Thus, as part of the documentation developed for the conference, the Economic Commission for Western Asia (ECWA), a section of the UN Economic and Social Council which includes the PLO and from which Israel was arbitrarily excluded, has produced a 66-page document entitled "Social and Economic Conditions of Palestinian Women Inside and outside the Occupied Territories."

The document is full of fallacies and distortions. It refrains from calling Israel anything but "the Zionist entity," thus reinforcing the fact that the PLO's true objective is to replace Israel with a Palestinian state. It indicates that Jews were settlers from abroad but no mention is made of the considerable Jewish presence in Israel for generations.

It mentions the "humanitarian nature of the Palestinian struggle" with no mention of terrorism and the killing of innocent women and children by the PLO.

The document's purpose becomes clear when one realizes that very little of it actually deals with women, even Palestinian women, and when it does, it argues that the Palestinian struggle has relegated women to a low priority. The document neglects to mention that women in occupied areas are better off than Arab women in other countries because of the social benefits Israel provides.

Navon Attributes Israeli Emigration To Lack Of Roots

TEL AVIV (JTA) — President Yitzhak Navon said recently that the phenomenon of "yerida," the emigration of Israelis who settle permanently abroad, stemmed from a lack of deep roots rather than economic problems or fear that Israel is not secure.

Addressing the annual meeting of the Haifa Technion's Board of Governors, Navon observed that it takes time for a nation which is composed, in its largest part, of immigrants, to become firmly rooted. "We must not forget that within a few decades, the tiny 700,000-strong yishuv in Israel has reached 3.5 million so that the great majority of the nation is made up of new immigrants, their sons and grandchildren," Navon said.

Before 1967, more than 80 per cent of the people in the area lived at or below subsistence level. Since then, per capita income has risen an average rate of 11 per cent per year and unemployment has virtually been eliminated.

The politicization of the Copenhagen Conference could be passed off as just another crude and senseless rhetorical barrage in a parade of such UN baragans, but the stake this time is bigger. It is likely that some conference planner will use every opportunity to vilify Israel, and that PLO rhetoric will dominate the proceedings and resolutions of the Mid-Decade Conference to the exclusion of any genuine examination of critical problems facing women around the world.

Instead of developing new programs to deal with problems faced by women in health, education, and employment, the Conference is to become a tool for PLO and rejectionist-front Arab propaganda against Israel.

The tragedy is that an important opportunity to utilize the United Nations framework for the benefit of women everywhere is about to be abused, exploited and lost.

Marion A. Wilen is co-president of the National Women's Division of the American Jewish Congress.

The United Nations is once again being used as a springboard for vicious and senseless attacks against the Jewish people and the State of Israel. This time, however, the victims of UN diatribes will not be just Israel — or Jews — but a far greater and more significant group: the women of the world.

The story goes back to 1975 when the UN began a Decade for Women with an international conference in Mexico City. At that time, delegates passed a resolution equating Zionism with apartheid. Later that year, the UN General Assembly, undoubtedly encouraged by what had happened in Mexico City, passed its infamous "Zionism is racism" resolution.

Now, five years later, a Mid-Decade Conference for Women is being planned for

Anthony Lewis: A 'Threat' To Autonomy

EDITOR:

Anthony Lewis is the New York Times anti-Israel "hatchet" columnist. Of course, his carefully selected upper-strata Arabs condemn Israel. If the Soviet-supported PLO succeeds (with the help of Messrs. Carter and Sadat) in kicking Israel out of the West Bank (like out of Sinai), then these upstanding, educated fellows would get the high posts in the new administration.

Of course, Mr. Lewis encountered only Arab's hostile to Begin's autonomy plan... what Arab would risk assassination by honestly admitting that autonomy would add major benefits to the current, vast improvements in West Bankers' welfare... with a certainty of deterioration after a PLO takeover. (Witness the corruption and inefficiency in Arab countries).

As for some Arabs "regarding Arafat's policy as too moderate," note his threat in an interview Feb. 11, 1980: "Peace for us means the destruction of Israel. We are preparing for an all out war, a war which will last for generations... the guidelines of that struggle have remained firm continuously."

Thus, no different that Habash! He gloated in PLO's massacre in Hebron.

Mr. Lewis favors even the liquidation of an Israeli military presence in the West Bank... a sure-fire formula for the death of the survivors of the Holocaust. He undermines the Jewish state by biased, unfair criticism.

What Would A President Reagan Mean To You?

by Sylvia Porter

What would a President Reagan in the White House starting January 1981 mean to you... as a worker, businessman, taxpayer, Social Security beneficiary, any U.S. citizen deeply concerned with your dollar's buying power and your own standard of living?

Before any specifics are possible, two fundamental generalizations must be made:

First, the economic policies of a Reagan administration would be determined to an overwhelming degree by the experts with whom he surrounds himself. Reagan seeks advice, whether or not he truly believes he is deeply informed on the subjects of which he speaks so glibly, he admits he needs authoritative counsel.

It's most likely that after an initial display of the symbols of power, Reagan would be delighted to take the credit for any successful results of policies formulated by specialists he trusts.

Second, the names of authorities with whom he already has formed close attachments, and with whom he constantly confers, are crucially revealing. While I strongly disagree with many of the theories of his advisers, I respect the men (no women surfacing as yet). The names of top advisers are in a nearby sidebar. Some are well-known conservatives; others are Washington pros with whom I have had numerous debates; few if any are men of the "Georgia" caliber.

Now to the specifics, Reagan would mean to you: As A Worker:

* A determined effort in times of business stress to steer creation of jobs into the private sphere and away from federal government spending efforts to help you find and hold a job.

* A split in the basic minimum wage, so unskilled teenagers could work for lower wages than adults. Reagan would prefer to wipe out the minimum wage altogether, but he recognizes that's too far out.

* No support whatsoever for wage-price controls.

* No support either for any national health insurance program (it would be just about dead under Reagan) or no regulation of hospital and medical profession costs which you often find catastrophic.

* A much stronger effort than President Carter has maintained to simplify federal regulations that may be desirable for such basic purposes as environmental protection but which Reagan considers responsibilities

Giscard Calls For Israeli Withdrawal

PARIS (JTA) — President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing has called for Israel's withdrawal to its pre-June 1967 borders and warned that the international "guarantees" for "just and recognized borders" exclude the territories occupied by Israel in 1967.

President d'Estaing, addressing a press conference, said that the Venice declaration by the prime ministers of the nine European Economic Community (EEC) countries, calling for Palestinian "self-determination," was adopted without any difficulty. He added, in reply to a question, that the nine were now preparing diplomatic steps to put their declaration into practical effect but refused to say what those moves may be or when they will occur.

The French president, who artfully avoided using the words "Palestinian state," said that Palestinian recognition of Israel and Israel's recognition of Palestinian "rights" must take place within the framework of a global peace settlement. The basis for any such settlement, he said, was "Israel's acceptance that it should evacuate the territories" (occupied during the Six Day War).

The French president ruled out any possible long-term settlement for the Middle East as long as Israel fails to accept the principle of evacuation. He said Camp David agreement, establishing peace between Israel and Egypt, is based on the very same principle: "evacuation of the territories gradually accompanied by the creation of a situation of peace."

Giscard also warned Israel that unless a settlement is reached, "advanced arms potentially dangerous for Israel's security might be introduced into the area. He said "It is not a narrow river of a few additional kilometers (of territory) which could protect Israel from new weapons which could be far more powerful and have a far longer range" than any now existing in the Middle East.

Giscard said that he had personally intervened on at least one occasion to prevent the introduction into the Middle East of such types of weapons. He said he acted "while negotiations were actually in progress" and observes he was referring to French promises to sell bomb producing nuclear piles to either Libya or Iraq or both.

The French president refused to comment, in spite of repeated proddings, on his reactions to the French Jewish community's protests against his Middle East policy or to say why he refuses to visit Israel although he has paid several visits to Arab countries in the Middle East.

According to diplomatic observers, the president seemed confident of West European support and Elysee Palace sources said that the eight EEC colleagues "fully backed" France's position with certain countries actually pressing for faster and more concrete action in recognizing the Palestine Liberation Organization as a partner in the peace talks. Giscard himself did not mention the PLO.

Israeli sources were not surprised by Giscard's statement but were worried by the indication of West European support in following France's lead. The sources were especially anxious about reports that the EEC nine will jointly submit an amendment to Security Council Resolution 242 recognizing the "rights of the Palestinian people." This is expected after the American presidential elections in November. Giscard himself said that 242 "remains the basis for France's Mideast policy by which Israel's withdrawal from the territories it has held since the 1967 war."

Lawyer Fined Over Holocaust Threats

BONN (JTA) — Eberhard Engelhardt, a 75-year-old lawyer, has been fined 1500 Marks by a Nuremberg court for threatening to bring legal action against a German Jewish journalist who mentioned on a television program that members of her family died in the Holocaust. Engelhardt, who practices in Nuremberg, was found guilty of exercising duress.

The incident occurred during a panel discussion which followed the screening of the American TV series "Holocaust" in West Germany last year. One of the panelists, Renate Harprecht of Hamburg, noted that several members of her family perished in the Nazi gas chambers. A former SS official on the panel demanded to know precisely where and when the murders took place and whether she could prove them beyond doubt.

Engelhardt, who represented the ex-SS man, warned Harprecht that unless she provided a satisfactory reply within a fixed period of time he would take her to court for insulting the German people and instigating against them.

Harprecht informed the police and the State Prosecutor subsequently brought charges against the lawyer. After the court's verdict was announced, the Prosecutor said that the lawyers association would seek to bring Engelhardt before a court of honor to answer for his actions.

Shamir Blasts U.S. Over Proposed Tank Sales

JERUSALEM (JTA) — Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir has charged that the Carter Administration's planned sale of sophisticated weaponry to Jordan would upset the military balance in the Middle East and encourage Jordan in its refusal to enter the Camp David peace process. Shamir's remarks, an interview on Radio Luxembourg, were the first public criticism by an Israeli official of the proposed new U.S. arms sales to Jordan.

Shamir was referring to reports that King Hussein received a commitment from President Carter during their recent meetings in Washington to provide Jordan with 100 M-60 tanks equipped with laser range-finders and other advanced devices. "All sale of such arms to Jordan and other rejectionist states upset the strategic balance in the area," Shamir said.

Although Israel had not reacted officially to the reports, it is known that the Israeli Embassy in Washington made quiet representations to the Administration in recent days.

60th Anniversary Celebrated

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Zaretsky, of Rochambeau Ave., Providence, celebrated their 60th Wedding Anniversary at a party held at the Crestwood Country Club. The party was given in their honor by their children.

Israeli sources claimed, meanwhile, that although Jordan does not permit Palestinian terrorists to operate against Israel from its territory, Jordanian army authorities allow the terrorists to train in the use of American-made anti-tank missiles and provide instructors. A U.S. official said last week that Hussein had promised Carter that terrorists would not be allowed to operate from Jordanian soil but the King himself failed to confirm this.

According To Shamir:

Arms Flow Endangering Military Balance

JERUSALEM (JTA) — Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir claimed that the flow of both American and Soviet arms in the Middle East endangers the military balance in the region and could ignite a local war or even World War III.

Addressing the Knesset on four agenda motions related to U.S. arms supplies to Egypt, Jordan and Saudi Arabia, Shamir said he had expressed Israel's concern to American officials. He said the supply of arms to countries which rejected the Camp David accords only encouraged them. Shamir said he understood the American motivation in supplying weapons to Saudi Arabia in order to secure its oil. But he observed that the Iranian experience proved that arms did not necessarily save a pro-Western regime and warned that in the long run they would be used against Israel.

According to Shamir, even the arms sales to Egypt required caution and should be implemented in stages.

Burg: Resumption Of Talks First Priority

JERUSALEM (JTA) — Interior Minister Yosef Burg, Israel's chief negotiator in the autonomy talks, has said that Israel is putting no preconditions on their resumption and expects Egypt to act likewise. The negotiations were suspended by President Anwar Sadat on May 15.

Burg spoke to reporters after a brief meeting of the Ministerial Autonomy Committee chaired by Premier Menachem Begin. His reference apparently was to recent Egyptian statements calling for pledges by Israel not to establish new settlements in the occupied territories while the talks are in process and to shelve a bill now before the Knesset which would declare united Jerusalem Israel's capital under a basic law.

Burg noted that he will be going to Washington early next month to meet with Egypt's chief negotiator, Foreign Minister Kamal Hassan Ali and U.S. special Ambassador Sol Linowitz. He told reporters that the first order of business will be to fix a date for resuming the talks and then determine "which issues" would be tackled by "which groups and at which level."

TEMPLE SINAI recently honored Gladys and Jerry Kaplan as community and temple leaders at a State of Israel Bond and Mortgage Fund Redemption Celebration. The main address, given by Rabbi George Astrachan, stressed the bridge between responsibility to the Temple and State of Israel.

Wallenberg Nominated For Human Rights Award

LONDON (JTA) — Raoul Wallenberg, the Swedish diplomat who saved thousands of Jews during World War II, has been proposed as the first winner of a human rights prize to be awarded every three years by the Council of Europe.

Wallenberg's name has been put forward by the Board of Deputies of British Jews which cites his "courage and devotion far beyond the call of duty." In January, 1945, Wallenberg was abducted by the Russians. Despite Soviet claims that he died in a Moscow prison in 1947, there have been 15 alleged sightings of him since then, most recently in 1975.

In its letter to the Council of Europe, the Board of Deputies stated: "In the event of Mr. Wallenberg being unable personally to receive the prize, we would propose that it be presented, for safe keeping on his behalf, to his two closest relatives, who are leading the campaign for his release. They are his half sister, Mrs. Nina Lagergren, and his half brother, Prof. Guy von Dardel."

Greville Janner, MP, president of the Board, was present in Jerusalem when Mayor Teddy Kollek and Gideon Hausner, prosecutor at the Eichmann trial, opened a park named after Wallenberg. However, the Swedish Embassy in Israel was not represented because the park is in East Jerusalem, whose annexation by Israel is not recognized by Sweden.

Israel Announces Development Of New Weapon

TEL AVIV (JTA) — Israel has developed a new 155 mm. artillery piece which it claims is one of the most sophisticated in the world today.

Already introduced to the armed forces, the gun has a 20 kilometer range, can be revolved a full 360 degrees instead of the 40-degree limit of similar artillery and requires a crew of only six instead of nine because of automation.

Four Arrested On Drug Smuggling Charges

TEL AVIV (JTA) — Two Austrian citizens and an Israeli couple living in Vienna were regarded in custody for 10 days by a Tel Aviv magistrate Tuesday on suspicion of drug smuggling. Police said the four brought heroin into Israel from Austria and returned with Israeli hashish for the Vienna drug market.

Glickstein Scores Victory At Wimbledon

LONDON (JTA) — Shlomo Glickstein, of Ashkelon, has become the first Israeli to win a match at the Wimbledon tennis tournament when he upset Raul Ramirez of Mexico in five sets.

The 22-year-old Glickstein, who is Israel's No. 1 tennis player, may not savor his victory long since his second round competitor is Bjorn Borg, considered Number 1 in the world.

Glickstein, who has been playing tennis since the age of 10, twice lost in the first round of the Wimbledon juniors, in 1975 and 1976, but had not made the senior tournament until this year.

JCF Funds Special Synagogue Programs

LOS ANGELES (JTA) — Programs offered by synagogues for Jews with special needs will be funded by the Jewish Federation Council in a new policy for which a special allocation of $75,000 has been made by the Jewish Community Foundation.

Norman Eichberg, chairman of the Federation's Council on Jewish life, said, in announcing the new policy, that the project will make funds available to synagogues for programs for single parents, senior citizens, handicapped and deaf Jews, pre-parent training classes and other special projects.

He said there was "no limit" to the kind of service a synagogue can offer, adding that the synagogues will determine what proposals to submit to the Federation "based on the needs of their own communities."

Rabbi Haskell Bernat, chairman of the Federation bureau of synagogue affairs, said the new Federation policy "conveys to the synagogues a certain status of dignity and respect not usually seen with Federation communities." He added that the policy will provide the synagogue community "with unprecedented new responsibilities and opportunities."

Rabbi Bernat said the goal of the new policy is to select those programs which enrich the totality of Jewish life in the area and serve the clearly identifiable needs of the communities. He said that in addition to individual synagogues, regional groupings of synagogues in southern California are eligible to apply for funds.

Synagogues making such requests will have their plans reviewed by a commission of the bureau of synagogue affairs of the Council on Jewish life and, as with funding for all programs, final approval will be given by the Federation planning and budgeting department, Eichberg said.

Battle Erupts Over Further Budget Cuts

JERUSALEM (JTA) — The Ministerial Economic Committee has slashed the budget by an additional IL 5.4 billion, including IL 1-2 billion more from the defense budget which the Cabinet only last week reduced by IL 7 billion.

The decision, reached after two days of deliberations and subject to approval by the full Cabinet at its regular weekly meeting, satisfied Finance Minister Yigal Hurwitz but infuriated the defense establishment. Defense Ministry officials charged that Hurwitz was trying to restore "by the back door" the original IL 15 billion cut in defense spending which he had demanded but which the full Cabinet rejected.

Defense officials said that they could live with the IL 7 billion reduction. But the Ministerial Economic Committee proposes taking away IL 9 billion, partly by imposing reductions of personnel on the Defense Ministry, and on other ministries as well.

Defense sources expressed hope that the Cabinet will reject the committee's recommendations.

Additional savings of IL 2.8 billion will come from a three per cent reduction in civil service employees generally and from cuts in public services. Civil service personnel has been reduced by six per cent since Hurwitz took office last year.

The Histadrut Secretariate has begun discussions on how the budget cuts will affect employment and how to find new jobs for dismissed government workers.

Prof. Charges ORT Program 'Inadequate'

NEW YORK (JTA) — Paul Bernick, executive director of the American ORT Federation, expressed surprise today over charges made against ORT's English teaching program in Rome for Soviet Jewish emigres waiting to come to the United States. The claim that the program was inadequate and the implication that it contributed to the "drop-out" problem — Soviet Jews who opt to come to the U.S. rather than go to Israel after leaving the USSR — was made by Prof. David Korn of Howard University, in an interview with the Jewish Telegraphic Agency in Rome last week.

Korn, who teaches Russian studies at Howard, said the people teaching English in the ORT program in Rome have lived outside the U.S. for many years and "even if they had come yesterday but weren't experts in resettlement, they wouldn't be able to help. Most teachers are not even Jewish and do not understand the problems of the Jewish community in America," he told JTA's Rome correspondent Lisa Palmieri-Billig.

Bernick told the JTA here, "We are running and have been running for a long time, English language classes in cooperation with HIAS and the Joint Distribution Committee (JDC)" in Rome. He noted that 99 per cent of the program is financed by the U.S. government and its task is to give the emigres "some knowledge" of the English language sufficient to help them in their first few weeks in the U.S. He said the time for this instruction is limited because the emigres are also undergoing processing during the 3 to 5 weeks before they leave for the U.S.

Bernick said that ORT hires expatriate Americans living in Rome as teachers because it is economical inasmuch as they are paid local salaries. He said some of them are non-Jewish but suggested that this was an advantage for the immigrants because they would be meeting all kinds of people in their new lives in the U.S.

Bernick noted that ORT works closely with HIAS and the JDC. HIAS handles visas and travel arrangements, the JDC is responsible for maintenance and ORT conducts the English classes. He said ORT and the JDC jointly conduct classes for emigre children where the teachers are Jewish and the content is Jewish. He said he could not comprehend what prompted Korn to make his charges.

Korn is chairman of the Resettlement Committee for Soviet Jews in the Greater Washington area and a member of the board of directors of the Jewish social services agency there. He is traveling in Europe as part of a study mission on "foreign issues" headed by Rep. Jack Kemp (R.N.Y.) on behalf of former Gov. Ronald Reagan of California in connection with the Republican Party platform.

Korn claimed that the high drop-out rate among Soviet Jews is due to lack of realistic information as to what problems they will encounter in the U.S. "They think they will be met by someone in New York who will be ready to give them a job," he said. He claimed that several emigres told him that if they had been better informed they would have gone to Israel or stayed in the USSR. "But there is no one here (in Rome) to tell them the true facts about unemployment, retirement, pensions, jobs or medical problems in the U.S.," he said.

Korn said the JDC and HIAS are both doing excellent jobs and "the accusation that HIAS is stealing people is not true." He said he felt the main problem lies with the ORT program. He said the English teachers for the Soviet emigres should be Jews from the U.S. who would go to Rome for six months or a year and who were familiar with resettlement problems.

Allan Sydney:

He's Educating Our Young People

BY LYNDA KENNEDY-DIAS

It's not too often in this day and age that one gets the opportunity to meet a true humanitarian, a person willing to give of himself for his fellow man, whatever the cost.

Mr. Allan W. Sydney is such a man. I first met Mr. Sydney last week while attending a book dedication ceremony held three young children and they just couldn't get away."

The Sydney Fund has been in the works for the past four years. "I established the Fund with only one string attached," Mr. Sydney told me. "And that was that the selection of books be made by two Rabbis and two Christian Priests."

When questioned as to why he had in the Fogarty Room of the Providence College library. Mr. Sydney was present that day to attend the ceremonies, held in his honor, acknowledging the receipt of a substantial number of Jewish oriented literature which he had donated to the PC Library.

The donation is referred to as the Sydney Fund, created by Allan Sydney but donated in the name of his mother, Mrs. Aida Sydney. "I donated them in honor of her 80th birthday," Mr. Sydney told me. "She turned 80 on December 25, 1979."

About 50 friends and relatives had gathered that afternoon to attend the dedication and the champagne reception that followed. "It's wonderful to have my family and friends here," Mr. Sydney said. "But my only regret is that my sister, Joyce, and her husband, Dr. Aaron Rifkind could not be here. They live in Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, with their decided to donate books concerning Jewish religion, literature and philosophy to a Christian Institution such as Providence College, Mr. Sydney stated that it was his intention to provide an access to Jewish religion for all Christian peoples. "I wanted the books selected to be utilized by everyone, not just Jews." It is Mr. Sydney's hope that through the understanding gained by the use of these books that Christians might learn to better understand the Jewish people and thus be able to form a bond of brotherhood he believes should be present in all peoples.

"This is only the beginning," according to Mr. Sydney, who sees this initial donation as only the first step in building a good Jewish reference section at the college. "I hope to see the book collection at Providence College grow, and grow, and grow."

With men like Allan Sydney, it will.

Begin Hospitalized; Suffers Heart Attack In Knesset

JERUSALEM—Suffering what his doctor termed "a slight heart attack," Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin was rushed from the Israeli parliament on Monday to a waiting ambulance where he was taken to Hadassah Hospital.

Following tests taken later that day, the Prime Minister's doctor, Mervyn Gottesman, stated that Begin had sustained a "small myocardial infarction that could have been caused by severe stress." An infarction is a narrowing of the arteries of the heart.

Dr. Gottesman said that he believed Begin would recover normally and that additional tests would be carried out. He also told reporters that the Prime Minister was meeting with members of his family and staff and that he had turned over government leadership to Deputy Prime Minister Yigael Yadin, who must also function, as Begin did, as Defense Minister.

According to reports, Begin was stricken as a vote neared on an Opposition move which called for a new election and for the present parliament to be dissolved. The Begin government survived by a six-vote margin in the 120-seat Knesset.

The 66-year-old Prime Minister, who had suffered a previous heart attack in 1977 and a slight stroke last year which cost him about 20 per cent of his vision, was in high spirits over the weekend, according to close friends. While attending a bar mitzvah celebration for a Knesset member's son, Begin stated, "Do you know why I feel terrific? Because the Knesset fight gives me strength. As I have said, I hate war. But I love a fight."

But on Monday afternoon, while consulting with Deputy Prime Minister Yadin regarding strategy on the upcoming balloting, Begin began to sweat profusely, became inattentive and loosened his tie. When Yadin asked if he was well, Begin requested a doctor.

After notifying the house doctor Yadin returned and escorted Begin to the Prime Minister's office, where he was examined by the Knesset doctor and later by Dr. Gottesman.

"Begin was given oxygen. 'I want to go back up and vote,'" he told Gottesman. "You're going to the hospital," the doctor told him.

He was then quietly taken from the Knesset on a stretcher. He was then taken to the cardiac intensive care unit at Hadassah Hospital for preliminary testing.

Youth Implicates Norwegians

TEL AVIV (ITA) — A South Lebanese youth now in custody in Israel claimed that two members of the Norwegian contingent of the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon (UNIFIL) were involved in the preliminary preparations of the Arab terrorists who attacked Kibbutz Misgav Am in April.

Ibrahim al Tawil, 21, who says he was a cook employed by the Norwegian battalion, made the charge in a television interview. He claimed that two Norwegian soldiers met with representatives of the Arab Liberation Front at his home in Hirbet el-Salm village to discuss the possibility of obtaining permits from the Norwegian force for the terrorists to pass through the area it controls to the Israeli border.

Democrats Recognize Jerusalem

Carter, Kennedy Camps Reach Middle East Compromise

WASHINGTON (JTA) — A package deal between the Carter and Kennedy forces affecting the planks on the status of Jerusalem, United States arms deliveries to Arab states and U.S. voting in the United Nations averted a floor fight today over the Middle East section of the Democratic Party's platform being hammered out here by the party's platform committee.

On the Jerusalem plank, the supporters of President Carter backed down and agreed to allow the plank of the 1972 and 1976 platforms to stand without qualification. This states that the Democratic Party recognizes and supports "the established status of Jerusalem as the capital of Israel with free access to all its holy places provided to all faiths. As a symbol of this stand, the U.S. Embassy should be moved from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem."

The qualifying sentence to this plank that was insisted upon by the Carter forces recently and approved in the platform committee's foreign policy subcommittee and the task force that had reviewed it was modified and moved to another part of the long Middle East section. This now reads: "It is recognized that the Democratic Administration has to proceed with special care and sensitivity resulting from its deep engagement in the delicate process of promoting a wider peace for Israel."

Kennedy Aides Claim Victory

Aides of Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts who had fought for this qualifying sentence considered the shift as a victory. They said that it now does not directly affect Jerusalem but is tied to the Camp David peace process as a whole.

The Carter supporters also accepted the language of Kennedy partisans that provides the U.S. should not deliver sophisticated weapons to Arab nations that might endanger Israel's security. The Kennedy supporters offered this in the light of the Saudi Arabian request for enhancing the combat power of the 60 F-15 warplanes it has bought from the U.S. and President Carter's promise to Jordan to supply it with 100 tanks.

The Kennedy forces dropped their amendment that would have had the U.S. pledging not to vote for resolutions in the United Nations condemning Israel. This was seen by Carter's backers as a jibe at the President for the U.S. foul-up on the anti-Israel vote in the UN Security Council March 1.

The package deal began forming when the Carter people reviewed the Jerusalem plank. David Rubinstein, assistant to Stuart Eizenstat, the President's chief domestic advisor, said that they felt the qualifying sentence "would be misinterpreted." David Aaron, deputy National Security Council chairman, then approached Theodore Sorenson, chief of the Kennedy forces involved, and the compromising began.

"It was worked out between them," Eizenstat later told the Jewish Telegraphic Agency.

The long Middle East section says: "Our nation feels a profound moral obligation to sustain and protect the security of Israel." It says "U.S. policy is, and should continue to be, guided also by the following principles: UN Security Council Resolution 242, unchanged, and the Camp David accords are the basis for peace in the Middle East; we support Israel's security and will continue to provide generous military and economic aid to that end; Jerusalem should remain forever undivided with free access to the holy places for peoples of all faiths; we oppose creation of an independent Palestinian state; we will not negotiate with or recognize the Palestine Liberation Organization, unless and until it accepts Israel's right to exist and UN Security Council Resolutions 242 and 338.

"It is also long past time for an end to terrorism or other acts of violence against Israel. We have not and will not use our aid to Israel as a tool for bargaining and we will never permit the policies of oil to influence our policies toward peace or our support for Israel."

The platform which was understood here to be fully acceptable to all factions in the Democratic Party and is expected to be approved without change at the Democratic National Convention in August, also says: "Elsewhere in the Middle East we support the improvement of relations with modern Arab states. We support the independence, sovereignty and integrity of Lebanon. And we call upon all states in the region to support the historic efforts of Israel and Egypt to build a comprehensive peace."

Costa Rica Reportedly Seeking Arab Support

NEW YORK — Costa Rica may be on the verge of abandoning its close friendship with Israel for the sake of Arab votes in the United Nations, the Anti-defamation League of B'nai B'rith warned recently.

According to two ADL officials who have just returned from a fact finding trip to Central America, reliable sources say that high ranking Costa Rican officials will receive an Arab delegation, scheduled to arrive in Costa Rica. The delegation will include representatives of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

A new PLO threat in Venezuela was also reported by the two, Abraham H. Foxman, associate national director and head of ADL's international affairs division, and Rabbi Morton M. Rosenthal, director of the agency's Latin American affairs department.

They noted that the anticipated visit to Costa Rica by the Arab delegation comes on the heels of a Mideast tour by Rodrigo Alberto Carazo, son of the president of the country, who was accompanied by a presidential adviser. He reportedly was promised Arab support in getting the United Nations to finance a U.N.-sponsored University for Peace in Costa Rica, a project in which President Rodrigo Carazo Odio has a personal interest.

Foxman said that according to stories circulating in Costa Rica, the quid pro quo for Arab support of the University project is a pledge by the government of Costa Rica to more actively support the Arab cause and, specifically, the PLO.

"A PLO presence in Costa Rica," he said, "would threaten the stability of this politically volatile region, in view of PLO contacts with the revolutionary Left in Guatemala and El Salvador." Foxman added that "it would also be a great setback for Israel, because Israel has not had a more constant friend and ally than Costa Rica. Costa Rica has consistently supported Israel at the U.N. and at other international forums.

Foxman noted that Costa Rica has already veered slightly away from Israel. Since the 1978 election of President Carazo Odio, Costa Rica has altered its traditional voting pattern in support of Israel and on issues important to Israel.

ILO Favors Jordanian Resolution

GENEVA (JTA) — The International Labor Organization's (ILO) annual assembly voted 249-15 in favor of a Jordanian-sponsored resolution expressing concern over Israeli settlements in the occupied territories and their economic and social consequences. There were 165 abstentions, mainly by Western delegations.

The resolution deplored the establishment of settlements and called on Israel to end that practice and to dismantle existing settlements in the territories, including East Jerusalem. It attacked Israeli practices in the territories with respect to Arab workers.

The resolution, as adopted, was modified somewhat from the original draft.

of the states and merely adding to our cost of living.

As A Businessman Or Woman:

* An emphasis on curbing inflation by strongly limiting the growth of federal spending. Reagan has shilly-shalied between endorsing a constitutional amendment to balance the budget and a powerful position that federal spending on even the most essential social programs must be limited for the general good. Reagan also argues that abuse and fraud in spending programs cost us $50 billion a year.

* No more government "bailouts" of the Chrysler type. Reagan would prefer letting the private enterprise system handle the weak, and if bankruptcy is indicated, then bankrupt it is.

* Liberalization of restrictions on controversial uses of energy such as the burning of coal.

* Immediate moves to start transferring federal welfare programs to the states.

* Outright elimination of price controls, allocations, other regulations on domestic production of oil and natural gas. Reagan would stimulate the building of nuclear plants, development of synfuels and solar energy. His objective by spurring exploration and development of fuels would be to make the U.S. independent of foreign imports of oil within the next five years.

As A Taxpayer:

* Fundamental to Reagan's whole attitude toward taxes has been a proposal to phase in a tax rate cut of 30 per cent over three (or five) years to match reductions in federal spending. Reagan has stated clearly that if this program is found not practical, a phase-in of this duration would permit halting the tax reductions at any time. But he appears to believe sincerely that the spending limits and tax cuts could be meshed to ease the tax burden on us all and to return aid to the poor to the private system.

* Elimination of double taxation on corporate profits and dividends — meaning our system of first taxing a corporation's profits, then taxing the dividends we receive from those profits.

* An end to the inheritance tax to aid businesses and farms and a general easing of taxes on business to spur investments in plants and equipment to hike worker productivity.

* A "back of the hand" to the "expensive" Departments of Energy and Education. No departments would be "safe," in fact.

* No windfall profits tax (in line with Reagan's other theories on domestic producers of fuels).

* No tax on interest earned from savings accounts — in order to encourage the small saver, after a long period of neglect.

As A Social Security Beneficiary:

* A lid on additional increases in Social Security taxes, but simultaneously a pledge to keep payments to Social Security beneficiaries in line with increases in the Consumer Price Index. (Presumably, Reagan would move toward use of general revenues for certain Social Security programs or try to dismantle the programs.)

This is merely a sampling and as the campaign gets down to the issues (assuming it ever does) Reagan must be more specific. But his entire record as governor suggests he would act more moderately than he campaigns. He also might be much more flexible in his hard-line, right-wing conservatism than his oratory to date has implied. A key point is that many of his chosen specialists are now nudging him toward gradualism — and he does listen.

That Reagan would begin in the White House as an activist would seem logical. He is likely to use President Franklin D. Roosevelt's legendary first 100 days as a model. But then, he would assume a more comfortable position as "chairman of the board," delegating authority to the subordinates he has selected, and copying President Eisenhower's relaxed style while he mesmerizes the public via masterful TV performances.

Fortune magazine summarizes it in a memorable sentence: "Reagan's presidency might therefore start with New Dealish hoopla, and then progress smartly forward . . . to the 1950s."

Successful Investing

Profit-Sharing Funds Not "Frozen"

by David R. Sargent

Q: I have just retired and will have income from Social Security, a profit-sharing plan, and common stock dividends. Can I invest the profit-sharing funds as I wish or must this money remain invested as it was before my retirement? S.E. Michigan

A: You have complete flexibility to invest funds from the profit-sharing plan as you wish. However, only that portion contributed by your employer can be rolled over tax free into an Individual Retirement Plan (IRA). Any increase in the value of funds contributed by you to the plan is subject to capital gains tax. However, there is no restriction on how this portion is reinvested.

I recommend choosing a self-directed rollover IRA for profit-sharing funds that were contributed by your employer. This will allow you to make changes whenever you desire. Many stock brokers will assist you in setting up an appropriate plan. In these, a bank acts as custodian and the broker executes your orders. Costs are fairly nominal.

As far as your stock portfolio is concerned, I would keep some of your utilities, but sell Ohio Edison, Founders Mutual Fund, Fuji Photo, and Talley Industries. They are either too speculative for someone in your position, have subpar records, or unattractive future prospects.

I would use the proceeds from these sales, plus profit-sharing monies, to invest in NYSE-listed stocks which offer a good current yield as well as prospects of higher dividends in the future, issues such as American Tel. & Tel., Exxon Corp., Household Finance, and United Telecommunications.

Q: Are six months savings accounts tied to Treasury Bill yields safe? Is there any risk involved? In case of bank insolvency, would passbook savers be paid by the insurance first? S.M. Ohio

A: All savings accounts of whatever nature are insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation for $100,000. No distinction is made between types of accounts; all rank equally in the eyes of the FDIC.

Actually, extremely few banks fail and those that are in trouble are usually taken over by healthy banks with no adverse impact on the depositors. So you may shift from regular savings to a six months' account knowing that your principal is completely safe. Of course, the interest being offered on new six months' accounts fluctuates from one week to the next.

This simply means that you may receive a higher, or lower, return if you choose to renew your maturing account for an additional six months. Once an account is opened, the yield holds for its six-month life.

Houston Company Accused Of Aiding Arab Boycott

WASHINGTON (JTA)— The U.S. Department of Commerce has accused the Kintetsu World Express Inc., of Houston, Texas, of 26 violations of federal laws prohibiting support for the Arab boycott of Israel by discriminating against American companies doing business with Israel or managed by American Jews.

Kintetsu is an air freight forwarder and a wholly-owned subsidiary of Kintetsu World Express Inc., of Tokyo.

A copy of the charges was made available to the Jewish Telegraphic Agency. Specifically, the company is alleged to have supplied "negative statements of origin" in making 19 shipments of U.S. manufactured goods, principally oil-drilling equipment, from Houston to Egypt and Kuwait and also to have failed to report to the Department seven boycott requests that it is required by law to make known.

In connection with these shipments, the Department said, Kintetsu certified to recipients in Egypt and Kuwait that the goods originated in the U.S. "and not Israel, nor did the raw materials used in their manufacture originate in Israel."

The charges were outlined in a letter to Goro Ito, president of Kintetsu which has an office in Jamaica, N.Y., from Richard M. Seppa, head of the Department's Office of anti-Boycott Compliance. Kintetsu is described by the Department as the first "intermediary" in the export process to have been charged and also the first to have been charged for failure to report.

U.S. administrative sanctions against Kintetsu include a civil penalty up to $100,000 for each violation; revocation of export licenses, denial of export privileges, and exclusion from practice before Department agencies.

Brazilian Zionists Pledge Support Of Israel

RIO DE JANEIRO (JTA) — The national convention of the Zionist Organization of Brazil in Sao Paulo defeated a motion by the Likud delegates to acclaim the government of Premier Menachem Begin. At the same time, it voted to ban criticism of the Israeli government and its leaders in official Zionist publications in Brazil.

The acclamation motion was defeated by the unanimous vote of the 111 delegates, including the Likud contingent. The convention adopted a resolution stressing the "unlimited support" of Brazil's Zionist movement for the State of Israel, the people of Israel and the World Zionist Organization.

Fisheh Tchereshnia, of Sao Paulo, was elected president of the executive committee of the ZOZ and Marcos Halfin, of Rio de Janeiro, was elected president of the national Zionist Council.

The convention was addressed by the Israeli Ambassador, Moshe Erell. He appealed to Brazilian Jews to answer the latest El Fatah resolution calling for Israel's destruction by strengthening the Zionist Organization in this country.

Miller, Kelly Honored By IBO

WASHINGTON (JTA) — The Israel Bond Organization's annual Israeli Independence Ball presented awards Sunday night to Ann Miller, Broadway musical comedy star and Hollywood film star Gene Kelly. About 1100 guests attended.

The awards were presented by Ambassador Ephraim Evron who, noting that Israel's actual anniversary was two months ago, remarked: "I hope it's not because the organizers of this event want to make sure we survive the day and go on." Evron said that Israel would go on. The theme of the ball was "Make the Negev Bloom."

Due to extensive renovation at the hospital these plaques, which were originally placed in various parts of the building, have now been placed at a central location near the main lobby of the hospital.

American Investors Planning Israeli Housing Units

TEL AVIV (JTA) — A group of American investors was reported about to sign an agreement with the Ministry of Housing to build flats for rental. The group, which includes several lawyers, plans to raise $70-$80 million from American insurance companies. They were represented in Israel by Jonathan and Joab Hurwitz, sons of Finance Minister Yigal Hurwitz.

If you envy the beautiful fashion models you see in magazines and on television, here's a comforting thought: They often have figure flaws. Just like everyone else.

What they do, though, to look "perfect" is to play up their figure assets and play down their flaws through the careful choice of clothes and accessories. And that's something you can do yourself—just as effectively as the fashion models can.

Keeping your figure problem in mind, you can sit down with your Sears catalog or visit a Sears store and apply the following suggestions to the wide range of fashions you'll see.

Do you have a large bosom? Start with a good bra. V, oval and square necklines are becoming. Choose simple-style tops in non-clingy fabrics. Balance top-heaviness if possible by wearing skirts with some fullness or attention-getting details like large pockets. Avoid high or fussy necklines.

Small bosom? Try lighter-colored tops with darker skirts or pants, wrap blouses and dresses or smock tops. Narrow shoulders? Look for dresses or tops that emphasize width at the shoulder line (wing collars, boat necklines, extended shoulders); bodices with some fullness.

Short neck? V-neckline tops and dresses are best. Avoid turtle-necks, high collars, chokers or scarves at the neckline.

Wide hips? Choose a dress or top that attracts the eye upward. Balance your figure with tops that add width. Pants should be cut from a natural waistline in non-cling fabrics. Don't wear hip-length tops or skirts that are too full or tight.

Heavy legs? Pants and longer skirts are good disguises. Keep fashion interest above the waist and wear simple shoes with enough bulk to balance the leg. Hoisery should match or blend with skirt or dress.

Short-waisted? Look for easy-cut dresses and separates because top and bottom size may not be the same. Beltless styles are good. If you must wear a belt, make it a narrow one.

Thick middle with too much tummy? Clothes that work best are unfitted Empire styles, tents and tunics. Don't wear tight-fitting skirts or ones with trim or buttons down center front.

Petition Aimed At Terrorist Attacks

PARIS (JTA) — About 40 French Jewish intellectuals and community leaders have signed a petition condemning terrorism "from wherever it may come," and urged Israel to ban violent methods which "risk destroying the peace effort."

The appeal, addressed to Israeli public opinion, was signed among others by writers Elie Wiesel, Albert Memmi and Bernard Henri-Lévy; by the president of the French Zionist Federation, Albert Najman and the president of the International League Against Anti-Semitism and Racism (LICA), Jean Pierre-Bloch.

The petition is clearly, if not openly directed at Jewish terrorist acts. According to some of the signatories it was prompted by the June 2 bomb attacks against the West Bank mayors. Although the perpetrators have not been apprehended or identified, it is widely suspected in Israel and abroad that the outrage was the work of Jewish extremists.

The petition stated that "Certain declarations made in Israel suggest that a minimal fraction of the population accepts or even justifies a Jewish terrorism." It warned that "Terrorism once started, knows no limits and none can escape its blind madness."

Other signatories include Chief Rabbi Max Warshawsky of Strasbourg and Chief Rabbi Simon Fuks of Colmar; author Andre Schwartz-Bart; Nobel Laureate Etienne Wolf; and philosopher Vladimir Jankelevitch.

The petition indicated that a certain segment of the French Jewish community is increasingly willing to publicly express sentiments concerning Israel and the Israeli government's actions even at the risk that they will be interpreted in a manner adverse to Israel.

Neo-Nazism On Decline

BONN (JTA) — Neo-Nazism is on the decline and in disarray in West Germany, according to Interior Minister Gerhard Baum. He told the Bundestag that the National Democratic Party (NDP), which achieved some local electoral successes in the early 1970s, is steadily losing members. He said other neo-Nazi political organizations are divided and dispersed.

Baum reported that the use of violence by neo-Nazi groups has diminished over the past two years and is of less concern to the authorities. However, he added, while the number of neo-Nazi activists has been reduced, they have become more aggressive and are increasingly involved in politically motivated terrorism.

Action Called Against Rabbi Following Cairo Press Report

JERUSALEM (JTA) — A report in the Cairo daily Al Ahram quoting Chief Rabbi Immanuel Jakobovits of Britain as supporting the creation of a Palestinian state, elicited another vow from Premier Menachem Begin that this would never occur and a blast against Jakobovits from Ashkenazi Chief Rabbi Shlomo Goren which amounted to a virtual call for his ex-communication.

Goren issued his statement although he was aware of Jakobovits' denial of the Al Ahram report. "This Satanic declaration" as well as previous declarations by Jakobovits "disqualifies him from leading a Jewish congregation," Goren said. He called on the "rabbs of the world and the Jews of Britain to remove this dangerous man from our midst." Jakobovits has been a frequent critic of the settlement policies of the Begin government.

Begin, addressing the national convention of the American Red Magen David for Israel here, did not refer directly to the Al Ahram report. However, he reiterated Israel's position never to permit a Palestinian state on the West Bank and its intention to retain permanent control of security in that territory. "Should we turn over this part of our land of our forefathers to those who want and swear that they will strive to liquidate the Zionist entity?" Begin asked rhetorically.

He also appealed to the International Red Cross in Geneva to extend formal recognition to the Magen David Adom which was established 50 years ago and now has some 100,000 members and supporters in 123 branches in the U.S. It has 61 branches in Israel and a fleet of 700 ambulances.

UN Resolution Criticized By State Dept.

WASHINGTON (JTA) A resolution expected to be brought before the United Nations Security Council by 40 Moslem nations denouncing Israel's position on a unified Jerusalem has been criticized by the State Department. "We do not believe that the debate is warranted by developments on the ground or that it is likely to serve a useful purpose," department spokesman Thomas Reston said.

Recalling Secretary of State Edmund Muskie's remarks three weeks ago, Reston said "we believe there should be future negotiations to determine the final status of that city. In absence of such negotiations, we do not believe the issue can be resolved by the Security Council. We approach the prospect of a debate and a vote on a resolution with those considerations in mind."

Reston, however, declined to forecast whether the U.S. would abstain or veto such a resolution.

Soviet Ship Sighted In The Mediterranean

TEL AVIV (JTA) — A Soviet intelligence-gathering ship with sophisticated electronic equipment is once again cruising the eastern Mediterranean, it was reported.

The vessel, which had been absent for several months, remains outside Israeli territorial waters but follows a course paralleling the Lebanese, Israeli and Egyptian coasts.
