Israelis Oppose U.S.-Jordan Weapon Sales Agreement

WASHINGTON (JTA) — The proposed sale of 100 M-60 tanks to Jordan advanced today when the Defense Department announced that the $160 million deal will be presented to Congress for approval. The tanks, equipped with night vision devices, are part of a 200-tank package President Carter promised King Hussein of Jordan, during his Washington visit last month, to modernize Jordan's armed forces.

Israel has vigorously opposed the tank sale although Pentagon officials insist it will not affect the military balance in the Middle East because Jordan has promised to phase out its older M-48 tanks. The Administration has claimed that the sale will improve U.S. ties with Jordan and help persuade Hussein to join in the current Middle East peace process based on the Camp David accords. The Jordanian ruler, however, gave no indication when he was here that he has softened his opposition to the Israeli-Egyptian autonomy negotiations.

Congress has 30 days to block the tank sale but sources on Capitol Hill predicted that it will be approved.

Arab League — EEC Conference To Include PLO, Exclude Egypt

BONN (JTA) — Chedi Klibi, Secretary General of the Arab League, has said that the foreign ministers of the Arab League and the European Economic Community (EEC) member states will hold a conference some time this year which will include representatives of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Klibi made the announcement at a press conference at the end of his three-day visit to West Germany. He said the Arab League and the EEC have agreed to renew the Euro-Arab dialogue, but this time on a political level in contrast to the past when the discussions were limited to cultural and trade matters.

Egypt, which the Arab League boycotted because of its peace treaty with Israel, will be excluded from the dialogue, Klibi said.

The Arab League official claimed that West Germany always had reservations about the Camp David accords and that they have increased considerably of late. He claimed that the Bonn government is convinced that no peace settlement can be reached in the Middle East without the participation of the PLO.

During his visit, Klibi met in Hamburg with Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher and other West German leaders.

Jerusalem Bill Passed By Large Majority In Knesset

JERUSALEM (JTA) — The Knesset has passed, by a large majority, the first reading of Geula Cohen's "Jerusalem Bill." The coalition was joined by most of the Labor Alignment, leaving Mapam, Yossi Sarid of Labor, Shai, Sheli and the Communist Party opposing the bill. Some of these opponents stressed during the debate that they objected to the timing rather than the content of the bill.

Premier Menachem Begin attended the session, his first outing since suffering a heart attack three-and-a-half weeks ago. The debate on the bill dragged on for many hours, with more than 30 speakers from all parties taking part.

Cohen herself opened the debate saying the bill was "already helping" Israel in its political struggle. It was a way of showing both President Anwar Sadat of Egypt and President Carter, she said, that Israel was united and firm in its determination to preserve Jerusalem as its united capital.

Cohen and many other MKs who supported the bill said it was a fitting answer from Israel's Knesset to the United Nations General Assembly emergency session on the Palestinian question now proceeding in New York City.

A number of coalition members, however, conceded that the timing of the bill was politically awkward for Israel. "But there is no choice but to vote for it," Zalman Shoval of Likud explained. To let the bill be defeated would be a sure signal of Israel's climbing down on the Jerusalem issue.

The bill reads: Jerusalem is Israel's capital; the unity and integrity of greater Jerusalem, in its post-Six-Day War borders, shall not be impaired; the President, the Knesset, the government and the Supreme Court shall have their seats in Jerusalem.

In its final hectic session before its summer recess, the Israeli Parliament has overwhelmingly enacted to law proclaiming Jerusalem as the capital of Israel.

The legislation, with a final vote of 69 to 15, does not, however, change the city's de facto status. Israel annexed the eastern, Arab part shortly after capturing it from Jordan in 1967 and has regarded the entire city as its capital for the past 13 years.

The final enactment of the bill came in the wake of Prime Minister Menachem Begin's announcement that he intends to move his office to East Jerusalem.

The announcement of the passage of the bill in Cairo met with mixed reactions and Foreign Minister Kamal Hassan Ali said that Egypt was considering whether to suspend its peace negotiations with Israel and to withdraw its ambassador from Israel.

The Foreign Minister also stated that Egypt would not recognize any change in the status of Jerusalem.

Orthodox Groups Concerned Over Draft Decision

NEW YORK (JTA) — A coalition of Orthodox Jewish groups expressed concern today over a federal court decision declaring the draft registration law unconstitutional because it was limited to men. Although a temporary stay of the decision was issued by Supreme Court Associate Justice William Brennan, the full court will consider the question in its upcoming term, which begins in October. Meanwhile, registration for men officially has already begun.

According to Rabbi Herman Neuberger, coordinator of the Orthodox Jewish Coalition on Registration of Women for the Selective Service System, rulings of halachic authorities state that Jewish religious law prohibits Jewish girls from participating in the Selective Service System, whether in military or alternative service.

Should the lower court ruling be upheld by the Supreme Court and if registration is then to be reactivated, Congress will have to pass a new registration law providing for the registration of women as well as men, he noted. Since the current draft law provides for random selection for induction from the pool of registrants not exempted or deferred, the problems are obvious and ominous, Neuberger said.

The Coalition consists of Agudath Israel of America, Central Congress of Orthodox Rabbis, National Council of Young Israel, National Jewish Commission on Law and Public Affairs (COLPA), National Society for Hebrew Day Schools (Torah Umesorah), Rabbinical Alliance of America, Rabbinical Council of America, Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America, Union of Orthodox Rabbis of the United States and Canada, United Lubavitch Organization and United Satmar Community.

Neuberger stressed that while the position of the Coalition is based on religion, it is in accord with the conclusions of a report of the Sub-committee on Manpower and Personnel of the U.S. House of Representatives. That report, prepared in connection with the new registration law, concluded that the judgement of military leaders and Congress was that a men-only system best serves national security.

Pointing to studies that show that women volunteer in sufficient numbers to fill the positions open to them, the report stated it was thus not necessary to draft women. The report said that since a draft would be based on a random selection from the pool of registrants, in time of national emergency when men would be needed quickly for combat, an equal number of men and women would have to be called up. Moreover, sexually integrated units would create great difficulty for military planners with respect to combat deployment, according to the report.

The report also referred to the impact registering and drafting women would have on the family unit and maintained that a decision on this question is properly within the purview of Congress.

Dennis Rapps, executive director of COLPA, who is serving as an attorney for the Coalition, said that the Coalition would continue to work, politically to avoid the registration of women. He said that the Coalition would also file a friend-of-the-court brief with the Supreme Court when it considers the issue in the fall.

Jewish Family Life Rates Nashville No. 1

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Nashville's Jewish community has a higher affiliation rate than the nation's Jews as a whole, according to preliminary findings just released of a Jewish Family Life Survey administered by the Nashville unit of the American Jewish Committee, with 92 per cent of those sampled found to be affiliated with a Nashville synagogue and 72 per cent affiliated with other Jewish organizations including their synagogue.

Nashville's Jewish parents clearly feel, the AJC survey finds, that the most effective transmitter of Jewishness to their children has been the influence of a Jewish home. A strong majority reportedly feels that providing "a solid Jewish education" by parents to their children was of greatest importance to them as parents in preparing their children for a Jewish life.

The survey shows some contradictions as well. While this influence of the Jewish home and the Jewish family was found to be of crucial importance in transmitting Jewishness to their children, a majority of those sampled spent less than one-quarter of their leisure time for the purposes of recreation, enjoyment, and so on, with relatives. While 65 per cent of the sample listed as "very important" that their children receive a Jewish education, only 20 per cent of the adults themselves were involved in "any form of Jewish education."

While the majority of the respondents have lived in Nashville for more than 10 years, only a fifth of the sample were born in Nashville, and less than half were native Southerners. Fifteen per cent had parents who were born in Russia.

Besides his wife, he leaves one daughter, Ina Bouganin of Israel and two grandchildren.

Funeral services were at the Max Sugarman Memorial Chapel and burial was at the Lincoln Park Cemetery. Shiva was at his late residence. Contributions may be made to your favorite charity.

Begin Advises Caution Regarding Security Policies Criticism

JERUSALEM — Prime Minister Menachem Begin, apparently voicing objection to American Jewish criticism of Israeli Government policies, did, however, appear to favor silence from Jews abroad regarding major questions facing Israel.

Although stating that public advice on security matters should not be made "within earshot of our enemies who conspire to do us evil," the Prime Minister did assail a recent declaration, which originated in Israel and carried the signatures of 56 prominent American Jewish leaders, denouncing extremists in the Government and advocated a territorial compromise with the Palestinians in the occupied West Bank.

Mr. Begin's remarks were made in an open letter to Leonard Fein, a professor of contemporary Jewish studies at Brandeis University who was one of the original signatories of the declaration and who had released the statement to the public. (See Jewish Herald Story in July 10 issue.)

Mr. Fein was severely criticized by other Americans who had signed the declaration when they had learned he had made a public statement which was later described as "a vote of no confidence in the present Government by a significant segment of the American Jewish leadership."

It was then that the professor had written to Mr. Begin assuring him that he had "dealt with policy and not with personality. He also disavowed some of his earlier remarks.

The Begin letter, released late last week, replied in part that "I believe with all my heart that Eretz Israel (Land of Israel) belongs to the whole Jewish people and not only to those Jews who live in it." He went on further to say that "Hence, I have no objection to Jews who live in the diaspora criticizing the policy of the Israel Government of the day, by its very democratic nature, it is transient."

"The fact is, and one can of course find reason for surprise at this, Jews abroad and especially in the United States did not exercise this right during the office of previous governments.

"Was it that they never had any cause to criticize their policies, their commissions, omissions, whereas in these days there are some Jews who feel they can boundlessly indulge in this right? I make no complaint, but of itself the fact is worthy of note."

The question of an American Jew's right to criticize Israeli Government policy has been an issue for quite some time. It was also the subject of a recent American Jewish Congress meeting held in Jerusalem which was entitled "The Right To Participate in

Each Other's Affairs and the Limits of That Right."

Both American and Israeli groups are split among themselves over the question with each side urging Americans to speak out when they disagree over Israeli policies regarding the Palestinian question. Still others believe that by questioning Government security in these matters will further undermine official American support. Another large segment of both groups feel that any Jews living outside Israel should refrain from criticism because they did not share the risks of living in their country.

In addressing the question in his letter to Fein, Mr. Begin wrote that "On matters that relate to the national security of the little nation in Eretz Israel, please refrain from proffering advice, at least in public, within earshot of our enemies who conspire to do us evil. Remember, please, the simple fact that we care for our children and grandchildren — and they, these little children, live here."

Reacting to what Mr. Begin called "aggressive abuse," he stated to Fein that "I felt that what we face is not the exercise of the right of dissent but a verbal aggression."

Second Palestinian Dies While On Hunger Strike

TEL AVIV — A second convicted Arab terrorist who was involved in a hunger strike at Nahla prison has died in a hospital after liquid he was forced-by Israeli prison personnel lodged in his lungs. He was identified as Mouhamed Halawa, 28, Gaza, who was sentenced to life imprisonment nine years ago for throwing hand grenades in the center of Gaza killing one Arab and injuring eight others.

Another prisoner Ali Mohammed Jaapri, 30, of Jordan, has died in the same causes and a third prisoner is in a hospital in serious condition.

One Arab doctor who examined the prisoners had charged that Israeli authorities had mishandled the force feeding of prisoners and that at least three apparently inhaled liquid into their lungs. Dr. Anwar Abden has stated that he believes the forcefeeding had not been done by qualified medical personnel.

The three were among 75 prisoners who went on a hunger strike July 14 at the Nahla prison in the Negev demanding better conditions at the prison, which opened two months ago to hold convicted terrorists. Twenty-six of those who continued their strike, including the two who subsequently died, were moved to the Ramleh central prison late last week.

Many Palestinian activists, in addition to the relatives of some inmates, have charged that conditions at Nahla Prison are unbearable. The cite poor ventilation, cramped quarters, lack of exercise, inferior medical care, poor food and frequent terms of solitary confinement.

Prison officials, however, have countered that many prisoners confined to Nahla are hardened terrorists, 44 of 76 who were on a hunger strike are serving life sentences. Authorities have cited numerous instances of prison guards being threatened or beaten by prisoners, often with parts of beds when available. Officials have also stated that the new facility provides more space than others — 3.2 square yards per person compared with 2.8 to 3.0 at other prisons.

In a related incident nine Arab women also went on a hunger strike when the second death was announced. Their strike is in sympathy with their sons, who are interned at Ramleh. Other prisoners at Ramleh also staged a hunger strike but it ended peacefully after 24 hours.

Meanwhile, extra police and border policemen have been sent to Jerusalem to prevent any other disturbances. Arab women had previously demonstrated through the streets of East Jerusalem, clashing with police and a total of 20 Arabs have been arrested.

In another development, Gaza Mayor Rashad Shawa has cabled protests to President Yitzhak Navon, Premier Menachem Begin, Deputy Premier Yigal Yadin and the Military Governor of Gaza demanding that the Nahla prison be closed. He stated that he also intends to protest to President Carter and the United Nations about the two deaths.

Commenting on the death of the first prisoner, the State Department's chief spokesman, John Trantner said, that "We have seen reports on that (the first death) and we are taking up the matter with the Israeli Ministry of Foreign Affairs."

West Bank Elections Postponed Indefinitely

JERUSALEM (JTA) — Municipal elections on the West Bank have been postponed indefinitely by the Military Government on grounds that at this stage they "would cause damage to the peace process." The authorities apparently fear an upsurge of nationalist and pro-Palestine Liberation Organization sentiment of the kind that followed the last municipal elections in 1976.

Most of the mayors elected that year were pro-PLO or supporters of other extreme rejectionist groups. Israeli authorities observe that the territories have been quiet of late and they do not want an election campaign at this time to stir nationalist passions. They attribute the relative calm to a weakening of the militant leadership on the West Bank since the deportations of the mayors of Hebron and Halhoul and the bomb attacks which crippled the mayors of Nablus and Ramallah.

Clash Mars Observance Of Tisha B'Av

JERUSALEM (JTA) — Rival groups of Jewish religious zealots clashed near the Temple Mount in the Old City late last week. One group denounced the government for refusing to allow Jews to pray on the site which contains major Islamic shrines. The other contended that Jews are forbidden to go there as long as the Temple has not been rebuilt.

The skirmish, which police said was minor, was the only event that marred Tisha B'Av, the day of mourning over the destruction of the First and Second Temples. Large numbers of observant Jews gathered at the

Jewish Cemetery In Geneva Desecrated

GENEVA (JTA) — The old Jewish cemetery of Carouge in Geneva was desecrated recently. Several tombstones were overturned and sprayed with slogans "death to the Jews," "your dead shall never rest in peace" and "Hitler's lesson has not been forgotten." The word "Jude" and large swastikas were drawn on many of the tombstones.

The Geneva police department was alerted by an anonymous phone caller who said "The Nazis are still active. Go and see the cemetery in Carouge."

The police department has opened an investigation but a department spokesman said that it was too early to determine who desecrated the cemetery. The police think it may be a political act, but do not rule out that it may have been committed by emotionally disturbed people.

While the Swiss police want to minimize the importance of the incident, Israeli circles in Switzerland connect this act with the desecration of the Jewish cemetery in Basel two months ago. As Geneva and Basel border on France it is felt there might be a connection between the incidents here and in France.

The Military Government does not intend to permit the National Guidance Committee to resume its activities and in fact banned its latest meeting which was to have been held last week. The committee was the leading body among West Bank Arabs, including most anti-Jordan elements. While its leaders conspired closely with the PLO, they did not always follow PLO orders and the committee acquired a relatively independent status. It too has been weakened by recent events.

A senior security source claimed that a "silent majority" of the West Bank population does not share the extreme views of the local leadership and does not consider the PLO their legitimate representative. According to the source, a number of influential West Bankers were in favor of renewed contacts with Jordan. If Jordanian agencies were allowed to renew their activities in the territories, the "Jordanian option" would have a much better chance, the source said.

Western Wall today to read from the Book of Lamentations and chent prayers.

A holiday atmosphere prevailed in the rest of the country where many government offices, banks and private businesses closed. Many civil servants took the day off for trips to the countryside and beaches. There was no television, and movie houses and other places of entertainment were closed.

Coffee houses in Tel Aviv were jammed despite municipal law prohibiting them from opening on religious holidays. The owners explained that their profits more than compensated for the fines they had to pay.

Yiddish Books Sought By New Exchange

AMHERST, Mass. (JTA) — The National Yiddish Book Exchange, a non-profit agency administered by faculty members of several area colleges, has announced a nationwide effort to rescue old and discarded books in Yiddish.

Aaron Lansky, executive director of the new agency, said the books will be brought to a central repository where they will be restored, catalogued and shelved and thus made available for sale to teachers, students and university libraries. The participating faculty members are from Amherst, Hampshire, Mount Holyoke and Smith Colleges and from the University of Massachusetts.

He said thousands of books in Yiddish are lying forgotten in cellars and attics throughout North America, and that Yiddish, a once vibrant language read by millions of Jewish immigrants, is now largely unread. Many of the great Yiddish writers perished in the Holocaust and in Stalin's purges, Lansky said.

He said that while such contemporary writers as Chaim Grade and Isaac Bashevis Singer enjoy popularity in translation, there are few who still read such books in Yiddish. He said unread books are in second and third generation homes, neglected by the heirs of the immigrants, and that countless irreplaceable books have been lost or destroyed for lack of a convenient repository.

He said the exchange was organized by graduate students of Yiddish literature, adding there had been a "remarkable resurgence" of interest in Yiddish studies among American college students and they need books in Yiddish. He said recovered books not in immediate demand will be stored at the new exchange and thus preserved for Yiddish readers of future generations.

Bedrich Fritta A/K/A Karl Weiss Was True 'Holocaust' Victim

AMSTERDAM — Karl Weiss, the Jewish artist in the television series Holocaust, who perished in Auschwitz, did indeed exist. His real name was Bedrich Fritta, and the life of this man was featured in Holocaust. In the film, it is recorded how Karl Weiss was deported and how the Germans in Theresienstadt forced him to paint for them. In the end, however, they transported him, after having tortured him, to Auschwitz. This was because he made drawings in secret about the real situation in Theresienstadt.

What, in Holocaust, was the fate of Karl Weiss, happened in reality to Bedrich Fritta. With his wife Hansi and their little son, Thomas, they arrived in Theresienstadt in 1942. Being an artist, Bedrich was ordered to work in the drawing office. Together with other people who had been set to work there, he made sketches of the daily happenings, based on such themes as starvation, disease, humiliation and death. These were smuggled out of the camp. Some of these drawings are in the possession of the Jewish Museum in Prague.

The Germans found out about the secret drawings. The Holocaust film shows what really happened. Bedrich Fritta died at the age of 35. His wife, Hansi, who stayed behind in Theresienstadt, also perished. Only their three-year-old son survived.

On the boy's birthday on January 22, 1944, his father drew sketches that were meant to let Tommy know what really happened in the camp. They are very touching drawings. These were hidden in a wall in Theresienstadt. Later, they were retrieved as Prof. Leo Haas, who knew the place, survived Auschwitz. He and his wife brought up Tommy who, at the age of 18 — he now calls himself Tommy Fritta Haas — was presented with the drawings his stepfather, Leo Haas, had kept for him.

A facsimile edition of these 52 drawings has been published lately by Omnibook Publishing Company in The Hague. The title of this edition is: For Thomas, at the Oc- casation of his Third Birthday, Theresienstadt January 22, 1944, by Bedrich Fritta.

They are sketches with short accompanying texts in the Czechoslovakian language. Extremely moving texts, the more so when one realizes that here, in a concentration camp, a father wants to show his son that outside the camp, flowers and love are blooming, that hopes and the future are awaiting him there.

There is, for example, a drawing of a little boy who holds a flower in his hand which he wants to give to a shy girl. "It is almost plain sailing with a flower in your hand, you'll find her, you'll find her... the dearest of the land." This was sketched in Theresienstadt in 1944.

In the annex to the facsimile edition, Thomas Fritta Haas writes: "I'm enjoying life because I have a tremendous wife and the dearest children in the whole world." Indeed, he found his sweetheart in the "land" from which he came. A particular sketch is one drawn in Theresienstadt of a little Chassid. That was how Bedrich Fritta saw his son.

The accompanying text runs: "Tommy, praying." There is also a drawing of a little boy, situated in a rural scenery, with a laughing sun in the sky. "This is not just a fairy-tale — it is the truth," wrote Bedrich Fritta for his son. He also sketched him as practicing various trades including as a detective.

As well as the facsimile edition, the Dutch authorities, Mies Bouhuys, published a story about the life of Thomas Fritta Haas. It is a story for children, illustrated with the drawings which were made in Theresienstadt. Mies Bouhuys is a famous writer of children's books. The book is called: Tommy's Third Birthday — Drawings for the Future. This work too, was drawn by Omnibook, The Hague. It is a touching story.

Thomas Fritta Haas, who married in a synagogue in Prague, left there with his wife to go to Israel after the Russian invasion of 1968. He is a citizen of Israel, but was unable to find himself a job there, so he went to the United States and then, in 1973, to Germany. He is now a librarian in Mannheim.

After the screening of Holocaust in West Germany, Thomas wrote a letter to the editor of Der Spiegel and told him that the character, Karl Weiss, of the Holocaust film was modelled upon the real story of his father and that he still was in the possession of a portfolio of the drawings.

Military Experts Concerned Over U.S. — Saudi Arms Agreement

TEL AVIV (JTA) — The serious concern expressed in Israeli military circles over Saudi Arabia's huge purchases of advanced weaponry from the United States and especially the Saudi request for equipment that would endow their American F-15 aircraft with long-range offensive capabilities, stems from the perception of the dangers facing Israel on its eastern front.

According to these experts, the American military hardware being accumulated by the Saudis is far in excess of what is necessary to defend that large, sparsely populated country. It makes sense only if the weapons are intended, as the Israelis believe they are, to bolster the forces of the Arab confrontation states on Israel's east, Jordan, Syria and Iraq.

Those countries, already can field more than 5000 tanks in an offensive against Israel. Moreover, they possess the military infrastructure to absorb large quantities of war materials, including aircraft, delivered from Saudi Arabia. There is, for example, nothing to prevent the stationing of Saudi F-5 combat jets in Jordan which has the facilities and know-how for their operation.

Israeli military sources say there is no acceptable reason why the Saudis need 150 operational planes to increase the F-15 operational range from its present 720 kilometers to over 1600 kilometers unless offensive operations against Israel are intended.

Nor is there any reason why Saudi Arabia would need three times as many laser-guided bombs as Israel possesses or, with a regular army of only 44,000 men, electronic command control equipment capable of coordinating 15 divisions which is, not coincidentally, the approximate size of the combined Jordanian-Syrian-Iraqi forces on the eastern front.

The Israelis point out that Saudi Arabia has supported Syrian, Iraqi and Jordanian forces in the past. Except during the 1956 Suez campaign, the Saudis have sent expeditionary forces and material to the Arab states directly in conflict with Israel.

In the 1967 war, they dispatched a force to Jordan where it remained until 1977. In the 1973 war, the Yom Kippur War, the Saudis sent troops to Syria. In 1974, 1975 and 1977, Saudi forces participated in joint military exercises with the eastern front states and Saudi aircraft were stationed in the host countries.

In the event of a new war against Israel from the east, the Saudis could participate even without sending an expeditionary force across their borders. They are building three major military bases, one of

A Hodgepodge Of Israeli Mistakes

EDITOR:

This month's Republican convention had quite an after effect on Israeli politics. Once again, the stench of Israeli socialist politicking has approached America's shores. In 1976, Prime Minister Yitzchak Rabin got into a fracas with American Jewry and his constituents back home when he delivered a talk in which he told Jews to vote for Gerald Ford and reject Jimmy Carter.

In 1980, Shimon Peres (who heads the out-of-power Socialist Party and who is also known for his political tactlessness) has told American Jewry to vote for Carter and reject Ronald Reagan. Peres stated that "I find him [Reagan] as knowledgeable as the Middle East as I am on the Hollywood movie industry."

These childlike outbursts can only hurt our relations with one of the few political leaders who is still a staunch friend of Israel and also a supporter of, you should excuse the pun, a S.A.L.T.-free political diet. One only has to look back to 1977 to see the genesis of Peres' political bumbling.

In the beginning of 1977, the Likud (Begin's party) put the Socialist Party out to pasture after 30 years. Peres was then head of the Socialists, as Rabin lost his leadership, before the election, due to a multitude of political scandals. During the time of the election, Shimon Peres suffered his first heart attack. Shimon Peres tried to use this attack for his own selfish political advantage. When Begin was well enough to come to the Knesset for his first speeches as Prime Minister, the Socialists started their mudslinging campaign to get Begin out of power (through a series of no-confidence votes over issues which were petty and slanderous to say the least).

In one attempt to de throne Begin, Peres started rumors that Begin had become a dope addict and was always high on medicines he took for his cardiac and diabetic problems. This, he claimed, was the reason by Begin always had fits of anger while debating Peres and his comrades in Knesset. His plot backfired, and many a Socialist attacked Peres for his politically amateurish behavior. With rumors circulating in Israel that Rabin may soon replace Peres as head of the Socialist Party, we can only express gladness at the departing of one who has served to damage Israel's cause.

Crime Unchecked — Who Stole The Torah

Recently, two crimes took place in Israel which caused a shock-wave across the whole nation. The first involved an aged female immigrant from Russia. She was known to have many a gold filling in her mouth, as do many an Eastern European immigrant. A group of young local Jewish thugs beat her, following which they extracted all her teeth, while she was still awake.

The second incident involved the kidnaping of a child. A Jewish man abducted a child for ransom, and murdered the child after receiving it. Cries for the death penalty no longer live with such crimes: beating of old women, kidnaping and murder. There must be more respect for Jewish law. There must be an end of tax sheltering of missionary centers from where our lost youth learn to run from a heritage they've never known (some of their pamphlets could be mistaken for socialist propaganda). Maybe, someday, other Israel cities will become like Israel's only policeless city, Bnei Brak, where Mitzvahs supercede politics, and religion is a way of life and not a Knesset group of parties.

Assassination Plots Does P.L.O. Want Peace?

Soon after Peace Now (which is Peace Never) sent out its holy document to Begin telling him to be more flexible with the Palestinians, we all saw the flexibility of the P.L.O. Will the signer now admit their error in signing, now that a new P.L.O. plot has been uncovered. For one year, the P.L.O. wing in Gaza had been planning the assassination of one of Israel's most prestigious political leaders, General Ariel Sharon. For a year, while peace (?) talks went on and P.L.O. said they would accept peace with autonomy, they were planning a vicious murder; it would not be just the murder of the General but the execution of his wife and children, also. Can there be any Jew in Israel or America who can still support a Jimmy Carter or Peace Now Munich-style Chamberlain sellout of Israel. The Torah has taught us that enemies must be defeated, not pampered, and we must never become their palsies. Even the Arab moderate #1, King Hussein, is known to have stated, during the Six Day War, that his main wish in life was to be captured, killed and take out his other eye. He told his people it was a good deed to kill a Jew... if you don't have a gun, choke a Jew with your bare hands.

Anyone who believes that Sadat is Mensch (a real good man), #1 is also fooling himself. American Jewry was known to have fallen in love with a smiling, friendly Jew who people burned Dayan and took out his other eye. Jewry... if you don't have a gun, choke a Jew with your bare hands.

We are gluttons for punishment. If we see, G-d forbid, three million Israeli Jews become a mere memory on a future Tisha B'Av, their blood will be on the hands of those who support our enemies.

Recently, Rabbi Meir Kahane was thrown into prison because of the pressure of "Jewish intellectuals" who feel his true warning about the Arab threat would cause displeasure to Jimmy Carter and other world leaders. At the same time, these Jewish saints do not speak out against the numerous West Bank Mayors who are calling for Israel's destruction, as well as the extermination of the Jewish People.

The Rabbis state that it is difficult in 1980, to mourn our Holy Temple in Jerusalem, as though it happened today. Do these leading intellectuals, at least, remember the destruction of our "honorary Third Temple," the Jewish communities wiped out in Eastern Europe. The Jewish memory was once eternal. Now, we've come to the point where the Jewish brain rarely functions.

Let us hope that the different Jewish days of mourning will resurrect within each of us, a love for our fellow Jew which is bountiful, and the heck with what the world thinks!!!!

Kiev Refusnik Harassed Institutionalized By KGB

NEW YORK (JTA) — Vladimir Kislik, prominent physicist, long-term refusnik and Jewish activist from Kiev, was taken to a psychiatric institution on July 19 after being imprisoned for 15 days, according to confirmed reports received by the National Conference on Soviet Jewry (NCSJ). He was arrested on July 4 on charges of "hoiiganism," and sentenced to 15 days in prison. At the conclusion of his stay in jail he was told that his sentence was extended for an additional 15 days. In protest, Kislik staged a hunger strike and, as punishment, was taken to a psychiatric institution in this city.

Kislik, a refusnik since 1974, had been warned repeatedly by the KGB to end his contacts with new refusniks. On March 20, he was threatened by KGB officers that he would be charged with "anti-Soviet behavior" and sentenced to 2-3 years in a labor camp, should he continue his "activities." Prior to the Olympics, he was summoned by Soviet authorities and told to stay away from foreigners. He was also told that he may be imprisoned for the duration of the Olympics.

Informed sources from Kiev claim that harassment against Kislik was being escalated because Soviet authorities want to "isolate" him. They say that the KGB is particularly eager to discourage new refusniks from getting involved in Jewish activist circles.

In reaction to Kislik's imprisonment and confinement in a psychiatric institution, the NCSJ has sent a cable to the President of the International Olympic Committee Lord Killanin to protest the inhumane treatment of Jewish activists and refusniks by Soviet authorities. The organization particularly emphasized the increased campaign of arrests and harassment leveled against them in the wake of the Olympic Games.

Educators, Students Attend Holocaust Study

NEW YORK (JTA) — Six women and four men have completed the second summer Institute created by Yeshiva University to help both Jewish and non-Jewish teachers to more effectively teach the Holocaust. The interdisciplinary program, "Teaching the Holocaust," was offered for the first time in 1978 but not in 1979, a university spokesman said.

The three-week program was held at the university's Brookdale Center in Manhattan and was sponsored by the Eli and Diana Zborowski Interdisciplinary Chair in Holocaust Studies at Yeshiva University, and the Memorial Foundation for Jewish Culture in association with the Stone-Sapirstein Center for Jewish Education of the university's Ferkauf Graduate School.

Rabbi Robert Hiri, director of the university's Holocaust department, said the participants had available the university's total resources, faculty, library collections, media center and Holocaust archives, allowing the participants an "extraordinary" opportunity to study the Holocaust and to evaluate existing materials and curricula in the field.

Hiri said also that the Institute was an intensive program designed for Judaic and general studies teachers in Jewish day schools, public, private and supplementary junior and senior high schools, curricula planners and coordinators, pedagogic specialists and graduate students to improve their knowledge of the Holocaust and to develop needed skills to help in teaching, understanding and articulating "the era's seminal lesson for all peoples."

The four men were Albert Adler, a teacher of American history at Livingston high school in New Jersey; William Vogel, a teacher at Lakeland high school in Westchester County; Abraham Edelheit of Brooklyn, a student at the university's Bernard Revel Graduate School; and Stephen Zabofsky, a social studies teacher at Eli Whitney junior high school in Brooklyn.

The women participants were Friede Friedenreich of Ridgewood, N.J., an educational consultant; Irma Follender of Teaneck, N.J., also a student at the Bernard Revel school; Debra Grogan, a teacher at Bronxville high school in Westchester; Suzanne Davis, an English teacher at Automotive high school in Brooklyn; Lenore Krieger, a librarian at Far Rockaway high school in Queens; and Jeanette Sieradzky of Teaneck, a group project consultant for the Center for Holocaust Studies at the Flatbush Yeshiva high school in Brooklyn.

Military Experts

which, Abouk, is only 216 kilometers' flight from Eilat. With added fuel pods and equipment for mid-air refueling, Saudi jets could reach any target in Israel.

The Israelis grant the U.S. intentions are not to provide the Saudis with means to destroy Israel but to reinforce "moderate" Saudi Arabia so that it can function, along with Egypt, as a firm base for American support of friendly nations in the Middle East and adjoining regions.

But the Americans should ask themselves, Israeli experts on Arab affairs say, whether the massive supply of arms to the Saudis is indeed the best way to achieve that objective or whether it could prove to be a disaster.

These experts fear that the U.S. has not learned the lesson of several decades of military and diplomatic mishaps which resulted from arming and otherwise supporting corrupt or unpopular regimes and rulers. They cite as examples Cuba, Vietnam, Libya and North Yemen where, after the pro-American rulers were overthrown in popular uprisings or coups, the American weapons were used against the U.S. or its Western allies and their interests.

The latest case in point is Iran and many informed Israelis and experts abroad wonder whether the Saudi royal family may not soon go the way of the Shah.

According to these sources, the Saudi monarchy is very unstable and is threatened more from within than from outside elements. The bloody events surrounding the seizure of the Kaaba in Mecca, the assassinations on personal or religious grounds within the royal household and the presence of Moslem religious fanatics who are infuriated by the monarchy's attempt to westernize the country, all pose potential dangers.

The country is volatile because 85 per cent of its population is illiterate and 65 per cent is rural based. Many young illiterates, flowing into the city but finding no work, are ripe for subversive propaganda. Although oil has made Saudi Arabia one of the richest countries in the world, only one per cent of its population is employed in the oil industry and of these, half are resident aliens.

Out of 1081 physicians in the country, 938 are foreigners. There is a Moslem Shi'ite minority (the predominant sect in neighboring Iran) centered in the oil producing regions where unrest is said to be rife.

All of these factors make for instability. By arming Saudi Arabia, Israelis say, the U.S. may be providing the very weapons that will soon overthrow the pro-Western monarchy. It is not only Israel's security but American interests that are at stake.

Ceremony Honoring Death Camp Victims Held In Paris

PARIS (JTA) — A ceremony marking the 38th anniversary of the rounding up of Jews in Paris during World War II was held on July 17, near the spot where they were assembled before being sent to Nazi death camps.

The rounding up of Jews, mostly immigrants from eastern countries who had come to France in the 1920s and 1930s, took place on July 16, and 17, 1942. Those arrested by French police, acting on orders of the Germans, were assembled in the Vel d'Hiv outdoor cycling track. Some 30,000 people were detained for several days without food and water in sultry weather.

Successful Investing

Diversified Portfolio

by David R. Sargent

Q: I hold 2,000 shares of Natomas (NYSE) and am not comfortable having all my investment dollars in this one issue. I am at a loss as to how to diversify this investment. Your clear advice would be invaluable. S.R. Iowa

A: Your qualms are understandable; you have over $100,000 in this one stock, entirely too much for a sole investment. However, Natomas is itself a diversified company, with interests in gas and oil production, marketing, geothermal steam production, coal mining, ocean transportation and real estate. The shares have been acting well, hitting new highs, reflecting higher oil prices as well as increasing production from its Indonesian properties. Earnings should be up strongly for the current year, perhaps in the area of $7.50 a share compared with $5.55 last year. I would hold the bulk of your shares, but for the sake of added safety, take profits on 500 shares, now.

The $28,000 proceeds from this sale should be reinvested in equal amounts of International Tel. & Tel., PepsiCo., Warner Communications and Xerox., NYSE-listed. ITT is a broadly diversified international company in telecommunications, financial services, natural resources, and consumer and industrial products. The stock yields a generous 8 per cent.

PepsiCo derives 86 per cent of profits from beverages and food products. Food services, transportation and sporting goods contribute the remaining portion of income. Entertainment and communications are the main operations on Warner Communications' roster.

The cable TV and home entertainment fields are particularly promising for this well-entrenched firm. In addition to its office copier product, Xerox has moved into the evolving field of "office automation." A full line of advanced word processing, facsimile transmission, and peripheral products has been introduced. This package of stocks will greatly augment the industry base of your portfolio.

Q: What is your opinion of Energy Fund and United Services Fund? Would Texas Utilities be a sound long-term investment? P.J. South Carolina

A: Energy Fund, as its name implies, invests in companies involved in various facets of the total energy industry. Growth over the last one, five, and ten-year periods has substantially exceeded that of the S&P 500. This no-load fund is a good specialized growth investment.

United Services is a gold fund. It is very volatile (i.e., speculative) and should be held with that understanding. Its price closely parallels changes in gold prices. Net asset value was up sharply in the first six months of this year and over the last three years, but only marginally (5 per cent) over the last five years. Texas Utilities is one of the better-situated, faster-growing utility holding companies. It is a sound selection for combined income (9.6 per cent yield) and long-term appreciation.

Tickets will be available at the door.

Knesset Calls For Action Over Contract

JERUSALEM (JTA) — Leading members of the Knesset have called for energetic action by Israel in the areas of diplomatic contacts and appeals to world public opinion in an effort to prevent France from supplying Iraq the wherewithal to build atomic weapons. A senior intelligence official gave the Knesset Foreign Affairs and Security Committee an informed assessment that, if the Franco-Iraqi deals go through as intended, Iraq will be in possession of nuclear weapons by the middle of the decade.

Former Premier Yitzhak Rabin, a committee member, called for urgent action by Israel to persuade France not to supply Iraq with the enriched uranium intended to fuel the two nuclear reactors already supplied to Baghdad. Rabin said he did not doubt an effort of this kind was already being mounted but he wanted more intensive attempts.

Supporters Of Terrorists Subject To New Law

JERUSALEM (JTA) — A law that would make it a criminal offense to support the Palestine Liberation Organization or any terrorist group was introduced in the Knesset by Justice Minister Shmuel Tamir. The legislation, recommended by security sources, was drafted by the Justice Ministry and unanimously approved by the Cabinet at its regular weekly session.

Under the proposed law, anyone who makes speeches in favor of a terrorist organization or its methods, displays its flag or sings its anthem would be subject to up to three years in jail and a $5000 fine. Under the current law, only persons charged with an overt terrorist act, conspiracy to commit such an act or membership in an illegal organization are punishable.

The new law would apply in Israel proper as well as in the occupied territories. It was initiated apparently because of the recent public expressions of support for the PLO among Israeli Arabs.

Tamir said that such expressions in private would not be penalized.

THE WORLD OF FINE FOODS

GOURMET'S GALLERY
Of all meats, veal is the most delicate in flavor; it has fine texture and little fat... like beef, better grades of veal carry the same federal grade stamps for quality: prime, choice, good... veal cuts have a comparatively large amount of connective tissue for their size, and for this reason should be cooked until well done to become tender... and because veal contains so little fat, it should not be broiled... low to moderate cooking temperatures should be used in order to obtain maximum tenderness, flavor, juiciness, uniform color, and aroma

State Department Replies To Israeli Query on Embassy Demonstration

JERUSALEM (JTA) — A Foreign Ministry spokesman has said that Israel has asked the United States Embassy in Tel Aviv why it allowed a demonstration to go on for several hours at its consulate in East Jerusalem in support of Arab security prisoners now on a hunger strike at the Nahla jail in the Negev. The spokesman called it a "strange and unprecedented step."

A consulate spokesman acknowledged that some 40 relatives and sympathizers of the hunger strikers were invited into the consulate garden where they met with a senior official and presented a petition.

The consulate spokesman said that this had been agreed to in advance on the request of "prominent West Bank persons." But he said the consulate was surprised by the large number of demonstrators who turned up. The state department in Washington, in response to the inquiry, said that the decision to receive a group of Palestinian protesters on the grounds of the U.S. consulate was made by the Consul General there and that the U.S. Ambassador in Tel Aviv, Samuel Lewis, may not have been aware of it or approved it in advance.

Responding to questions about the incident, the Department's chief spokesman, John Trattner, said "The Consulate General in Jerusalem was approached recently by prominent West Bank residents who asked that an American representative of the staff see a group of people who were worried about the humanitarian aspects of conditions in Nahla prison," a prison in Israel for persons held on charges of terrorist activity.

According to Trattner, "A group of approximately 40 persons" who came to the consulate "was somewhat larger than expected. When the group arrived at the consulate, they were permitted to enter the grounds at Nablus Road." He said the group remained in the garden where they talked with a consular representative and after giving him a petition they departed.

Trattner said "We are not aware of a protest by the Israel government." He said he didn't know if the Ambassador in Tel Aviv was asked about the meeting or approved it. He said the consulate in East Jerusalem makes its own decisions, including any involving a group of people presenting a petition. He observed that "there wasn't time to call Tel Aviv and even if there were, I'm sure the Consul General would make his own decision."

On another matter related to the Middle East, Trattner said "the U.S. wasn't consulted in advance" about a fact-finding mission to that region to inquire into the Arab-Israeli conflict by a delegation representing the nine member states of the European Economic Community (EEC). "Obviously, we are interested in that fact-finding mission and we will learn about it in the course of our conversations," Trattner said. He added, "We would object to any mission which detracts from the peace process now under way" in the Middle East. The mission is to be headed by Foreign Minister Gaston Thorn of Luxembourg who is acting president of the EEC Ministerial Council.

Ministries Scheduled To Move To Jerusalem

JERUSALEM (JTA) — The Ministry of Agriculture and the Ministry of Housing, Absorption and Construction have announced that their Tel Aviv offices will be moved to Jerusalem shortly. Agriculture Minister Ariel Sharon told the Ministerial Committee on Jerusalem that the transfer of his headquarters would begin "immediately."

Finance Minister Yigal Hurwitz estimated that the moves would cost the Treasury 11 billion, but officials of the two ministries concerned estimated a much smaller sum. Several hundred workers will have to be moved from Tel Aviv, a major expense in itself.

Interior Minister Yosef Burg, the committee chairman, said that whatever the cost, the move would be effected. "This is an essential step so that the world will know that there is only one Jerusalem which is the capital of Israel," Burg said.

Dov Becker, JDL Take Over Herut Office In Protest

NEW YORK (JTA) — Four members of the Jewish Defense League took over the office of the United Zionist Revisionists of America (Herut) in midtown Manhattan recently in protest against the policies of Premier Menachem Begin of Israel.

Dov Becker, spokesman for the JDL, told the Jewish Telegraphic Agency in a telephone call from the Herut office, that "we are demanding that Herut gain the immediate release of (JDL founder) Rabbi Meir Kahane and we are demanding that Herut return to the principles of (Ze'ev) Jabotinsky by demanding that Begin annex immediately all the territories now held by Israel." Asked what Herut here can do about this, Becker said "we are certain Herut can do what we are demanding."

He said there were two people in the Herut office and when they were asked to leave they complied. The JDL in recent weeks also took over the office of Interns for Peace, a program which works in Israel for Jewish-Arab unity, the American Friends of Hebrew University and the Hebrew University.

After a little more than three hours the JDL left the Herut office voluntarily after Herut issued a statement which Becker described as "satisfactory" and which he said would be sent to Begin. The statement said, in part, that Herut holds Kahane in great esteem and "we profoundly regret the fact of his imprisonment and express our sincere hope that he will soon be set free." Kahane has been held in Israel for nearly two months. He was taken into custody following actions on the West Bank which Israel authorities termed provocative.

"On the question of Hebron," the statement continued, "the Herut movement has always believed that all of Eretz Yisrael constitutes the Jewish homeland and no part of it should therefore fall under foreign sovereignty or domination. Every Jew has the right to live in Hebron as in any other part of Eretz Yisrael."

A Herut spokesperson said "We are not going to press charges" against the four JDL members. "We support the right of Jews to express their opinions. Hopefully, this will not always take this form."

Israelis Killed

TEL AVIV (JTA) — Six civilian employees of the Israel Military Industry were killed when explosives they were preparing to test detonated, a military spokesman has announced. The names of the victims were not immediately released.

Security sources determined that the blast was definitely accidental and that no terrorist activity was involved. Nevertheless, Yosef Mayan, Director General of the Defense Ministry, has appointed a special committee to investigate the accident, headed by Dr. Benzion Naveh, director of the Arms Development Authority.

The explosion occurred at an arms plant located in an isolated area of central Israel far from any population center. Police closed off the area while the investigation was underway. No other casualties or damage was reported in the vicinity.

Former SS Major To Be Released

ROME (JTA) — A military tribunal in Bari has decided that Walter Reder, 65, a former SS major and the last convicted Nazi war criminal in Italy, will be granted full liberty in five years. He has been imprisoned since he received a life term in 1951 for ordering the killing of more than 600 civilians in Marzabotto in Tuscany, central Italy, in 1941. The Marzabotto Town Council has repeatedly said that Reder's release would insult the memory of those who died in the massacre.

The tribunal, which revoked the life sentence, said he was still considered a war criminal and would have to remain in jail for another five years under supervised detention. It said the decision was taken after considering Reder's good conduct and the time he has already served.

Prominent Soviet Novelist To Settle In U.S.

Moscow — One of the Soviet Union's leading members of the literary establishment until he challenged the censorship last year, has landed in Paris after having flown there with other members of his family.

Vasily P. Aksenov, 47, who was one of 23 writers who had demanded publication of a collection of banned works called "Metropol" last year, had decided to go abroad after authorities had rejected the collection and had taken reprisals against its contributors.

Aksenov, along with his wife, Maya, 50, left on Soviet passports. Other members of their party, who are planning to emigrate to the United States, included Maya Aksenov's daughter, Alyona Grinberg, her son-in-law, Vitaly Grinberg, a mathematician, and Mrs. Grinberg's 8-year-old son, Vanya.

It is Soviet procedure to require that Israel be listed on the Grinberg's documents as their destination, but they plan to go to the U.S. Mr. Grinberg had to wait five years for permission to emigrate because of alleged secrecy in his work.

After visiting France, Italy and Scandinavia, the Aksenovs plan to go to the United States where he plans to write and teach, probably at the University of Michigan. It is the couple's hope that they will be able to return to the Soviet Union at some future time.

Friends and relatives waited with the family while customs agents picked through the family's luggage for over an hour and it was only after a long debate by Security men that Aksenov was allowed to take his literary notes along with him.

It was raining when Aksenov and his family left the airport. "That means good luck," said the novelist's 82-year-old father, Pavel, who is still a loyal party member despite 18 years spent in Stalin's prison camps. Aksenov's mother, Yevgeniya Ginzburg, who died in 1977, was also a party member and had spent 10 years in Stalin's camps. When she was released in 1947, she thought her husband had died and she remarried. She wrote about her years in camp in a book called "Into the Whirlwind," which was published abroad in 1967.

Bridge

by Robert E. Starr

Today's hand is a bit more sophisticated than most. However, it will show that one should never give up as long as there is even the slightest chance of having something worth. At least always make that try. The trouble is that sometimes one does not see where that possibility might come from. Such a situation exists here. It is remote, I agree but it is the only possible chance to set a contract that looks ironclad.

East was Dealer, no one vulnerable with this bidding:

E	S	W	N
P 1S	2C	2H
P 2S	P	4S
End

The bidding provided no problem and shouldn't have. West has a fine overall and as soon as North hears his partner open the bidding he is sure there is a game and in Spades unless there is even a better fit in the Heart suit. There is no harm in exploring Hearts but when South rebids his Spades North jumps right to game there.

West leads the Club King and, before we go back to that, let's examine Declarer's view. That worthy can see two Club losers and one or two Hearts, depending on the location of that Ace. If West has it, by leading to the two honors in Dummy twice he can lose but one. So now, as long as the Trump suit breaks normally the hand should be made. The Trump suit does, West has the Heart Ace and yet the hand can be set.

On West's lead, East plays his 9, the 1st of a high-low showing a doubleton at the most. Now West continues with his Queen while both East and Declarer follow with their last Clubs. Most of the Wests simply continued with their Ace. East discarded and Declarer now was in control. He drew Trumps and carefully did lead to Dummy's Hearts twice. After all he had enough entries in the Diamond suit.

That seemed quite normal to all especially when they opened the traveling score and saw that making four was the usual score. So they scored it and went on to the next hand. But there was one way to possibly set this hand and as the cards happen to be, it will work out. It will all be up to West, who should be able to figure out by his own hand and the bidding that his partner will have nothing. Also he can see that his Heart Ace is in the right place for the enemy. But there is one chance and it can cost nothing to try.

Dummy will have to follow on the third Club lead but West knows both the other players are out. If, by some chance East has the Trump 8, the key card here, and can be made to use it, it will force either the Ace or King for Declarer to overruff, thus establishing a Trump trick for West. But we have already seen that East will not ruff West's Ace.

So West should play the low Club instead. It can't cost as East will ruff it anyhow so Declarer won't get a discard.

But what will East ruff with? Not the 2, I hope. He should wonder why his partner is making such a ridiculous play for he is sure his partner has that Ace. Something is trying to be said to him and he should figure out what. He should ruff with his highest Trump and when he does the hand goes down. This play by the Defense is called an "Uppercut."

Moral: When one partner does something unusual on Defense, try to figure out why. There must be some good reason.

EEC To Submit Venice Draft To UN Assembly

BONN (JTA) — The nine member states of the European Economic Community (EEC) will table their Middle East initiative by submitting a draft resolution to the United Nations General Assembly based on their Venice declaration of June 30 which stated that the Palestinians and the Palestine Liberation Organization must be associated with the Mideast peace process.

The General Assembly began a special emergency session in New York last week to discuss Palestinian rights. Both Israel and the U.S. objected, the Israelis charging that the session was convened illegally "in violation of the rules of procedure at the UN."

Meanwhile, Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher has proposed a summit meeting of the EEC and Arab foreign ministers, except Egypt which is boycotted by the Arab League. The purpose is to discuss the West European role in the Middle East.

Genscher offered that suggestion as Chedli Kliibi, Secretary General of the Arab League, arrived in West Germany for meetings with Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and Foreign Minister Genscher of Luxembourg, who is acting President of the EEC's Ministerial Council. Thorn is expected to be dispatched shortly on a mission of inquiry into the Arab-Israeli conflict, as decided in Venice last month. He will head an EEC delegation for that purpose.

These developments were seen as an additional means of promoting Euro-Arab understanding and strengthening their political cooperation in search of a solution to the Middle East conflict on a new diplomatic basis. Genscher and French Foreign Minister Francois Poncet recently spoke out in support of renewing the Euro-Arab dialogue on a high political level. The flurry of activity on the part of the EEC is believed to be related in part to expectations that American diplomacy in the Middle East will be paralyzed by the Presidential elections.

For Deception

by Sylvia Porter

The U.S. consumer movement, considered by most expert observers to be moribund or close to it, can spring back to life, if the movement latches onto an issue of meaning to you and me, the general public, rather than merely to professional consumer activists, such as the federal Consumer Protection Agency, which was killed a few years ago.

This point has just been dramatized in New York state, which joined several other states in passing private-action legislation. These are laws which permit private citizens to sue firms guilty of deceptive practices or false advertising in the individual state.

Until now, only the busy Attorney General in New York could sue, if the case seemed to be of sufficiently broad public interest to justify use of the taxpayers' money.

The law, as finally passed, dropped (with the unanimous agreement of everyone involved in the matter) a provision originally requested by some business groups, for attorneys' fees to be recoverable against plaintiffs who bring "frivolous" suits which lack any merit.

The reason for the dramatic shift: Hefty legal fees socked to an individual consumer, resulting in the possible loss of the consumer's home or life savings, simply will not be a practical remedy for frivolous suits. And if actually imposed, the "remedy" could cause a tremendous backlash against business. This sort of backlash actually did occur when individual union members were sued for boycotting hats, produced with non-union labor in the 1920s, in what became known as the infamous "Danbury Hatters Case."

In New York, for the first time in the history of private-action legislation, some business groups joined consumer advocates in supporting legislation.

The business groups recognized that false advertising takes business away from legitimate competitors of the culprit and hurts honest enterprises as well as the consumer.

For instance, explains Richard A. Givens, former regional director of the Federal Trade Commission and now associated with a prominent New York law firm, advertising of non-existent discounts and "bait and switch" tactics can draw customers away from legitimate firms and cause those customers to pay more for potentially inferior goods.

As part of a compromise to attract business support, the law omitted authority for multiplying minimum damages to come up with an astronomical liability for minor violations.

The significance of the action is underlined by the fact that the legislation was passed by a Democratic Assembly and Republican Senate, then signed by the state's Democratic governor with the support of the bar association as well as law enforcement groups.

You, the consumer, are given a vital weapon by private-action laws, especially where you can collect legal fees from the guilty party if you win, as is permitted in the New York law. Other state laws may allow a successful, defending party to collect their legal costs from you as well, so beware of this and check your state's law. New York rejected this because it treats unequally equally, which is not equality!

There are many other pitfalls, so check with an informed lawyer if you become involved in a deceptive practices case.

In addition to the private-action weapon, you have other areas of protection if you are cheated. For instance:

1. The small claims courts, in which you can bring damage cases without a lawyer.

2. The right to defend actions against you for non-payment of bills for an item if it was seriously defective in breach of warranty. Get advice from a trusted expert before refusing to pay a bill.

3. A complaint to state, local and federal agencies, which may then refer the matter to the company involved, and solve the problem. But most agencies have neither the authority nor the resources to bring legal action to force a company to help resolve a dispute.

4. And the most important, as well as underused, complaint mechanism of all: write to the company's president, tell your story and ask for help. In many instances, top management is blithely unaware of what is happening and will correct the matter as soon as it knows the facts. Some laws, in fact, make a complaint to the company an essential prelude to seeking relief from a court or agency.

This makes sense: who would want to be sued before even being told a problem exists and what it is? Consumerism isn't dead. What it needs is to be pushed back to the right track... your interests and mine. Then it revives.

Government Proposes Commercial TV Station

JERUSALEM (JTA) — A new battle is shaping up between the coalition and the opposition over government proposals to establish a commercial television channel to compete with the present single channel which is State-owned but autonomous. Energy Minister Yitzhak Modai is expected to soon propose the new channel to the Ministerial Economic Committee.

Several business groups are known to be interested in bidding for the franchise to operate a commercial channel. If the full Cabinet approves Modai's proposal, the Economic Committee will begin to consider bids.

Drobbles Reports Establishment Of 141 New Settlements

JERUSALEM (JTA) — The Jewish Agency and the World Zionist Organization have established 141 new settlements in the last three years, Matiyahu Drobbles, co-chairman of the WZO's Settlement Department reported at a meeting of the WZO Executive. According to Drobbles, it is "the greatest settlement drive in Zionist history." Only 22 of the 141 settlements are immigrant settlements, he said.

Drobbles reported that the settlement plans of seven groups of new immigrants have been delayed by financial difficulties. He also contended that the IL 2 billion allocated by the Housing and Construction Ministry this year for the new settlements is insufficient to cover their needs.

Commercial television has been under discussion for years. The latest move in favor of a commercial channel has come at a time when national television, and to a lesser extent, national radio, are under strong attack by government ministers and coalition Knesset members for allegedly being too negative and down-beat in reporting news of government activities.

Modai and Finance Minister Yigal Hurwitz are among the most severe critics of public television's handling of the news and public affairs. Benjamin Halevi, an MK of the Democratic Movement, recently referred to TV news reporters as "criminals" and had to make a public apology.

Labor MKs have charged that coalition attacks on television and radio staff reporters were deliberately intended to boost the chances of Cabinet approval of a second channel. They accused the government of wanting to create a commercial channel to be run by pro-Likud business interests.

Moshe Shahal, chairman of the Labor Party's Knesset faction, called for tight Knesset and public control over any second channel to ensure that it does not become a political tool.

When in doubt, a Herald subscription makes the perfect gift for birthdays or holidays.

Squatters Forcibly Removed From Arab Village

JERUSALEM (JTA) — Mounted police and foot patrolmen forcibly removed about 10 families from the abandoned Arab village of Lifta just outside Jerusalem late last week. One man was slightly injured during the evacuation which was accomplished generally without violence.

The families moved into Lifta without authorization to protest what they said was the government's failure to honor its promise to provide decent homes for slum dwellers. Yamin Swiss, leader of the group, also led the "Ohel Moreh" (tent city) squatters who established themselves on unused State-owned land on the southern outskirts of Jerusalem three weeks ago.

That group, about 40 families from the depressed Katamon quarter, left voluntarily after the Jerusalem Municipality and the Israel Land Administration promised to allocate land elsewhere in Jerusalem for housing young married couples unable to afford homes of their own.

Swiss alleged that the Ministry of Housing and Construction reneged on its part of the bargain to provide the housing. A Ministry spokesman conceded that it did not favor the proposal. He said the Housing Ministry has offered to assist young couples to establish a new settlement in Galilee but would not support an experiment in housing "whose success is doubtful." The Jerusalem Municipality said, however, that it was willing to go ahead with the plan.

Labor, Government Unite Against Franco-Iraqi Deal

TEL AVIV (JTA) — The Labor Party has decided to join the government in efforts to forestall the supply of high grade uranium by France to Iraq and to try in general to reverse the anti-Israel trend among the Western European states.

The opposition party leaders will approach the government with the suggestion that Labor utilize its good personal relations with European Socialist leaders toward that end.

The Labor Party is prepared to send emissaries to European capitals to warn that the supply of enriched uranium and nuclear reactors to Iraq constitutes a grave danger to peace in the Middle East and elsewhere.

Court Decision Expected On Deportation Hearings

JERUSALEM (JTA) — The Supreme Court has ended hearings on the appeal of three West Bank political leaders against their deportation. A decision is expected within a week on the demand of Fehed Kawasme, Mohammed Milhim and Shekh Rajeb Baysud Tamimi against their continued expulsion.

Kawasme, who was the mayor of Hebron, Milhim, who was the mayor of Halhoul, and Tamimi, who was the Moslem religious judge of Hebron, were deported in the aftermath of the May 2 terrorist killings of six yeshiva students in Hebron.

The recent court session focussed on the political beliefs of the three men, whether they favored the destruction of the State of Israel. State Attorney Gavriel Bach cited precedents to show that persons favoring the dismantling of the State cannot benefit from the remedies of its courts.

Bach produced an affidavit from a Military Government officer attesting that the three men had participated in a demonstration at the Jordan Bridge and shouted slogans such as "Israel is Nazi" and "the land will be redeemed with blood."

The lawyer for the appellants, Felicia Langer, claimed that while the three had been present at the demonstration marking Nablus Mayor Bassam Shak'a's return they had been silent and not shouted any slogans.

She argued that all the West Bank mayors and most of the inhabitants saw the Palestine Liberation Organization as their legitimate representative and thus it could not be expected of the three to dissociate themselves from the PLO. She asserted, though, that the three had said and written that they favored a peaceful solution.

A main issue in the case is whether the deportees were entitled to appeal before a special tribunal against their deportation before it was carried out. Bach, for the State, said earlier in the hearing that though the action of the military authorities in not permitting the appeal to be heard before the expulsion was "irregular" and therefore improper, it did not, in strictly legal terms, invalidate the legality of the deportation.

New Discovery Found To Aid Diabetics

TEL AVIV (JTA) — The ubiquitous soy bean has been found to have important medicinal value for diabetics, researchers of the Haifa Technion's medical faculty have reported. According to Dr. Yoram Kanter, a senior lecturer in medicine who heads the research team, a by-product of the soy bean, known as sobit, can reduce the sugar content of the blood and is otherwise helpful in diet control.

The product, already available to consumers here, does not replace insulin, Kanter stressed. But taken in small quantities it reduced the after-meals glucose response. Kanter described the research that led to the discovery of this property in soy bean fiber in a paper presented recently at the annual meeting of the American Diabetes Association in Washington.

The research extended over the last three years. Patients with soya extract added to their diets showed a smaller sugar concentration compared with those who were not given the soya.

Soviet Jewry On Agenda At Helsinki Review

LOS ANGELES (JTA) — Max Kampelman, the co-chairman of the Committee on Security and Cooperation in Europe, has promised that Soviet Jewry will be on the American delegation's agenda at the Madrid Conference in November where the Helsinki Accords will be reviewed. Kampelman, a Washington attorney who was recently appointed to his post by President Carter, told a regional meeting of the Committee at UCLA.

"We intend to emphasize human rights and we intend to name names. This means naming the names of countries that, in our opinion, have violated the Helsinki Accords. It also means naming the victims of Soviet oppression."

Former U.S. Attorney General Griffin Bell will chair the U.S. delegation to the Madrid meeting.

Signed by 35 nations, the Helsinki Accords rest on a number of principles including the inviolability of national borders, the sovereign equality of nations, free exchange of information, and the right of individuals to leave the countries of their births. Built into the Accords were a series of follow-up meetings to evaluate their implementation. The first was held in Belgrade, Yugoslavia in 1977.

The Los Angeles meeting was one of a series of regional conferences Kampelman is attending seeking input from various groups with interests in the Accords' implementation. It was attended by representatives of the Commission on Soviet Jewry of Jewish Federation Council's Community Relations Committee, the Women's Campaign for Soviet Jewry-35's, and the Concerned Lawyers Committee for Soviet Jewry.

Responding to questions from Honey Kessler Amado, chairwoman of the Commission on Soviet Jewry, and from Marshall Grossman, chairman of the Concerned Lawyers for Soviet Jewry, Kampelman stated that the delegation is aware of recent dramatic cutbacks in the number of Soviet Jews being given visas to leave the Soviet Union and of new restrictions placed on those applying for visas.

"I cannot answer to what extent this will be taken up, but that it will be taken up is very clear," he said. He stressed throughout the meeting that at this time, American policy at the Madrid Conference is just being formulated. Regional meetings are taking place in New York, Pittsburgh, Chicago, Detroit, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Philadelphia.

Also attending the meeting here were some 75 representatives of Latvian, Lithuanian, Estonian, Czechoslovakian, Hungarian, Russian and other ethnic groups as well as representatives of several Christian groups.

In addition to his post as Committee co-chairman, Kampelman is vice chairman of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith national executive committee and is chairman of the ADL's international affairs committee.
