Elaine Odessa To Receive Seminary National Community Award Nov. 22

Mrs. Benton Odessa will receive the Seminary National Community Award at the Award Dinner on Sunday, Nov. 22 at the Park Plaza Hotel in Boston, it was announced by Dr. Gerson D. Cohen, chancellor of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America. This coveted service award recognizes Elaine for her "devotion to Judaism and commitment to widening its influence for the good of all people."

Dr. Cohen will confer the award and will be the main speaker at this auspicious occasion. Mrs. Odessa is presently a patron of the Jewish Theological Seminary and has been designated to be a recipient of the National Community Service Award in recognition of her "exemplary leadership in endeavors to enrich the life of her community and Conservative Judaism."

Her late husband Benton and Mrs. Odessa have established the Elaine and Benton Odessa Scholarship Fund at the Seminary. They have also established an additional endowment fund at Temple Emanu-El, that provides the necessary funds for an Annual Cantorial Concert in memory of Benton Odessa.

Mrs. Odessa is a member of the Board of Trustees of Temple Emanu-El, Providence. She is a Past President of Temple Emanu-El Sisterhood, and a member of the Mother's Association of Temple Beth David-Anshei Kovno. She serves as presidential advisor to Temple Emanu-El Sisterhood.

A Past President of the Roger Williams Chapter B'nai B'rith Women, Mrs. Odessa is a member of the Board of Directors of the Women's Division Jewish Federation of Rhode Island. She is also affiliated with Hadassah, Miriam Hospital, Jewish Home for the Aged, Pioneer Women, National Conference of Jewish Women, Brandeis University and Yeshiva University of New England. Her other involvements include the Butler Hospital Women's Auxiliary.

Mrs. Odessa has three children: Eddie is the President of General Fabrics; Susan is a speech pathologist in cerebral palsy; and David is a freshman at the University of Hartford.

The dinner will be at 7 p.m., preceded by a reception at 6 p.m. The check ($35 per person), should be made payable to the Jewish Theological Seminary of America and sent to either Temple Emanu-El, Providence or to the Jewish Theological Seminary Office at 140 Boylston Street, Boston, Massachusetts 02116.

Transportation will be provided for all that request it. The buses will leave the Temple Emanu-El parking lot at 4:45 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 22. Please call the Temple office at 331-1616.

Hussein's Visit

U.S. Maintains It Restored Trust With Jordan

WASHINGTON (JTA) — While the Reagan Administration failed to convince King Hussein of Jordan to join the Camp David peace process, it maintained last week that it had restored the "confidence and relationship of trust" that has traditionally existed between the United States and Jordan.

A senior State Department official, in briefing newsmen about Hussein's four-day visit to Washington, noted that relations between the United States and Jordan had been "very cool" during the Carter Administration, although he did not mention that the reason was Jordan's opposition to the Camp David process. Hussein left for Los Angeles after a working lunch at Blair House with Secretary of State Alexander Haig.

The senior official said that during Hussein's talks with President Reagan and other members of the Administration, both confirmed support for the achievement of a Middle East peace based on United Nations Security Council Resolution 242. The official quickly added that 242 is also the basis for the Camp David talks which, he stressed, was the framework for the United States efforts to achieve peace in the Middle East.

Stresses U.S. Adherence To Camp David

The official maintained that the Camp David talks are the only method the United States is using to achieve peace in the Middle East. He refused to make any comment on the Administration position on the eight-point peace plan proposed by Prince Fahd of Saudi Arabia but suggested looking up previous Administration statements which said there were some positive elements in the Fahd plan but other points were ones to be negotiated. He said neither the Fahd plan nor the initiative proposed by the European Economic Community (EEC) were American plans.

"We have not been trying to do anything but to continue our commitment to Camp David," he said. The official disclosed that Jordan has agreed to buy an air defense system from the Soviet Union, reportedly SAM-6 missiles. He said that the United States is the major arms supplier for Jordan and that the purchase from Soviet Russia could "complicate" this ongoing supply relationship. But the official seemed to imply that the United States understood the need for Jordan to buy the air defense system from the Soviets.

He said also that although Hussein expressed concern about what he considered a threat from Israel, the U.S. believes Jordan's main worry is a threat from Syria.

Jordan turned to the Soviets because it wanted a mobile air defense system, the official said. The United States has only been willing to offer a stationary system to prevent its being used against Israel. The official said the U.S. considers the West Bank occupied territory. He noted that the Camp David agreements required that three years after the autonomy agreement goes into effect, negotiations will begin about the future status of the territory.

Beth-Sholom Hosts Synagogue Youth Candlelight Installation

The Providence Chapter Of N.C.S.Y., the National Conference of Synagogue youth, recently conducted a Candlelight Installation of its officers at Cong. Beth Sholom-Sons of Zion. Rabbi Jake S. Rubenstein installed the officers and Rabbi Robert Schwartz New England Region Director of N.C.S.Y. addressed the assembly. Michelle Marcus, outgoing president delivered a State of the Chapter Address and was then honored by the Chapter for dedicated service to N.C.S.Y.

The Providence Chapter, called "Yedid Nefesh" received the cherished "Chapter Development Award" at the National Convention of N.C.S.Y. and five awards at the last spring Regional Convention in New Haven, Connecticut.

The Chapter has already sponsored a Selihaton, a visit to the Jewish Home for the Aged, Sukkah hopping and a Roller Skating Party. This week they will conduct a Learnathon on Judaism, a Hayride & Campfire and a Game Tournament with the Brockton, Mass. chapter. In December, the chapter will host the Annual Winter Regional Shabbaton Convention.

Congressman Warns Of Disaster If Jews, Ethnic Groups Remain Silent

WASHINGTON (JTA) — Representative Benjamin Rosenthal (D. N.Y.) said last week that Jews and other American ethnic groups, by taking stands on foreign policy issues that concern them, create a national debate on these issues, many of them like the recent sale of AWACS and other military equipment to Saudi Arabia harmful to this country.

If the ethnic groups did not involve themselves in the issues, it would leave foreign policy to the arms industry, oil companies, the New York banks, which lend money to countries to buy arms and the foreign policy establishment within and outside the government, Rosenthal said.

"To do that would be a disaster for this country and the democratic institutions we all believe in," he told the monthly public affairs forum of B'nai B'rith International.

Rosenthal's talk was an attack on the article by Sen. Charles Mathias (R. Md.) in Foreign Affairs Quarterly last summer in which Mathias said, ethnic groups like Jews, Greeks and Irish Americans should not seek to influence foreign affairs. Instead, Mathias argued, only the President has the national constituency needed to take the national interests into consideration in developing foreign affairs.

"One does not have to be a part of the Greek or the Jewish, or the Irish lobbies, as some would call them, to take serious issue with any argument that deprives groups of Americans of a competency and natural right to debate and seek to influence their government," said Rosenthal, an 18 year veteran of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Jews Unfairly Accused Of Dual Loyalty

He said that Jews were charged with "dual loyalty" in the recent AWACS debate yet they were only supporting the policy they expected from President Reagan as a result of the stand he took during last year's Presidential campaign. Rosenthal said that in his nearly 20 years in Congress every President from Kennedy to Reagan had said during their campaign "what we want to hear about Israel." But he said that once they get into office they become "Presidential" and become a "captive" of the "national security apparatus" which he described as the State Department, the Defense Department and the intelligence community.

He said the AWACS deal was proposed because the Air Force wanted to cut the cost ratio of the plane and the Saudis are the only ones with the money to buy them. But he said, once the proposal was supported by the President, it became a test of the President's ability to conduct foreign affairs.

Rosenthal said the same thing happened to Greek Americans who saw Jimmy Carter as a candidate to support their stand against arms to Turkey and then reverse himself when he became President. But Rosenthal said that the Greek Americans were not subject to the same kind of

Shirley, Samuel Kestenman Reappointed Campaign Treasurers For Israel Bonds

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Kestenman have been reappointed campaign treasurers of the Rhode Island Israel Bond drive, it was jointly announced by Mr. and Mrs. Melvin S. Frank, general chairman of the Rhode Island Executive Committee for State of Israel Bonds.

In accepting the leadership posts, Mr. and Mrs. Kestenman announced that a cash collection telethon emanating from the Israel Bond office in Providence will be held Sunday morning, Nov. 22.

The Kestenmans urged those who have not yet paid cash for their Israel Bonds "to do so immediately."

"A commitment is only a sincere expression of concern for Israel," they said, "but it is no substitute for cash to help Israel meet the tremendous challenge of peace. Israel must go ahead with its economic development in the face of many pressures that confront it."

"The cash payment of outstanding Bond commitments will be a concrete and tangible expression of our unity with the people of Israel in their heroic efforts to achieve their cherished goal of peace and economic security," Mr. and Mrs. Kestenman emphasized.

They stated that checks made payable to the "State of Israel" should be sent to the Israel Bond office, 6 Braman St., Providence, 02906.

Samuel Kestenman has served as president of Temple Emanu-El's Men's Club and as a member of the board of directors of the Providence temple, and is currently vice president of the Jewish Family Service. He is also a member of the board of directors of the Manufacturing Jewelers and Silversmiths of America.

Shirley Kestenman is a member of the board of directors both of Temple Emanu-El and its sisterhood and has served as chairman of the Temple museum for the past five years. In addition, she is a director of the Miriam Hospital Women's Association and a board member of the Pawtucket Chapter of Hadassah.

Rubin Zeidman To Be Roasted At Beth Am Dinner Dec. 5

Rubin Zeidman of Warwick, a charter member of Temple Beth Am-Beth David and founder of Rhody Records, Inc., both of Warwick, will be "roasted to a turn" at a dinner in his honor Saturday, Dec. 5.

The dinner, organized by the Temple Beth Am-Beth David Men's Club, will be held at the Temple (40 Gardiner St.) and proceeds will go to the Temple's New Building Fund, a project in which Zeidman has been a driving force.

Zeidman, known to all his friends and business associates simply as Ruby, is a native of Quincy, MA, where his brother Morris still lives. He moved to R.I. in 1947 as manager of a store in Providence that sold appliances, greeting cards, toys and records. It was there that he developed his interest in the recording business. After serving in managerial and supervisory capacities with Beacon Records and ABC Records for 18 years, he founded Rhody Records which now serves as a record and tape distributor for stores throughout New England and as far west as Minnesota.

Ruby is a member of the Masonic Overseas Lodge, No. 40, Scottish Rite of the Valley of Providence, and the Knights of Pythias, Simcha Santha.

But his main concern is Temple Beth Am-Beth David. Ruby is a charter member and has been a behind the scenes force in the growth and development of the congregation.

Ruby calls himself a "traveling Minyonaire." Every morning he makes the rounds of several homes in the area picking up men to assure the morning Minyon — the 10 men required for the services. He does the same every evening. Through his efforts the Temple has not missed a daily service in years and, more importantly, men who otherwise might not have been able to attend services, now can.

Ruby is chairman of the Temple's House Committee and a member of the Board of Directors and the Ritual Committee.

He established the Eunice Zeidman Memorial Fund at the Temple named in memory of his wife who passed away several years ago. The fund helps support extra activities for the Religious School students. Each year Ruby sponsors an outing for his friends and associates in the record business and all donations go to the fund.

RUBIN ZEIDMAN

When the Temple undertook the current expansion program, which includes construction of a new sanctuary, Ruby was among the first contributors and has been instrumental in its success to date.

The roasters at the Dec. 5 dinner will include members of the Temple and some of Ruby's friends in the recording business, all of whom said they were anxious to have their shots at Ruby.

The roast is open to the public and tickets are available by calling Max Dressler (781-1375).

Reservations should be made as early as possible.

Donations to the Building Fund in Ruby's honor also will be accepted.

Zeidman also is a member of the Hope Lodge of B'nai B'rith and the Jewish War Veterans.

In addition to his brother Morris in Quincy, Zeidman's sisters, Mrs. Ruth Greenspan and Mrs. Shirley Rovner, are residents of Randolph, Ma., and his son Arthur is a resident of Jackson, Miss.

Foreign Secretary's Visit To Saudi Arabia Broadens Basis Of Peace Talks

LONDON (JTA) — Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington, returned home last week after a two day visit to Saudi Arabia in which he tried to broaden the basis of Middle East peace negotiations by involving Arab countries which oppose the Israeli-Egyptian peace agreement.

Before he left Saudi Arabia, both he and his hosts claimed that important progress had been made. Prince Saud Bin Faisal, the Saudi Foreign Minister, said that his country would ask this month's Arab League summit meeting to back the eight-point peace plan elaborated by Crown Prince Fahd.

The next stage, he told journalists in Riyadh would be to obtain a resolution of the Security Council involving the Palestine Liberation Organization in the peace process followed by an international conference under the Security Council's auspices. Since the Soviet Union is a permanent member of the Council, this, like the long moribund Geneva conference would bring the Russians back into the Middle East peace negotiations.

Carrington, who went to Riyadh in his capacity as president of the Council of Ministers of the ten European Economic Community (EEC) countries, also claimed that the visit was a success. He went to Saudi Arabia claiming that the Saudi peace plan contains an implicit offer to recognize Israel if the West Bank was turned into a Palestinian state ruled from East Jerusalem.

While not necessarily supporting all the Saudi conditions, Carrington regards the proposals as worth exploring. As Britain is a member of the Security Council, it is to be assumed that he endorsed Prince Fahd's scenario for organizing a UN conference.

In the short run, however, Carrington's visit appears to have emphasized rather than minimized the difficulties of broadening the peace negotiations. Far from reconciling the Saudi Arabian peace plan with the Camp David Israeli-Egyptian peace agreement, the Carrington visit has highlighted their incompatibility, since Premier Menachem Begin regards the Saudi plan as a formula for Israel's liquidation.

Egyptian Minister Welcomes European Participation In MFO

PARIS (JTA) — Egyptian Minister of State for Foreign Affairs Boutros Ghali welcomed "West European participation" in the Multi-national Force and Observers (MFO) which will patrol Sinai after Israel's withdrawal next April.

Ghali, who met earlier with President Francois Mitterrand, said such a participation "is symbolic" of European support for the current peace process. France, Britain, Italy and Holland have said they will provide troops and logistical support for the 2,500 man force.

The Egyptian Minister, who attended a 30-nation Franco-African summit conference here brought Mitterrand a personal message from Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak. Ghali conferred with Mitterrand for 30 minutes. He also met with Foreign Minister Claude Cheysson. It is believed he renewed the late President Anwar Sadat's invitation for Mitterrand to pay a state visit to Egypt next year.

No Change Without Israel's Agreement

Ghali told reporters in reply to questions about the Saudi Arabia eight-point peace plan presented last summer by Crown Prince Fahd, "We never pretended to have a monopoly for a peaceful solution. We have no objections to other initiatives. But," he stressed "there can be no alternative (to the Camp David process) without Israel's agreement."

Ghali said he did not discuss the Fahd peace plan, which Israel has flatly rejected, with Mitterrand. The French President said last month that France "sees certain positive items" in the Saudi proposal. Other West European countries, such as Britain and Italy, have expressed support for the Saudi plan while continuing to back the Camp David agreements.

Israel Will Reject MFO Nations Which Do Not Affirm Camp David As Basis

JERUSALEM (JTA) — Premier Menachem Begin and Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir have warned in separate statements that any European nation that agrees to participate in the Multinational Force and Observers (MFO) for Sinai without affirming that it is doing so within the framework of the Camp David agreements and the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty will not be acceptable to Israel.

"We warn London and other capitals well in advance that they should not talk about the Venice declaration (of the European Economic Community in June, 1980) or any other declarations, Begin said. "The Multinational Force is being established to ensure Israel's security under the Israel-Egypt peace treaty and the Camp David accords. We shall not agree to any contingent taking part unless this camp David commitment is clearly understood," he said.

Begin spoke at a mass gathering in Eilat marking the opening of that resort town's winter tourist season. Shamir, addressing the Knesset last week, insisted that the MFO which is to patrol Sinai after Israel completes its withdrawal next April, must be "solely on the basis of the Israel-Egypt-U.S. agreement within the framework of Camp David." He said that countries which wanted to join the MFO but made announcements deviating from that basis would be "disqualified."

EEC May Endorse Fahd Plan

Foreign Ministry officials were reluctant to say that under Shamir's criteria Britain would be "disqualified." British Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington who visited Saudi Arabia last week, has repeatedly said for the record that British participation in the MFO would be "not associated with Camp David."

Carrington in fact was quoted as repeating that statement in Riyadh, after Shamir's warning in the Knesset. A Foreign Ministry spokesman here said that "If and when Britain officially announces its participation (in the MFO) Israel will then examine" the terms of its participation.

Observers here said Shamir's warning was intended mainly to head off — or moderate — an evolving EEC statement on the Middle East which the European Common Market nations plan to issue simultaneously with the announcement that several member states would participate in the Sinai force Britain, France, Holland and Italy are expected to be the European participants.

It is expected here that the EEC statement will re-endorse the Venice declaration and possibly support Saudi Arabia's eight-point peace plan. The Knesset this week categorically rejected both. According to Israeli officials, Shamir wants to make it clear that Israel would not accept EEC participation in the Force with "strings attached."

Supreme Court Upholds Closing Of University

JERUSALEM (JTA) — The Supreme Court last week upheld a Defense Ministry order shutting down Bir Zeit University near Ramallah on the West Bank which the Israeli authorities say is a hotbed of Palestinian nationalist activity. The institution was closed after two days of disturbances on the campus and faculty and students were ordered to leave the premises immediately.

The high court's ruling rejected an appeal by the university against the closure. However, the justices advised the Defense Ministry that it must state just how long Bir Zeit is to remain closed. The court implied thereby that if the period is too long it would be prepared to hear another appeal.

Defense Ministry sources said today that strong measures had to be taken against the university and indicated that it would be closed for a long time. It was shut down for several months last year following similar campus unrest and was allowed to reopen only after the university authorities committed themselves to prevent student demonstrations.

Gaby Baramky, vice president of the university charged today that his institution was being made a scapegoat, noting that demonstrations had occurred at other schools which remained open.

Ultra-Orthodox Are Not Sole Voice In Community

EDITOR:

Most Jewish-English publications are now full time 'Forums' for the Ultra-Orthodox, who represent a mere 5 percent, at most, of the American Jewish people, but continue to espouse their doctrines on what 'Real Jewishness' should be. I therefore beg you and hope you would not deny me a bit of space to answer a 'Most aggravating' 'Thought For The Week' article by the distinguished Rabbi Laufer in your October 29 issue. We should expect from these articles at least true text, when stories or happenings are cited from the Bible. In the above article not one sentence, quoting our Holy book could be found there, in his attempt to warn against assimilation.

In citing the happening of Abraham exiling his oldest son Ishmael, with his mother Hagar, from his presence into the desert, with just a day's supply of bread and water, he supposedly tells the story in chapter XXI of Breishis (Genesis) where it is only mentioned.

Dear Rabbi, without giving my own opinions on the story, I hardly think anyone, in this age would call a father sending his son and mother to starve in the desert the Epitome of Kindness. Let us cite the real text of this story from chapter XXI of Breishis, as follows: "And the child grew and he was weaned and Abraham made a Big Feast, the day of Isaac's weaning. And Sarah saw Ishmael the son of Hagar, the Egyptian, whom she had born unto Abraham, mocking. So Sarah turned to Abraham and said: 'drive out this Bond-Woman and her son, for he shall not share inheritance with my son, with Isaac. And it saddened Abraham, in his eyes, to hear these words regarding his son. And God said unto Abraham: let not thine eyes fret you, for in Isaac shall your seed be called, so listen to her demand. And also the son of your Bond-Woman I will make into a great nation, for he is also of thy seed. And Abraham got up early in the morning and took bread and a bottle of water and gave unto Hagar, putting it unto her shoulder and the child and he sent her away. And she departed and wandered astray in the wilderness of Beer Sheva. And the Water was spent from the bottle and she cast her child under one of the shrubs, etc.

Our scribes certainly pulled a boner here, for how a woman cast her 15 year old boy into shrubs, as he recorded it is quite a puzzle, but that again is another matter. As little as I want to comment on the dangerous influence this boy Ishmael, brought up in a male and Patriarchal society could exert on a one-year old, just weaned from his mother's breast, I leave to the readers to fathom. I will say however that the reverend writer of "Thought for the Week," to try to bring out a point against assimilation resorted to either Agadtas (legends in the Mishna) or his own imaginations.

It should be noted, however, that the so-called assimilated Jews donate almost to the breaking point of their earnings to run, support and advance Jewish culture of synagogues, community centers, Hebrew Free Loans, Homes for the Aged, Jewish hospitals and many more too numerous to cite here.

These so called assimilators produced an Einstein, Hertzl (the first Jew to influence our youth to recolonize and till the soil of Israel), Max Nordau, Chaim Weitzman, Ben Gurion, Moshe Dayan, Zamenhoff (the creator of Esperanto) and the list is very long to mention here.

In truth 'Assimilation' is multi-faceted; I believe it was our great sage Moses — Mendelsohn, our 18th century German-Jewish philosopher who told us Jews: "go to the secular schools (if you can get in) and learn from the Goyim." That is exactly what most Jewish people have and are doing, learning from all peoples. We have also contributed to World knowledge and brought out many (more even than the average) who are a constant credit to the Jewish nation.

Our young generation of Jews, here and all over the World are operating great businesses, participate in exploration of the Universe, send satellites to explore planets, moons and suns and operate computers to direct them, millions of miles from Earth to send photographs of these space bodies.

Most of our generation today, in high schools or colleges, are familiar with most of the stories in our Bible. In my opinion it is a disservice to tell them (if they happen to be your audience) unproven and contrary Bible version stories to prove your point of dangerous assimilation. With some very impressionable Jewish Youth, such unproven citations (supposedly from the Bible) could really turn them off, confuse them to the point of becoming easy prey for some outlandish Cult; a lot of them are in such now.

It is time we use compassion, not to confuse our present and future generations of Jewish youth by sticking only to truthful text in our great heritage and not try to influence them negatively. May we hope that all future writings in our Jewish Press will reveal only true text from our books and not based on Agadtas, (legend) or mental speculation, so that they may be a credit to our people.

Blum Says Saudi Peace Plan Is Attempt To Dismember State Of Israel

UNITED NATIONS (JTA) — Israel's Ambassador to the United Nations Yehuda Blum sharply attacked Saudi Arabia's eight-point peace plan last week, charging that the plan "instead of supporting direct peace negotiations among the parties, attempts to impose upon them its own dictates."

Appearing before students at Brandeis University, near Boston, the Israeli envoy charged that the Saudi plan, which calls for total Israeli withdrawal from the territories occupied in 1967, including East Jerusalem, and the establishment of an independent Palestinian state with Jerusalem as its capital, "is nothing but an attempt to dismember the State of Israel in stages."

Referring to the part of the program which affirms the right of all the countries of the region to live in peace, Blum pointed out that the Secretary general of the Arab League, Shelly al-Kliby and Crown Prince Fahd of Saudi Arabia, who presented the eight-point peace plan last August, have already stated openly that this does not imply the recognition of Israel.

"When Arab rejectionist states refer to 'countries of the region' they do not include the State of Israel in the definition of the term countries, since Israel in their view, is 'a deformed entity'," Blum said.

Continuing, the Israeli Ambassador said, "Saudi Arabia has interfered with the peace process since its inception. Saudi Arabia continues to call for a holy war, or Jihad, against Israel and supports and finances the PLO, acting as its international agent. The sole purpose of the so called peace plan," Blum declared, "is to undermine the Camp David accords and Security Council Resolution 242."

Administration Renews Pledge To Stand By Camp David

JERUSALEM (JTA) — The Reagan Administration has pledged to stand by the Camp David accords as the only way to achieve a political settlement in the Middle East. A message to that effect and a commitment to honor all points agreed upon during Premier Menachem Begin's visit to Washington in September was received last week from Secretary of State Alexander Haig.

The message, delivered to Begin by the U.S. Charge d'Affaires, William Brown, further eased the strains that developed in U.S.-Israeli relations during the past week over the Senate's approval of the sale of AWACS reconnaissance aircraft and other advanced weaponry to Saudi Arabia and remarks by President Reagan and Haig indicating that the U.S. considered certain parts of Saudi Arabia's eight-point peace plan encouraging.

Begin was reportedly gratified by the American clarification. Political circles here said that there is now a better understanding of Israel's position by the U.S. That position, conveyed in Washington in recent days, was that Israel might reconsider certain steps in her participation in further Mideast peace moves if the U.S. deviated from the Camp David agreements and adopted plans such as the Saudi eight points which Israel vehemently rejected.

U.S., Israel Back On Course

Adding to the feeling here that the U.S. and Israel are once more on a common course was Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger's invitation to Defense Minister Ariel Sharon to visit Washington at the end of this month to discuss strategic cooperation between Israel and the U.S. Begin announced in the Knesset last week that Weinberger's invitation was received Sunday.

It was seen as part of the Reagan Administration's efforts to ease Israel's anxiety over the AWACS deal and the Saudi peace plan. U.S. Ambassador Samuel Lewis met with Sharon Sunday. Sources on both sides indicated that their talks were considerably more cordial than the tone of Sharon's public criticisms of the U.S. in recent days.

A more moderate tone toward Washington was also evident in Begin's Knesset speech, winding up two days of debate on the AWACS sale and the peace plan of Saudi Crown Prince Fahd. He spoke of "cooperation, friendship and even an unwritten alliance (with the U.S.) which is sometimes more efficacious than a signed pact."

The Knesset, as expected, adopted a resolution "utterly rejecting" the Saudi peace plan and the European Economic Community (EEC) peace initiatives, and reaffirmed that Jerusalem is the indivisible capital of Israel.

Shimon Peres and other leaders of the opposition Labor Party sought specific pledges from the government to conclude the autonomy talks with Egypt and the U.S. by next April, when Israel must complete its withdrawal from Sinai, and to invite the Saudis to enter peace talks with Israel "without pre-conditions."

Israel's Flights Over Lebanon Continue

Although Labor and Likud, in behind the scenes negotiations, failed to reach agreement on a joint Knesset resolution, Labor Party leader Shimon Peres agreed that his faction would abstain rather than vote against the Knesset resolution of confidence in the government's policies. Mapam members of the Labor Alignment and Labor MK Yossi Sarid bucked party discipline and voted against the government, as did Shulamit Aloni of the Civil Rights Movement.

Welfare Minister Must Face Trial

JERUSALEM (JTA) — The Supreme Court ruled last week that Welfare Minister Aharon Abu-Hatzeira can be brought to trial without prior action by the present Knesset to strip him of immunity as a Knesset member. A five justice panel decided 4-1 to reject Abu-Hatzeira's argument that his re-election to the Knesset last June 30 restored his immune status which had been lifted by the previous Knesset.

The minister, who heads the Tami faction, a partner in Premier Menachem Begin's coalition government, is charged with embezzlement and theft in connection with his administration of a charitable fund when he served as Mayor of Ramle in 1976-77.

His trial, interrupted pending the outcome of his appeal, will resume in Tel Aviv district court on November 20 with Judge Victoria Ostrovsky-Cohen presiding.

Letters TO THE EDITOR

Jewish Liberal Weeping Willows

EDITOR:

I cannot understand all the tears now being shed by politically Liberal Jews in the American Jewish community. When Gentile America voted for AWACS, through its Senate, the Gentiles were glorifying Torah! The Torah states that we Jews are a light unto the nations; the Gentiles were merely following our example.

For the last few years, the Gentiles saw us put all our faith in the "darling" of political liberals, the "moderate" Anwar Sadat. At the same time, most American Jewish leaders (except nationalists and Orthodox) spewed forth hatred of the "terrorist Jewish radical," Menachem Begin. Also, Begin was "too" Jewish!!!

Len Fein, one of the Liberals who has insulted Begin and Israel, before the whole world, is now invited to speak before federations.

So what is so wrong with what the Gentile world has done. They've learned from us!!! The King of Arabia is there "darling moderate" and begin is the target of their abuse. The Jews gave Sadat Sinai oil, an air base and a collection of settlements, also in Sinai. The Gentiles wanted to duplicate the Mitzvah of giving Tzedakah to the Arabs and gave AWACS.

The liberals have dug their own grave!!!

It is now reported that the new president of Egypt believes that the Saudi plan should become the natural second part of the Camp David agreement. Meir Kahane warned the Jewish liberals that Sadat had an ace up his sleeve (that the Arab leaders knew Sadat would eventually turn on the Jews and they merely attacked Sadat for home consumption).

The new Egyptian president can thank the liberal American Jews, when, at a future date, he declares a Holy War on Israel. He knows all about Israeli defense because his ally, the Saudis, will have the AWACS.

700 New Yorkers Protest Terrorism Against Jews In Western Europe

NEW YORK (JTA) — Public officials, religious leaders and members of the diplomatic corps joined over 700 other New Yorkers at a memorial gathering at the Fifth Avenue Synagogue in Manhattan last week to protest acts of terrorism against Jewish communities in Western Europe.

Sponsored by the Jewish Community Relations Council (JCRC) of New York and its 30 member agencies, the program memorialized the victims of the October 20th synagogue bombing in Antwerp, as well as those maimed and killed in a series of attacks on Jewish communal institutions in Paris, Vienna, Antwerp, Rome and other cities over the past 12 months.

JCRC President Laurence Tisch, who presided at the gathering, called for "a reawakening of conscience by decent people the world over that may result in sterner government action by our own country and by the international community against those who have displayed so little regard for human life and the fabric of our civilization."

Silence Contributes To Terrorism

Howard Squadron, chairman of the Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organizations deplored the fact that anti-Semitism "is no longer unfashionable, as we discovered in the long AWACS fight. When the UN adopts anti-Zionist resolutions and Europe and the third world stands silently by," Squadron said, "we know they are talking about us and contributing to an atmosphere that allows synagogues to be attacked. Every threat to Israel threatens Jews everywhere. We must therefore give the world the message that there is no distinction — being Jewish is being Zionist and supporting and defending Israel, and the world will just have to live with that," he said.

N.Y. State Attorney General Robert Abrams called the Antwerp bombing "another blow at humanity that is part of an upsurge of anti-Semitism and anti-Jewish violence in many parts of the world, including here in the United States." New York City Council President Carol Bellamy cited the hate mail received by many Senators prior to the AWACS vote as indicative of the "anti-Semitism that still exists just beneath the surface of American life. In Antwerp two weeks ago," she said, "we saw old demons in new clothing. We must assure that our collective voice is heard — be it a bombing in Antwerp or vandalism in Brooklyn — because silence and inaction can only be interpreted as tolerance," she said. City Comptroller Harrison Goldin called the day's gathering a way to tell the world that Americans see terrorism as an affront to civilization.

Rep. Charles Rangel (D-L-R-N.Y.) called on New Yorkers "to continue to hold hands and see to it that hatred and intolerance do not become contagious."

Ganizah Service To Be Held At Sugarman's

A Ganizah Service will be held at the Max Sugarman Memorial Chapel, 458 Hope Street, Providence, on Sunday, Nov. 15 at 9 a.m.

This service, held in conjunction with Temple Beth Shalom-Sons of Zion and the Providence Hebrew Day School, is to commemorate Kristall Nacht, the night the Nazis broke in the windows in Jewish shops and burned Jewish books. It is also being held to honor Jewish Book Month. It is the fervent hope of all involved to instill in Jewish youth the respect with which books and religious articles are treated.

The Ganizah Service is open to any member of the community. For further information, please contact Rabbi Jake Rubenstein, Rabbi Sholom Strajcher of the Providence Hebrew Day School, or Larry Borabeck at Max Sugarman Memorial Chapel.

Gayle Friedman/Dr. Furman

MRS. RONALD FURMAN

Gayle Ann Friedman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Friedman, of 35 Gillooly Dr., Warwick, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Tarsky of Warwick and Mr. and Mrs. David Friedman of Providence, was married to Dr. Ronald Owen Furman, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Furman, of 45 Mason Ave., Cranston, on Sunday, Nov. 8. The 6:30 p.m. ceremony took place at Temple Emanu-El, Providence, with the Rabbi Wayne Franklin officiating.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an elegantly styled sheer candlelight gown with a high neckline and long tapered sleeves. The sleeves and fitted bodice, with a buttoned back, were fashioned with elaborate patterns of pearl beaded appliques of Venice lace on petit point English netting. The skirt and chapel train of silk organza featured a front scalloped insert of netting bordered with matching beaded lace. Her headpiece was a Camelot crown of Venice lace with a lace edged finger-tip veil of silk illusion. She carried a cascade design of 25 white roses mixed with baby's breath, surrounded by lace.

Her sister, Rhonda M. Friedman was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Sheryl H. Furman, Linda D. Palazzo, Hope R. Kulman and Ilene D. Somin. They wore dusky rose full length gowns which were fashioned with empire waists and accoridian pleated skirts. They wore rubrum lilies in their hair and carried colonial bouquets of rubrum lilies, mauve poms, and orchid carnations surrounded by lace.

Stuart Shapiro was best man. Ushers were Jay R. Weiser, David S. Weiser, Dr. Scott Surdut and Dr. Marc Weinberg.

The groom is an optometrist practicing in Seekonk, Ma. The bride is a language speech therapist practicing at the Ladd Center, Exeter.

After a wedding trip to Nassau, Bahamas, the couple will live in Warwick.

Covinsky Weds Schachter

MRS. DAVID SCHACHTER

Hope Beth Covinsky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin D. Covinsky of 107 Oak Hill Avenue, Pawtucket, married David Allen Schachter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Schachter of 129 Hazard Avenue, Providence on Oct. 25. Rabbi Wayne Franklin and Cantor Ivan Perlman officiated at the 6:30 p.m. ceremony, which took place at Temple Emanu-El, Providence. A reception followed at the temple.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a white chiffon gown featuring a Victorian neckline, bishop sleeves, and a fitted bodice, embellished with Venice lace and embroidered Schiffler lace. The skirt of the A-line gown, trimmed at the hemline with Chantilli lace, flowed into a long Watou train trimmed with Chantilli lace. A matching derby hat with Veiling completed the ensemble. The bride carried a cascade bouquet consisting of white roses, stephanotis, baby's breath and white lacy poms accented with variegated English ivy.

Attending the bride were her sisters, Robin Ann Porter as Matron of Honor and Debra Lynn Covinsky as Maid of Honor. Bridesmaids were Carolyn Schachter, sister of the groom, Patricia Greenberg and Karin Schrott.

Bernard Schachter served as best man to his brother. Ushers were Stephen Schachter, another brother of the groom, Russell Porter, Steven Waldman and David Goldstein.

The bride's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Louis Covinsky of Cranston and the late Flora and Harry Shatz. The groom's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Schachter of Chicago, Ill., Miriam Samuels of Pawtucket, and the late Bernard Samuels.

Hope is a graduate of the University of Rhode Island and is employed by Northwestern Mutual Insurance Company of Providence. David attended Dean Jr. College and the University of Rhode Island. He is associated with Metallurgical Services of Pawtucket.

After a wedding trip to Bermuda, the couple will reside in Pawtucket.

Jerusalem's New-Old Amphitheatre

by Art Leroy

Jerusalem has a new open-air concert hall and like most everything in the city it is laden with history. The site has been known as the Sultan's Pool since the 16th century, but even then it was an ancient site. It was King Herod the Great who, in the 1st century, closed off this section of the valley outside the city walls as a reservoir for water he brought from 20 miles away by aqueduct.

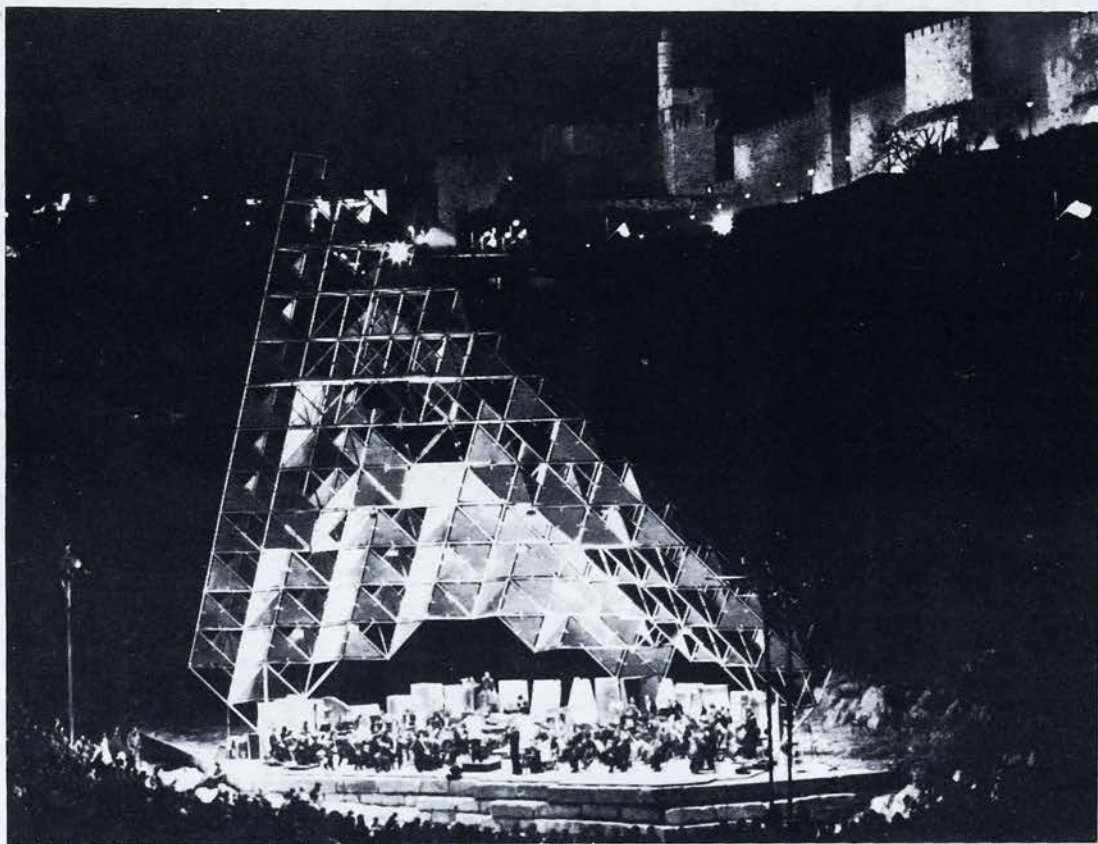

Despite this water past, concert-goers at the Merrill Hassenfeld Amphitheatre (the new name of the site) are dry, if not high, as they sit in the valley between the Old City's ramparts and the red-roofed houses of the romantic Yemin Moshe neighborhood, the first quarter built outside the walls in the nineteenth century.

The idea of a new use for the old pool was conceived by Jerusalem's mayor, Teddy Kollek. Although concerts and performances had been taking place in the amphitheatre for several summers, the technical arrangements were completed only recently. Except for a striking acoustic shell, these arrangements have been tucked away out of sight. Backstage here is "Below Stage." Dressing rooms plus sound and lighting systems having been camouflaged by a grass-covered natural stone structure that serves as stage. The audience sits on the lawn or on natural stone ledges that are a part of the National park skirting the city walls.

The acoustic shell is a modular sculpture, an airy pyramidal shape providing an interesting counterpoint to the dominating mass of the Old City's wall. At the end of each season it is disassembled and stored.

The Valley of Hinnom, of which the Sultan's Pool is a part, used to be a site where, in pre-monotheistic Israel, children were sacrificed to Moloch. Hinnom has been carried into English as "Gehenna." The new amphitheatre is another in the string of cultural and artistic facilities which bejewel this valley — joining the Khan

Return to Poland: Struggle For Survival

Marian Marzynski's film journey back to Poland, after a 12-year absence — a journey he shares in "Return to Poland," will air Wednesday, Nov. 18, 9 p.m., on WSBE-TV/36.

"Return to Poland" is the second in a series of seven WORLD special documentaries being presented during the fifth season of the acclaimed television series.

In the late 1960s, Marzynski was a television personality and journalist in Poland. He is now a professor of media communications at Governors State University, Illinois, and an independent filmmaker.

Marzynski is a survivor.

His personal story illuminates and brings into focus the larger story of Poland's struggle for political identity which has captured the world's attention.

As a child, Marzynski escaped from the Warsaw ghetto and certain death, with the help of Catholic priests and nuns. As an adult, he struggled for personal and artistic freedom. He left Poland in 1969, in protest against a government-inspired campaign of anti-semitism.

In the spring of 1981, 12 years after he emigrated, Marzynski was allowed to return to Poland. His film, "Return to Poland," is a chronicle of that homecoming.

What Marzynski found, in May of this year, was a country at the turning point of its history — struggling for new freedom and self-expression. The Solidarity movement, coupled with the strong spiritual influence of the Catholic Church, has unleashed a new spirit throughout the country.

"I saw an immense awakening of a nation," Marzynski says. "I saw the bankrupt political system near its collapse. I believe the crack is just a matter of time."

In his film, Marzynski provides glimpses into the lives of Poles who are thinking, arguing, and talking about their future. With them, he reflects on the meaning and effect of past events in the current political turmoil. With relatives, friends, co-workers and people who sheltered him from the Nazis, he reveals a Poland we rarely see.

FILMMAKER AND JOURNALIST Marian Marzynski tells a poignant personal story of a survival on "Return to Poland," a one-hour WORLD special, airing Wednesday, Nov. 18 at 9 p.m. on WSBE-TV/36. Marzynski's struggle for identity and survival reflect the plight of a troubled nation.

The question of survival becomes less political and more personal, yet it springs from strong common currents in recent Polish history — the war against the Germans, the role of the church in the survival of the nation, and the future of the Communist Party.

"Return to Poland" reveals a country in search of itself; a country determined to survive.

Crafts Exhibit And Sale Arrives For 6th Season

by Marilyn S. Perti

Tom Erskine and Lola Swartz sit in the bright lobby of the Jewish Community Center. Their enthusiasm is evident as they speak of the upcoming annual Crafts Exhibit and Sale, to be held at the center on Sunday, Nov. 15, with a Preview Gala, complete with champagne, on Saturday evening, Nov. 14.

Now only days away, the event took a year in the planning, with many dedicated people volunteering their time and service to make it a success. It is the center's major fund-raiser of the year.

Tom Erskine, Chairman of the Craft Search Committee, along with his wife, Pam, mailed out invitations last spring to craftspeople throughout New England, and received over 50 responses. It was a tedious process to coordinate the search and select craftspeople.

Tom speaks excitedly of the interesting and talented craftspeople that were chosen, mentioning with pride, the special care that was taken in the choosing, to maintain a high standard of quality.

Two-thirds of the craftspeople are new exhibitors; one-third repeats from previous years, adding a nice blend of new and familiar, and certainly a lot of diversity.

While he's talking, three of the local craftspeople stop by to discuss last minute arrangements — Anita and Roger Noble, with their wonderful, hand-crafted musical instruments, and Jan Yager, a Metalsmith, who designs and creates some fascinating and unique jewelry. Nervous energy fills the air, as all are obviously caught up in the excitement of the event.

Lola Swartz, Assistant Executive Director of the Center, smiles as she recalls how the idea of a crafts fair was born. Six years ago a group of interested and committed people got together at the center and had a brainstorming session, trying to come up with something that would not only benefit the center, but the people as well. The crafts exhibit and sale became a reality.

Hope Hirsch, along with Lola, were the prime innovators.

Lola admits that the first fair was experimental — a real learning experience. "We feel year by year we have heightened the quality and are especially proud this year. It is truly something that enhances the cultural atmosphere of the center."

Besides the center's population, the general population as well has shown quite an interest in the annual event. It has really become a state-wide affair, and many people wait for the fair to do their holiday shopping.

Lola says proudly, "In these critical times, when human agencies are feeling the economic crunch, it is important to generate as much interest as possible and yet be able to give the public something in return. We have certainly done that with this event."

'A Show Of Hands' — It's Almost Here

"A Show of Hands," the sixth annual Crafts Exhibit and Sale, will be held at the Jewish Community Center, 401 Elmgrove Ave., Providence, on Sunday, Nov. 15, from 10 a.m.-6 p.m.

A special Preview Gala will be held on Saturday evening, Nov. 14, at 8 p.m., at which time those attending will be able to view and purchase crafts at leisure while enjoying champagne and desserts. In addition, a silent auction will be held, with a variety of very valuable and attractive items being offered; none of which will compete with the crafts being sold.

Sponsored by Friends of the Jewish Community Center, "A Show of Hands" is an invitational juried show judged by members of the Providence Community of the Arts. Three top cash prizes of $100 will be awarded the winners.

Craftspeople from throughout New England and several other states will exhibit and sell interesting and diversified crafts of the finest quality, such as: ceramics, wooden objects, jewelry, enamel, woven goods, leather works, stoneware, glass and stained glass, furniture, batiks, pewter, fiber arts, decorative masks, musical instruments, Ukrainian Easter Eggs, teddy bears and other items for children.

On Sunday, a Cafe in the gallery, staffed entirely by volunteers, will offer an interesting and modestly priced menu, and an opportunity to relax and enjoy. In addition to the cafe, light snacks will also be available.

There will also be a bake sale, with some of Providence's best bakers donating their goods.

While parents visit the show, they can shop in leisure, while their children, free of charge, are in a supervised setting, watching films or participating in crafts projects with experienced volunteers.

People working on the committee for the Crafts Fair, the JCC's biggest fund-raiser of the year include: Lola Swartz, Assistant Executive Director; Abby Aisenberg, Publicity; Ruth Baron, Silent Auction; Pam and Tom Erskine, Crafts Search; Renee Kahn, Interior Design; Liz Kaplan, Bake Sale; Roberta Lasser, Gala; Honey Schwartz, Publicity and Gala; Carol Silver, Chairperson.

Congressman Warns Of Disaster

"vitriolic attack" as were Jews during the last few weeks.

Rosenthal said that Mathias, while ruling out a role for ethnics in foreign policy did not say anything about the major corporations who lobby for their views. He said the role of Mobil in the AWACS sale was not mentioned nor did the oil company in its numerous newspaper advertisements mention it was the purchasing agent for the Saudis.

Kennedy Stressed Issue In Earlier Speech

Also not mentioned he said, was the role of such companies as Bechtel, the San Francisco engineering corporation, which does millions of dollars of construction work in Saudi Arabia and for whom Caspar Weinberger was a Vice President before becoming Secretary of Defense.

Meanwhile in Boston, Sen. Edward Kennedy (D. Mass.) made some of the same points in a speech there. "I reject absolutely the unworthy appeals which in effect question the patriotism of Jewish Americans," he told the New England

Chapter of the American Associates of the Ben Gurion University of the Negev.

"The Administration complains that Jewish Americans were vigorously expressing their views. But where were the Administration's complaints about the corporations that lobbied hard for AWACS because of the business it would bring? Now why were there no complaints about Saudi Princes gliding through the halls of Congress?"

Kennedy stressed that "support for Israel is not an act of charity; it is a matter of national security." He said "Israel has no need of fairweather friends," a reference to Senators who at the last moment switched their vote to support the AWACS sale. "Neither Israel nor the United States will be served by politicians who profess one thing and do another," Kennedy said. "And none of us can rely on conservatives proclaiming a biblical allegiance to Israel who can then be turned around in a single White House meeting."

Successful Investing

Ordinary People

by David R. Sargent

Q — I have heard a lot about the money market funds, and I wonder about possibly putting my retirement savings in one. Are these funds safe enough for us ordinary people? — H.B., Kansas.

A — Yes, the money market funds are "safe" — at least as much as anything in this mortal world is safe — and they are particularly attractive for "ordinary people." After all, they were created to bring the market interest rates within reach of the average investor. Back in 1972, $100,000 was required to purchase a high-yielding bank Certificate of Deposit. Now you can get the high rates for $1,000 by buying shares in a money market mutual fund. The money funds invest in CD's, commercial paper, U.S. Treasury bills and other money market instruments. These instruments, or "cash equivalents" as they are also called, are very short term, and the funds are well diversified among them. These two factors ensure the safety of your investment.

Current money market fund yields are around 17 percent. Even if the rates drop to 15 percent of the next few months, the funds remain an attractive income-and-safety investment for the retiree, and a convenient temporary parking place for idle cash by the longer-term growth-oriented investor. I would recommend the following two funds with minimum initial investment requirements of $1,000: Fidelity Cash Reserves (82 Devonshire St., Boston, MA 02109), and the Reserve Fund (810 Seventh Ave., New York, NY 10010).

Q — Where in the dickens does one find the address of any or all mutual funds? My impression is that few of them advertise, and aside from periodic listings in your column and others, I just don't see that many addresses. Do you know of a directory? — R.B., Michigan.

A — The William E. Donaghy "Mutual Funds Almanac" is a complete and inexpensive source of information on mutual funds. It includes a directory and 10-year performance statistics on more than 600 funds. I believe it costs $25 per copy. Write to Mutual Funds Almanac 1981, Box 540, Holliston, MA 07146. Donaghy also publishes a Money Fund Director, available from the same address for $12.

United Business Service, publisher of The United Mutual Fund Selector, also publishes an address list of major mutual funds and publicly traded investment funds. It is available free of charge upon writing to this address: United Mutual Fund Selector, Sales Dept., 210 Newbury St., Boston, MA 02116. A subscription to the bi-monthly Selector will provide you with up-to-date information and performance statistics on more than 400 funds, with comments and recommendations. A sample issue is available on request to the above address.

El Al Employees Announce Strike

TEL AVIV (JTA) — El Al, Israel's national airline, was embroiled in a labor dispute last week after a prolonged period of relative calm on the labor front. Employees announced a general strike, the immediate effect of which was to force cancellation of an evening flight for London.

The action came as a surprise. The workers had agreed only Thursday morning to call off a "rule book" slowdown which had been underway for several days to protest the airline management's alleged failure to put the carrier's troubled finances in order. A spokesman for the employees said they had achieved their aim of calling the government's attention to the situation.

Only hours later, however, the union called a meeting of all workers committees after learning that management intended to dismiss 18 flight engineers as of January 1 because new aircraft entering service made them redundant. The general strike was called without ratification by Histadrut. The trade union federation is trying to negotiate a settlement with respect to personnel made redundant by the introduction of new equipment.

Money Sense:

Year-End Strategies Save Tax This Year

By Bill Waters,
Director of Marketing Services
Merrill Lynch Pierce Fenner & Smith Inc.

Most Americans benefited from the Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981 when income tax rates were automatically reduced October 1. Not all of the provisions of the new tax law are automatic, however. Many provisions of the new law require the individual to take action. The wise taxpayer will search for those provisions and will seize all appropriate opportunities to save money before the end of year.

It is important to take as many deductions as possible this year, since the maximum tax on all income drops to 50 percent from 70 percent on January 1. There are a variety of strategies aimed at postponing income and increasing deductions before year end.

Several Strategies

- Review state and local income and real estate taxes. You can pay your 1981 taxes during 1981 and claim the deduction in 1981.

- Realize both short- and long-term losses this year. You might consider selling stocks and bonds with paper losses and buying different securities to establish a tax loss for 1981.

- If it meets your investment objectives, consider purchasing, for cash, or on margin, deep discount corporate bonds with a remaining maturity of more than 12 months. The deduction you can take for the interest you pay on a margin loan will reduce income taxable at the higher 1981 rates. In addition, any long-term gain realized when you sell will be taxable at that year's lower capital gains tax rate.

- If options trading fits your investment objectives and your ability to accept risk, you might consider trading put and call options that expire in early 1982 rather than in late 1981. If you trade options that expire in January, you can close out a loss position before year end and offset income. If, however, the position showed a profit, you could keep it open until 1982, when the short-term gain would only be taxed at rates of up to 50 percent.

- Consider "going short against the box" if you have a short-term gain in a stock you'd like to sell. Going short against the box simply means that you sell short the same number of shares you own of the same stock. Although you may have to pay interest on your borrowed shares if they rise in price, the gain will not be taxed until you cover your short position by delivering the stock you own sometime next year.

- Pay any interest that is due. Again, tax benefits increase as your deductions do.

- Transfer money market funds with yields currently taxable in 1981 into instruments that won't pay interest until 1982. You might consider transferring that money into Treasury Bills, certificates of deposit and certificates of deposit funds. You'll owe less tax on the interest in 1982.

- Consider making charitable donations this year. If, for example, you are in the 70 percent bracket this year, each $1,000 in donations will be worth $700 to you this year versus only $500 next year when the top brackets become 50 percent.

- Consider purchasing All-Savers certificates. Available through December 31, 1982, these have a one-year maturity and yield interest at approximately 70 percent of the one-year Treasury Bill rate. Interest earned on them is tax-exempt, up to $1,000 on a single person's return or $2,000 on joint returns. One note of caution: The certificates must be held for the entire year or tax benefits are lost.

Even small steps can be taken to ease your tax burden. For example, consider renewing deductible subscriptions to professional publications and investment advisory services. The deductions will have less value in 1982, when tax rates are lower.

Pay next year's charges on safety deposit boxes. You use such a box for storing investment-related items, payment this year will make the most of your 1981 deductions.

These are just some suggestions for pre-year-end action. For 1982, it is important to review investments and your particular tax situation as early as possible. The new law offers a wide variety of tax-saving possibilities to taxpayers in all brackets, and everyone should be aware of them.

To take the fullest advantage of all these opportunities, you should consult a full-financial services firm or tax specialist.

Thanksgiving Day Dinner May Cost Less This Year

by Sylvia Porter

In defiance of every forecast, official or private, and certainly in the face of all our expectations, Thanksgiving dinner on Thursday, Nov. 26, may cost about the same as in 1980 — or even less.

Biggest savings will be in the turkey itself, priced about 20 cents per pound lower than last year. You'll save more if you mash round white or small russet potatoes, cream medium-size yellow onions, uncork a bottle of domestic red wine, top it off with pecan pie and coffee.

Although food prices have risen about 8 percent this year, some items have gone up more than others, a few have come down — and with careful menu-planning and shopping you can come out with enough change (vs. 1980) for a small box of after-dinner mints.

HOLIDAY CHEER: The price of a toast with distilled spirits has risen about 6.8 percent, primarily because of new liquor taxes, which means that a fifth of your favorite has increased from an average $7.02 to $7.50. Although imported and domestic white wines also have risen, California red wines are down, and American sherry has remained the same.

NIBBLES: Pecans, almonds, filberts, walnuts and peanuts are all substantially lower in price. If you like guacamole, you're in luck: avocados also have dipped. But chips for dunking are more expensive.

TURKEY: Now priced between 56 cents and 57 cents per pound wholesale, before-Thanksgiving turkeys are on sale in some supermarkets for only pennies per pound more. A surplus is one reason, low turkey prices to lure you into the store are another.

An average 12- to 14-pound turkey is two parts bone to one part meat. The relative amount of meat decreases slightly on a smaller bird and increases proportionately on a larger one. For greater value, buy an 18- to 22-pound turkey IF your oven is large enough to hold it and you have freezer space for leftovers. If your family is small or picky about dark vs. white, turkey parts are bargains, too.

Frozen turkey may be a better buy than fresh, suggests Pierre Boucher, U.S. Department of Agriculture poultry chief. From Betsy Crosby, USDA home economist, come these instructions if you buy a frozen turkey:

ALWAYS defrost it in the refrigerator, allowing two days for a bird of 12 pounds and under, three days for a larger one. Never, Crosby cautions, cook a turkey in stages and always remove the stuffing and refrigerate the turkey — and other leftovers — as soon as dinner is over.

STUFFING: Your best buy may be day-old bread stuffing, to which you add chopped Golden Delicious apples, shelled walnut pieces, diced prunes and raisins — all lower in price this year.

FIXIN'S: Fruits, vegetables — all are higher by double digits, but there are some (relative) bargains around. Expensive fresh cranberries may be offered at giveaway prices for good will. Machine-gathered berries (water harvested) are used for bottled and canned beverages, sauces and relishes, which may be the only way you can buy them in some areas.

Medium-sized onions are among good buys this year. Below 1980 prices are round white potatoes (in East, South and Midwest) and small russets (in Midwest and West). Other baking potatoes, "sweets" or yams demand premium prices. Hard and soft squash and turnips are about the same as 1980.

DESSERT: Good buys are red grapes, small Red Delicious apples, tangerines and winter pears. Desserts made with eggs, nuts, raisins and prunes are less expensive this year than last.

HAPPY ENDING: Coffee prices have plunged to an average $2.46 per pound today vs. $3.16 in 1980 for ground, $6.63 vs. $7.67 for a large jar of instant. And "coupons" and "specials" can lower your dinner costs, too.

Bridge

by Robert E. Starr

As soon as the Dummy was put down, every Declarer felt quite confident that his contract was safe as long as the Trump suit broke normally. It did yet good defense could have defeated this seemingly sure game. Most of the Defenders failed to take advantage of their opportunity but the tools were always right there available to them.

		North
		♦ Q 9 5 2
		♥ K Q 8
		♠ J 5 4
		♣ A Q 3
West		East
♦ J 10 7		♦ 8 4
♥ A 5		♥ 10 7 4 3
♠ A K Q 10 8 3		♠ 7 2
♣ 9 2		♣ 10 8 6 5 4
		South
		♦ A K 6 3
		♥ J 6 2
		♣ K J 7

Both sides vulnerable, North was dealer with this bidding:

N	E	S	W
1C	P	1S	2D
2S	P	4S	End

The bidding as shown is perfectly normal and the way it did go at every table I watched. And looking at only the North and South hands you would probably feel confident that your game contract was not in danger except from a bad Trump break.

Every West led the Diamond King after which, of course, North put down his hand as Dummy. Looking at it as Declarer we can see there are no Club losers, only one Heart loser and if the Trumps outstanding break 3-2 as the odds say they should, we will lose no Trumps. We do have to lose two Diamonds but we can ruff the third, draw Trumps, concede the Heart Ace and claim our contract.

That is exactly what happened at most of the tables. West led three high Diamonds with East discarding on the third, Declarer ruffing, drawing the Trumps leaving one still in Dummy and then giving up the Heart Ace to make the rest. Dummy's Trump can take care of another Diamond lead from West.

Those Defenders felt that that was the normal way the hand should have gone and were even more convinced when they opened the traveling score to note that they had lots of company. They did wonder how two Declarers had found a way to get themselves set. But actually those poor unfortunates had done nothing wrong. They had been victims of good defense, a play called an Uppercut. There was nothing they could have done to offset it.

Here is what the plus defenders did to set the hand. West led the King and Queen of Diamonds and now knew that both his partner and Declarer were out. He knew he could cash his Ace but where would the setting trick come from. Declarer's bidding pretty much showed the Club King and if East did happen to have it he'd make it anyhow. The best chance was to promote himself a Trump trick which he could do with cooperation and the right card from his partner.

He had to make East ruff high enough to force Declarer to ruff with an honor. A third high Diamond East would not ruff at all so at trick three West led a LOW one. East, of course, knew this was trying to tell him something, figured it out, ruffed with his 8 and you can see what that did to the poor Declarer. He had to overruff with an honor and East had a sure setting trick now in the Trump, suit.

Moral: Never give up but if help is needed from partner make it as easy as you can for him to give it to you.

Jewish Students Leaving Quebec

MONTREAL (JTA) — A report submitted to the board of directors of the Hillel Students Organization here states that a "significantly high group" of Jewish university students have decided to leave Quebec because of economic and political factors.

Mel Himes, chairman of the Hillel Committee assigned the task of assessing the future of young Jews in Quebec, placed the number who plan to leave the province at between 30-40 percent. The report has not yet been adopted by the board.

The study noted that the political climate in Quebec is a major factor in the exodus of young people and that Quebec's economic decline is forcing university graduates to look for employment elsewhere. Himes said "Quebec does not fit into most students' future plans."

He observed that "In the medium to long run, few Jewish students are committed to staying in Quebec. Students accurately perceived Francisation as a process to replace English employees with French ones. Because of the decline in the non-French population, traditional avenues of professional employment have completely disappeared," Himes said.

Vegetarian Treats

By Meryl Ain

A vegetarian cook's paradise can be found in the Moosewood Cookbook, compiled, edited, illustrated and hand-lettered by Mollie Katzen and published by Ten Speed Press. The recipes in the book are adaptations of dishes that have been popularized at the Moosewood Restaurant in Ithaca, New York.

The restaurant is dedicated to the "notion that protein and aesthetics need not be sacrificed when you leave meat out of a meal." Most of the recipes reflect this belief, although occasionally sugar is used in a dessert. The recipes utilize, for the most part, natural and wholesome ingredients, such as whole wheat flour, vegetables, nuts, grains, soybeans and tofu.

What is striking about the book is that although it uses no meat at all, there is a decidedly international flavor to many of the foods. Such goodies as eggplant scallopi, mushroom moussaka, Greek pilaf, Turkish stuffed zucchini, Szechuan eggplant and tofu and others borrow the best from many different cultures, and prove that one can be eclectic and still be vegetarian.

There is a wide variety of both hot and chilled soups, such as mushroom bisque, Swiss cheese and onion, Russian cabbage borscht and gazpacho. In addition, there are many salad, sandwich and spread recipes. Desserts range from extra fudge brownies to an "almost fatless" ricotta cheesecake, and a health food dessert such as apple krisp which utilizes sunflower seeds, raw oats, apples and walnuts.

The book is of interest to those who are staunch vegetarians, as well as those who would like to eliminate some of the meat from their family's diet.

With the approach of fall and the Thanksgiving holiday, we would like reader suggestions for a vegetarian Thanksgiving.

Those interested in purchasing the Moosewood Cookbook can do so by writing to: Ten Speed Press, P.O. Box 7123, Berkeley, Calif., or look for it in your local bookstore.

STUFFED CABBAGE

- 1 large head green cabbage
- 1 medium carrot, diced
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 3 Tbsp. butter
- 1 small clove crushed garlic
- ¼ cup sunflower seeds
- ¾ cup raw cashew pieces
- salt and pepper to taste
- 1 stalk chopped celery
- 2 cups ricotta cheese
- ¼ cup raisins or currants
- 1 cup chopped apple
- juice from 1 lemon
- 1 to 2 Tbsp. tamari
- 1 Tbsp. honey
- extra butter

1. Parboil the cabbage in a kettle of water for ten to fifteen minutes, or until outer leaves are easily removable. Remove the first 12 leaves. Make sure the cabbage is cooked well enough so leaves will not break when rolled, but not so well that they disintegrate. If you can't get enough sufficiently large leaves to stuff from one cabbage, parboil two. Save cabbage insides to use for another dish.

2. Sauté vegetables (not apple), nuts and seeds in butter until onion is transparent and nuts roasted. Combine the sauté (drain it well) with remaining ingredients and season to taste.

3. Place three to four tablespoons of filling near the base of each cabbage leaf. Roll tightly, folding in sides. Place on buttered sheet and brush with extra butter. Cover and bake until heated through (about 25 minutes at 325 degrees). Serve topped with yogurt or sour cream on a bed of rice. Dish takes 1½ hours to prepare. Two rolls each serve six.

Does your cracker go to pieces when it meets cream cheese?

It's easy to imagine spreading delicious cream cheese on something besides a bagel.

But it's a lot harder to do.

Croissants crumble. Chips chip. And it's terrible to see what hard cream cheese can do to an innocent piece of toast. Just terrible.

Temp Tee whipped cream cheese is whipped.

So it's smooth and creamy, and very easy to spread.

Even on something as delicate as a potato chip.

Temp Tee whipped cream cheese. It's bigger than the bagel.

"People Of The Book"

PHDS Sponsors Book Fair

The annual book fair of the Providence Hebrew Day School, "People of the Book," will take place on Sunday, Nov. 22 from 10:30 a.m. to 8 p.m.

The emphasis of the book fair will be on books with Jewish and Hebraic themes. A wide selection of hardcover and paperback Jewish books not ordinarily available in Rhode Island will be offered for sale. Secular books will also be available.

"We are making an effort to raise the quality and expand the variety of books, and to make 'People of the Book' a regular and welcome feature on the Rhode Island Jewish activities calendar," said Grace Beiser, chairman of the book fair committee. Co-chairmen are Liliana Fijman, Eva Gutman, and Varda Stieglitz.

The book fair will include three story hours, at 11 a.m., 1 p.m. and 3 p.m.

There will also be a display, entitled "The Five Books That Each Rhode Island Jewish Family Should Own." The lists for these books were submitted by rabbis of congregations throughout Rhode Island. These lists will be prominently displayed at the fair and copies of the books will be made available.

Dr. Jacob Neusner, Professor of Religious Studies at Brown University and a prominent author, scholar, and Providence Hebrew Day School parent, will be at the book fair from 3 to 4 p.m. to autograph his books.

Books for all ages will be offered, including cookbooks and books suitable for Chanukah gift giving. Other features of this year's fair include a used book corner and a Russian book exchange.

A special logo for the book fair, depicting "People of the Book," was designed by Rabbi Nahman Levine and appears on all posters announcing the book fair.

BOOK FAIR CO-CHAIRMAN: Varda Stieglitz, Eva Gutman and Liliana Fijman. Not pictured, Grace Beiser, chairman.

SHIRLEY GOLDSTEIN

CRANSTON — Shirley Goldstein, 67, of 425 Meshanticut Valley Parkway, died Tuesday, Nov. 10, at Miriam Hospital. She was the wife of Max Goldstein.

Born in Poland, a daughter of the late Isaac and Esther Szejnfigel, she lived in Pawtucket 45 years before moving to Cranston a year ago.

Mrs. Goldstein worked as a supervisor for Teknor-Apex Co. for 20 years before retiring five years ago. She was a member of Congregation Ohave-Shalom, its Sisterhood, and the Temple Beth-El Pioneer women.

After World War II she was instrumental in locating Holocaust survivors in Rhode Island.

Besides her husband, she leaves a son, Murray H. Goldstein of Pawtucket; a daughter, Rachel Kaufman of Cranston, and four grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Wednesday, Nov. 11, at the Max Sugarman Memorial Chapel, 458 Hope St., Providence. Burial was in Sons of Israel and David Cemetery, Providence.

In lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to your favorite charity.

Shiva will be observed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Kaufman, 25 Woodstock Lane, Cranston, Wednesday 7-9 p.m., Thursday 2-4 and 7-9 p.m., Friday 2-4 p.m. and Saturday 7-9 p.m.

IDA RESNICK

PAWTUCKET — Ida Resnick, 75, of 79 Sayles Ave., died Monday, Nov. 9, at Miriam Hospital after a six-month illness. She was the wife of Israel Resnick.

Mrs. Resnick was a member of the Pioneer Women, the Ladies Association of the Jewish Home for the Aged, Temple Emanu-El and its Sisterhood, the Labor Zionist Organization of America, the Women's Division of the Jewish Federation and the Women's Division of Israel Bonds.

Born in Russia, a daughter of the late Philip and Lena (Cherkassky) Teverow, she lived in Pawtucket 28 years. She previously lived in Providence.

Besides her husband, she leaves a son, Kenneth Resnick of Haifa, Israel; a daughter, Lenore Ciora of West Warwick; two brothers, Louis and Joseph Teverow, and a sister, Beatrice Kornstein, all of Providence, and five grandchildren.

A funeral service was held Wednesday, Nov. 11, at the Max Sugarman Memorial Chapel, 458 Hope St., Providence. Burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery, Warwick.

JERUSALEM (JTA) — Disturbances flared on the Golan Heights last week where Druze high school students being taught Hebrew and other Israel-related subjects demonstrated against their teacher. They claimed that the instructor, an Israeli Druze, insulted them and marched on the school. They were turned away at a roadblock but shouted anti-Israel slogans before returning to their villages.

A Distinguished And Moving Story

The Book of Lights, by Chaim Potok.
Alfred A. Knopf, 201 East 50th Street,
New York, N.Y. 10022. 370 pages. $13.50.

Reviewed by David Mirsky

In his latest novel, The Book of Lights, Chaim Potok further extends the limits of the terrain he has marked out as his for exploration: Believing Jews struggling to sustain themselves in the modern world which threatens to cut their Jewishness from under their feet.

Gershon Loran, the shy and withdrawn chief protagonist of the novel, experiences at age sixteen a mystical, exalting vision on the roof of a decaying tenement in a deteriorating section of Brooklyn, and walks through the ensuing years passively, nudged towards an unknown destiny while awaiting a recurrence of the moment of spiritual exaltation. Almost by inadvertence, he enrolls in the Riverside Hebrew Institute, a non-Orthodox rabbinic seminary, where he is caught in the antipodal pulls of two giants of Jewish scholarship — Nathan Malkuson, a foremost Talmudist, and Jacob Keter, the legendary student and teacher of Kabbalah.

When the Korean War creates a demand for Jewish chaplains, Gershon unresistingly accepts a commission and assignment to a medical base in the northern-most reaches of the American sector in Korea. Struggling to fulfill his obligations under the unbearable conditions of this alien land, he gropes to understand and define himself as a believing Jew in a world which challenges commitment and faith.

Intertwined with the life of Gershon is the life of Arthur Leiden. Outgoing, frenetic, Arthur is driven by his own secret demons — a tearing sense of guilt for the horror unleashed upon the world by his father, a physicist of international renown who helped construct the bomb dropped on Hiroshima. Abandoning Harvard and the study of physics, Arthur seeks balm and expiation by returning to Judaism and studying for ordination at the Riverside Institute, and seeking out service as a chaplain in Korea. On a phantasmagoric trip through the Japanese cities of Kyoto and Hiroshima, Gershon and Arthur move towards a clearer understanding of their inner drives and the fulfillment of their individual destinies.

The Book of Lights is not free of faults. We are left unsure of Potok's purpose, and a tendency to load detail unnecessarily dulls the reader and slows the novel's movement. Its prose, at times, hobbles when it should soar. But the novel is sustained by Potok's strengths: a keen eye, a shaping imagination which enables him to cast into fictional form powerful ideas, and an ability to convey intellectual passion. The Book of Lights is a distinguished and moving addition to one of the most significant canons in American-Jewish literature.

David Mirsky is professor of English at Yeshiva University.

Rostropovich Plays At Ocean State To Benefit Brown Music Programs

Mstislav Rostropovich, widely acclaimed as the world's greatest living cellist, will give a benefit concert with the Brown University Orchestra on Saturday, Nov. 21, at 8:30 p.m., at the Ocean State Performing Arts Center in Providence.

The proceeds from the concert, Rostropovich's second with the Brown Orchestra, will be used for continued support of the International String Quartet, in residence at Brown, and other music department programs. Rostropovich has dedicated the concert to the memory of his friend and fellow cellist John Nicholas Brown, longtime member of the Brown Corporation and a fellow of the university, who died in October 1979.

The program for the concert includes Symphony No. 1 in E-Flat by Stravinsky, performed by the Brown Orchestra, and Haydn's Cello Concerto in C, with Rostropovich as soloist. Conducting will be Wolfgang Balzer, director of the Brown Orchestra.

The multi-talented Rostropovich plays piano, composes and conducts, in addition to playing the cello. He is the music director of the National Symphony, and has performed with many of the finest orchestras in the world, including the Boston Symphony, Los Angeles Philharmonic, London Philharmonic, New York Philharmonic and Chicago Symphony.

Born in Russia in 1927, Rostropovich, like other Russian artists, felt limited in his creative efforts by Soviet policy. He was allowed to leave Russia in 1974 with an exit visa, and in 1978 was stripped of his Soviet citizenship for "acts harmful to the prestige of the U.S.S.R." He now travels with a temporary passport from Switzerland, but remains very attached to his homeland.

Tickets for the benefit concert can be purchased at the Ocean State box office, 220 Weybosset St. (full-price tickets only) or Brown's University Relations Office, 71 George St. Tickets are $25 ($12.50 for Brown faculty, staff and students). Mail orders may be sent to Box 1920, Brown University, Providence 02912.

Patrons for the concert are being sought at $100, which includes a special Baroque

Gala, featuring the International String Quartet, to be held after the concert. The benefit concert is being planned by a committee chaired by Roberta Holland, J. Terrence Murray, and J. Carter Brown, with Mrs. John Nicholas Brown as honorary chair.

For more information, call the University Relations Office at Brown, 863-2474.

Golden Age Breakfast Club Hosts Marker

Rabbi Richard Marker, Director of B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation and Associate Chaplain at Brown University since 1973, is this month's Golden Age Breakfast Club's featured speaker. The breakfast will be held on Wednesday, Nov. 18 at 10 a.m. at the center. Rabbi Marker will deliver a talk entitled: The Jewish Future: A View From The Campus.

The Golden Age Club Breakfast meets monthly. Call the JCC for reservations.

Rabbi Marker is a graduate of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America and has served the local Jewish community of Brown since 1971. He is a member of the Rhode Island Board of Rabbis and the Interfaith Health Care Ministries of Rhode Island.

Rabbi Marker has served the local Jewish Federation, the American Jewish Committee, Miriam Hospital, and the Jewish Family Service Boards. In this past year, Rabbi Marker has served as the President of the International Association of Hillel Directors.

Men's Club Holds Nov. 15 Breakfast

The Temple Beth Am-Beth David Men's Club will hold a breakfast meeting on Sunday, Nov. 15 at the Temple, 40 Gardiner St., Warwick.

The guest speaker will be Judge Anthony Giannini, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Rhode Island, who will be introduced by Jerry Aron, president of the men's club.

Services will be held at 8:15 a.m., followed by breakfast served at 9:30 a.m. Women are invited to attend.

Veterinarian Saves Alligator's Life

TEL AVIV (JTA) — A fearless Israeli veterinarian saved the life of a 10-foot alligator by mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. Dr. Bernard Hurwitz of Ranaana, literally put his head in the reptile's jaw. He emerged intact and the patient lived.

The feat occurred during an emergency operation at the newly opened Hama Gader alligator farm where one of 12 saurians recently imported from the U.S. required surgery for a festering bit wound.

Rostropovich Plays At Ocean State To Benefit Brown Music Programs

Mstislav Rostropovich, widely acclaimed as the world's greatest living cellist, will give a benefit concert with the Brown University Orchestra on Saturday, Nov. 21, at 8:30 p.m., at the Ocean State Performing Arts Center in Providence.

The proceeds from the concert, Rostropovich's second with the Brown Orchestra, will be used for continued support of the International String Quartet, in residence at Brown, and other music department programs. Rostropovich has dedicated the concert to the memory of his friend and fellow cellist John Nicholas Brown, longtime member of the Brown Corporation and a fellow of the university, who died in October 1979.

The program for the concert includes Symphony No. 1 in E-flat by Stravinsky, performed by the Brown Orchestra, and Haydn's Cello Concerto in C, with Rostropovich as soloist. Conducting will be Wolfgang Salz, director of the Brown Orchestra.

The multi-talented Rostropovich plays piano, composes and conducts, in addition to playing the cello. He is the music director of the National Symphony, and has performed with many of the finest orchestras in the world, including the Boston Symphony, Los Angeles Philharmonic, London Philharmonic, New York Philharmonic and Chicago Symphony.

Born in Russia in 1927, Rostropovich, like other Russian artists, felt limited in his creative efforts by Soviet policy. He was allowed to leave Russia in 1974 with an exit visa, and in 1978 was stripped of his Soviet citizenship for "acts harmful to the prestige of the U.S.S.R." He now travels with a temporary passport from Switzerland, but remains very attached to his homeland.

Tickets for the benefit concert can be purchased at the Ocean State box office, 220 Weybosset St., (full-price tickets only) or Brown's University Relations Office, 71 George St. Tickets are $25 ($12.50 for Brown faculty, staff and students). Mail orders may be sent to Box 1920, Brown University, Providence 02912.

Patrons for the concert are being sought at $100, which includes a special Baroque

Gala, featuring the International String Quartet, to be held after the concert. The benefit concert is being planned by a committee chaired by Roberta Holland, J. Terrence Murray, and J. Carter Brown, with Mrs. John Nicholas Brown as honorary chair.

For more information, call the University Relations Office at Brown, 863-2474.

Golden Age Breakfast Club Hosts Marker

Rabbi Richard Marker, Director of B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation and Associate Chaplain at Brown University since 1973, is this month's Golden Age Breakfast Club's featured speaker. The breakfast will be held on Wednesday, Nov. 18 at 10 a.m. at the center. Rabbi Marker will deliver a talk entitled: The Jewish Future: A View From The Campus.

The Golden Age Club Breakfast meets monthly. Call the JCC for reservations. Rabbi Marker is a graduate of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America and has served the local Jewish community of Brown since 1971. He is a member of the Rhode Island Board of Rabbis and the Interfaith Health Care Ministries of Rhode Island.

Rabbi Marker has served the local Jewish Federation, the American Jewish Committee, Miriam Hospital, and the Jewish Family Service Boards. In this past year, Rabbi Marker has served as the President of the International Association of Hillel Directors.

Men's Club Holds Nov. 15 Breakfast

The Temple Beth Am-Beth David Men's Club will hold a breakfast meeting on Sunday, Nov. 15 at the Temple, 40 Gardner St., Warwick.

The guest speaker will be Judge Anthony Giannini, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Rhode Island, who will be introduced by Jerry Aron, president of the men's club.

Services will be held at 8:15 a.m., followed by breakfast served at 9:30 a.m. Women are invited to attend.

Veterinarian Saves Alligator's Life

TEL AVIV (JTA) — A fearless Israeli veterinarian saved the life of a 10-foot alligator by mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. Dr. Bernard Hurwitz of Ranaana, literally put his head in the reptile's jaw. He emerged intact and the reptile lived.

The feat occurred during an emergency operation at the newly opened Hamat Gader alligator farm where one of 120 saurians recently imported from the U.S. required surgery for a festering bite wound.
