QUEEN ESTHER PURIM MASQUE LEADS SOCIAL ACTIVITIES FOR WEEK

Many From Rhode Island and Nearby Bay State to Attend Fete
Sponsored by Center

Arrangements have been completed to welcome hundreds of guests from Rhode Island and nearby Massachusetts cities at the Queen Esther Purim Masquerade to be conducted next Thursday night in the Arcadia ballroom by the allied organizations of the Jewish Community Center of this city.

A large committee of members of the Jewish Center Men's Association, the Jewish Young Men's Association, the Young Women's Hebrew Association and the Jewish Center Parents' Association, have completed plans for the gala festival during which Queen Esther will be chosen along with her ten beautiful court attendants.

Vacation Award

In addition to her acclamation as Queen of the festival, a week's vacation at Camp Annisquam in West Gloucester, Mass., awaits the young woman adjudged the most beautiful at the ball. The entrant receiving the largest number of votes will be named Queen and her ten nearest rivals will be her court attendants. Costumes and carriage will also be deciding factors.

Those who already are entered in the contest include Irma Wallack, Mina Udisky, Rose A. Schwartz, Eva Tanenbaum, Tillie Marks, Ida Fain, Rebecca B. Goldstein, Esther Brier, Charlotte F. Snow, Shirley Nulman, Edith Rotenberg, Dorothy Spigle, Zara Brody, Rose Cohen, Harriet J. Winerman, Ida D. Weiner, all of Providence; Jean Schwartz of Pawtucket and Ruth Brenner of Woonsocket. Entries close tomorrow.

There will be other prizes for the Queen and court attendants, as well as for the most original, most beautiful and funniest costumes. A grand march, led by the Queen, will be staged. The following have contributed prizes: Alfred L. Morse, Dr. Archie A. Albert, Dr. Sol Rubenstein, Dr. Myron Keller, Bene's, Inc., Frank Konovsky, Mr. and Mrs. Walter I. Sundlin, Samuel Rosen, I. Saltzman, Herman Abrams, Jules P. Goldstein Narragansett Hotel, Samuel Steiner and Morris R. Sydell.

Snell In Favor of Jewish Settlement In Transjordan

New York, Mar. 3.—(JTA)—Expressing support for the project to settle Jews in Transjordan where their progressive methods may develop the country, Lord Harry Snell informed a representative of the Jewish Telegraphic Agency that in his opinion both Western and Eastern Palestine should be regarded as an economic whole within which no boundaries should exist.

The fact that Transjordan is under a separate government creates some complications, but greater difficulties than these have been amicably overcome in the past, Lord Snell stated.

Lord Snell, who as Mr. Harry Snell, was a member of the Shaw Inquiry Commission set up to investigate the Palestine disturbances of 1929, is widely known as the author of the minority report of the commission, which differed in many respects from the majority report and was regarded as fairer to the Jews than was the majority report.

Lord Snell said that in his meeting with Abdullah he had formed the impression that Abdullah harbored no

Vienna Jews Ask Charitable Aid

Non-Jewish Press Joins In Appeal for Funds to Supply Winter Relief for 50,000

Vienna, Mar. 3.—(JTA)—Fifty thousand Jews, forming twenty-five per cent of the Jewish population of Vienna, are on the lists of Jewish charity institutions for assistance, it is revealed by the Jewish Community.

The general economic crisis, coupled with anti-Semitic boycott agitation is responsible for this large percentage of impoverishment.

The Jewish Community has issued an appeal for subscriptions to its winter relief fund, which has been taken up by the Jewish and non-Jewish press.

JEWISH RADIO PROGRAM TO BE GIVEN SUNDAY

Half-Hour of Music to be Presented Regularly Over WPRO

Rabbi Goldman to Speak

A Jewish half-hour will be presented regularly each Sunday beginning with a dedication program Sunday morning, March 5th, over Station WPRO, from 10:30 to 11 o'clock. Rabbi Israel M. Goldman, Cantor Harry Bettman and Arthur Einstein are in charge.

Every program will feature a short address by Rabbi Goldman, musical selections and folk songs by Cantor Bettman and special music of sacred and secular nature by the Temple Choir under the direction of Mr. Einstein. A new feature will also be introduced in the form of a trio consisting of well-known local artists; Mr. A. Einstein, pianist; Benjamin Premak, violinist, and Miss Barbara Smith, cellist.

The dedication program for this Sunday morning will include a dedication address, by Rabbi Goldman, selections, by the trio; Mr. Premak will play Achron's famous "Hebrew Melody"; Miss Smith will render the beautiful "Kol Nidre" by Bruch; Cantor Bettman will offer two Jewish folk songs, "Bin Ich Mir a Chosidel," by Kothlowitz, and "Dir Alter Chazen," by Weisser, and the choir will present two famous selections, "Ma Tovu" by Sulzer, and "Hal-lelujah," by Lewandowski.

Rabbi Goldman, in announcing this Jewish half-hour on the radio, issued the following statement:

"I believe that the Jewish half-hour will serve a great need in our community because there has never been a regular Jewish program in the state. It shall be the purpose of the Jewish half-hour coming over WPRO every Sunday morning to be a fine source of Jewish culture and entertainment. In this way the Jewish community will be able to appreciate better its own heritage and our non-Jewish friends will have a better appreciation of their Jewish neighbors. We are, indeed, fortunate to have such a famous ensemble of artists as Cantor Bettman, Mr. Einstein, Mr. Premak and Miss Smith together, with the Temple Choir to present rich and attractive programs every Sunday morning."

Yelisovetgrad Association Holds Banquet-Dance On 27th Anniversary

The twenty-seventh anniversary of the Yelisovetgrad Progressive Beneficial Association was observed Tuesday evening with a banquet and dance at Swedish Hall.

The committee in charge of arrangements consisted of Louis Seitzman, chairman; Israel Lazarus, Myer Gordon, Peter Saslaw, George Long, Max Pulner Nathan Ostrow, Israel Goldstein and Samuel Mike.

TO DEVELOP SOUTHERN CRIMEA AS HEALTH REGION

Moscow, Mar. 3.—(JTA)—Adopting the proposal of the prominent Jewish Professor, Nahum Ginsburg, the Soviet authorities have decided to transform the southern Crimean peninsula into a republic of sanatoria.

The project is to be carried out under the direction of Professor Ginsburg.

Because of the excellent climatic conditions, southern Crimea is already the seat of many sanatoria, where tens of thousands of invalids are cared for.

Catholic, Protestant And Jewish Leaders Lash Anti-Semitism

Conboy, Dr. Cadman and Rabbi Wise Address Big Mass Meeting In New York

Ask U. S. to Intervene

New York, Mar. 3.—(JTA)—A protest against the menace of Hitlerism in Germany to the status of the Jews and appeal to the sense of justice of the German people was uttered on Sunday morning at Carnegie Hall by representatives of the Catholic, Protestant and Jewish faiths, at a meeting convened under the auspices of the Executive Committee of the American Jewish Congress.

Addresses were delivered by Martin Conboy, prominent Catholic layman; Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, who is chairman of the Committee on Good Will Between Jews and Christians of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ and a leading Protestant preacher; Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, Honorary President of the American Jewish Congress, and Bernard S. Deutsch, President of the Congress, who presided.

Mr. Conboy declared that it was the duty of all Americans to protest against any attempt on the part of Hitlerism to deprive Germany Jewry of their equal citizenship rights.

Cites Injustice
Dr. Cadman said that an injustice to the Jewish people is an injustice to the world.

"Hitlerism," he asserted, "must be defeated. It is a recrudescence of the pre-war madneses, of diabolism and blood lust and hate. Let us never cease until it is defeated."

"It is an obligation that rests upon those who are so situated that they can do so to voice a protest when the lives, the well being and the fundamental rights of their kindred are endangered," said Mr. Conboy.

"Every American must honor them for it. We in this country differ about many things, but one instinct we have in common is a hatred of oppression. With that goes a corresponding sympathy for the weaker element who in any country feel the heavy hand of the tyrannous and strong.

"Happily, this meeting is not called for the purpose of denouncing a pogrom. However, the burnt child who dreads the fire is a sound philosopher.

"There is ground for apprehension

Hartford Senate Studies Bill to Register Aliens

Hartford, Mar. 3.—(JTA)—Another bill for compulsory registration of aliens has been introduced in the Connecticut Senate by Senator Hackett. It requires aliens residing in Connecticut to register in order to engage in business in the state or to be employed there and not only penalizes such aliens, but also the prospective employers.

The bill is similar to the one which Michigan passed a couple of years ago and which was declared unconstitutional by the Federal Court. A number of Jewish and general organizations are vigorously opposing the enactment. Max J. Kohler, who was counsel in the Michigan case, is active in the opposition in behalf of the American Jewish Committee, the B'nai B'rith and the Baron de Hirsch Fund.

Quiet Rites Held For Schiff Widow

Only Family, Close Friends at Funeral of Philanthropist's Wife

New York, Mar. 3.—(JTA)—Marked by extreme simplicity and attended only by members of the family and close friends, funeral services were held Monday morning for Mrs. Jacob H. Schiff, who succumbed on Sunday in her 79th year.

The last rites were conducted from her city residence where she had lived alone since the death of her distinguished husband 13 years ago. Rabbi Samuel Schulman of Temple Emanu-El, to which she belonged, officiated.

Five grandsons, the four sons of Mr. and Mrs. Felix M. Warburg, Frederick M., Gerald F., Paul Felix and Edward M. Warburg, and John M. Schiff, acted as pall bearers.

The funeral cortege made its way from the house to Salem Fields Cemetery in Brooklyn, where the body was buried besides that of Jacob H. Schiff.

Costume Recital Sponsored By Miriam Hospital Group

An interesting program by talented artists has been completed for the costume recital to be sponsored by the Miriam Hospital Association, Friday, March 10, at the Music Mansion on Meeting street, and will be international in scope. Present indications augur well to make this the outstanding event of the musical season.

Mrs. Ned Newburger, talented artist, formerly from Boston, will entertain with several piano selections. Mrs. Newburger won the Mason-Hamlin piano given in 1923 by the New England Conservatory of Music, has played with the Peoples' Symphony Orchestra, the Harvard Club in Boston, Mount Holyoke College and with the Chaminade Club in Providence. Critics have acclaimed her musical individuality, technique and mastery of the piano at several Jordan Hall recitals.

The program will also include a group of dramatic readings by Abbie Grant Huddish, who is very well known to Providence people. She has given readings before various audiences in Boston and Providence. Benjamin Premak, local artist, will give an entertaining program of violin solos. Mr. Premak has won the admiration and praise from critics here and abroad and has been said to be "on his way to greater heights." His accompanist will be Leroy Armstrong.

Additional patronesses are Mrs. Benjamin Brier, Mrs. Maurice Fox, Mrs. Harry Guny, Mrs. Morris Newman, Mrs. Joseph Dressler, Mrs. Samuel Colitz, Mrs. Samuel Blazer, Mrs. Isaac Rose and Mrs. Louis I. Kramer.

TEMPLE EMANU-EL

THE RABBI IN THE COMMUNITY

Rabbi Goldman will speak at the Pembroke Chapel before the whole student body, Tuesday morning, March 7th.

FRIDAY NIGHT CLUB

The Friday Night Club will have a special meeting next Friday night, March 10th, immediately after services. The arrangements committee consists of Maynard Kaplan, chairman; Leo Kosowsky, David Field and Fred Pobirs. The subject of the meeting will be a discussion on the new volume issued by Dr. Marvin Nathan, "The Attitude of the College Student Toward His Religion." A special Purim Program is also being prepared.

All young people and students of the local colleges are invited.

PURIM PROGRAMS

For this past few weeks, every department and every group in the Temple has been preparing for Purim. The following is a brief calendar of some of the major Purim events being planned for next week:

Friday evening, March 10th—Special Purim Service. Rabbi Goldman will preach, on "Can We Outlaw Anti-Semitism?"

Saturday evening, March 11—Young Judaea Purim Party for leaders and study groups and also celebration of the close of the Leaders' Institute.

Saturday evening, March 11—Megillah Service at 6 o'clock.

Sunday, March 12, at 10:30 a. m.—Children's Purim Pageant. Parents' Purim Pageant at 3 p. m. At 6:30 p. m., the annual Purim Seudah of the School Staff and School Board. Mr. Hurwich of Boston will speak.

HARRY BETTMAN

Cantor of Temple Emanu-El who will render several folk songs during the Jewish half-hour over Station WPRO Sunday morning, between 10:30 and 11 o'clock.

Nathan Bishop Jr. High Orchestra Gives Concert

An entertaining program was rendered Friday evening by the orchestra of the Nathan Bishop Junior High School, sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Association. The proceeds of the affair were used to defray the expenses of the orchestra on their trip to New York, Saturday, where they were invited to play at a conference of Junior high schools.

A feature of the evening was Muriel Halprin, thirteen-year-old violinist, who held the audience spell-bound with her technique and artistic tone and rendition. Selections were also given by a saxophone quartet, consisting of A. Bender, Leonard White, Joseph Priest and Harold Goldenberg.

Among the members of the orchestra are Stanley Summer, concert master; Louis Broder, William Brown, Ruth Cohen, Sidney Cohen, Benjamin Fertman, Shirley Genzer, Ruth Gilman, Harriet Goldenberg, David Goodman, Norman Gresenster, Muriel Halprin, Joseph Harvey, Irving Kaplan, Julius Kopit, Eugene Mabel, Eleanor Malkowicz, Maxim Melnick, Janet Miller, Samuel Rose, Alton Snyder, Carolyn Sydel, Louis Tarnapol, Julius Weisman, Leonard White, Andrew Bander and Edward Glass.

Jewish Orphanage News

BOARD MEETS

The regular monthly meeting of the board of directors of the Jewish Orphanage was held in the Home Wednesday evening, March 1st, with President Walter I. Sundlun in charge. Reports of committees were received.

Dr. Wolfenson reported that three full years have now passed in the Orphanage since there was any illness serious enough to require the attendance of physicians.

BASKETBALL TEAM VICTORIOUS
The Orphanage boys' basketball team played the Olympics of the Jewish Community Center last Sunday evening in the Home gymnasium, the score being 31 to 15 in favor of the Orphanage.

The girls of the Home too, have now started a basketball team and consequently competition will be keen.

"AMATEUR NITE" A SUCCESS

This week's Amateur Nite proved a source of great amusement for the population of the Orphanage. Everybody participated, although it was a first appearance for the youngest, six years of age. New talent, it is hoped, will thus be developed among the younger children to fill the ranks of those who led in former years and who have now gone to take their places in the outside world.

MISCELLANEOUS NOTES

Several of the children of the Home are rehearsing for the Purim entertainment to be given at Temple Emanu-El.

All of the Girl Scouts of the Orphanage took part in the Girl Scout entertainment Tuesday evening, either in the capacity of actors of candy vendors.

Three of the six junior high school Orphanage boys are members of the Nathan Bishop Varsity basketball team.

The "Tattler," a Home paper, issued under the editorship of George Katz whenever material is available, appeared again last week with several choice offerings.

Fresh painting done by unemployment relief men has brightened the children's dining room.

TEMPLE BETH-EL

SERVICES

The sermon for this evening to be delivered by Rabbi Braude, is, "Is the Bible All We Have?" This address is dedicated to the observance of the 60th birthday of Chaim Nachman Bialik. George Tinker tenor soloist will sing, "Fear Not Ye, O Israel," by Buck.

At the Saturday morning services, 10:30 a. m., Rabbi Braude will speak on the portion of the week, "Trumah."

FLORAL OFFERING

The flowers on the pulpit Friday evening were the gift of Mrs. Morris Slepok and Frank Slepok, in memory of Morris Slepok.

BETH-EL LUNCHEON CLUB

Professor Millar Burrows of Brown University addressed the members of the Beth-El Luncheon Club, Tuesday, at the Narragansett Hotel. The club meets every Tuesday at 12:15 in the Narragansett, Hotel parlors and attracts a large number of men.

COLUMBIA STUDENT COUNSELOR TO ADDRESS MEN'S CLUB

Rabbi Jacob J. Weinstein, Counselor to the Jewish students at Columbia University, will address the Men's Club at their regular meeting, March 4, in the Temple Vestry.

Although a young man, Rabbi Weinstein has had colorful experiences as a Jewish circuit rider as Hillel Rabbi in Texas and as Rabbi of a large congregation in California. He is one of the most brilliant men ever to be graduated from the Hebrew Union College, and bids fair to be one of the leaders of American Jewish thought.

Rabbi Weinstein will speak on "The Comedies and Tragedies of Small town Jewry." During his student days, he had much experience in organizing small town Jewry throughout the Middle West and the South.

In this lecture, he will relate humorous anecdotes of provincial figures "who preserved their old country flavor amidst the cornstalks of Iowa and the wheat fields of Kansas;" such, for instance, as Joe Coen, Sprintze Reisman and Motke Schmach-Tobak. He will also touch on the tragedies of assimilation, of frustrated ambition and the petty feuds of village minds.

LIBRARY ADDITIONS

Recent additions to the Temple Library include "The Plough Woman," by Maurice Samuel, presented by Mrs. Helen Donig, in memory of Rose Hellman; "The Ethics of the Rabbis," by Beryl D. Cohen; "Music of Our Day," by Lazare Saminsky and "Rashi," by Maurice Liber, presented by the Sisterhood, in memory of Edward Weindlander, Newman Pincus and Rose Hellman.

MEMORIAL CONTRIBUTION

Mr. and Mrs. David C. Fink contributed to the Regine Frances Englander Memorial Fund.

BETH-EL LEAGUE PURIM CELEBRATION

The league will entertain the members of the Young People's Organization of Temple Emanu-El at a Purim celebration, Sunday evening March 12, at 7:30 o'clock, in the vestry.

A series of Biblical tableaux, prepared by Celia Parvey and Miss Amelia Wise, will be presented. The musical accompaniment will be rendered by Miss Helene Koppe and Miss Muriel Paris.

THE RABBI IN THE COMMUNITY

Rabbi Braude delivered the invocation at the New England Manufacturing Jewelers' and Silversmiths' Association banquet Saturday. He spoke before the Women's Auxiliary of the Jewish Home for the Aged Wednesday and will address the King's Sons and Daughters of Rhode Island tomorrow.

DISCUSSION GROUP

A meeting of the discussion group took place at the Temple Sunday evening. Miss Martha Kaplan read a paper on "The Island Within," by Ludwig Lewisohn. She treated the subject with ability and her manner of exposition was remarkable. An interesting discussion followed Miss Kaplan's talk.

LAYMAN'S SERVICE

Arthur Basok and Samuel H. Workman will conduct the Annual Laymen's Service at the regular Friday evening services, March 10.

Mr. Basok will officiate and Mr. Workman will speak on the subject, "What a Congregation Expects of a Rabbi." On the following Friday, March 17th, Rabbi Braude will answer Mr. Workman in, "What a Rabbi Expects of a Congregation."

JUDGE ASHER ON J. D. C. ADVISORY COMMITTEE

Worcester, Mar. 3.—(JTA)—Associate Justice Jacob Asher, prominent in the civic and communal life in Worcester, was named to membership on the National Advisory Committee of the American Joint Distribution Committee overseas welfare agency of the Jews of America.

The Joint Distribution Committee is seeking support for its relief work among the impoverished Jews of Eastern and Central Europe.

MEN'S CLUB

The Men's Club held its regular meeting Monday evening with the President, Albert Lisker, presiding. The guest speaker of the evening was Professor William Adams Brown, Jr. of Brown University, who spoke on "The Financial Aspect of the Present Crisis." The ladies were invited.

DAILY MINYAN

A daily minyan is held in the Temple every morning at 7 o'clock and every evening at 6. Everybody is welcome to join.

CONGRATULATIONS

Hearty congratulations are extended to Major Charles M. Hoffman upon having been awarded a Silver Star Medal with Palm Leaf for gallantry in action during the World War.

WOMEN'S STUDY CIRCLE

The Women's Study Circle met last Wednesday afternoon in the Temple in commemoration of Washington's birthday. Mrs. Samuel Littman read a letter which the first President wrote to the Jewish Community of Newport, in which he thanked them for hospitality shown him in a visit to Newport.

A very fine report was rendered by Mrs. Ned Newburger on Lion Feuchtwanger's "Josephus," after which a discussion followed led by Rabbi Mazure, conductor of the Circle, on the character of Joseph Flavius, the hero of the book, and the historical background of the story. Refreshments were served by the hostess of the afternoon, Mrs. Charles Senter.

The next meeting of the circle will be held in the home of Mrs. Leo Weiner the President of the Sisterhood, 182 Sumter street, on March 8th.

NOTICE

The following statement was made by Nat C. Cohen, Chairman, Membership Committee of the Jewish Home for the Aged of Rhode Island:

"I want to take this means of extending to the captains and workers of the recent Membership Enrollment, my sincere appreciation for the wonderful support they have given me. Adverse conditions and particularly inclement weather have made it doubly hard for the workers in their noble efforts to secure members.

"Due to these conditions, only a portion of our prospective members have been reached, yet, in spite of all obstacles, close to 300 new members have been added to our Honor Roll.

"The Membership Committee will continue in its efforts until our goal is reached. Those of the workers who have the Home at heart and wish to continue, are requested to notify the office that they can give some of their time for this fine cause."

Jewish Welfare Society Case Committee Meets

The first 1933 meeting of the Case Committee of the Jewish Family Welfare Society was held last Wednesday in the society's office headquarters on North Main street. This committee meets once a month to discuss difficult family situations presented by the Executive Director, Miss Jessie Joselowitz, and advises on treatment.

The members who constitute this committee are Mrs. Fred Adler, President, South Providence Ladies' Aid; Mrs. Moses Einstein, Mrs. Edward Finberg, Mrs. Winifred Fitzpatrick, Providence District Nursing Association; Rabbi Israel M. Goldman, Miss Esther Greene, Child Guidance Clinic; Harry A. Hoffman, Jewish War Veterans; Isadore S. Hornstein, Dr. Jacob Kasarin, State Hospital for Mental Diseases; Dr. Louis I. Kramer, Arthur J. Famous chefs will tell you that the best foods are often prepared from the simplest recipes. They say that favorite dishes the world over are the result of time-tested, simple formulas. Many people find that the recipe for happiness is like that.

Some people try too hard to be happy. The answer is very simple after all. The Old Colony way of helping folks to acquire homes and to save money is simple, time-tested and common-sense. It supplies two most important ingredients of this recipe for happiness. Let us tell you about it . . . tomorrow.

By SYLVIA L. ROBIN

As their first offering, "When Women Are Jurymen," was presented by a dramatic group from the Providence Section, National Council of Jewish Women, as the entertainment for the meeting last Friday, at Temple Beth-El. The selection was very apropos, inasmuch as the audience could well appreciate the trials and tribulations that beset the poor married women of the east. As the Judge, Mrs. Harry Pinkerson, was most amusing. Mrs. Charles Copeland, as Prosecuting Attorney, did a fine piece of work, and Mrs. Abraham Mines, Attorney for the Defense, made a most appealing plea for the defendant, Mrs. Harold Rogell.

The jury consisted of only six women, because this number was certainly the equivalent of twelve mere men. The jurors were: Mrs. Edward Altman, in red, as the sophisticated member of the six; Mrs. Nathan Bolotow, a sweet matron; Mrs. E. Gardner Jacobs, as the nervous little woman; Mrs. David Adelman, as the mature individual who could give the best advice; Mrs. Myer Tannenbaum, as the bride of a few months, and Mrs. Allen Markoff, as the flighty divorcee. Mrs. Raymond Franks took the part of the only man in the cast—the clerk, and certainly portrayed a bored individual among so many women. The presentation was excellent, and much credit is due the coach, Mrs. Nancy Starr.

The annual George Washington luncheon and bridge, sponsored by the Vets' Auxiliary in the Princess Room of the Crown Hotel, was an overwhelming success. In the doorway of the Princess Room the hostesses received the guests. Mrs. Joseph Fields chairman, wore a shoulder bouquet, and so did the President, Mrs. Aaron Cohen. Mrs. Reuben Blumenthal had a corsage of red flowers at her waist, so she could be distinguished from the other hostesses, who were:

Mrs. Morris Cowan, Mrs. John Rouslin, Mrs. Abe Halpert, Mrs. Reuben Lipson, Mrs. Joseph Strauss and Mrs. Barney Taber. Various organizations were represented among them—those tireless workers for Hadassah, Mrs. William Reuter, Mrs. Simon Licker, Mrs. William Schmelz, Mrs. Maurice Robinson, Mrs. Louis Mayberg and others. The afternoon was nearly spoiled for Mrs. Moe Bernstein, who forgot to wear her red, white and blue beads, however, the little American flags in the corner of each napkin, the table decorations, and the prizes, wrapped in red, white and blue, helped save the day. A delicious luncheon was served—no one seemed to be on a diet—and then bridge was in order. A door prize, was won by Mrs. Philip Kenner.

Among the prize winners were Mrs. B. Zeidel, Mrs. S. Greenberg, Mrs. H. Butter, Mrs. S. Ponce, Mrs. W. Strong, Mrs. M. Sydel, Mrs. M. Ostrow, Mrs. M. Salk, Mrs. Eva Stein, Mrs. Lee Glass, Mrs. Edith Rakus, Mrs. M. Mellion, Mrs. L. Bernstein and others who slipped away before their names could be learned. There were a few who nearly won and they deserve special mention. Better luck next time, Mrs. Charles Dickens, Mrs. Ted Rosenblatt and Mrs. Irving Glantz. The afternoon was enjoyed by all present and they'll all be waiting for the next affair of this kind.

It was a refreshing change and a pleasant evening was had by all, when the Men's Club of the Jewish Center acted as hosts at the first annual Ladies' Night, Monday. Dr. Eske Windsberg, the affable chairman, was assisted by Morris Sydel, who welcomed the guests; Charles Korn, in tuxedo, who made a splendid walter, napkin and all; Sidney Rabinowitz, who distributed cards, tallies and pencils, and made sure to get them all back again. David Isserlis and Benjamin Agronick also did their bit. About 25 tables were in play.

Some of the ladies refused to play with their husbands, and Dr. Windsberg said he didn't blame them a bit and gave permission to play by themselves. The generous Doc also passed out cigarettes at each table then made the rounds and took back a few—so no one could say he did not have an ample supply.

One of the marvels of the evening occurred when David Gelfner, who had never played bridge before, walked off with the prize. There was a prize at each table, so you see "one out of every four" was sure to get it. At about 10:30 it was suggested that the floor be cleared for dancing, and someone went off to look for music, but at the end of an hour's wait for the music, most of the guests danced off to their homes.

PURIM ENTERTAINMENT

An exceptionally fine Purim entertainment has been arranged for the old folks at the Home for Sunday, March 12, at 7 p. m., through the courtesy of Mrs. Morris Sheer. The entire program will be rendered by various Young Judaea clubs.

A Purim play, especially written for the occasion, by Martin Cohen, leader of Young Israel, Young Judaea Club, will be presented and promises to be of great enjoyment for the old folks. Miss Sarah Lasker has arranged with her group, a number of presentations of Palestinian songs and dances. Sydney Ballon, chairman of the Young Judaea Executive Committee, is taking a great interest in this program and will arrange special numbers to be given by members of the Council.

The public is cordially invited.

BOARD MEETING

The Board of Directors of the Home met Tuesday, Feb. 28th, at which time the following chairman reported for their committees:

Nat C. Cohen, membership; Bernard M. Goldowsky, entertainment; James Goldman, house; Mrs. Samuel N. Deutch, admissions; Henry Hasenfeld, finance; Milton Sulzberger, budget; Judge J. Jerome Hahn, memorial; Walter I. Smdlun, legal; Dr. Leo Cohen, medical. Important matters were discussed.

PASSOVER SEDER RESERVATIONS

A public Seder and open house at the Home will be held the second day of Passover, April 11. No invitations will be issued, as it is not the object of the entertainment committee to make a profit on the Seder, but to entertain the old folks and carry out the festival in its proper spirit.

Reservations must be made in advance through Mrs. Leo Logan, chairman of reservations, or at the office of the home.

BABEL OF TONGUES (A Tragedy)

By BERNARD M. GOLDOWSKY

Mrs. Yarmulka: "Oj, Mrs. Shmulovitz, have you heard that the old people in the Jewish Home for the Aged are half-starved?"

Mrs. Shmulovitz: "Wie heist, have I heard? I heard it even yesterday. I met Yachneh, Yankel the fish dealer's wife in the butcher shop and she told me that the Superintendent of the Home ordered only ten pounds of fish. Ver is mir! Only ten pounds of fish for so many old people!"

Mrs. Yarmulka: "S funny, Feigele, Shmerl, the fish dealer's wife, told me the very same thing. Last Thursday she said the Superintendent ordered only ten pounds of fish, what do you say to that?"

Mrs. Shmulovitz: "Did you say that was last Thursday? Why that was the same day the ten pounds of fish was ordered from Yankel. That would make it twenty pounds for one day. Not so bad!"

Mrs. Yarmulka: "Anyhow, the old people don't get enough to eat. I know for sure, because my cousin Malka's husband's uncle told my sister-in-law Rachel that his wife's grandfather, who is in the Home, told one of his grandchildren that the Superintendent and his wife eat up all the meat they buy for the old people. Of course, Mrs. Shmulovitz, you understand that what I told you mustn't go further."

MORAL.

Before proceeding to spread poisonous gossip against that wonderful couple, the Superintendent and his wife, who work so diligently, faithfully and conscientiously in the interest of the Home, the mischievous tattlers should in all fairness ascertain all facts. They will soon realize that the Jewish Home for the Aged is an infirmary and a hospital as well as a home. And that in consequence thereof the old people are fed in accordance with the physician's orders.

The old people are not growing youngsters whose digestive organs function properly and who do not suffer from heart disease or high blood pressure—or perhaps both.

Oh you gossip mongers!

Jewish Center Men's Assn. Holds Bridge at Annual Ladies' Night

Members of the Jewish Center Men's Association held their annual Ladies' Night party at the Center Monday evening. Bridge was played and prizes were won by the following:

Mr. and Mrs. Max Goldshine, Miss Rebecca B. Goldstein, Mrs. Fred Abrams, Mrs. Samuel Mistowsky, Mrs. Harry Katz, Miss Helen Pohor, Miss Evelyn Simon, Edmund Wexler, Mrs. Benjamin Rouslin, Mrs. Samuel Halpern, Mrs. David Bloomberg, Mrs. Philip Pokras, Mrs. Harold Klibanoff, William Cohen, Mrs. Herman Abrams, Jack Saltzman, Mrs. Milton Blazar, Mrs. Harry Winkler, Mrs. Samuel Vigo, Miss Rose Berditch, David Gelfner, Dr. Arthur H. Brown, Louis Blumenthal and Herman Selya.

The party was arranged by a committee including Dr. Eske Windsberg, chairman; Benjamin Agronick, Davis Isserlis and Morris R. Sydel.

NEWPORT SERVICES

At the late services, to be held this evening, beginning at 8 o'clock, Rabbi Gutstein will deliver a discourse on "Technocracy, A Jewish Point of View."

Tomorrow's services will be held from 9 to 11 o'clock and the Rabbi will preach a sermon on the portion of the week.

MEN'S CLUB ORGANIZED

Rabbi Gutstein was instrumental in organizing a men's club to be called the Jewish Men's Club of Newport. A meeting was held Thursday, when officers and a board of directors were elected. Additional members on the board are: M. Adelson, M. Teitz, Mr. Kusinitz and Dr. J. Pecow. S. Desotnick was elected secretary and N. Ball, treasurer.

It was decided that meetings would consist of a short business session followed by a discussion on a topic of interest and will close with a social hour.

The next meeting of the group will take place Tuesday, March 7, with Rabbi Gutstein leading the discussion on "Is Anti-Semitism Eradicable?"

RECONSECRATION ANNIVERSARY

Plans are being formulated by Nathan David and Rabbi Gutstein for the celebration of the 50th anniversary of the reconsecration of the Touro Synagogue to be held in May.

It will also mark the 25th anniversary of the organization of the Congregation Jeshuat Israel.

NOTES

At the regular meeting of the Newport Chapter of Hadassah held Wednesday, plans were discussed for a card party to be held the latter part of this month. Mrs. Max Adelson presided.

The Ladies' Auxiliary will hold a bridge, Tuesday, March 7. The proceeds will be used for charity.

A NEW PRESIDENT

Franklin Delano Roosevelt tomorrow starts on a course which, whether it ends four or eight years hence, offers him every opportunity to emerge one of the really great Presidents in American history. His job presents tremendous difficulties—his first duty is to rescue the nation and the whole world from the doldrums of depression—but equally tremendous is his opportunity to become the Saviour of the World.

At the very beginning of his term, when the frills and fanfare of inauguration have faded, Mr. Roosevelt faces what will undoubtedly be the most crucial test of his presidential career. This test comes on the questions of his being given extraordinary powers, even dictatorial authority. First, he must establish control over his own party, the majority party, and therefore control over the course of legislation in Congress.

The people last November, by his overwhelming victory, said plainly that their hope and faith is in this man. Perhaps never since George Washington has a president taken office with public opinion so strongly united behind him. The new president also has clear majority in Congress. The setting is quite different from the last years of the Hoover administration when the Chief Executive obviously lost the respect of Congress and was never able to re-establish his authority.

Mr. Roosevelt will profit from his predecessor's terrible mistake. The way even now is clear to him. Mistrustful of Congress—and the mistrust has been earned by the antics of that body during the past few months—the people have decided that power must be concentrated in the hands of the President; they are determined to put faith in the benevolence of a dictator such as Mr. Roosevelt rather than to continue to hope for relief from a thoroughly discredited body of politicians, at least during the present emergency. When the millions of voters decided they wanted a change, they meant that change to include not only the administration but they also demanded that an unreliable Congress must cease to "act up."

Since November, Congress has shown no improvement, but there is a good political reason for that. Democratic majorities in both Houses had no intention of allowing a Republican President to take credit for starting the nation on the road to recovery when a president of their own political faith awaited induction into office. From a narrow political viewpoint, therefore, the obstruction tactics of the past few months may be somewhat justified. Henceforth Congress will show itself wiser to be docile and self-effacing by allowing the new President to roll up his sleeves and start accomplishing things from the very beginning.

Mr. Roosevelt plans to waste no time setting about his task of reconstruction and rehabilitation. Present indications point to a special session of Congress, March 20, scarcely a fortnight after his inauguration, when he will begin work on emergency measures that already have taken definite form in his mind.

The new President is to be commended on his cabinet selections. They are, on the whole, a group that will follow the leader instead of trying to interfere with his program. Whether that program is right or wrong time eventually will prove. What the people want today, right now, is action of some kind, in some direction, and they have indicated their belief that Mr. Roosevelt is on the right track. If he had grouped about him as advisors such outstanding and outspoken figures as Al Smith, Newton D. Baker, Owen D. Young, James W. Davis and others like them, Mr. Roosevelt might have been penned in by a stone wall. These men, all great statesmen, have definite ideas of their own on the particular problems which face the President. They not only clash with his policies, but are not in complete harmony with each other.

His choice of less outstanding advisors, although they may be no less able, makes for speedy accomplishment without risking delays as indecisiveness through differences of opinion. As it is, Mr. Roosevelt will be President in fact as well as in theory.

He faces mighty problems; he must be given extraordinary authority if he is to solve them; and, above all, he must act speedily, unhindered, unafraid, uninfluenced.

TIDBITS AND NEWS OF JEWISH PERSONALITIES

By DAVID SCHWARTZ

Sinclair Presents Fox

"Upton Sinclair presents William Fox." Such is the name of a new opus just off the press that may be expected to create something of a sensation. William Fox, it appears, has made use of Upton Sinclair to reveal the story of his crash.

Fox claims that Wall Street formed a conspiracy against him to bring about his downfall.

But it appears, in the end that Fox lived up to his name. The crash came along, and those who had forced him to sell out, found that they were greater losers thereby than Fox.

Moreover, the fox after being turned out of his own lair, turned bear on the market, and claims to have cleared ten-million in that role.

So the story ends well for the Fox.

Sinclair's story of William Fox recalls a similar story in Theodore Dreiser's "Twelve Men," the story of a New York Jewish traction magnate, who rose from the slums to be the all-powerful traction power in New York.

At his height, this Jewish magnate, built himself a mansion, that beggared royal palaces by comparisons. The gardens that surrounded the mansion, looked like nothing except a chapter from some fairy tale. The Jewish magnate had a secret passion for literary life, and in a compensatory manner for his own literary frustration, made his home the rendezvous for the elite of the literary and artistic world.

But the Jew's power displeased the powers of finance, and they, according to Dreiser set themselves to encompass his fall. And they did it very successfully.

But Fox, it appears, was wlier. He can, if we may believe Sinclair's story, thumb his nose at his foes and say: Behold, that which you conspired against me has fallen upon your own head. Selah!

A Futuristic Picture

As they tell it, it was in the year 1940. I mean just that—1940. The Five-Year Plan had been completed. Everything Sovietish was hunky-dory. Joseph Stalin contemplated the unfolded scene with satisfaction.

Everything, as I have said, was okay, and it was in the year 1940.

Some Jews from Moscow were zooming across the Russian airways. As they put Moscow some 100 miles behind, Chayim looks out from his airplane and whom does he see but Shmooel airplaning in reverse direction.

"Where are you going, Shmooel?" cried Chayim.

"To Charkow," returned Shmooel.

"Vos geht ihr epes kein Charkow," continued Chayim, recalling that Charkow was a distance of over 500 miles.

"Mir hoben gehert," said Shmooel, "az men git putter dorten."

Sound Advice

Another storyette that they are telling these days concerning the young man who came to New York from Milwaukee.

The young man was financially embarrassed. He wired home to his parents:

"Broke. Have no friends. What shall I do?"

Fortwith there came a reply from his parents.

"Make friends quick."

At Ease In Zion

James Waterman Wise mourns that Zionism has become too easy. He would almost wish, he adds, that it might become as unrespectable as in the old days to be a Zionist.

The disappearance from the movement of the sacrificial element has tended to a dilution of Zionist fealty. Such is the reasoning. Mr. Wise would mend matters by trying to precipitate the American movement into controversy. He feels that American Zionists should have the various schools of Zionism—Labor, Revisionist, Mizrachist, present their respective sides—and that the resultant temperature of the controversy might warm up the movement.

We are in general, sympathetic with the idea of presenting the various schools of Zionist thought, but we are not apprehensive on the score of the need of some opposition. What is the matter, for instance, with Hitler for that purpose.

The Lord, it seems to us, will always watch over his chosen Israel. He will not fail to provide us with temperature.

Story Is Challenged

And speaking of the ease of being a Zionist these days, a recent reference in this column to the alleged removal some years ago, from the Hebrew Union College faculty of several of its staff on the charge of being Zionists, has brought a denial from Dr. Julius Morgenstern, President of the Hebrew Union College.

In a letter to Dr. Joshua Bloch, chief of the Jewish Division of the New York Public Library, Dr. Morgenstern contends that the question of Zionism never entered into the issue at all.

We are willing to accept Dr. Morgenstern's word for it, and it is only fair to say that in any event, the matter does not reflect on Dr. Morgenstern, as the incident antedated by some years his own presidency.

Pure Logic

I listened the other day in an East Side cafe to a very erudite demonstration of the Theorem that Abraham wore a 'yarmulke' (skull-cap).

"It's very easy," began this scholar, "to prove that Abraham must have worn a yarmulke.

"For it is written in the Bible, 'Va-yelach Avraham'—'And Abraham went.'"

"Now, if Abraham went, it stands to reason that he would not go without a yarmulke."

A Christian Tribute

This department's Detroit Bureau sends in an interesting little incident. I quote it as it was relayed to me:

"Frank Borg, editor of the Maltese Press, Detroit, called the Jewish Chronicle to inquire whether it is true that it is against Jewish practice to send flowers at funerals. The Chronicle agreed that it was. Mr. Borg then asked what he could do to show sympathy to friends who lost a son. It was suggested that he plant a tree in Palestine. The next morning, the Chronicle received a check which he asked to forward to the Jewish National Fund, planting a tree in memory of Ralph Schneider, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Schneider."

Depressions—Old and New

There were depressions in Biblical days, too. In fact, Mr. Gilbert Seldes has just written a tome about the present depression and for a name for it, he went to the Bible, namely, "The Years of the Locust." I wish he had given it the full Biblical phrasing—"The years that the locusts have eaten." It seems to me so graphic a phrase. It is as though we might call the present depression—"The Years That Them 12-000,000 Walked Empty."

But there was one outstanding difference between these old and the newer depressions. They were caused by shortages. "And there was hunger in the land," as the Bible put it.

Today, there is suffering because there is no hunger. Now, when we have too much—depressions come.

Barcelona, Mar. 3—(JTA)—A Jewish Community has been formed in Seville with the permission of the Civil Governor who authorized the establishment of a synagogue there.

Eighteen Jewish families have joined the community, which has affiliated itself with the Barcelona Community, headed by Rabbi Friedmann.

This is the second attempt to set up a communal organization in Seville. In 1915, a Jewish Community was established, and subsequently disbanded because the Jews were compelled to leave the city owing to the severe economic conditions.

Three Faiths Protest Hitlerism Menace

when a man is placed in office who wrote, as one of Herr Hitler's lieutenants did a few months ago, that the Nazis would not murder the Jews when his party came to power.

"The literature of politics, indeed, all history, is replete with accounts of things that have been done after the opposite intention has been declared. 'Captain Goering, who took that pledge to do no murder, made it appear as an concession to what he called a disruptive and poisonous element which had brought harm to the German people.' Captain Goering is now Speaker of the Reichstag and Minister of the Interior for Prussia."

"We are not met to offer counsel to Germany. We are not met to make protest against Germany, but as friends and well-wishers of Germany, we wish today to point out certain dangers to Germany, which inhere in the situation which has come to pass," said Dr. Wise.

"There is a two-fold danger that faces Germany today—the danger in the relationship with which Germany will be wise enough to deal, and the danger of peril and strife in the inner life of Germany; the conflict and the strife are at hand. We Jews are not the only victims of Hitlerist terror and oppression. We are merely the earliest and the chiefest victims of Hitlerite hatred and rage. Hitlerism means one thing—no friend of humanity, no friend of Germany, and we who are the friends and well-wishers of Germany, cannot fail to lament over the truth that Hitlerism means the rule of hatred, a nation that has served by hatred is tragically dis-served. A leader who sets out to divide his national home against itself may have electoral triumphs for an hour, but he is bound to go down in the end in moral defeat and in spiritual disaster."

CIVIL MARRIAGE BILL REPORTED FAVORABLY

Annapolis, Md., Mar. 3—(JTA)—A favorable report on the so-called civil-marriages bill, which has the backing of several Rabbis, including the Rev. Dr. Morris S. Lazaron, of the Madison Avenue Temple, Baltimore, was adopted by the House of Delegates of the Maryland General Assembly.

The measure would permit judges and clerks of any court of record to perform marriages.

As introduced, the bill would have permitted mayors to perform ceremonies, but a committee amendment eliminated the provisions conferring this authority on mayors.

It was explained that the measure would not compel all marriages to be by civil officers, but left the matter discretionary.

Young Judaea Clubs

YOUNG ISRAEL

Young Israel observed the Friday evening and Saturday morning services. Martin Cohen, club cantor, officiated at the pulpit and chanted the liturgy of the Rosh Chodesh Adar benediction.

The club will present a Jewish Purim Play at the Home for the Aged, March 12, entitled "De Zeide oif Purim," composed of Martin Cohen, leader, who will be in the main role. The other characters are Israel Zukroff, Hyman Weinberg, Samuel Penn and Anne Chorney.

Samuel Wilk placed in the Jewish Community Center Declamation Contest, Wednesday evening.

The deferred debate between Jacob Marks and Hyman Blazer will feature the next religious services.

Hebrew Free Loan Assn. Annual Dance to be Held at Rhodes, June 6

At a recent meeting of the Hebrew Free-Loan Association, a committee was appointed to make arrangements for the annual dance to be held Tuesday evening, June 6, at Rhodes-on-the-Pawtuxet.

The committee consists of Max M. Pullman, chairman; Charles J. Senter, co-chairman; Leo Miller, secretary; Alfred Finkelstein, treasurer; Irving J. Glantz, Frank Koplan and Alexander Zalkind.

The proceeds of the affair are used to enlarge the capital of the organization whose policy is to loan money to those in need without interest or charge of any kind.

U. S. Revisionists Would Boycott Zionist Congress

New York, Mar. 3 — (JTA) The Zionist Revisionist Organization of America in a resolution adopted at a joint meeting of its central and political committees, call upon the World Union of Zionist Revisionists, not to participate in the Zionist World Congress this summer.

The resolution asks the Party Council, which is to be held in Katowicz, Poland, on March 5th, to act in this connection. The resolution declares: "We are against participation in the next World Zionist Congress and in the election of delegates to the Congress. We believe, however, that it would be disastrous to the cause of Revisionism and the Revisionist Union should only a part of all the Revisionists go to the Congress."

"A united front obligatory to all Revisionists must be found."

Einstein May Suffer as Hitler Government Withdraws Passports of Pacifists

Berlin, Mar. 3 — (JTA) — Distinguished pacifist leaders, such as Prof. Albert Einstein, the noted scientist, are in danger of having their rights to leave Germany withdrawn in accordance with a new practice introduced by the government of Chancellor Adolph Hitler.

The new government has adopted the principle of withdrawing the passports of such citizens as it deems have hurt the German cause through their activities abroad.

This new principle has already been applied to Hellmuth, von Gerlach and Karl von Ossietzky, leaders of German liberalism and the pacifist movement in Germany, whose passports have been withdrawn.

Prof. Einstein, who is now in the United States, is an outstanding pacifist leader of Germany.

WIDOW OF SHOLOM ALEICHEM SAILS FOR EUROPE ON BREMEN

New York, Mar. 3—(JTA)—Mrs. Olga Rabinowitz, widow of Sholom Aleichem, known as the Jewish Mark Twain, sailed for Europe aboard the Bremen.

Mrs. Rabinowitz is going to Paris to attend the opening of an exhibition of the works of her youngest son, Nemo Rabinowitz, an artist.

Seek to Persuade Mallah to Run for Parliament

Athens, Mar. 3 — (JTA)—Efforts to persuade Asher Mallah, former representative of the Jewish Community in the Greek Senate, to run for election in the forthcoming parliamentary elections on March 5th, are being made at the insistence of former Premier Venizelos.

Venizelos telegraphed to former Minister of Aviation, Sannas, in Salonica, to persuade Mallah to run. Venizelos is hopeful that Mallah will capture one of the two seats, to which the Jews are entitled, for his party. In the last election none of the Jewish candidates of the Venizelos party were elected.

Former Senator Mallah, however, has remained firm in his decision to abandon political activity. He informed the Jewish Telegraphic Agency that he desired to devote his entire activity to Palestine work.

Five Jewish Farms Are Placed on Black List for Delinquency in Warsaw

Moscow, Mar. 3 — (JTA) — Five Jewish farms in the Kalinindorf region were placed on the black list for failing to fulfill the plans for the spring sowing and possessing less than one per cent. of the seed necessary.

The Jewish farms are Lulov, Bobrovikut, Freleben, Vogoshilov and Sholem Aleichem. Their delinquency is part of a general delinquency in the Kalinindorf region where an average of only 14 per cent. of the seed for the spring has been sown.

In addition to being placed on the black list the Jewish farms were deprived of their petroleum supply as well as other necessities and were prohibited from selling agricultural products in the collective markets.

ANNUAL CONVENTION OF KEHILLAH COUNCIL HELD

New York, Mar. 3 — (JTA) — The Jewish Council of Greater New York, co-operating with the work of the American Jewish Congress, held its sixth annual convention recently at the Hotel Imperial.

Among those who participated in the program were Hon. Bernard S. Deutsch, Louis Lipsky, Hon. Carl Sherman, Jacob Fishman, Dr. Samuel Margoshes, Bernard G. Richards, Hon. Samuel Dickstein, Herman G. Robbins and Jacob L. Warkow.

Hilferding Denies Hitler's Allegations

Berlin, Mar. 3 — (JTA) — Dr. Rudolf Hilferding, leader of the Social Democratic Party in Germany, addressing a meeting of the Iron Front in Halberstadt, refuted the allegations that he was responsible for the inflation of 1923, as charged by Adolph Hitler, in an address delivered recently.

"The worst time of my life was in August, 1923, when I took over the Ministry of Finance," Hilferding declared. "When fifty thousand marks had the value of only five pfennigs, I immediately introduced a gold mark and submitted to the Reichstag the gold mark stabilization plan which the Reichstag adopted and Dr. Hans Luther executed."

DISPLAY OF SCROLLS OF BOOK OF ESTHER AT SEMINARY

New York, Mar. 3 — (JTA) — Beginning Sunday, March 5, and continuing until March 26th, an exhibition of beautifully illuminated parchment and leather Scrolls of the Book of Esther, some of them dating back to the 16th century, and representing almost every country in Europe and the Orient, will be shown at the Museum of Jewish Ceremonial Objects in the Library Building of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America.

This exhibition is arranged in connection with the Jewish festival of Purim, which occurs on March 12. The seminary's collection of illuminated and printed megilloth in Hebrew and other languages, is one of the largest in existence.

FIELDS LOSES TITLE AGAIN

Jackie Fields who in his very private life is known as Jacob Finkelstein, is no longer welterweight champion of the United States. Last week, in the fair city of San Francisco, he fought Young Corbett, who in his very private life is known as Raffaele Giordano. The fight went the entire route of ten rounds and Young Corbett was awarded the decision without any dissenting votes being cast.

It was a mildly exciting fight with Fields unable to get started. By the end of the fifth round, Corbett had piled up a commanding lead, which only a knockout could overcome. Fields got going in the sixth and for two rounds carried the fight, but he tired and Corbett swept through the last two stanzas with little opposition.

In winning the title Corbett achieved the distinction of having beaten champions on three different occasions. Three years ago, in a fight in which the title was not at stake, he won a decision over Fields, who has won and lost the championship twice. A few months after trimming Fields the Italian gentleman with the Irish ponicker, took on Young Jack Thompson a lad of color who had succeeded to the title by beating Fields. He gave the negro a terrific beating, but the title was not in play, so it was no go. Now there is no question about it.

Jackie Fields' defeat did not come as a surprise. During the past two years he has been suffering from eye trouble and has never been able to reach the heights he touched on his rise to fame. Four years ago, when I first met Fields, he told me that he wanted the title and when he got it, he was going to fight for one year and then retire. It was too bad he didn't follow the dictates of his own mind. If he continues to fight he can be certain that we will finish his ring career with a very poor pair of optics.

ROSENBLUM BOUNCED AROUND BUT WINS ANYWAY

Maxie Rosenbloom, the perennial light heavyweight champion, who keeps in training by fighting as often as possible, was bounced around a St. Louis ring by a certain Al Stillman.

In the fourth round our hero was knocked to the floor for a count of seven, but arose and went on to win the judges decision in a 15-round non-title fight.

OTHER FIGHT NEWS

The boys, that is some of them, certainly wear well. Benny Bass of Philadelphia is still in there earning money by using his leather encased hands. He beat Tommy Grogan the other night.

Kirig Levinsky, who made a new start for heavyweight honors at Madison Square Garden last week when he met Johnny Risko in a 10 rounder, lost to the Cleveland fighter. Levinsky had two wins to his credit. Risko is a very battered old veteran, who should have retired years ago. Mrs. Lena Levy, the only licensed female fight manager in the country, was on deck. She is not permitted to sit in Levinsky's corner, but she can make matches and collect the dough, which is, rather important.

CHATTERINGS

Nat Holman, famous basketball coach, has taken to squash. The Y. M. H. A. at 92nd street in New York, has put in a court and Holman can be seen sporting himself daily. The vocational director, Irwin Rosen, who learned the game while a student at Harvard, is his sometime partner.

Abie Feldman, hailed as the Jewish Jack Dempsey, will have his chance to regain the prestige he lost when he was tied by Johnny Rousseau a few weeks back. The pair met as part of the Levinsky-Risko show. The excuse for Feldman's bad showing is a bad ear that was lanced right before the fight. This time nothing but a sore nose is on the horizon as a possible alibi. The story, and it is a sad one, is that Feldman would never have fought except that he needed money for an operation, which his father had to undergo.

Mrs. Lena Levy, mentioned above, is also the manager of Tony Canceled. Tony tied up with the lady when he realized that she had made $90,000 in one year for her brother, King Levinsky, a really ordinary fighter.

Sammy Stein is becoming the most persistent challenger for the wrestling championship. Now that Strangler Lewis has been dethroned, Stein has been given a go at Jim Browning the new champion. If Stein was unable to beat Lewis, what chance has he against Lewis' conqueror. But then you never can tell what will happen in a wrestling bout.

When Fields lost his title to Corbett he was paid $35,000—the winner got a mere $3550. What's the moral, if any?

How silently the big league baseball teams got off to their training quarters this year? Usually there is much noise in the public prints, but this time it was kept practically a secret.

Louis "Kid" Kaplan, who certainly was a credit to the ring, has retired with the sight of one eye impaired. He is in bad financial straits. Wall Street accounted for some quarter million dollars—just about all that Kaplan had earned. In the old days fighters were held up as horrible examples of profligate living, but in the past decade the boys have invested in real estate, stocks and bonds, etc. And where are they? In the same spot that the old timers found themselves but without even the memories of a good time.

JEWISH PROFESSOR HAILED BY PONTIFICAL ACADEMY

Rome, Mar. 3 — (JTA) — Professor Levi Civita, only Jewish member of the Pontifical Academy of Science, addressed the Academy recently.

R. I. W. B. A. Plans for Smoker-Entertainment at Eagles' Hall, Mar. 21

Plans are being formulated by the Rhode Island Workingmen's Beneficial Association for a smoker and entertainment to be held Tuesday evening, March 21, at Eagles' Auditorium.

Sydney Hoffman, chairman of arrangements, announced that he has several surprise features for the evening. Mr. Hoffman will be assisted by Abe Swerling, Aaron Bilgor, Samuel Shanbrun, Albert Sokolow, Jacob Ponce and S. Kaufman.

Agitate Against Jews; Assert Ready to Receive Refugees

France, Mar. 3 — (JTA) — Despite the official denial that there is a mass Jewish migration movement from Germany to Czechoslovakia, the Czechoslovakian press continues to publish reports to this effect, aimed primarily at inciting against Czechoslovakian Jews.

The papers allege that Czech Jews are ready to receive German Jews despite the unemployment situation and the general hardships in the country.

Replying to this incitement, the Zionist organ, "Zidovske Sprave," recalls that after the Communist Revolution in Russia, hundreds of thousands of refugees arrived in Czechoslovakia and that though many of them were responsible for pogroms against the Jews, they enjoyed subsidies from the government, made possible through taxes on the people, in which the Jews shared to a considerable extent.

At this time, the Jews, notwithstanding that they were the sufferers did not protest. "Therefore," says the paper, "should Jews from other countries escape from pogromists, we would consider it our solemn duty to assist them and the present agitation will neither intimidate us nor prevent us from carrying out this intention."

PLAYED PROMINENT ROLE IN ANTI-ZIONIST MOVEMENT

London, Mar. 3 — (JTA) — The death here last week of Lord Sydenham, former Governor of Victoria, Secretary to the Committee of Imperial Defense and chairman of the Central Appeal Tribunal in the early years of the war, recalls the prominent part he played in the anti-Zionist movement.

Lord Sydenham spoke and wrote repeatedly against the British policy in Palestine. He initiated several anti-Zionist debates in the House of Lords.

He seconded the motion introduced by Lord Islington in the House of Lords in June, 1922, opposing the confirmation of the Palestine Mandate, which was carried by 60 votes to 29, in spite of an eloquent and impressive appeal by the late Lord Balfour himself.

MRS. JOSH W. MAYER BURIED

New York, Mar. 3 — (JTA) — Funeral services were held here for Mrs. Flora E. Mayer, widow of Josh W. Mayer, who was active in philanthropic work in this city.

Mrs. Mayer was 58 years old. She was one of the first women to be elected a member of the board of trustees of Temple Israel.

By NINA KAYE

There's was one of those affairs where, having known each other two weeks, it was as if they had known each other all their lives. They couldn't have loved each other more if they had grown up together. They couldn't have loved each other more if they had been happily married for fifty years.

They met, in those early years when all young people went to camp. It wasn't a question, then, of how you would spend your vacation. It was merely which camp are you going to?

Julia Taft saved and planned fifty weeks a year for those two glorious weeks in the country, two weeks that were fourteen golden days to look forward to and back on the rest of the year.

She hadn't been in camp half a day when she met Milt Bragin, a Senior in medical college, who was earning his vacation by acting as camp physician. Almost immediately, the names of Julia and Milt were as closely associated as bread and butter.

They didn't mind the jokes and teasing, they hardly saw what was going on about them. They seemed to dwell in some secret world of their own, inhabited solely by the two of them. It is unbelievable how many wonderful hours there are in a brief two weeks, until they have all passed.

The night before her vacation was over, Julia sat on the edge of the pier, waiting for Milt. He had gone back for her sweater and she was waiting for him there in the dark with a certain breathless expectancy. It was incredible to think that Milt would let her go back to the city without saying—well, at least without asking her to wait for him until he was out of college and ready to start out on his own.

Hearing footsteps on the board pier, Julia shrank into the shadows. It sounded like two people approaching and she didn't want to speak to anyone now except Milt.

And then she heard his voice. "You'd better go back now, Sam. It won't do you any good to tag after me."

Sam Silver, whom Julia instinctively hated, laughed a rasping laugh. "I'm going to stick to you tonight, all right," he said, "if I have to stay up all night."

"It won't do you any good, Sam," Milt threatened, his voice low.

"Oh, yes it will," Sam replied. "I'll keep me my best friend. And it'll save you from making a wreck of your life. After all you've said, that you weren't going to let anything stop you from doing what you'd set out to do. And now, just because a girl has soft brown eyes and a sweet little face you're going to throw the whole thing overboard. Where is all that talk about your research work? What about the grand things you were going to do?"

"Sam," Milt interrupted, impatiently. "I'm in love with Julia. I don't care if I'll be a general practitioner the rest of my life, though I certainly hadn't planned on it—but can't you see Julia means more than anything else to me, career, ambition?"

Something warm and glowing sang through Julia. She knew he loved her like that, she loved him like that herself!

Sam laughed derisively. "You're the one that was going to write romance out of your life! You're the one that was going to marry a rich girl so you wouldn't have to spend half your life building up a practice you didn't want—you, who've been offered the grandest scholarship in college, you, who put science before everything else!"

"Waiting, breathless, there in the darkness, Julia was certain of Milt's answer. After all, how could anything count against their love?"

She smiled to herself and watched the ripple of the moon on the water. And then, almost before she realized what was happening, she heard them step off the board pier and go slowly up the hill.

It couldn't be possible, she couldn't believe it was happening. She sat there, hands, gripping the rough board until she had no sense of feeling in her fingers any longer. "He just went back to get rid of Sam!" she whispered. "He'll come back to me here. He loves me! He knows I love him!"

How she suffered through the long night that she sat stiff and cold, waiting for him, she could never remember. She went off the next morning without seeing him, without trying to see him. "If he wants me, he'll find out my address from the management. If he wants me, I'll be waiting," she told herself, knowing all along he would not come.

It didn't seem possible that she could go on caring, not after the hurt she had suffered. She came, in time, to think she had forgotten him. She tried not to start when she thought she heard his voice behind her, she tried, desperately, to interest herself in the other men she met in the next five years.

And then, across the crowded restaurant, where she sat at dinner with Bill Kleinfield, she saw him. She almost knew he was there before she actually met his eyes and watched him rise from the table and come toward her.

She leaned across the table quickly, breathlessly, and said to the startled Bill. "If you were going to ask me again tonight to marry you, Bill, I'd say 'yes' now." She saw the flush of startled pleasure on his ruddy face. "Oh, what have I done?" her own startled heart cried, but she lifted her head proudly, knowing she had done it to, save herself humiliation.

And then he was standing beside their table and Julia found herself smiling and introducing Bill as "my fiancé" and even, in a slightly artificial voice, asking him if he had embarked on his research work and, incidentally, if he was married.

Milt's eyes never left her face and Julia shifted her own dark ones, afraid to meet his gaze.

"No," he said soberly, in reply to her questions. "I'm not doing research and I'm not married. Just struggling along trying to build up a practice."

"Why," she laughed, "I thought surely you'd be doing research by now, already on your way to becoming famous. Why don't you marry a wealthy girl and then you'd be able to do what you want to?"

Could he know that she had heard him and Sam that night? She meant it to sound like casual small-talk. And yet, subtly, to stab him. But a shadow crossed his face and she was afraid of what he was going to say.

"That's out of the question for me, I guess. A year ago I found out I've a leaky heart that means I'd better not try marriage—if I want to stay on this much overrated globe."

"Oh," had she cried out or was it merely her own heart that was crying? She managed a formal, "I'm sorry," and before she knew it they were shaking hands and he was making his way back to his own table.

With anguished eyes Julia watched him all the way, knowing she would never see him again, longing with all her being to go with him.

Julia hadn't expected ever to see him again. She never did, though she thought of him again and again, in the busy years that followed.

Often, as she sat opposite Bill at the breakfast table, her eyes leveled into distance, she asked herself, "If he'd married me then, before he knew, we'd have had those years together, those precious, precious years. Now, he hasn't anything, not love and not his career! And I've got Bill!"

And when Bill asked her why she was laughing so bitterly, she could only reply that life was such a huge joke she had to laugh at it every once in a while.

Prof. Auerbach and Wife Commit Suicide

Berlin, Mar. 3—(JTA)—Prof. Felix Auerbach, the noted physicist, connected with the University of Jena, and his wife, Anna, committed suicide on March 1st.

Prof. Auerbach was 77 years old. They left a letter stating that after 50 years of happy marriage they joyfully depart from earthly existence.

Prof. Auerbach had been associated with the University of Jena since 1889 when he was appointed Professor of Theoretical Physics.

He was a native of Breslau where he was born on Nov. 12, 1856, and where he was educated.

He was the author of a number of scientific works.

370 Enrolled at the Teachers' Institute of Seminary, New York

New York, Mar. 3—(JTA)—Dr. Cyrus Adler, President of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, announces that at the opening of the second term of the Teachers' Institute, of which Prof. Mordecai M. Kaplan is dean, the total enrollment in all the departments of the institute is 370.

Of these, 63 are registered in the Professional School of the Institute, 119 in the Seminary College of Jewish Studies and 188 in the Israel Friedlaender Classes.

UNIVERSITY OF LVOV CLOSED

Lvov, Mar. 3—(JTA)—The University of Lvov was closed recently for an indefinite period following a students' lockout as a protest against the proposed modification of the autonomy of Polish universities.

The Polish authorities have in project a measure to permit police to enter the university buildings, and other modifications, in order to prevent a recurrence of the serious anti-Semitic riots which have swept Poland for two successive years.

CLIPPINGS

By AARON READER

Jewish life is full of strange incidents, to which justice cannot always be done by a mere prosaic record. Under this heading we propose to give week by week items taken at random from the Jewish news of the world and to illuminate them with a phrase or two of terse comment—Editor's Note.

Sir Herbert Quotes the Rabbis

Quite a simmer of excitement has been created in the British press by Sir Herbert Samuel's use of a Rabbinical quotation during an ordinary political meeting, which was held under the auspices of the Liberal Party.

Ordinarily when quotations are used in England during addresses of this sort, they are usually classical or citations from the great English writers. Sir Herbert's quotation had reference to his own forty years' service to Liberalism, and ran, "It is not incumbent upon thee to finish the work, neither art thou free to desist from it."

This citation will be recognized as from the Ethics of the Fathers. It is certainly quite a new thing for Jewish politicians to identify themselves so closely with Jewish things as to bring the wisdom of the Rabbis into an ordinary political platform.

Of course, if this custom should become general, politicians will have to pick their quotations very carefully. For instance, the same Ethics of the Fathers offers advice on keeping away from politics. But one has sufficient faith in the discretion of politicians to trust them also to keep away from such quotations.

When a Feast Becomes a Fast

In Germany, this year, the celebration of Purim will be somewhat complicated for Jews who may like to honor it in the customary festive fashion.

And this is brought about through the decision of the National Union of German Ex-Soldiers to devote March 12th as a day of memorial for German soldiers killed in the war. As it happens, March 12th coincides with the festival of Purim.

It is interesting that the representative of the Jewish ex-soldiers, who was present at the meeting at which the date was fixed, pointed out its coincidence with Purim, but nevertheless went on to declare that Jews would do everything to avoid any public festivity or celebration during that day so as not to clash with the general atmosphere of mourning and commemoration.

There is an old saying that when the Messiah comes, all the fasts will become festivals, but we yet have to learn what will happen when—as this year in Germany—a festival is to become a fast.

Houdini and Sir A. Conan Doyle

A new book has just been published abroad, entitled "Houdini and Conan Doyle." A curious coupling—a great conjurer and a great writer.

As is known, Doyle was one of the protagonists of spiritualism, and was mainly responsible for the meteoric growth of the spiritualist movement in various parts of the world. The authors of this book have quite a large number of tales to tell of the strange relationship between the two men. Houdini, whose real name was Erich Weiss, was a Hungarian Jew, son of a Rabbi. They tell a story of how Houdini once tricked Conan Doyle into believing that he had psychic powers.

One day, Houdini called together Mr. Ernst, one of the authors of this book, and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. It was in Houdini's house. There he produced a slate with holes bored through the upper corners. Wires, passed through these holes and terminating in hooks, were fixed by Doyle to anything he cared to choose: a heavy book at one side, a picture frame at another; and there the slate was, suspended in air. Then Doyle went out, at Houdini's request, to write what he liked on a piece of paper. He walked for three blocks before stopping to write, secretly. Ernst remained to see that Houdini did not leave the room.

When Doyle returned he was asked to take a small cork ball, which he himself, before leaving, had stirred with a spoon into a bowl of white ink, and to place it, on the spoon, against the slate. The ball hung suspended against the slate and then rolled upon its surface, writing the words, "Mene, mene, tekel, upharsin," which were the words Doyle had written on the piece of paper.

Conan Doyle was at that time in the middle of his great campaign to make spiritualism a world religion. He was amazed at Houdini's gift but when Houdini smilingly admitted that the whole thing was simply a clever piece of trickery, Sir Arthur flatly refused to accept it.

The tale is very illuminating and goes a long way to show that the deceived is very often more responsible for deception than is the deceiver.

A Buelling Banker

Carl Fuerstenberg, the famous German-Jewish banker, has just died at the age of eighty-two.

Fuerstenberg was quite a character, and many stories, most of them witty, are told about him.

Fuerstenberg was regarded as one of the wittiest men in Germany. He was also a great dueller, when duelling was all the rage and when everybody of any importance had a sabre mark on his cheek in Germany.

The story is told of him that on one occasion he was challenged to a duel by one of his directors. The banker received his opponent's second in his room and finally accepted all the conditions of the duel with protests. But as his opponent's second was leaving the room he called him back.

"By the way," he said, courteously, "in case I am late tomorrow morning for the duel, please tell your man he can start by himself."

PRINT 18,000,000 COPIES OF ANTI-SEMITIC PAPERS DAILY

New York, Mar. 3—(JTA)—Eighteen million copies of anti-Semitic papers are published daily in Germany against the Jewish population, who number 450,000 in a total population of 65,000,000. Dr. Lion Feuchtwanger told a gathering of writers and leaders recently at a tea at the Hotel Commodore, given in his honor by the Jewish Telegraphic Agency.

DR. KAUFMAN RECEIVES SEVEN YEAR APPOINTMENT

Rochester, Mar. 3—(JTA)—Governor Herbert H. Lehman of New York State has nominated a Rochester Jewish physician, Dr. Charles Kaufman, for appointment to the board of visitors of the New York State Agricultural and Industrial School at Industry, N. Y.

The appointment is for a period of seven years. The school is one of the best known institutions maintained by a state for delinquent boys in the country.

Old Colony Co-operative Bank Holds Annual Shareholders' Meeting

At the annual shareholders' meeting of Old Colony Co-operative Bank, held last Thursday, in the Old Colony House, 58 Weybosset street, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Harry P. Kenyon, Chairman of the Board; Edward H. Weeks, President; Everett E. Salisbury, Vice President; Robert D. Gregory, Vice President; Laura G. Deignan, Secretary; Assistant Secretaries, Harry G. James, Edna N. Platt, Anne B. Galvin, Maurice W. Holton, Catherine J. McDermott, Elva H. Pettengill, Katherine M. Ryan.

In his report to the shareholders, President Weeks went back some five years to recount in brief the record of the institution during that period.

"During the 27 years from our first beginnings in 1895 until our removal to this location in the fall of 1927, we had built our institution with total resources of $11,500,000," he said. "The foundation upon which we built was the basic soundness of the building and loan principle which believes in regular monthly savings of its members and the loaning of these savings to home owners secured by first mortgages on these homes and the repayment of such mortgages in regular monthly amounts. A mutual institution aiding its members to save their income and build their homes."

Mr. Weeks also stated that "in addition to the increase in undivided profits we have, from surplus earnings, written down the cost of Old Colony House in an amount of $160,000, and in the same manner we have written down the cost of our West Warwick branch building in an amount of $60,000."

Mr. Weeks outlined the function of the shareholders accounts, stating that "such shareholders have received over a million dollars during the past year, and a similar amount will be maturing during 1933. These amounts are paid immediately upon presentation of the books and it is very gratifying to find further accumulation of dividends."
