NATIONAL UNIT HONORS CENTER DIRECTOR HERE

Jacob I. Cohen Named To Executive Board of Center Leaders

Speaks on Youth Program

The election of Jacob I. Cohen, executive director of the Jewish Community Center, as a member of the executive committee of the National Association of Jewish Center Executives during sessions this week in Atlantic City, was made known here today.

Mr. Cohen's election came after he had delivered a significant paper on "Jewish Youth Nights" before center executives from many large Jewish communities assembled in convention. Delegates were so impressed with an outline of what Mr. Cohen has accomplished here in that direction that a committee was appointed to make a study of the Jewish Youth Movement in America. A report on the study will be made at the next conference.

Started Here In 1926

Mr. Cohen became executive director of the Center in 1926 when activities were obviously at an extremely low ebb. Emphasizing the need of attracting the interest of younger people, he had built up the attendance until in 1928 it was 22,000 during the year. It was 52,000 in 1929, 61,000 in 1930, 65,000 in 1931, 68,000 in 1932 and 75,000 in 1933 for a high record.

Youth night programs were started in 1932 in Providence and during the past two years they have become a national event. In addition, Mr. Cohen was instrumental in organizing the Council of Jewish Social Service Workers in this city.

The National Association of Jewish Center Executives composed of Jewish Centers and Y. M. H. A.'s throughout the country and Canada, is meeting with the National Association of Jewish Education and the National Conference of Jewish Social Service. This is the first time that a joint session has been arranged.

Consumptives League Head Gives Address

In a stirring address before more than one hundred members and friends of the Ladies' Union League for Consumptives, Mrs. Gussie Nelson, president and founder of the local organization, outlined the work accomplished since its existence, at the fourth annual jubilee luncheon, Tuesday afternoon in Zinn's.

Mrs. Nelson began with her visit as a delegate from the Providence Section, Council of Jewish Women, to the national convention held in Los Angeles in 1930. She was accompanied by Mrs. Jack Solonick, now a resident of California.

While there Mrs. Nelson decided to visit the Los Angeles Sanitarium for Consumptives and met a young man and an older man from Providence, who told her of the fine work accomplished there. They mentioned however, that they felt somewhat out of things, that there were necessities that could be furnished if a League were organized in Providence to help any people that may have to be confined to the Sanitarium from this city.

When Mrs. Nelson arrived home, she immediately bent every effort to form this group and has succeeded in four years, in procuring quite a membership. During that time,

LOUIS LIPSKY

Ludwig Lewisohn, left, and Louis Lipsky, right, will be the principal speakers at Monday night's banquet marking opening of the $20,000 drive in Rhode Island. Judge Philip C. Joslin, center, will be toastmaster. Both Lipsky, former president of the Zionist Organization of America, have been active for years in Jewish movements.

Boycott Success Abroad Is Cited

NEW YORK, June 1 (JTA)—The world boycott of German-made goods is highly effective in England and in other countries as well, Sir Robert Mond, British industrialist and honorary president of the World Jewish Economic Federation declared upon his arrival here from Europe.

Sir Robert, who is on his way to Toronto, Canada, where he is to receive an LL.D. degree from the University of Toronto, asserted that the boycott of Germany is causing the Nazi leaders an enormous amount of worry and predicted that within a short time the German industrialists, who financed the Nazis in the hopes of smashing the German labor movement will withdraw their support.

"In England the boycott is working most satisfactorily. The entire English labor movement is behind the boycott and is bitterly opposed to the Nazi regime," he said.

"There can be no question but that the success of the boycott movement is worrying the Nazi government," Sir Robert stated that before lending support to the boycott he conferred with leaders of German Jewry who assured him that in any case the boycott could not make conditions for them any worse or increase their misery.

Nazis Plan Future Persecution of Jews

LONDON, (JTA)—The Jews of Germany are facing their darkest days since the Hitler regime took power, according to a two-column story appearing in the London Daily Express. The newspaper's Berlin correspondent states that the government is preparing a plan whereby all Jewish property in Germany is to be confiscated as compensation for the damage German trade has suffered at the hands of Jews.

Already the plan's first effects, the story says are being felt in the provinces where children of Jews are boycotted by their playmates, farmers are refusing to pay their debts to Jewish traders and customers have stopped patronizing Jewish shops altogether. Jewish cinema theatres are being picketed by bands of Nazi storm troopers who warn away all those who are about to enter.

Lawrence Hoffman Earns Coveted Scholarship

H. Lawrence Hoffman, twenty-two-year old son of Major and Mrs. Charles W. Hoffman of Lenox avenue, Monday night was awarded the Trustees' Post Graduate Scholarship for Fidelity and Ability at the annual Commencement exercises conducted by the Rhode Island School of Design.

Mr. Hoffman, a graduate of the former Technical High School is specializing in the field of Portraiture and Graphic Arts.

John R. Frazier, nationally known portrait painter and at present sculptor in the department of Drawing and Painting at the School of Design was most enthusiastic when he learned that one of his pupils won the coveted reward out of the entire class of eighty-nine.

In commenting upon the winner he said, "Mr. Hoffman has put in four years of industrious work in my department and I am completely confident that he has a great future as a portrait painter and etcher."

Besides his regular courses at day school, Mr. Hoffman is completing a course in commercial art evenings.

Miss Florence Leif, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert O. Leif of Lauriston street, received honorable mention in this contest and Miss Jeanette Brenner of Creighton street was awarded the annual prize in the Free Hand Drawing Class.

While business for the Jewish merchants has fallen off to practically nothing as a result of the renewed boycott drive of the Nazis, the Jew has not been released from obligation to pay his taxes to the government. These remain at the same level as formerly, even for the impoverished Jewish doctors and lawyers.

The distress and poverty caused by this increasingly serious situation is daily becoming more real with stark tragedy in the office when the savings of these German Jews are completely exhausted. Robbed of their work, denied civic privileges by a country despising them there is nothing left for them to do but follow the brutal advice of the German officials who say "the best thing you can do is to die."

The Express in an editorial comments on the situation in the following manner: The new boom of Jew-

Jew Named Soviet Envoy to Germany

MOSCOW, June 1 (JTA)—Jacob Suritz, a Jew, has been named Soviet ambassador to Germany, it was officially announced yesterday.

Suritz has been serving as Soviet ambassador to Turkey for the past eleven years.

The announcement has aroused wide interest here, since his appointment is provoking general curiosity concerning the manner in which the Nazi government will maintain diplomatic courtesies and immunities when the diplomat chances to be a Jew.

There is as yet no indication here that Berlin has approved the appointment.

BERLIN, June 1—News that Jacob Suritz, Jewish diplomat has been appointed Soviet Ambassador to Germany appeared in yesterday's Voelkischer Beobachter, but the newspaper made no editorial comment.

Publication of the story is, however, taken to be an indication that the German government has ratified the appointment.

The news story, which is accompanied by a photograph of Suritz, adds that he will enter his post during the middle of July.

Suritz's predecessor, Chintshuk, also was Jewish.

Abandon Plan for Concerts in Germany

Milwaukee, Wis. (JTA)—The plan of the Milwaukee State Teachers College land to give concerts in Germany was abandoned last week, it was announced by university officials.

The decision of the German consul not to allow admission charges for concerts is given as the official reason for the abandonment. However, protests of local anti-Nazi organizations are believed to be the real cause for the change in plans.

STATE'S JEWRY ASKED TO GIVE $20,000 TOTAL

Biltmore Dinner To Open Campaign; Lewisohn, Lipsky To Speak

Judge Joslin Toastmaster

With two of the greatest figures in World Jewry scheduled to deliver the principal addresses, the great $20,000 United Jewish Appeal drive will be opened formally Monday night at a banquet in the Biltmore Hotel. It is part of the $3,000,000 nation-wide campaign to settle German Jewish immigrants in Palestine and to help Hitler victims wherever they are.

Speakers will be Ludwig Lewisohn, noted Jewish author, and Louis Lipsky, former president of the Zionist Organization of America who has given many years of his life for Jewish projects. Superior Court Judge Philip C. Joslin will be toastmaster. Reservations may be made by calling United Jewish Appeal headquarters, 219 Paramount building, Washington street.

Hundreds To Work

Meanwhile, with Archibald Silverman as chairman, hundreds of workers, representative of every Jewish organization in the state, were enlisted to take part in the drive and preliminary plans were outlined this week. No single Jewish family will be overlooked during the campaign which will continue for seven full days. Leaders emphasized the importance of its success, pointing out that if Jewry fails to help itself it can expect scant consideration from others.

Despite the many appeals for a variety of purposes in recent months, it was stressed that no other purpose could approach in importance the necessity of helping Germany's persecuted hundreds of thousands and of providing some haven for their safety and rehabilitation.

The banquet committee is headed by Harry Loeb Jacobs and assisting him are Mrs. Ilie Berger, Mrs. Samuel Michaelson and Mrs. Joseph Smith. Chairman Jacobs announced last night that only 420 persons can be accommodated comfortably in the

Dr. J. Sanford Siegel Dies In 33rd Year

Funeral services for Dr. J. Sanford Siegel were held Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock from his home 63 Pleasant street. Members of Rhode Island Post, Jewish War Veterans, of which he was a member gave the military honors and Rabbi Jonah E. Caplan of the Ahavath Shalom Congregation officiated at the burial which took place in the Lincoln Park cemetery.

Dr. Siegel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Siegel of 63 Pleasant street, died Monday after a long illness. He was 32 years old and one of the youngest World War Veterans in this city. He had practiced at 290 Westminster street as dentist, for little over a year when he was taken ill.

Upon graduating from the Columbia University Dental School, Dr. Siegel located in New York, where he was a member of the First District Dental Association of New York; the Mount Sinai Hospital staff; the Heckscher Foundation, the New York Hospital for Joint Diseases, and the Long Island Hospital. He later moved to Providence.

Besides his parents he leaves four sisters, Mrs. Sol Wald of Providence; Mrs. Abraham Friedman of Brooklyn and Miss Rose Siegel and Miss Molly Siegel of this city.

THE WEEK IN JEWISH NEWS

PALESTINE

Turbulent rioting, murder trials, hunger strikes—these were the evidences of unrest in the Holy Land this week.

The worse disturbance took place in Tel Aviv Wednesday, the day of the general strike called by Jewish groups throughout the country as a protest against the harsh restrictions on immigrations into Palestine laid down by the authorities.

Fifty-two persons were injured in the pitched battle between police and strikers in the streets of the new Jewish metropolis. With barricades set up in the streets by the demonstrators, volleys of stones showering attacked and attackers alike, and police nightsticks used unsparingly, the affair brought to a climax the increasing dissatisfaction with the British government's policy of permitting only 5,600 laborers to enter Palestine each year.

Meanwhile, the trial of the two defendants charged with the murder of Dr. Chaim Arlosoroff continued to inject factional discord and unrest into the Palestine scene. Abraham Stavsky and Zvi Rosenblatt, the two accused of the crime, are being ably defended by Horace Samuel, an attorney imported from London for the occasion.

Samuel delivered an eloquent speech Tuesday, declaring he could prove that the assassination was not political at all and that the evidence showed the crime to be entirely unpremeditated. This fact, he explained, was ample proof that the two Revisionists had no part in the affair, since political crimes are always planned carefully long in advance.

Witnesses were produced verifying Stavsky's alibi that he was in Jerusalem on the night of the murder, and on the following day Aba Achmeier, the third Revisionist accused of the crime and later freed, took to go on a hunger strike, took the stand in behalf of his colleagues.

Achmeier's hunger strike had followed his rearrest on the charge that he was a terrorist. He was held in jail, refusing to eat until Rabbi A. I. HaCohen Kook, chief rabbi of Palestine, pleaded with him to change his mind because the Jewish religion forbids suicide. Achmeier then agreed to take nourishment.

POLAND

Having chalked up a score of one Jew killed, two seriously injured and many hurt, the Polish anti-Semites are commencing their late Spring offensive against the Jews.

Following an election speech delivered before the National Radical anti-Semites by the Polish priest Zaleski, inspired Poles attacked Mendel Lubinski, a Jewish weaver of Bialystok, and mortally wounded him.

Attacks of this type have been going on all through the week, several of the Naras being arrested by the police and thrown into jail. Those who escaped in the woods and later carried out a mass attack on Jewish residents of the district, beating women and children, only retreating when a group of Jewish workers came upon the scene.

Street fighting has been going on in towns and cities all over Poland, and each time someone is injured the anti-Semitic papers come out with reports that Jews had attacked Christians.

GERMANY

Reports from Naziland seep through to England that Hitler's government is planning to confiscate all Jewish property in Germany as an act of retaliation against the boycott.

The same reports indicate that the plan has already had some effect especially in the provinces, where anti-Semitism is more virulent.

Children of Jews are boycotted by their "Aryan" playmates, farmers refuse to pay their debts to Jewish traders, Jewish stores have lost all patronage, and Jewish moving picture houses are playing to empty seats because storm troopers outside warn all prospective customers away. Meanwhile, Jews are expected to pay as much taxes as heretofore.

Distress and poverty is becoming more and more widespread among the Jews, with grim tragedy staring them in the face.

THE REST OF EUROPE

With Fascist forms of government seizing power in Bulgaria and Latvia, and about to seize power in Roumania, Jewish minorities are busily awaiting developments.

The Fascist coup d'etat in Sofia has so far resulted in no open outbreaks against the Jews, however. Although Bulgarian Jewry faces a growing anti-Semitic movement sponsored by German Nazis, it has been reassured by the knowledge that King Boris III continues sympathetic toward the Jews.

A delegation of Roumanian Jews conferred with King Carol and Marshall Alexander Averescu on the delicate political situation centering in Bucharest, and Jews in their Balkan country continue to await developments uneasily.

In Vienna, too, the Jewish community was in a state of alarm as the result of a speech made by the new Mayor, Dr. Richard Schmitz, praising one Dr. Luenger, a bitter anti-Semite. Since Dr. Schmitz is an appointee of the new Dollfus regime, his speech takes on a semi-official aspect.

THE UNITED STATES

Nazi activities in this country are hitting the headlines again.

A riot broke out in Irvington, New Jersey, when two busloads of Nazi uniformed storm troopers descended upon the city to attend a pro-Hitler demonstration. Thousands of anti-Nazi sympathizers arrived on the scene, and were met by a handful of police, who attempted to defend the Nazis. Net results of the affair were: seven Nazis in jail; several others out on bail; one Jewish youth in the hospital with concussion of the brain; and sixty more injured.

Meanwhile, the McCormack Congressional Committee to investigate Nazi activities in the United States continued its secret hearings in New York, Washington and Philadelphia.

All known Nazi leaders were subpoenaed, including Fritz Gissibl and Dr. I. T. Griebel, American Nazis numbers One and Two. In New York, several untoward incidents occurred, including a fight between these Nazi leaders and a photographer for a metropolitan paper, in which the cameraman came out on top. What went on during the hearings, however, still remains a matter for conjecture. Rumors fly thick and fast, but verification is difficult to find. One persistent rumor has it that Ivy Lee, publicity relations counsel suspected of being in the pay of the Nazi government was called before the committee, but no grounds for the belief have yet been discovered.

The first Christian committee to raise funds for the relief of persecuted Jews abroad was organized as the American National Christian Committee for German Refugees, headed by Dr. S. Parkes Cadman.

A mass meeting in New York protested the British government's Palestine immigration policies. Leading figures in Zionist and Zionist labor circles spoke.

James G. McDonald, League of Nations High Commissioner for German Refugees, returned to New York. He said that the number of German refugees is likely to be increased in the near future and the condition of those already out of the country has improved slightly during the past three months.

William Dudley Pelley, chief of the Silver Shirts, is being sought by Asheville, N. C., police. He will be placed under arrest for violating North Carolina Blue Sky Laws. His outfit, the Galahad Press, publishers of Liberation, had several weeks ago filed a petition of bankruptcy.

REFUGEE SPEAKS HERE

New York (JTA) — Thomas Mann, Nobel Prize winner who is now a refugee from Hitlerite Germany will arrive in this country next week. He will be here 10 days and on June 6, a testimonial dinner will be given him at the Hotel Plaza. On the same day Herr Mann's new novel, "Joseph and His Brothers," will be published by Alfred A. Knopf.

New Elected President YMCA

Middletown, Conn. (JTA) — The first Jew in this country to be become president of a Young Men's Christian Association is Dr. Harry S. Frank, who was elected to that office by the local "Y" Branch at its annual meeting.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

Two excellent features catch the spotlight at the Majestic beginning today. That lovable combination Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell are cast in "Change of Heart." James Dunn and Ginger Rogers are also headlined. In the second feature "Springtime for Henry" which had a season's run on the Broadway boards stars Otto Kruger and Heather Angel.

BY THE WAY

BY DAVID SCHWARTZ

Father and Grandson
About 1880, there died in France Adolphe Cremieux. He was one of the greatest of French statesmen—the counterpart for France in many ways of what Disraeli was in England.

Cremieux was one of the most notable Frenchmen of modern times and one of the most notable of Jews. He was one of the leaders in the movement which had its culmination in the foundation of the French Republic.

He was a great lawyer, a kind of French Darrow. Once he defended a man who was arrested—before the days of the French Republic—for singing the Marseillaise.

Cremieux rose in court, made his plea and then began to recite the Marseillaise. He recited it with such dramatic effect—that the jury all rose.

The man was acquitted.

Cremieux was not only a brilliant man. He gave of his funds for every cause—most generously. He interceded with great effect for the Christians who were being massacred in Lebanon. He interceded for the Jews, securing the abrogation of the oath "more Judaica," so offensive to the Jews of France. He squashed the Damascus ritual blood charge. He was one of the organizers of the Alliance Israelite Universelle. A most noble Jew.

Last week there died in New York a man whose brother was a priest, and he himself was buried with Christian rites. A New York Christian clergyman officiated. The funeral was attended by many prominent New Yorkers, and by many German-Americans. Victor Ridder, of the German Staats-Zeitung, was there. Even many pronounced Nazis were there. The man whose services these Germans came to attend was Herman A. Metz—a grandson of Adolphe Cremieux.

Metz some time ago visited Hitler in company with Ridder. He claimed that he had asked Hitler to relent in his antagonism to the Jew. Let us hope so. Ho-ho!

Speaking about the proposed child labor amendment to the Constitution, William Z. Spiegelman declared the other day that a Polish Assemblyman in the New York legislature introduced a bill to reduce child labor from nine to eight months.

That Weizmann Rift

There has been, as everyone knows, a great deal of speculation as to the reasons for the failure of Dr. Weizmann to come to the United States, as it was first announced. The official reason was that his health did not permit, but there were rumors that it was really due to differences with some of the big-moneyed contributors to the Zionist movement—on the matter of Palestine as a refuge for German Jews. It was said that Weizmann discounted any possibility of settling the German Jews elsewhere than in Palestine. But on the inside, you now hear other rumors—and the one that seems to have the soundest support is that Weizmann and Magnes have had a little rift—and since Magnes is now in the United States, Weizmann thought he would better stay away.

Though Weizmann is officially President of the Hebrew University and Magnes, the Chancellor, it is said, of late, there has not been smooth sailing between them.

WISE AND MAGNES

Speaking of smooth sailing, New York Zionists declare that the recent appearance of Dr. Magnes and Rabbi Wise at the Ussishkin dinner was the first time in thirty years that the two have appeared on the same platform.

In the days when Magnes was active in the New York field—Wise and Magnes were always at opposite poles.

It seems that only the "iron man" of the Zionist movement—Ussishkin—could bring them together.

The Man Magnes

An interesting man is Magnes. It is not generally known these days that Magnes in his youth had some prospects—had he been so inclined—of becoming a professional ball player. I don't mean that he had any such intentions, but he was accounted one of the best ball players on the team of the California University which he attended.

Magnes never followed the Billy Sunday pattern. He never became a ball player first and a preacher afterwards. Ball playing was just an avocation. Magnes was a born pulpiteer. What throngs he gathered in his early days at the Temple! The common people, so to speak, were the ones that gathered about him mostly. The ordinary Jews—the Jewish Jews, the poor Jews—Magnes magnetized them. He was arrested once, I believe, in a labor strike, in which he took the side of labor.

The Tel Aviv Branch

Then he went to Palestine. At the Hebrew University which he founded—somehow there has been missing this note. That is to say, that among the masses of Jews in the Yishub, it is generally said, the University is not popular. For years, there has been this complaint, that

The Hebrew University is aloof from the Yishub. I think in the last year, Magnes has realized this—and there has been a change, which I believe is a prophecy of better relations in the future. For instance, the establishment of a college—a branch of the University at Tel Aviv—was decidedly a step for bringing the Hebrew University nearer to the Jews of Palestine.

He Keeps Young
"Wonderful," said Bernard G. Richards the other day, after seeing Magnes. "At fifty-seven, he looks like a young man of thirty."

The Real Champion
There was one Jewish prize fighting champion, who knocked out a champion, who has never been known to history.

I am referring to Mr. Wallach. This Mr. Wallach happens to be the father of Leach Cross, the one time champion prize fighter, who is now a practicing dentist.

As Leach Cross tells the story, Mr. Wallach provided him with funds for the study of dentistry. And Leach was going to dental school, but secretly he was also fighting. One day Mr. Wallach came home, after having learned that Leach had knocked somebody out in a fight.

"You loafer—you tramp—you'll be a prize fighter, eh? I'll show you, I give you money to go to dental college and you become a loafer fighter." And with that Mr. Wallach landed on Leach with a right and a left. Leach ducked and finally ran out of the room.

Are You Cross-Eyed?
Florence Willner, the very competent secretary of many a Zionist leader, will tell you that speech is unnecessary—that a man gives himself away by all sorts of external indices.

Thus, she points out that Rabbi Wise and Dr. Margoshes, for instance, have an extremely large handwriting.

Justice Brandeis, Morris Rotherberg and Louis Lipsky, on the contrary, have a very small hand.

The large handwriting shows a leaning for the dramatic. The small for the more detailed and thorough type of mind.

People with a tendency to "cross-eyedness" are all clever, she says, and points to Dr. Schmarjahu-Levin and Rabbi Wise.

Left handed people generally, too, are bright, she holds, pointing to Louis Lipsky.

Fannie, the Diplomat
Fannie Hurst, the novelist, it is rumored, will soon receive an appointment by President Roosevelt. Just what—it is not said.

Her most intimate friend, Ruth Bryan Owen—the daughter of William Jennings Bryan—has an appointment as Minister to one of the Scandinavian countries. Maybe Fannie too will turn diplomat.

This and That
Spinoza, in his Theologicus Tractatus, expressed himself in favor of the restoration of Palestine as the Jewish homeland.

Sigmund Freud has written a special introduction for a Hebrew translation of his works, which have just appeared in Palestine.

Dr. A. Wolfson, author of a recent volume on Spinoza, is at work on a volume on Maimonides.

Dr. Harry Wolfson of Harvard, no relative of A. Wolfson, will soon have his tome on Spinoza published.

Nathan Ausubel, author of the much praised life of Frederic the Great, is authoring a play on war.

Sam Warshawsky, descendant of the Wilna Gaon, has finished a play which will soon see production.

Secretary of State Hull's children would have a hard time of it in Germany, as they are "non-Aryans"—the Secretary's wife being a Jewess.

Dr. S. M. Melamed is finishing another tome, Kant and the Prophets, in which he is expected to do some shooting at Karl Marx.

Things Not Necessary to Know
Leon Trotsky is related to the late Daniel Webster of "Union and Liberty, forever and inseparable" fame. How come? Well, the Trotsky and Max Eastman families intermarried, and Max Eastman, you may recall, is a remote relative of Daniel Webster.

Sink or swim, live or die, it's strange, but Trotsky and Webster are remote cousins.

There has been a thirty percent increase in the sale of Palestine wine since the United States went off the water wagon. Drinking Palestine wine makes you both a good American and a good Zionist, for the high tariff helps Uncle Sam balance his budget, and the price of the wine aids Jewish settlement in Palestine.

Harry Hershfield has a new name for newspapermen. He calls them "gentlemen of the 'fress,'" as they have to "fress" at so many public dinners.

Ludwig Lewisohn will be one of the speakers at the next Zionist convention, which meets June 30 at Atlantic City.

Alexander Hamilton, greatest of America's Secretaries of the treasury, had a half brother, named Peter Levin, who lived in Charleston, S. C., and who left Alexander some of his estate.

But this does not prove, as some seem to think, that Hamilton himself was half-Jewish. For the mother who bore Hamilton is supposed to have left her Jewish husband before Alexander was born, at least, so 'tis said.

O hell in Hebrew simply means tent. So if anyone chas va chailah should catch you saying it, just tell them that you are speaking Hebrew.

Bernard G. Richards and A. H. Fromenson are having a little run-in on the lively question: who was the first Jewish columnist? Richards says he was—with the American Hebrew in the days of Joseph Jacobs—and A. H. F. points to a column that he used to conduct on the old Tageblatt.

Well, they are both wrong. Samson was the first Jewish columnist. He took a column and got the whole house shaking over it.

Jabotinsky, the Revisionist leader, comments on a little incident that occurred during the war, when he was talking with some Englishman about the revival of the Hebrew language.

The Englishman said the project was nonsense. "How," he asked, "could you say the word 'aero' dynamic for instance in Hebrew?"

Jabotinsky pointed out that you couldn't say the word in English either, for "aero" is Latin and "dynamic" is Greek.

And I should have said to the Englishman also—how would you say the words "hallelujah and amen and selah" in English. Seems to me they are Hebrew.

Jewish War Veterans Flay Methods Used by 'Brooklyn Examiner'

Brooklyn, N. Y. (JTA) — Characterizing as a "rank fraud" the obtaining of subscriptions for the Brooklyn Jewish Examiner through use of the names of the Jewish War Veterans, and urging all who have subscribed to the publication because of such use to cancel their subscriptions, Dr. Solomon A. Fineberg of Mount Vernon, national chaplain-in-chief of the Jewish War Veterans, last week issued a statement attacking the weekly and its editor, Rabbi Louis Gross.

Dr. Fineberg's statement was in accordance with action taken by the National Council of the veteran's group at its last meeting.

Dr. Fineberg said: "The National Council of the Jewish War Veterans of the United States has been used in a contemptible mercenary scheme involving the Brooklyn Jewish Examiner, edited by Dr. Louis Gross, and the Minute Men.

"The obtaining of subscriptions or donations by either of these in the name of the Jewish War Veterans, or the soliciting of funds by anyone who claims to speak for the Examiner or the Minute Men on behalf of the Jewish War Veterans, is rank fraud. Our organization has never authorized any such solicitation; we have never received any money thus collected. We have no connection whatsoever with the Jewish Examiner, and anyone who says that this periodical represents us in any way is, either innocently or purposely guilty of falsehood.

"The Minute Men are likewise totally and completely separate and apart from the Jewish War Veterans. The formation of this organization has never been authorized by the Jewish War Veterans. Although the organizer of this group happens to be a committee-chairman of the Jewish War Veterans, the Minute Men have not even the most remote connection with the Jewish War Veterans, and have never had any kind of recognition from our organization.

"The Judge Advocate General of the Jewish War Veterans has been instructed to proceed legally against those who have been raising funds fraudulently in the name of our organization. His department will cause the immediate arrest of anyone who proceeds after this warning has been issued to use the good name of the Jewish War Veterans and to capitalize the Nazi situation for personal profit.

"Meanwhile we urge all who have subscribed to the Brooklyn Examiner or contributed to the Minute Men on the request of anyone who pretended that such funds would in any way aid the Jewish War Veterans, we urge that all such demand the return of these funds, as it is fully within their legal power to obtain such return and to punish the offenders. We also request that all who have further information on this subject submit it to the Judge Advocate General, Sol Rubin, of New Rochelle, N. Y."

The Princess Mary, daughter of the English King, paid no attention to the Jews in Palestine on her recent visit. Just visited the Arab things.

How different was the late king Albert of Belgium. When he visited Palestine, he insisted on visiting Tel Aviv incognito. When a little Belgian Jewish boy in Tel Aviv recognized Albert and shouted "Vive le roi," Albert's aide went up to him and thanked him, but asked him to be quiet as His Majesty wanted to observe the Jewish city unobserved.

Goebbels, the chief propagandist of the "Aryan" doctrine of superiority is short and dark—in other words he looks exactly like the blond "Aryan" is supposed to look. O yeah.

And Hitler who wants all "mommers" to stick to mommering, and raise a lot of children, is a bachelor.

The London Times is urging that the Trans-Jordan be opened to the Jews. If that is done, you will see the real development of Palestine begun, for the Trans-Jordan has a very small Arab population and about twice the area of that part of

Noted Author-Lecturer
Lewisohn is known throughout the world as one of the most distinguished present day novelists and critics, a great American and a devout Jew. Associated in editorial work for The Nation, he lectured in principal cities east of the Mississippi. He achieved fame with his books, "Upstream," "Midchannel," "Expression in America," "Creative America," "The Case of Mr. Crump," "The Island Within," "The Last Days of Shylock," and that tremendously successful story "This People." Some of his works have been translated into 15 languages.

For 10 years Lewisohn lived and traveled in Europe and the Near East, returning to America to settle permanently. Although he was born in Berlin, his parents moved to South Carolina when he was eight.

The advent of Lewisohn and Lipsky will make three great Jewish leaders who will have come to Rhode Island in the interests of the drive. At the preliminary meeting last May 21, Maurice Samuel, noted Zionist

Religious School Picnic
The Religious School picnic will be held Sunday, June 10, in Goddard Memorial Park, Field Four.

Henry P. Hirschberg, the Chairman of the Picnic Committee makes the following request:

All children must be in the vestry of Temple Beth-El in their regular class room at 10:00 A. M. Busses will take the children to the Picnic grounds. The Religious School teachers will arrange the program at the Picnic grounds. At 4:00 P. M. the busses will call for the children and bring them back to the Temple. Each child should bring his own lunch. Parents are invited to join.

A CHALLENGE TO THE JEWS OF AMERICA

50,000 Jewish refugees are now living in lands bordering on Germany. In addition, 12,000 have been compelled to return to Poland and other Eastern European lands. Thousands of Jews of Germany, in addition to those who have already settled there, must be helped to establish themselves in Palestine and elsewhere.

If we do not help these refugees, who will?

WHAT HAPPENED TO THE MERGER?

The proposed consolidation of the North End and the South Providence Hebrew Free Loan Association was about to materialize last we heard, with committees and neutral groups appointed to meet and confer. At one point it apparently had reached so advanced a stage that officers were to be elected.

Then, suddenly, no more was heard of the plan. It vanished in thin air. But let's hope it is not hopelessly lost because public opinion appeared to be unanimously in favor of the merger. As outlined by the proponents — and we have heard no reasonable opposition — the consolidation would save considerable expense, duplication and waste would be eliminated and consequent greater benefits could be spread over a greater proportion of the people.

In these days, when small business men, merchants and peddlers are struggling to keep their heads above water after surviving the depression — when they are beginning to recapture their breaths after the long immersion — the strengthened Hebrew Free Loan would indeed be a Godsend. Further delay means further waste and loss. If there's any reason why the two groups shouldn't merge, let's hear it. Otherwise, let's have action.

MORE FALSE PROPAGANDA

There is one angle of the anti-Nazi boycott that apparently needs clarification although it should be plain to everybody. At no time since it was undertaken has the movement been aimed at American-made products regardless of the ancestry of the manufacturer or the worker.

The ban, a purely defensive measure and the only effective weapon in the hands of world Jewry, hits solely at goods imported from Hitlerite Germany. There is absolutely no truth to the insidious reports that products of mills owned by German-Americans or where German-Americans are employed are being boycotted. Such a step would be suicidal to Jewry's cause and it isn't hard to trace these reports to rotten Nazi propaganda spread among thousands of mill workers only to cause trouble.

As a matter of fact, the May issue of the Economic Bulletin, official organ of the Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi League reported large gains for American industry as a result of the boycott. The Bulletin's recent survey conclusions state, according to the Jewish Telegraphic Agency, that not one of the hundreds of American manufacturers interviewed by the League's research bureau has failed to report that he has gained by the decrease in German imports.

"All the arguments of the Nazis and their American supporters to the effect that the United States stands to lose as a result of the boycott of German goods are, in view of the above facts, sheer bluff and based on no facts that can be substantiated," the Bulletin points out.

"Innumerable American industries have gained from the boycott. The American glove, hardware, dental and surgical instruments, dye, potash, chemical and toy industries have gained and new industries have been established to meet the demand for goods formerly imported from Germany."

While it may have some effect in scattered localities, therefore, the DAWA "counter-boycott" is insignificant in the general scheme of things and the claim that American industries will suffer from the boycott of Nazi goods stands exploded as a myth. But it is a dangerous myth if it is allowed to spread among the masses of the people and if the deliberately false propaganda is permitted to become a general impression among the mill and factory workers that the boycott is depriving them of wages. A moment's thought would prove such a claim impossible even to the satisfaction of the most immature mind. Quite the contrary is true. If imports formerly relied upon are rejected, it is logical to assume that the competing American product, made in America and providing employment for Americans, would be in greater demand as a replacement and entirely possible as a permanent substitute.

THE ACID TEST

Rhode Island Jewry faces its greatest trial in the eyes of the non-Semitic as well as the Jewish world when it undertakes next week to raise its $20,000 quota of the $3,000,000 United Jewish Appeal. There are no two ways about it; and there is no use kidding ourselves: upon the success of the drive will depend how far public opinion will continue to sympathize with us, our fellows in Germany and in Palestine.

The appeal, as has so often been said, serves twin purposes, each of equal importance to the survival of Jewry. Some of the funds will go towards the upbuilding of Palestine, a country that has shown wonderful progress in the past few hard years and now needs capital to continue its growth. A sizeable portion of the $3,000,000 will be expended to help German-Jewish refugees of Hitler's barbarity wherever they may find themselves.

In undertaking to raise the quota, Jews of this state face the acid test. A desperate, depression-torn world is spiritually sick; in many countries of Europe, where unemployment and starvation have been rife, whole peoples no longer react to normal, healthy impulses in a logical manner. Reason has faded and with it spiritual and mental progress. The result is that Hitlerism has been able to flourish like tall weeds in a neglected garden.

However, as a general thing, public opinion here remains in sympathy with stricken Jews in Germany; it is also in sympathy with the reconstruction in Palestine, especially when it becomes apparent that Jewish pioneers and Jewish enterprise have made of that apparently forsaken land the only area in the world that was and actually is prosperous during the world depression; where there actually is a scarcity of skilled labor.

It is left now for Jews to help themselves, and upon how well they do so will rest that respect and sympathy which still exist for Jews in America as a general thing. Rhode Island's $20,000 quota is not large, even for these times. It should be raised easily. If it is not, how can we expect our non-Jewish friends to retain any admiration for us? We must help ourselves and by so doing show the world that we are not helpless, that we are in no sense a burden upon anybody.

It is plain, therefore, that in addition to the two main purposes of raising the fund, there is what may be termed the selfish motive of achieving what we set out to do. Jewry has never sought a helping hand of anybody without first doing everything possible to help itself. At the same time Jewry has ever extended its own helping hand to assist others. That tradition must be maintained now as never before and it is our fervent prayer that Chairman Archibald Silverman and his workers go over the top in this drive.

CAPITOL COMMENT

By NATHAN KOENIG

One of the reasons why the Federal Government has not yet announced expected changes in immigration policy to permit refugees from persecution in Germany and other countries to enter the United States under liberal conditions may be found in the recent nation-wide agitation against letting down immigration bars.

Some amendments to existing immigration laws are pending in Congress. These are designed to humanize the present immigration laws and make them more flexible in their application to individual cases. This would be done without interfering with the intent of existing laws.

The whole question of immigration legislation is being discussed pro and con. Editorial expression in the press of this country indicates that the only changes that would be tolerated would be those designed to relieve hardship in individual cases without any general letting down of the bars.

Because of the delicate situation, the Federal Government probably will take no immediate action toward facilitating entry of refugees into this country. One of the fears is that if such a move were taken, it might be interpreted as an important step toward lifting the bars on immigration. This, it is thought, would kill the chance for favorable Congressional action on pending amendments to immigration laws.

Of course such an interpretation would be a misinterpretation. Nevertheless, great injury would be done. For this reason existing requirements to facilitate entry of refugees should not be expected before the present session of Congress adjourns.

Among the few billings for which the late President Coolidge laid the corner stone is the Washington Jewish Community Center. This was back in May 1925. Now the community center is planning a special "anniversary week" celebration to begin May 30. During the week of this celebration special events have been scheduled fittingly to commemorate an occasion which marked the construction of Washington Jewry's recreational and cultural center.

Radio station, WOL in Washington, received a pointed letter the other day from the office of Representative Herman P. Koppelman of Connecticut. The letter, written by Miss Dorothy R. Leavitt, secretary to the Connecticut Congressman, protested a recent talk over that station by Representative Louis T. McFadden of Pennsylvania, in which an attack was made on Jews.

Portions of the letter read: "Recently Representative McFadden of Pennsylvania delivered an address over your station, criticizing the present administration, and concentrating his attack on the supposed influence of public spirited citizens who happen to be of the Jewish nationality."

"Disregarding for the moment the questionable basis for Mr. McFadden's criticism, his address, an invective against the Jews, is amazing to me, in that it was permitted to be broadcast over any radio station in this country."

"Neither Mr. Koppelman nor myself can understand how a station as prominent as WOL could disregard the obelisk character of Mr. McFadden's address and permit it to be broadcast. I am aware that it is not always possible for station officials to edit programs before they are broadcast, but from my own experience some station officials are cognizant of the general import of a program about to be given, and I am therefore surprised that the significance of Mr. McFadden's talk escaped your refusal to broadcast."

Mass Meeting And Concert Will be Held Sunday; Swedish Hall

A concert and mass meeting will be held Sunday evening, June 3, at 8:30 o'clock at Swedish Hall in celebration of the recent act passed by the Soviet Government declaring Biro-Bidjan a Jewish autonomous territory.

This act provides that every state in the territory will be able to conduct its government in Yiddish and will have representation in the Soviet Government. This act is being hailed the world over as a most favorable one for the Jews and will provide another haven for German refugees.

The Providence-Fall River Freiheit chorus will render a program of selections and Max Bromberg and Morris Konrad will give several characteristic and Yiddish folk songs.

The entire community is cordially invited. There is no admission charge whatsoever.

Abraham Sallet Is Named President Of Attleboro Men's Club

Abraham Sallet was elected president of the Men's Club of the Agudas Achim of Attleboro, at a well attended meeting held Monday evening in the Synagogue. Other officers named include Joseph Globus, vice president; N. A. Appleton, recording secretary; Charles Sallet, financial secretary; Dr. B. Benjamin, treasurer and Henry Rosenberg, chaplain.

Committees appointed include: Samuel Weisman, Irving Kovitch and Irving Makowsky, social; A. Edelstein, Irving Franklin and Dr. Altman, program; Irving Miller, Samuel Miller, Max Markman, Benjamin Fryefeld and Max London, executive.

The organization will hold its next meeting Monday evening.

"You must know that there is considerable agitation to curb the auto-development of radio, even to placing the industry under the control of the government, as is the case in many foreign countries."

"Yet, if attacks like Representative McFadden's are to be fostered through the connivance of our radio stations, how can we oppose the plans for strict supervision of radio programs?"

In her letter Miss Leavitt requested a reply from WOL officials. Instead of a reply she has received two telephonic calls from subordinates, who offered excuses and explanations. Miss Leavitt insists that she must have a written reply from a responsible official. This has been promised her. When she receives it, that letter should make interesting reading.

Mrs. Alfred A. Fain to Head Hadassah

Mrs. Alfred A. Fain was elected president at the regular meeting of the Providence Chapter of Hadassah held Tuesday afternoon in the Biltmore Hotel.

Other officers named are Mrs. Archibald Silverman, honorary president; Mrs. Benjamin Alper, Mrs. Morris Sheer, and Mrs. Samuel Michaelson, honorary vice presidents; Mrs. Isadore Singer, Mrs. Benjamin Blacher and Mrs. Isador Pritsker, vice presidents; Mrs. Herman Swartz, treasurer; Mrs. Henry M. Ehrlich, recording secretary; Mrs. Samuel Michaelson, financial secretary and Mrs. Benjamin Bromberg, Miss Peter Saslaw and Mrs. J. Tubin.

The next meeting of the group will be held Monday afternoon, June 11 at Zinn's. Mrs. Feuer will speak on "The Power of an Ideal." This subject is in tune with the present Jewish movements, its purpose being to call forth the deeper spiritual forces and finer sensibilities from the heart and soul of every Jewish woman.

This will be the closing meeting of the organization and President Mrs. Harry Beck extends a cordial invitation to every Jewish woman in the city.

More than one hundred guests attended a subscription shower and bridge Thursday evening in Zinn's Banquet Hall in honor of Miss Eva Cohen of Lippitt st., given by her sisters Mrs. Joseph Shukovsky, Mrs. Benjamin Salk and Mrs. Irving Siegal.

Vases filled with roses, peonies and gladiolas flanked by yellow tapers made attractive decorations for the horseshoe table about which the guests were seated. The bride-elect received her guests in a becoming gown of turquoise blue chiffon with lace trimming. She wore a corsage of talisman roses. Twenty-five tables were in play following dinner, and attractive prizes were presented the high scorers at each.

Miss Cohen will be married in Temple Emanu-El on June 24 to Abraham Pollack of Washington, D. C., formerly of this city. The couple will make their home in Washington.

Shirley Helen Swartz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Swartz of Elmway street, entertained several cousins and friends at a luncheon and theatre party Saturday afternoon, in honor of her twelfth birthday.

The guests were Regina Abrams, Mayer Abrams, Claire Abrams, Hope Abrams, Helen Abrams, Dolores Abrams, Arlene Swartz, Frances Hayman, Maurice Hayman, Rita Heller, Ann Rossman, Joyce Joslin, Barbara Orkin and Harriet Alexander.

ROTH—KESSLER

Miss Hazel Kessler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Kessler of 127 Verdale avenue, became the bride of Herman J. Roth of New York at a family wedding held yesterday afternoon at four o'clock in the home of the bride's parents. Rabbi William G. Braude officiated.

The bride wore a gown of white waffle crepe with tulle veil and carried a shower bouquet of brides roses and lilies of the valley. She was attended by Miss Eunice H. Miller as maid of honor, who was gowned in coral crepe set off by a corsage of Talisman roses. Mrs. Kessler, mother of the bride wore a gown of black chiffon with a corsage of gardenias.

The bridegroom had as attendant Rudolph Kessler, brother of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Roth are leaving today on a six weeks' trip to Europe and will make their home in New York City, when they return.

JEW IN SOUTH AFRICA

By JACOB BERNSTEIN

(The writer of the following article, a New York attorney, recently returned from an extensive visit to South Africa, where he made a study of the cultural and communal life of the Jewish communities in the larger centers of South Africa.)

The communal life of the Jew in any part of Africa must have some traditional appeal to his co-religionists everywhere for Africa is the continent which played a role in history first—the continent of the Pharaohs and the Israelites, the cradle of civilization and probably of humanity itself.

Several years after the conclusion of the great Anglo-Boer war, responsible government was offered by England to the Boers, and thereafter by an act of English Parliament of May 31, 1910, the present Union of South Africa was established. It consists of four provinces, the Cape of Good Hope, Natal, the Orange Free States, and the Transvaal comprising an area of 472,317 square miles. The white population is some two million of whom about 80,000 are Jews.

The wandering Jew, ever on the alert where he can best lead his life in freedom and independence, and influenced therein by the prospects of his children as much as by his own, first came to what is now the Union, nearly 100 years ago. The Jews are scattered mainly in the towns and cities, some 25,000 of them living in Johannesburg, the metropolis and largest city in South Africa and third largest city on the continent. Originally coming from many lands, the great majority of the Jews in the Union today are Russian Jews and their descendants.

Vocationally, they are to be found everywhere as traders, merchants, shopkeepers, in finance, industry, the learned professions, and some in agriculture. In industry, commerce, finance, the professions and in politics, they exert an influence far beyond their numerical strength. This is equally true in their representation in the universities. With the Jews' traditional thirst for higher education, they number many in these institutions. They possess many scholarships, awarded to Jewish students for Oxford and Cambridge, much out of all proportion to their number. In this connection it is notable that the cleavage between Jewish and non-Jewish students which one so often finds in American colleges and universities, is practically unknown in the Union. Of the 148 members comprising the lower House of Parliament of the Union, called the House of Assembly, six are Jews. There are Jews in the several provincial assemblies and a few judges. It is a peculiar coincidence that the chiefs of the two Union capitals, Louis Gradner, mayor of Cape Town, the legislative capital, and Solomon, mayor of Pretoria, the administrative capital, are both Jews.

Communal Activities

In the religious, communal and civic activities, they have Congregations, Chevra Kadishes, Talmud Torahs, Gemileth Chassodim, sporting and gymnastic organizations, sick benefit and loan associations, the Hebrew Order of David, a national institution with lodges in numerous cities, many benevolent societies, literary circles, Young Israel societies, in the large cities, Jewish orphanages, and homes for the aged, United Hebrew schools, Jewish communal councils, Jewish ladies' societies, Jewish guilds and many Jewish educational institutions.

Then there are organizations of groups emanating from specific cities in the old world, such as United Minsk Sick Benefit and Benevolent Society, Wilner Sick Benefit Society, Kovno Sick Benefit and Benevolent Society and others. In addition there are the two outstanding representative institutions, the South African Jewish Board of Deputies was organized in 1912 whose general functions are to take appropriate action with reference to all matters affecting Jewish interests and welfare and whose scope of activities extends beyond the borders of the Union. It has some 80 constituent bodies. Hirsh Hillman, an outstanding Jew in the country is chairman. The South African Zionist Federation is another powerful organization.

On the political horizon of the Union of South Africa, the name of the Right Honorable John C. Smuts stands out as a veritable beacon of light. Soldier, statesman and scholar, he has the good will of the great mass of the people in his country and the respect and affection of the Jews. In the country's history he played a great role and still is considered among the nation's great. During the Anglo-Boer War, he was in command of the Boer forces in the Cape. During the World War he led the military forces in German Africa. Later he cooperated with General Allenby in Palestine. In the National Convention of October, 1908, he was spokesman in the movement for the formation of the Union and after its creation he was Minister of the Interior, Minister of Finance, Prime Minister, and is now the Minister of Justice. He represented his country at the Paris Peace Conference, and was the author of "The League of Nations: A Practical Suggestion," the substance of which subsequently became the Covenant of the League. He was president of

Mencken Sings Palestine Praise

By M. IUSHEWITZ

Henry Louis Mencken, author, critic and editor, whose chief ambition, he said, is "to convert clergymen to Christianity," returned with his wife from a two months' Mediterranean tour, highly enthusiastic in the praise of Jewish achievements in Palestine. Mencken strongly condemned the British government, which, he said, was attempting to "use the Jews as suckers."

The noted American writer and his wife, under the guidance of a member of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, made an automobile tour of the Holy Land which carried them from the Dead Sea to the most northern colonies in Galilee. "The whole region," Mencken declared, "sweats history, both sacred and profane."

He described Palestine as being somewhat smaller than the State of Maryland and declared that it was possible to go from one end of the country to the other in one day.

The tour which Mencken and his wife made in Palestine took them to many of the Jewish colonies in various parts of the country and into Transjordan.

Mencken's praise of the Jewish colonies in Palestine and for their accomplishments in modern scientific farming was unstinted.

"I was tremendously impressed with the Jewish colonies in Palestine," Mencken declared. "Jewish achievement in that land of primitive agriculture is really remarkable. The colony of Ain Charod, which we visited during our tour of the Holy Land is one of the finest I have ever seen in my life. Not only are they farming their land in the most modern scientific manner, but at Ain Charod we also found a self-sustaining community that was also using modern industrial machinery to produce goods they needed."

"Everywhere we went, the contrast between the primitive methods of the Arabs and the fine Jewish farming colonies was evident. It is obvious that the Jews are right when they say that Palestine can hold another million people. Arab fear of the Jews is based not on nationalism, but on the conviction that they cannot compete with the modern scientific methods of the Jewish colonists."

"Of course the political situation there is extremely disquieting and anything may happen. It is a three-cornered contest there between the Jews, Arabs and British. The British are playing their usual politics. They have separated the Transjordan, which really belongs with Palestine, and hope by setting up these petty little Arab states to retain the power."

"Everywhere we went we found that at all strategic points on the roads the British had established police posts, which are actually mini-the South African Association for the Advancement of Science and is the author of a philosophical work entitled "Holism and Evolution."

Nazis Inspect Africa

Last fall at about the time the writer came on a visit to the Union, a group of Nazis arrived with the implicit if not avowed intention of carrying on their nefarious propaganda. General Smuts as Minister of Justice issued a public warning to the effect that the Union was not propitious soil for anti-racial propaganda, and that the hand of the law would be laid upon those whose activities might result in public disorder, or a breach of the peace. And this warning had the desired effect for the Nazis were silenced.

The Zionist Movement

The South African Zionist Federation is part of the world-wide Zionist movement. It has about 120 societies, or branches, with headquarters in Johannesburg. The Federation holds conferences every two years when the executive council and officers are elected. The council has 16 members, acts as governing body and has appropriate sub-committees. Then there is the Women's Zionist Council with some 40 affiliate societies. Finally the Zionist Youth Movement has about 50 branches, each having boys and girls as members. Both the Women's Zionist Council and the Zionist Youth Movement carry on their activities in cooperation with the Federation.

The Jewish interests in general and the Zionist cause in particular are espoused by two weekly publications, the Zionist Record, headed by David Dismov, for over ten years editor and manager, is the organ of the Federation. It is published in Johannesburg. The South African Jewish Chronicle is published in Cape Town. There is in addition a fine monthly journal called The S. A. Memorial, official organ of the Zionist Youth Movement, The S. African Jewish Year Book, of national scope,

BRING JEWS TO JUDAISM IS CRY OF CONVERT'S MOTHER

By J. ROSMAN

Do we need them—Jewish missionaries, or missionaries of Judaism? This is the question that is agitating a section of French Jewry in the midst of all the troubles that now confront the Jews. The "House of Israel" is burning, as Dubnow said recently. It has been set ablaze in all directions. But it is on fire inside too. A large part of western Jewry feel their houses collapsing under them. They see their children growing estranged from Jews and Judaism. And this inner conflagration is no less perilous or hurtful than that which rages outside.

In France, a Jewish woman has come forward with a despairing cry: We want Jewish missionaries! Groups of Jewish men and women take out in the countryside and control the surrounding territory with their machine guns. The whole country is so small that the British can move troops but we also found customs posts almost every few feet. With their usual quackery, the British hope to use the Jews as suckers."

Mencken called Jerusalem "a very dangerous place," and told how an American woman was robbed while returning from the Mount of Olives. She was informed by British policemen that she was lucky to have escaped with her life. Later Mrs. Grisella Kingsland of San Francisco, also a passenger on the Europa confirmed the story. She was the victim, she said, adding that the three Arab robbers had calmly discussed whether or not to kill her and finally had decided not to.

For almost an hour Mencken discussed Samuel Insull, German wines, Coca Cola, Fascism, Mussolini, the New Deal, the Brain Trust and many other subjects.

He predicted that Europe would be ruled by a "Man on Horseback" within a few years and predicted the same fate for the United States within 20 years. He declined to say what form a dictatorship would take here in America other than to dismiss Italian and German Fascism as totally unsuitable.

is published in the Union. Among outstanding Jews who visited the Union in recent years is Dr. Chaim Weizmann. The University of the Witwatersrand, at Johannesburg, in appreciation of his "great services to humanity," conferred upon him the honorary degree of LL.D. Colonel Kisch, Nahum Sokolov, Dr. Schmarya Levin, the late Maurice Samuel, also toured the country.

Their Leadership

No account of Judaism and the Zionist movement in the Union, however sketchy, would be complete without mention of some of the leaders and workers. L. Braudo is the chairman of the executive council of the S. A. Zionist Federation. J. Alexander, M.A., is a graduate of Oxford, former lecturer on history at the University of Grahamstown and for some 15 years has been the Council's secretary. He is a frequent contributor to The Zionist Record. Mr. and Mrs. Morris Alexander are especially distinguished for their zeal in many activities in religious, cultural, educational, Zionist and other civic affairs. Mr. Alexander is a member of Parliament. Mrs. Alexander is a writer. She is the daughter of the late Professor Schechter, distinguished American Jewish scholar. Among others are Morris Kentridge, member of Parliament; S. Janower, chairman of the Jewish National Fund; Messrs. Benzion S. Hersch, N. Kirschner and J. Gitlin, who have given many years of valuable service among the members of the Federation's council; Dr. and Mrs. D. Ordman, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Franks, Mr. and Mrs. Wolf Senior of Johannesburg, Dr. J. L. Landau, chief Rabbi of Johannesburg and Rev. A. P. Bender, of Cape Town, who are among the spiritual leaders of South African Jewry.

who will devote themselves to spreading the Jewish religion!

Not to convert non-Jews to Judaism, but to keep Jews from drifting away. Help us to keep them Jews, she cries, or all is lost!

This woman is Madame Alfred Schob, a prominent social worker, known to all who are interested in the Jewish youth movement in Western Europe. And it is her own tragedy, the loss of her son, one of the most gifted young men in France, that has led her to throw herself into this campaign. She is the mother of Rene Schob, the famous French author, who has left for the Roman Catholic Church, and has published a pregnant and soul-stirring book in which he explains what it was he missed in Judaism that led him to seek refuge in Catholicism.

Madame Alfred Schob is an active worker in the Jewish Youth Associations of France, and she regularly attends and takes a leading part in the annual Conferences of the World of Jewish Youth (Union Universelle de la Jeunesse Juive).

And at her side in the World Union of Jewish Youth, and in her campaign for Jewish missionaries is Rabbi Aime Pallier, who by a reversed process, was a Roman Catholic priest and has become a Rabbi and is a fervent champion of Judaism.

Madame Schob complains that the Rabbis limit themselves too much to the synagogue, and do not go into the homes of the people, talk to the young people in the street, make friends of them, show them the right path, teach them Judaism, instead of concerning themselves only with Ceremonial.

The Jewish spirit must be preserved no less than the religious ceremonial, she says. And if the Rabbis cannot do this, special bands of Jewish missionaries should be organized, to go out among the youth and lead them back to Judaism, save them from being lost among strangers.

Always in her mind is her own personal tragedy, the defection of her own brilliant talented son.

"I do not want to speak again of my own grief," she writes, "but duty compels me to—and what I feel about it is that the cause of all the defection of our youth is that our Rabbis do not take heed of the terrible need of those who seek God passionately, and for whom forms and ceremonies are not enough."

BUILDING THE PALESTINE OF THE FUTURE

A Picture of the Young Zionists at Work in the Fields and Towns of the New Palestine

By LOUIS GOLDING
Noted British Jewish Writer
Author of Magnolia Street

Where, when I consider contemporary Palestine, do my thoughts linger? Not with the complex politics of that ancient and modern land, nor with the current price of Jaffa oranges. I am no politician or economist. Mostly my thoughts gather to other aspects of Zion — to the colonists themselves, their wives and sons and daughters.

I see them against the background of the green and gracious microcosm they are making out of the disorder of marsh and desert and silted watercourse that the Turks left behind. I see them in the agricultural colonies, some individualistic and some communistic; in the Hebrew University on the flank of Mt. Scopus; and in Tel Aviv, the first town to be built and run entirely by Jews for nearly 2000 years. I see the families of Zion and the youth of Zion.

It is with the youth of Palestine that this article deals. For the future is with them. They are the future. That is the religion of the older ones in Zion; and there are no heretics.

And to my way of thinking, the young ones are worthy of the trust imposed in them and the duties awaiting them. The number of acres under the plough, the tons of merchandise on the railway trucks, I leave for exacter pens than mine. I shall merely try to record the manly bearing, the lustiness, the confidence of the young people of Palestine.

How proud and virile they are! Enter Palestine by the train from Egypt. Presently, at some wayside station, some of the Jewish colonists will board the train. Observe them closely. There will be young men in black or khaki jenkins, open at the neck, and shorts half-way down an expanse of bronzed thigh; and there will be girls with lustrous hair unbound or cut firm to the head. You might deem them athletes, boarding a train for the Olympic Games. But they are not. They are Jewish lads and maidens, pioneering.

They find their places in the train, and suddenly the whole train shakes with the song they break into — a folk-song, arisen as spontaneously among their own wheat as the poppies that still blaze scarlet there.

Yet while they are gay, they can be earnest, too. There is about them, you will discover, a fiery earnestness frequently to be seen in Palestine. They are not meekly satisfied to be your host; they are restless in their desire to show you all you want to see and tell you all you want to know. There is a certainty and confidence about them that one misses in the Youth of some Western lands; there is a trust in the present and a faith in the future.

That is the thing that, on your visit to Palestine, you notice first and remember most clearly. You will not easily forget the light in their eyes as they point to the orange trees and the olive trees, groves of them, planted and grafted and pruned by their sisters and brothers.

Contemporary Youth in Palestine are a happy band. Happy, too, are their young brothers and sisters, the children of Palestine. What red cheeks, what sturdy limbs, what lively eyes! Are these kindred to the sallow little creatures we knew in the Bronx, in Pittsburgh? Of all the flowers and fruit that grow in this world, are there any of more promise?

A visit is worth while to the colony of Ain Chard, under the hills of Gilboa. It is one of the completely Communist colonies, but I am choosing it as an example not because I want to compare the system of this village with that of the more individualistic villages, but because the children here are as typical as may be of the children of all Zion. I must emphasize the fact that this village is neither more nor less prosperous than those villages where each man ploughs his own furrow (to speak not quite metaphorically). The youths and maidens of this colony are similar to those already described. But let us see how they were brought up. They are out in the fields now, working beside their parents; their young sisters and brothers are being tended by experts in baby-cheches and kindergartens, as they were. The children sleep under nets in spotlessly clean cradles under shaded terraces. They play sandcastles with that sainted Palestinian sand, as it might be Margate sand. . . . And now it is sunset. The workers are coming home from the fields. The parents sit by the cots of the children and tell them (for how could they fail to?) how different their own childhood was, in some screaming ghetto in Vilna, or Sheffield, or Philadelphia.

The children are not pampered, of course. Let us take another type of village, the village of Kfar Yeladim, a colony of 250 acres that, when I visited it, was run almost entirely by youngsters. They showed me their synagogue and playhouse, but I remember more clearly their brown and sturdy legs, treading naked on thorns and thistles as if they were a carpet of lush grass. The thorns are grass now, I doubt not.

There are other colonies, and in each of them the same impression is forced upon you — that impression of youth and vigor. So it is that I cannot remember the exact financial figures for this year or that year, or the number of motor cars there are now in Tel Aviv. In the patch-work of my memory the human beings are most vivid.

My thoughts linger longest of all perhaps with a certain young maiden in Merhavia. She sat swaying in the forked branch of a pepper tree, solemnly tearing off leaves and blowing them out upon the wind.

"Why are you climbing to the sky?" I called out to her.

"Puff!" said the child, blowing a leaf on to the air. It fluttered down to my feet. "I'm making trees grow."

It seemed to me that though this method was unscientific, here was the spirit of the Youth of Zion.

Consumptives League

The local League has sent one hundred dollars towards a five hundred dollar bed in the Los Angeles Institution and has paid in full a similar amount for another bed in the Deborah Sanitarium near New York. Two men have already been sent from this city to the latter.

As a feature of the afternoon, Mrs. Nelson presented a check for another hundred dollars to Dr. A. Ginsburg, a representative of the Los Angeles Sanitarium, who also addressed the members on the place filled by the Jewish woman in everyday life. There is now an outstanding balance of $300, on the Providence bed in California.

Mrs. Kaufman arrangements chairman introduced Mrs. Harry Shatkin, local organization leader, who presided. Mrs. Ephraim Rosen, one of the oldest workers and charitable leaders in the state, installed the officers.

Entertainment was furnished by Max Romberg and Morris Konrad who gave several vocal selections and characterizations; and piano and violin selections by Ruth Cohen and Rosalyn Rakusin. Greetings and commendations on the fine work accomplished by the League were extended by M. Fine, of the City District of the Workmen's Circle, Mrs. Morris Duly, and Mrs. Saul Rothschild. Mrs. Isador Leitner received special mention for the fine work as chairman of the recent bridge.

Miss Dorothy Jacobs, an active member of the League, was presented with a bouquet of roses and valley lilies in honor of her recent engagement to George Lederer.

MIRAGE

By NINA KAYE

Some mothers forget that their children aren't babies forever. Some mothers go on arranging their children's lives even after they are full grown. With grim tenacity these mothers go on buying their children's clothes long after they have reached the age when they might choose for themselves a blue coat instead of a brown, a mate with blue eyes instead of brown!

Some mothers are like that. And some are like Leah Cohen.

In her own dim and distant youth Leah had been a "youngest girl." Sometimes, now as her hungry eyes clung to the "blue with a touch of white", while she carried away the proper black which Shirley insisted she take, Leah recalled the days when she had been a child. She had been able to endure the domineering of her four older sisters, telling herself meanwhile, "It will be different when I am married."

It hadn't, however, been different when she married. Ben Cohen was one of those vigorous, active men whose interests were not all concentrated on business. He liked to know how much ice Leah ordered daily. He liked to be consulted about the Friday chicken. He liked nothing better than to go with Leah across town to the public market, to squeeze the fruit forcefully, to make his purchases carefully and deliberately. He liked to gloat over his savings, savings he assured Leah again and again she could never have effected.

And Leah knew she never could have purchased as wisely, as carefully as he. True, she was never given an opportunity to demonstrate her ability or lack of it!

Leah had the friends her husband approved of, went where he wanted her to go, stayed at home when he directed. Married to a man like Ben Cohen, she couldn't have done otherwise.

When Shirley was born, Ben was the perfect father. Once the nursing stage had past, he did everything he could for the child. Leah had to admit it. All their friends had to admit it. Even Shirley, as soon as she was able to toddle and talk, turned first to her father whenever he was at home.

Often, as Leah performed some service for the child, her hands fumbling in her eagerness, she would look up to catch the same derisive look in Shirley's eyes, so very much like Ben's. Perhaps, Leah told herself she only imagined. Perhaps it was merely the peculiarity in shape that gave them that expression!

Shirley was ten when Ben died after a siege of pneumonia. Again and again, in the condolences of her friends, Leah heard the recurrent note. "He was such a good husband. He helped you so much, in the house and with little Shirley. You'll miss him more, even, than most wives."

Miss him? Yes, Leah missed him. It was lonely in the big house, just she and Shirley, Ben had filled it with his vigorous activity.

"We'll move to a little flat now, Shirley," Leah spoke to her daughter when it became necessary to take up the threads of life again. "This place is too big for us."

Shirley regarded her mother with that same look which had been Ben's. "But the flats are all the way over in Montford section," Shirley exclaimed. "I'd have to go to that old Montford school! I want to finish here at Nassau, so I can go to Nassau High. Besides, all my friends are here. And I'd hate to live in a flat."

Of course Leah told herself, the child was right. It wasn't as if they couldn't afford to keep the house. But it meant so much work, without Ben to help her with the furnace and the garden. And it was very lonely for her, all day in the big rooms, while Shirley was at school or playing outdoors with her friends.

But they stayed in the house. Shirley went to Nassau High and to business college because, she insisted, it was much more practical than studying four years without knowing what you wanted to be. Leah had dreamed a dream of her away at college, learning to live a full, rich life.

It was while Shirley was waiting for a job after she finished her business course, that she began doing the shopping for the house. It was scandalous, she told mother, how extravagant she was! And the sorry state of her accounts! But then, she hadn't had Shirley's business training!

Shirley shopped almost as well as Ben had done. Shirley bought her own clothes and her mother's. Shirley re-arranged the furniture so often that Leah was forever crashing into a chair or table where, she had

Terry Needs a Spark Plug

The Giants may win a ball game now and then. Indeed, they may even win three in a row. But they're still not the money-making team that a club that won a world series tournament the year before usually is expected to be. Something is lacking and it is a spark plug. What they need is a good, hard-hitting slugger with plenty of pep in him. That's where Phil Weintraub fits the bill.

Right now Phil is slambanging the old apple for better than 350 batting average in the Grapefruit League. He was left in Nashville by Bill Terry when the Giants passed through that city in April on their annual barnstorming trip.

According to the boss of this Nashville nine, Phil is getting just the polish on his fielding that he needs to make him a natural for a big league team.

The fact that the Giants may soon have a good Jewish baseballer on the team should be good news to the fans in those cities where the Giants make stop-overs on their western tours.

A careful checkup of the big league ball teams reveals that there are only four Jewish players in the majors today. Of course the news from the training camps two months ago had a flock of Hebraic talent competing for posts in big-time ball parks.

When Phil was invited down to the Giants training camp in Florida early in February, the baseball boys ballyhooed it plenty.

It was Phil's wallops that gave most of the games to the Giants when they were South. He came through every time and his spirit and verve keyed up the entire camp to that pitch of enthusiasm that a manager hopes for every season.

Dizzy Dean of the Cards proved easy prey for Phil's bat. Many other dreaded pitchers of the big leagues were just as much siwash for Ma Weintraub's little boy.

Weintraub began playing baseball with the Evanstons, a Chicago semi-pro team, back in 1926. Later he signed up with the Rock Island ball club. It may be surprising to most people, but while Phil was playing with those teams he was a left-handed pitcher.

He played for a season or two in the Central League of the middle west but didn't get very far. It was this reason chiefly which made him give up baseball and go back to his wholesale meat business in the been sure, nothing had stood the day before.

And then, Shirley told her she was engaged to Harold Blomberg!

Was there ever, Leah asked herself a happier mother? Oh, she was happy for Shirley, happy that Harold Blomberg was such a nice boy and that he and Shirley seemed so well suited. Of course, Harold didn't have a very good job. But then, who in these days, had?

And, deep down in the secret depths of her heart, Leah admitted to herself another reason for her happiness. She could sell the big house, could take a two room flat that would be no trouble to look after. She could go to the movies when she wanted to, not just to see the pictures Shirley thought were worth while seeing. She could buy herself a fluffy negligee and wear it all morning, instead of the crisp Hoovers Shirley made for her with such neat despatch!

She could walk along the streets and stop as long as she wanted to, to gaze in the store windows, she could dawdle long hours over clearance counters. Shirley's way of shopping was to rush her swiftly along the alluring aisles of the store to the department they were to purchase at and then to rush her swiftly, unseeing out again!

She could keep her accounts in her old, careless way. She could have pie and coffee for breakfast if she wanted to! She could put her favorite pieces of furniture just where she wanted them in her little flat, and leave them in their places until they seemed to have grown there!

Leah sighed as the sheer ecstasy of her future burst upon her, all in the briefest fraction of a second after Shirley had told her the glad news.

And then through the haze of her coming happiness Leah heard Shirley. "I don't believe you're even listening to me, Mama," Shirley said sharply. "I was saying since you've got this big house and Harold isn't making so much right now, we'll live on here with you."

Windy City.

But selling kosher cows didn't appeal to this chap, especially once the baseball bug had gotten into his blood, and the very next year he was holding down the first sack with another minor league team.

He was coming along in grand style when a bad arm injury forced him out of the game once more. Despite the fact that doctors told him he would have to give up his hopes of becoming a big leaguer, he kept at it and finally succeeded. He got his big chance with the Birmingham outfit last year when Clyde Malin, veteran manager of the 'bama Clyb, placed Phil in the outfield. Though his fielding wasn't anything to write home about, his heavy hitting activities caught the eyes of the Giants' scout in the latter's tour of the hinterlands.

Phil realized his fielding could be improved even when trying out for the Terry team in Florida. Phil said, "I know I have a long way to go but I've picked up a lot since last year. If I could work regularly at it my fielding would improve. There hasn't been much wrong with my throwing and I know I can hit in big league competition."

His training camp record proved the truth of this statement and it is on the strength of this record that Terry is banking his hopes, should it be the case that they decide to make room for the Jewish baseballer in the Giants' outfield at the Polo Grounds.

More Baer Berries

There is more ballyhoo and good old baloney emanating from Maxie Baer's training camp at Asbury Park, than ever came out of Hitler's country.

We hope Maxie will fight half as hard the night of June 14th as he says he will. The other day while we were down at his training quarters, we watched him go through his paces with Giel Harris and Buddy Baer. He seemed to be in better shape than we had ever seen him to be before.

Jack Dempsey came over to where we sat and asked us what we thought of his youthful protege. "What do you really think this boy is going to do to Canera?"

We replied, "For the sake of the J. T. A. and the Jewish sporting pages we hope Baer comes through. However, he does seem to be clowning a bit too much for his own good. He looks to be in fine fettle but he doesn't take his work any too seriously."

At this, Jack patted us on the shoulder and said, "Feller, if you have any dough, put it on the line in favor of Maxie Baer, the next heavyweight champ of the world."

If anyone should know, we think it is Jack Dempsey, so with the money we made as a result of the Ross-McLarnin fight we'll place a couple of bets on Maxie Baer, the Jewish scrapper from California.

America the united efforts of all three organizations of Jewish communal workers. The vital changes taking place in Jewish life in this country and throughout the world, the new attitude towards social service, Jewish Education and community leadership brought about by these changes and methods dealing with these problems was the central theme of the conference.

The conference of Jewish Center Executives discussed problems on adult education, esthetic recreational activities, interpreting the Jewish Center to its board of directors, health activities, summer program and individual guidance. Specific projects in Center work as Jewish Youth Nights and Keren Ami were analyzed and the relation of the Jewish Center to other agencies in the community and to Jewish life in Palestine and Europe.

TEMPLE BETH ISRAEL

Services

Beginning tonight early services will be conducted at seven o'clock and Saturday morning services will begin at nine o'clock, until the end of June.

Bar Mitzvah

The congregation will celebrate tomorrow morning, the Bar Mitzvah of Stanley Smira, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Smira of Hamilton street.

On next Saturday, George Goldman, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Goldman will be Bar Mitzvah.

Closing Congregation Meeting

At the closing meeting of the congregation held in the vestry Monday evening, announcement was made that Rabbi Morris Schussheim has again accepted the spiritual leadership of Temple Beth Israel. Vice president Morris Chusmir presided and made the announcement.

Plans are underway for the annual banquet and reception to the recently elected officers and the Rabbi, scheduled for June 14. Robert L. Bernstein is chairman of arrangements.

Father-Son Banquet Tuesday

The annual Father-Son Banquet will be conducted by the Men's Club on Tuesday evening in the vestry of the Temple. Dinner will be served at 6:30 after which entertainment will be furnished by Friskella, well-known magician, and the Triple Quartet from the Central High School, who have been commended by several music critics on their excellent programs. Several reels of movies will also be a feature of the evening. Installation of officers will close the ceremonies.

The committee in charge of arrangements comprises Boris N. Nelson, chairman; Maurice Hendel, treasurer; Hyman Lisker, Dr. Carl Jagolinzer, Dr. Ira Lowe, Dr. Myron Keller, Joseph Bloomfield, Albert Lisker and Jack Levitt.

Religious School Outing

More than three hundred pupils attended the annual Temple Beth Israel Religious School outing Sunday at Goddard Park. Refreshments were served.

Three baseball games featured the afternoon's program, the major event being the one between the Junior League and the Confirmants which was won by the former 9-8.

In the field events, prizes were won by the following: Shirley Shore, Rose Lisker, (2), Eugene Nelson, Roland Salk, Morris Cherin, Jerome Goldstein, Justin Morgan and A. Lichtman.

In the women's event Mrs. Morris W. Shoham won two prizes, one being for the championship rolling pin throw, which was for a distance of 51 feet. In the men's contests, Morris Salk won the apple race and Herman P. Goldberger, was winner in the fat man's race.

Prizes were donated by Lyon A. Marcus, Theodore Max, Henry Hassenfeld and the Sisterhood of the Temple.

School prizes for excellence attained in study and attendance and donated by Mr. and Mrs. Boris N. Nelson, were awarded at the outing by Rabbi Schussheim. Siegfried Arnold, teacher of the Confirmants was in charge of the outing arrangements.

Junior League

Plans for a hay-ride were made at a meeting of the Junior League which was held Sunday at the outing. The event, a novel one in this city, will probably be held shortly after the final examinations which take place June 10. Herbert Ballon presided.

Although there will be no more meetings this season, the cultural and social committees have begun plans for the next season's meetings which will be resumed in September.

Y. W. Officers Seated At Installation Fete

A large group of members and guests attended the Installation Supper given by the Young Women's Hebrew Association at the Jewish Community Center Monday evening. The meeting was opened by Miss Helen Sapsowitz, chairman, who gave the welcoming address.

Mrs. Joseph J. Seefor was toastmistress for the evening and Mrs. Saul Abrams installed the following officers for the coming year:

Mrs. Joseph J. Seefor, honorary president; Miss Freda Simon, president; Miss Helen Sapsowitz, first vice president; Miss Sadie Kamaras, second vice president; Miss Ida Snell, recording secretary, and Miss Evelyn Bader, corresponding secretary.

Mrs. Rose Gerber of the State Public Welfare Commission gave a most interesting and comprehensive talk on State Institutions.

Mrs. Seefor was presented with a bag from the Y. W. H. A. members in appreciation of her faithful services to the organization.

LUNCHEON AND BRIDGE

Mrs. Abraham I. Schechter, will be the principal speaker at the luncheon and bridge to be conducted by the Sisterhood of the Sons of Jacob Synagogue, Wednesday afternoon, June 6, at 1 o'clock in Zinn's Banquet Hall.

This event will be the last one conducted by the organization for the season.

Reservations should be made immediately with Mrs. J. Kopit, arrangement chairman, at Dexter 4917 or with Mrs. S. M. Rubin at Dexter 4031.

Over Eighty Attend Mothers' Alliance Donors' Luncheon

More than eighty members and friends of the Jewish Mothers' Alliance attended the annual donors' luncheon held Thursday afternoon, at Zinn's Banquet Hall. Mrs. Abraham I. Schechter was the guest speaker of the afternoon and an extensive program was presented during and after the luncheon.

Mrs. G. Zaidman, chairman of the luncheon committee, opened the program by describing the aims of the organization, and introduced Mrs. Ephraim Rosen as toastmistress.

Mrs. Rosen, with a few well-chosen remarks, took charge of the program, and presented Mrs. Harry Weiner, the president of the organization, who gave a most interesting and detailed report of the activities of the Mothers' Alliance during the past year. The secretary, Mrs. P. Blazer, read a few letters from European and Palestinian institutions which are greatly benefited by the association. After the musical program, Mrs. Rosen presented Mrs. Schechter who addressed the assembly in English and in Yiddish, praising the ladies for their many activities, and encouraging them to continue their excellent work.

The entertainment consisted of a group of specialty dances, songs and readings by Max Romberg and N. Morris Konrad, recitations by little Miss Natalie Brown, and piano and violin selections by Misses Blanche and Ida Friedman.

Over 400 Boys and Girls at Center Participate in Annual Koved Night

More than four hundred boys and girls representing over twenty Junior and Intermediate clubs at the Jewish Community Center took part in the fifth Annual Koved Night exercises at 65 Benefit street last Thursday evening. This annual event brings to a close a season of inter-club competition at which honors and prizes are distributed to groups and individuals.

Jack Jacobson, Bernice Koret and David Katt brought greetings from club groups. The J. C. C. concert orchestra furnished the music. Boy Scout Troop 5 opened the exercises with a bugle call and singing of "My Country 'Tis Of Thee."

Governor Theodore Francis Green was the principal speaker.

The Checkerette group was awarded the Jules P. Goldstein trophy for the outstanding club in the Junior division and the Olympics captured the Max L. Grant trophy for similar honors in the Intermediate division. The following boys and girls were awarded various honors for speaking and writing: Lillian Shushansky, Shepley Shapiro, Louis Schleifer, Bella Goldstein, Boris Pritcher, Celia Kapelow, Bernice Koret, Israel Moses, Leo Zuckerberg, Sydney Cohen, Sanford Litchman, Estelle Deluty, Emma Perlow, Louis Tarnapol.
