Big Night Tomorrow Ends Gala Carnival

Numerous Features to Wind up Home for Aged Affair

What has proved one of the greatest Jewish achievements in the community, culminating an entire summer's planning on the part of active committee members, the second annual Home for the Aged carnival will close late tomorrow (Saturday) night after affording thousands of visitors a week's enjoyment, thrills and profitable purchases.

Tomorrow night the final program highlights along with additional features are the auctioning of every piece of merchandise left on the grounds, the drawing of the ticket which will give as a prize, a LaSalle automobile, and the special star act of the Diving Gordous, which has thrilled thousands the past four days.

Splendid Work
The carnival testifies to the splendid work of Max Segal, general chairman, and Teddy Max, general director, and the splendid cooperation they received from many individuals and business firms here.

Although the cold weather on opening night provided a handicap, the aim of the committees is to reach the $1,000 mark. In discussing the various aspects of the carnival following the opening night, Mr. Max generously lauded his fellow workers.

"To Max Segal, chairman of the affair," declared Mr. Max, "goes a great deal of praise for the way in which he gave of his time and money, in order to bring about the success of the carnival. Throughout the year he has been on the lookout for merchandise donations. He has further aided the Home for the Aged cause by purchasing $500 worth of tickets for the grand drawing for the LaSalle tomorrow night. Max Segal, together with the rest of his family has contributed much toward making the carnival a success. His wife has been actively at work around the grounds here after doing much of the soliciting in the women's shop; his son-in-law, Benjamin Kuttenberg, and daughter, Edith Segal, have helped in many capacities."

Fellow Workers Active
Continuing his words of praise for his active fellow-workers, Mr. Max told of the fine work accomplished by the various booth captains including: Herman Swartz, in charge of groceries, and who "came with a five ton truck of groceries for his booth"; Sam Feinberg, who is doing a competent job as captain

Herald Maintains Booth at Carnival to Aid Aged Home

With one dollar of its subscription price allotted to benefit the Jewish Home for the Aged, the HERALD during the past three days has maintained a booth at the second annual Carnival on Hillside Ave.

Tomorrow night will be the last opportunity for visitors at the carnival to contribute to the worthy cause of the Jewish Home for the Aged and at the same time receive a year's subscription to the HERALD.

Subscription to the HERALD is $2.00 per year. The booth at the carnival is located next to the drug store booth. A member of the HERALD staff is in charge and is receiving all subscriptions.

$2,500 Jewish Drive to Start

First steps in the organization of the annual Jewish National Fund Drive to raise $2,500 in Providence during the High Holidays, are being taken this week at a meeting in the home of Mrs. Samuel Michaelson, chairman of the R. I. Unit. Complete details of the drive will be announced in next week's Herald.

From the Jewish National Fund headquarters in New York came the announcement yesterday of the opening recently of the Sefer HaLelei, a Children's Register. The Children's Register, similar in design and in purpose to the world famous Golden Book of the Jewish National Fund, in which names of the most outstanding personalities of the present and preceding generations are inscribed, is now on view at the head of the Jewish National Fund in Jerusalem, and is open for entering of the names of Jewish children.

According to announcement from the headquarters of the Jewish National Fund in Jerusalem, the basic amount for entries into the Children's Register, has been set at $10. In this way it is hoped to make the Golden Book for the Jewish child an accessible and popular medium for recording events in the life of the Jewish family. Contributions for the inscription of names in the Children's Register may be sent to the New York office, 111 Fifth Ave.

Germans Will Hold Jews as Hostages if Boycott Fails to Become More Moderate

Repertory Group to Start Season

A special program has been arranged for this session. Two outstanding speakers in the persons of Leslie Allen Jones and Hazel Browne Goodwin, are scheduled to appear. Mr. Jones is a well known scenic artist, writer and lecturer at Brown University, while Miss Goodwin is a prominent member of the Providence Players and an excellent entertainer.

The first play of the season, directed by Miss Marion Brooks, will be presented at the October meeting. William E. Smith is again coaching the major productions and will start rehearsing the three-act play to be presented in November. Tryouts and casting will be held the day following the meeting.

There are more than a hundred sponsors of The Repertory Players, men and women desirous of furthering the dramatic interests of this group. Officers are: Bert L. Bernhardt, president; Dr. James C. Krasnoff, vice president; Mrs. Albert Pilsin, secretary and Milton Potler, treasurer. Mrs. Arthur J. Levy is chairman of the important production committee. Her assistants are Mrs. Louis Euddish, Arthur Kaplan, Miss Marion Brooks, Bert L. Bernhardt and William E. Smith. Old and new members will be welcomed at the first meeting.

Head of Home Aids Needy Man

The quietude of last Sunday night at the Home for the Aged on Hillside Ave, was interrupted by a telephone call at 9 p. m., from the East Providence police. Isaac Feinstein, superintendent of the Home for the Aged, learned that a costless and harmless Jewish old man had been found wandering about the streets in a somewhat delirious condition.

It didn't take long for Mr. Feinstein to reach his destination in East Providence. He found there, in care of the police, an old man who said his name was Morris Goldstein and that he was 79 years of age. In his coat were Hebrew calendars which were apparently being sold for the New Year. Mr. Feinstein questioned him and took him to the Home for the Aged on Hillside Ave. in an attempt to have the old man identified. But this proved of no aid. He was finally taken to the R. I. Transient Bureau for care.

Mrs. Roosevelt Bestows Honor on Mrs. Jacobs

In an appointment announced by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt in New York this week, Mrs. Harry L. Jacobs of Norwood Ave., was named Rhode Island State leader for the National Women's Committee of the 1935 Mobilization for Human Needs. Mrs. Jacobs, together with 67 women committee members, has been invited to confer with the First Lady at the White House, next Monday and Tuesday.

Mrs. Roosevelt, in announcing the appointment, declared that the basic purpose of the National Women's Committee is to discover and report the human needs of their fellow citizens. She said in part: "The women of the United States are again offering their service in behalf of human needs which communities are trying to meet through their welfare agencies. It is most encouraging that the mobilization has the united support of women who hold various religious faiths and widely different political and economic views."

Native of Providence
Mrs. Jacobs, a native of Providence, is well known for her communal activities. She is a graduate of the Providence school system and Stanhope-Wheatcroft. ### R. I. Jews Emphasize Boycott in Statements

Further protest against Nazism and Adolph Hitler came from all points of Rhode Island this week as a result of the latest news emanating from Germany which has deprived the Jew of citizenship and has relegated the 600,000 German Jews to a ghetto.

In Providence, Jewish leaders repeatedly emphasized the dire need of a boycott on all German goods. That an economic boycott was the only solution to bring any relief at all in Germany, was the opinion expressed on all sides.

Leaders Urge Boycott
In special statements to the HERALD, two outstanding Jewish men of the community, Alter Boyman and Max L. Grant, expressed their views on the new "Jewish doom" in Germany. The statement from Alter Boyman follows:

"I believe that the last speech delivered by Hitler last Sunday will do good for the Jews. Up to the present moment your so-called liberals have tried to defend Hitler by saying that the persecutions in Germany, depriving people of their homes and their children from schooling, is merely paper propaganda and not substantiated. Now with this recent Hitler declaration, every right-thinking person must condemn such action against a people that has lived for hundreds of years in Germany. The boycott against Germany and the protest meetings will prove a solution to the problem. Economic conditions in Germany today are such that with the continuation of a boycott for another six months, the people of Germany will awaken to the fact that they are harming themselves as well as the Jews."

Max L. Grant declared, "What is most important, in my opinion, in regards to the modern persecution of the Jews, is the reaction and statement of the Christian world to

Dishonest Minority Caused Persecutions Says Economist

Charging that the "dishonesty and boggishness" of a minority of the Jews in Germany is responsible for the prevalent conditions and persecution, Roger W. Babson, nationally known economist and statistician, advises that the Jews in this country, for their own protection, "had better slow down their commercial pace for a while, since it is often wiser to drop out of a picture temporarily than to stir up unnecessary animosity."

Statements in Letter
These statements were disclosed to have been printed in a special letter mailed out to regular clients of the Babson financial service which is located in Wellesley, Mass.

Williamstown which afforded Mr. Babson the opportunity to express his thoughts aloud.

Although advised by the editorial board at his Institute not to publish the letter because it "might stir up a hornet's nest among our Jewish clients," Mr. Babson declared: "I may misjudge my clientele, but I believe my advice is sound, and you know that I have not a drop of intolerant blood in my veins."

Excerpts from Letter
Excerpts from Babson's letter follow: "I feel that it is important for members of every race deliberately to guard against what might arouse animosities. This applies to all races. If I have started with the Jews, it is just because they happen to be on my mind now. . . . Everyone respects the energy, ingenuity and perseverance of the Hebrews. They, for example, are among the very best of our business

Unanimous Protest of Olympics This Week

One hundred percent against American participation in the Olympic Games to be held in Berlin, is the report this week from the desk of the HERALD sports editor. In the greatest spurt of votes yet cast—a total of 409—Providence Jewry took its stand on the current controversy via the weekly Herald ballot. Not a single vote was cast for the "yes" side.

As was evident last week, Providence womanhood is wide-awake in their protest against having American representation in the 1936 Olympic Games. More than 100 women sent in ballots this week and a few even went so far as to add comments on their clipped ballots. One woman declared: "How else can the Jews of America vote after reading the news emanating from Germany this past week?"

Cast YOUR vote now! As a Jew you owe it to yourself to answer: Shall America be represented in the Olympic Games scheduled in Berlin, Germany in 1936?
The vote now stands:
Against Taking Part ..... 1,379
In Favor of Taking Part ..... 12

he would be unable to attend because of official business.

One of the favorite features of the carnival was the famous Diving Gordons who came direct from the Brooklyn Fair. The act is recognized as the outstanding one of its kind in the country. Those who saw it for the first time last Monday now know the reason for such recognition.

The youngsters favored the turtle race game during the early nights of the carnival while the majority of their parents could be found sitting at the bingo game. Both old and young stopped to admire the La-Salle automobile which will be taken home all wrapped tomorrow night. See you there and lots o' luck.

The women who are striving to make the carnival "go over the top" are Mesdames Mike Tieman, Teddy Max, Isadore Sandperli, J. Kahnovsky, Sarah Silverstein. Mrs. Isadore Low took charge of the vendors and cashiers.

Teddy Max disclosed the names of the men largely responsible for a big money sale on tickets for the grand drawing. Max Sieral has purchased $500 worth of tickets; Ben Trinkle is selling $500 worth of tickets and has already turned in $250 in cash; Sam Magid has guaranteed to sell $500 worth of tickets; Maurice Cooper has bought $100 worth of tickets; Philip Korb has guaranteed the sale of $500 worth.

All rolls and pastries were donated by Mr. Korb and Mr. Snell.

Benjamin Kane, captain of the automobile booth, is disposing of $1,500 worth of tickets. Kane has been one of the most earnest and energetic workers, aiding the Home for the Aged.

Teddy Max wishes to express his thanks and appreciation to Edward Reidy, city official in charge of public aid, who had men sent to the carnival grounds to clear the land of rocks before the tents were set up.

To the fire department and Chief Charlesworth, go thanks for supplying the water in the tank of the Diving Gordons. For — no water, no act.

Thus far, one of the noticeable factors around the carnival has been the splendid cooperation of the Providence police. Thanks extended to Miles Glidden, superintendent.

Rabbi Wise Calls for World Protest

NEW YORK (JTA)—Rabbi Stephen S. Wise returned here on the 16 de France after a visit of several months in Europe, during which he attended the World Zionist Congress, and characterized the new anti-Jew laws enacted by Germany as "the crime of Nuremberg, a crime that was to be expected."

"I warned the German delegation at the World Zionist Congress," he told the Jewish Telegraphic Agency, that "you can silence me but you cannot halt the crimes of Hitlerism."

Rabbi Wise asked for world intervention in Germany on behalf of the Jews there.

"Why," he demanded, "doesn't the civilized world intervene and protest against its destroying enemies?"

Discussing the Committee of Jewish Delegations, of which he was named president at its meeting in Lucerne, Rabbi Wise said the committee would now assume new importance in view of the latest developments in Germany. He said the World Jewish Congress definitely will be held, but refused to say when it would be convened.

A monument to the late Mrs. Lena Dworkin will be unveiled in Lincoln Park Cemetery Sunday, September 22 at 11 o'clock. Friends and relatives are invited to attend.

Postpone Religious Schools' Opening

A sensible move on the part of the various religious schools in the city is the postponed opening of sessions, as announced in this week's HERALD, because of the prevalence of infantile paralysis.

By following the wise example set by the Providence health authorities, the school heads have shown that they are not taking any unnecessary risks merely for the sake of providing students with a few more hours of instruction which can undoubtedly be made up during the course of the year.

"Two Birds With One Stone"

For the past three days the HERALD has maintained a booth at Jewish Home for the Aged Carnival for the purpose of enabling visitors to do a little more in furthering the worthy cause. The HERALD is going to put into the treasury of the Home one dollar out of every subscription received.

It is obvious that little financial benefit is derived by the HERALD when it donates almost half of its regular subscription price. The sole purpose of this offer is to give more Jewish families the opportunity to aid a worthy institution in the community and yet at the same time avail themselves of a year's subscription. Stop at the HERALD booth tonight and tomorrow night and do your share.

Concerted Action Necessary at Once

If ever the time was at hand that something drastic had to be done on the part of Jews and non-Jews to curb the relentless activities of a fanatic German government, IT IS NOW. The latest news emanating from Hitlerland resulting from Der Fuehrer's speech of last Sunday opens wide for Germany's 600,000 Jews the gates of a new ghetto. These hundreds of thousands of Jews are literally being consigned to a living death unless the somewhat prevalent policy, on the part of peoples all over the world, of apathy and refusal to hear and see what is going on in Germany, is decidedly reversed.

Governments and people cannot sit idly by and merely acknowledge such reports as received from Germany this week over the morning newspaper. Jews all over the world owe it to themselves to protest to their own governments the present conditions in Germany as concerning the Jew. Nations have a right to sever diplomatic, social and economic relations with Germany because of brutalities on the part of a paganistic and crazed government. They have this right, just as they have the right to send warships to Ethiopia should they feel that this small African nation is being unlawfully oppressed by other aggressive nations.

An economic boycott has been proved one effective way of penetrating the screen Hitler has put up between his henchmen and the German people. Hitler's disappointing speech last Sunday revealed that things clearly are not going well with Germany either at home or abroad. Her finances are affected. Her national credit has fallen to a low ebb. Hitler's sudden attempt to end a double-edged boycott resulting from Nazi anti-Jewish measures is but a mere heartening note, but discloses that when the German pocketbook is hit, it hurts most.

Whether an economic boycott — meetings of protest — is the solution is not an absolute certainty. But it goes without saying that these two measures will materially aid the Jewish cause. At all events, concerted action is necessary at once.

The press throughout the world condemns the recent German action for it is not difficult to see through Hitler's motives. He should be dealing more with any one of the great issues which are agitating public opinion in Europe. Editorially, the New York Times says that "concerning German domestic affairs, Hitler had some things to say that were almost childish. . . . More serious, of course, and more repulsive was Hitler's action in fanning anew the flames of anti-Semitism in Germany. Not able to lead his Nazi troops against a foreign foe, he beckoned them to attack again a weak and inoffensive minority at home. . . . If Hitler could ever give Germans a strong lead, it was the time to do it when he spoke at Nuremberg on Sunday. His address must have left them more confused and dispirited than before."

In an editorial on Germany's Ghetto, the London Times declared, "It is difficult to believe that this condition can permanently last, but if it does it will certainly be quoted centuries hence as an extreme index of the moral setback suffered by civilization through the war and its aftermath."

Rhode Island Jewry must do its part at once in the attempt to put a stop to German atrocities. Max L. Grant, local Jewish leader, summarized in a speech recently what paths may be followed. He said:

"Let us protest with all our might; let our public men, our preachers and ministers, our newspapers, our governments, realizing the menace not only to this but to succeeding generations, advocate the use of those instrumentalities at our command. If we use those instrumentalities we will sever diplomatic relations with Germany — that means abrogation. We will not participate in the Olympic Games of 1936 in Germany — that means withdrawal. We will not trade with Germany — that means boycott."

No longer can we as Jews remain complacent. Actions must overshadow mere words.

For it was the immortal humanitarian President Woodrow Wilson, who said "All people must be free and independent. Minorities in nations must not be unjustly treated. Every man must have his own religion."

Chairmen of other meetings to follow, as appointed by Miss Freda Simon, president, include the Misses Helen Sapsowitz, Evelyn Bader, Ethel Levine, Mollie Benowitz, Beatrice Groves, and Harriet Wimmerman. Mrs. Rebecca Katz Goldman was named contract bridge chairman.

the programs being officially adopted by the Hitler government. The Jew can shout with all his might but to what avail? If I had anything to say on the situation, I am inclined to the belief it could be more in criticism of those enlightened leaders of church and state who tolerate complacently the un-Christianlike, the inhuman, the barbaric treatment of human beings such as the Jews are receiving at the hands of the Hitler government."

The organization of a local group whose principal project will be the staging of a comprehensive welfare exposition similar to the one which attracted an attendance of 21,000 last year, was announced by Mrs. Jacobs. This project is being sponsored by the Providence-Cranston Community Fund Campaign of which Mrs. Jacobs is chairman. Mrs. Jacobs declared that the exposition will be held on the second floor of the Old Arcade Building from Oct. 28 to Nov. 3, and will provide through graphic displays and exhibits, a broad picture of the work of social service agencies comprising the fund's membership.

Last year, 359 American communities conducted campaigns to fulfill the purpose of the National Women's Committee. Included among the leaders of the national movement was Mrs. Arthur Rein of Minneapolis, president of the National Council of Jewish Women.

leaders. To the Jews I can say with genuine admiration: Your willingness to work harder and make greater sacrifices has earned for you your control of some of America's greatest industries. On the other hand, there are individuals of your race — AND of my own, the Yankees — who have resorted to sharp and unfair business practices, which the real body of our people do not approve. Was it not the dishonesty and hoggliness of a small minority of the Jews in Germany that gave you your foe a handle for attack and brought persecution for so many of your race?

" . . . As I have often remarked to my Jewish friends: Your race ranks high in brains and it leads the world in perseverance. But in many cases you seem to me to be weak in ability — or patience — in trying to understand others. Every race has its particular problems. Is it not the problem of all of us to build up loyal human relations along with capital assets. Let us all concentrate on developing better human relations between ourselves and our fellow citizens. Back up the spirit and ideals typified by this Williamstown Conference. You may tell me to mind my own business, but you all will thank me some day for not pussyfooting but speaking out as a real friend can." — Roger W. Babson.

LISTENING IN AT THE HOME CARNIVAL

Yours truly was amongst the hundreds present at the opening night festivities of the Jewish Home for the Aged carnival last Monday. From all our experience of witnessing events of this nature, we can say that it is the finest it has been our pleasure to see. The advance plans which flooded the state through the press and radio have certainly been lived up to in every way and by tomorrow night, which is closing night, I predict that the expected aura of proceeds will have been realized. If you have not already attended, be sure to be there tonight before this great big party is a matter of history, because by your presence you will have aided one of our worthiest causes and at the same time will have enjoyed a fine evening.

Seen and jotted down with the aid of my trusty notebook — Teddy Max who had about 15 hours sleep during the past week, running here and there, attired in his old white (T) flannels and ancient sweat shirt, directing this and that and carrying a million details in his mind, and right here and now, let me say that I have never seen a man who so conscientiously has labored for our charity as this unusual person — nice job, Ted, and I won't forget your "wisecracks" when things did not look so bright. ## Instructor Leaves for Johns Hopkins

Already having the distinction of being the youngest member of the faculty at Rhode Island State College, Harry J. Prebluda, chemistry instructor, will take leave this fall for graduate study at Johns Hopkins University.

Mr. Prebluda was graduated from Rhode Island State in 1932 and received his Master of Science degree the following year. Dr. R. G. Bressler, president of Rhode Island State, appointed Mr. Prebluda as the first Rhodes Scholar delegate to represent Rhode Island State College. As an undergraduate Mr. Prebluda was prominent in debating and musical activities and also took part in the Jewish cultural activities of the campus. He was instrumental in the organization of Alpha Epsilon Pi, Jewish fraternity at the college.

While a member of faculty, Mr. Prebluda collaborated with Prof. J. W. Ince, head of the chemistry department, in devising a new type test construction for organic chemistry which proved popular with the student body. Both men have also written a book which will be used this year for the first time by students enrolled in the organic chemistry course. Mr. Prebluda has written many scientific articles which have appeared regularly in a newspaper syndicate covering southern New England. During the past winter he gave weekly talks over the radio.

While at Johns Hopkins, he will major in chemistry related to medical sciences. Mr. Prebluda will return to Rhode Island State for his doctorate upon completion of his graduate study.

All in all it was a very successful opening. . . . of course, I could not see everything that happened within the carnival grounds. . . . however, I am hoping that all of you will be there tonight when the name of the lucky winner of the La Salle sedan will be announced — if you don't win it. I hope I do.

They Reached The Top

By I. D. CLAIRE

A nice baby was born on Rivington St., on the East Side of New York on December 29, 1894. Its parents, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Grossman, knew nothing about the vitamin values of spinach — but those same vitamin values were to put the new arrival (blessed event, with apologies to Winchell), on the top of this festering pile we call the world.

The teachers in P. S. 16 (public school, to you) didn't think a whole lot of the scholastic abilities of Milton Grossman. In fact they rather resented his proclivity for drawing funny pictures in which the teachers' features featured prominently. But Milton gradually graduated. Well, so what — about a job?

The best job that offered was that of office boy on the Morning Telegraph. So Milton took the job — $8 a week plus experience. The experience and the job culminated when somebody relayed to the managing editor, a picture of said top sergeant that couldn't be construed as complimentary. So Milton started reading the help wanted ads in the old Morning World. And then again, so what?

So what — he got himself a job. Again an office boy. He didn't have a lot of time on the office bench to draw pictures. Also he hadn't forgotten the $8 per week plus experience on the Telegraph — (incidentally, the Telegraph at that time was owned and published by Mr. Moore of Philadelphia, last husband of Lillian Russell) — so Milton, whenever he could sneak a re-write man's typewriter, devoted himself to composition.

Some folks claim that George Buchanan Frye, city editor of the World, was the discoverer of Milton. Let's take off the mask — it was Milton Gross all the time. At any event, the old Morning World requisit on pace, started a series of funny Jewish stories by Milton Gross.

The stories were funny because they were human. They did not caricature the Jewish race. No more than a Harry Lauder story caricatures the Scotch race or a John Car-

Cornick song caricatures the Irish, or a Wagner (Vokner) opera caricatures the Germans. Milton's stories were human. When Mrs. Greenberg called across the dumb-waiter shaft to Mrs. Mefoosky, there was a funny little twist to the dialogue that everybody could understand. It might have been Mrs. Marnie calling to Mrs. Riley, Mrs. Narkisky to Mrs. Hitler or Mrs. Van Swelleगत calling to Mrs. Doughinthebank. Milton struck a human chord.

The associated spinach growers, if there is any such association, should vote an appropriation for Milton Gross. And then the big, he is big, pain-in-the-neck had to go and spoil it all. After he had made a success that most people would envy with his writings he decided that he was a comic artist. To date, nobody disagrees with him. He is a good comic artist, but I'll lay you 6-2 and even that more people miss his "Nize Babu" stories than read or look at his cartoons.

He's had dozens of imitators. One of them, Harry Lehr is now drawing down $250 a week from a movie picture outfit. He's a Jewish boy, too. But nobody, nowhere, ever succeeded in copying the inimitable style of Milton Gross. He could and can write stuff that is funny without hurting, funny without caricaturing the people who play the parts of puppets — entertaining to people of all races and creeds without offending any.

So Milton made a success — and close to a million. And then the offense boy complex overtook him. He decided that his true medium of expression was the crayon and the pencil. He reverted to art. Today he isn't writing — instead the dumb-head is drawing. His pictures are funny and his salary check puts a shadow on $1,000 a week. But the folks who knew him "when," would rather have a few stories in which Mrs. Greenberg tries to cajole the baby into eating some more spinach.

Announce Betrothal of Bride's Maid of Honor at Wedding

Last Sunday evening was of double significance in the Strick household.

It marked the marriage of Miss Marion Strick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tobias Strick of Lipitt St., to Haskell Mark, son of Mrs. Brana Mark. And it also featured the announcement of the engagement of the bride's maid of honor, her sister, Sarah, to the bridegroom's best man, Max Greenberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Greenberg of Pawtucket.

The wedding ceremony was performed by Rabbi Morris Schussheim at Weinstein's Lake Pearl Manor in Wrentham, Mass. Solo selections were given by Joseph Schlossberg.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her parents, wore a white satin gown en train. Her lace veil extended the length of the train. She carried a bridal bouquet of white roses. Attendants included Mr. and Mrs. Abe Glyn. Both the mother of the groom and the bride's mother wore black velvet gowns.

Bridesmaids were Misses Sarah Debuty, Hilda Debuty, Hattie Slokin and Florence Rosen, while ushers were Mitchell Sherwin, Robert Solick, Irving Solick and Theodore Rice. A niece of the groom, Anna Glyn, was flower girl.

The bride and groom left on a motor trip to Canada.

WOONSOCKET NEWS

By ZELMOR LEVIN

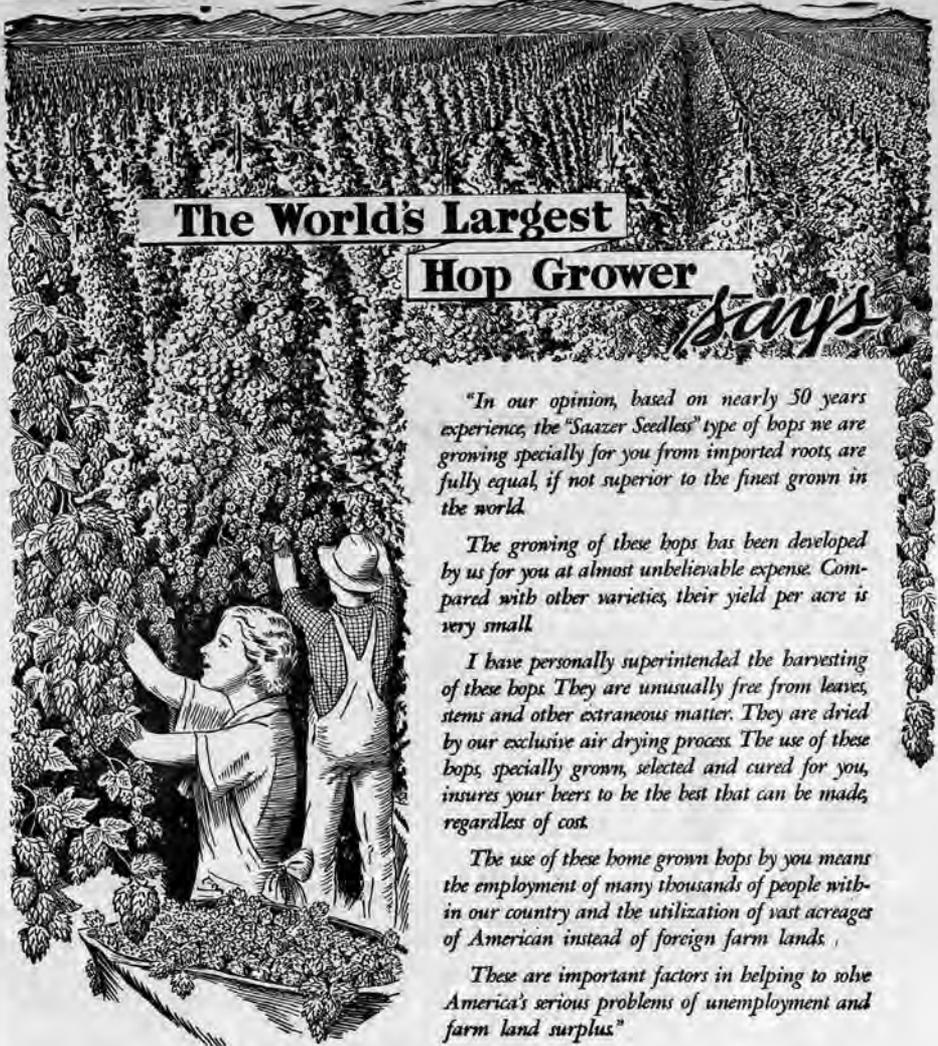

We had planned to inaugurate the Fall column with a description of how Woonsocket B'nai Brith baseball team won the pennant in the Jewish Inter-Club League race, but ol' Jupe Plavius interfered. So we must defer our writing on that particular matter, for a week at least.

The local outfit was scheduled to meet the South Providence Orioles last Sunday morning. A victory would have clinched the title for the team, playing its first year of organized baseball under the clever guidance of Robert Rabinovitz. But rain caused cancellation of the battle.

Because of the tremendous interest in the outcome and the large crowd expected, the contest is now tentatively listed for 10:30 o'clock, Sunday morning at St. Ann's Park, the only enclosed diamond in the city. Harold Golden is slated to work on the mound with Avery Lavigne as his battery mate.

Rabbi Jacob Freedman, for three years spiritual leader at Temple Beth-El, Chelsea, Mass., will be in charge of the holiday services at B'nai Israel Synagogue, it was announced this week by Joseph S. Eisenberg, president.

Leave it to Sam Kornstein to allow other prominent men in the city to make jackasses out of themselves. Donkey baseball, which is amusing for the spectators if not for the

The growing of these hops has been developed by us for you at almost unbelievable expense. Compared with other varieties, their yield per acre is very small.

I have personally superintended the harvesting of these bops. They are unusually free from leaves, stems and other extraneous matter. They are dried by our exclusive air drying process. The use of these bops, specially grown, selected and cured for you, insures your beers to be the best that can be made, regardless of cost.

The use of these home grown bops by you means the employment of many thousands of people within our country and the utilization of vast acreages of American instead of foreign farm lands.

These are important factors in helping to solve America's serious problems of unemployment and farm land surplus."

participants, hit Woonsocket recently. The idea is for the batter to attempt (the word is used advisedly) to mount his donkey after hitting the ball, while the fielders chase the elusive pill on their "steeds."

Sam took one look at the players, as the Lions and Kivansians got together the other night, trying to emulate Tom Mix. But none succeeded. Without exception, each player kissed the dust as he tried to wrap his legs around the little, stubborn animals.

So Sam decided discretion would be the better part of valor. "I'll coach the team," he said, "from the sidelines."

Incidentally, Mr. Kornstein was installed as president of the Lions Club at impressive ceremonies conducted recently in the Uxbridge Inn.

The rapid approach of colder weather signalized the renewal of social activities in Woonsocket and the B'nai Brith was the first of the fraternal groups to start its regular meetings. Initial Fall sessions of the Aleph Zadik Aleph and the women's organizations are scheduled in the near future. As outlined last week by Abraham E. Goldstein, president one of the busiest seasons in the Woonsocket B'nai Brith is planned during the coming months. In addition to purely social gatherings, the club will join with state and national organizations in charitable projects to aid distressed brethren and to fight the atrocities of Hitler.
