RABBINICAL GROUP
HONORS DR. GOLDMAN

Dr. Israel M. Goldman, of the Temple Emanu-El of this city, has been appointed a member of several of the committees of the Rabbinical Assembly of America, of which Dr. Goldman is national treasurer. Dr. Goldman will serve on the committees of International Co-operation, Chaplaincies, Pension Fund and Adult Education.

In making this announcement from the national office of the Rabbinical Assembly in the Jewish Theological Seminary of America in New York City, Dr. Max Artz, president of the Assembly, said: "Because of your special qualifications and experience, I have the honor of appointing you to these committees of the Rabbinical Assembly. This may prove to be a critical year in which religious guidance will have greater weight than ever before in the American community. The committees of the Rabbinical Assembly, through their researches and public activities, have a serious task ahead, and I am sure that they will accomplish their purpose of helping the Jews in America to meet the trials of a war-torn world."

KOUSSEVITZKY CONDUCTING

Great orchestral playing can result only from a basis of illustrious individual musicianship, long and uninterrupted association under a single leader who can both inspire and build. The particular approach of Serge Koussevitzky to his art looks further than great playing. It is not his nature to rest upon supremacy. In his sixteenth year at the head of the orchestra, music remains to him before everything a quest. There can be no point of satisfaction in precision or brilliance of execution, in the pursuit of tonal beauty, in the recapture of intensity or serenity. Music for him, and for those who listen, is an adventure.

This rare quality is reflected in the way a Boston Symphony performance is prized by those who hear it, wherever the orchestra plays. Great crowds at Tanglewood in the Berkshires, winter audiences which overflow Carnegie hall, New York, are instances. The Boston Symphony Orchestra belongs, in a special sense, to Providence, where it has given a series of concerts annually since 1882, its second year. The orchestra visits Providence more often than any other New England city. The five programs bring the corresponding advantage of a fuller representation of symphonic music.

A GREAT TEACHER AND A GREAT PUPIL

For years Temple Israel in Boston with the inspiring leadership of Rabbi Harry Levi has given spiritual guidance to numberless people.

This congregation has chosen for its new leader, Rabbi Loth Liebman, noted orator, author and scholar.

We were privileged to join the many people at the Temple on Rosh Hashonah.

In his sermon the Rabbi spoke of a man who was told he could purchase for a certain small sum of money, all the land he could encompass and return to his home that day.

A very rugged person, he traveled miles and miles of territory, —however exceeding his own strength—therefore at the last lap of his journey, at the very door of his home, he collapsed.

Another allegorical story, told of the hunter who caught a rare bird.

"Set me free," said the bird, "and I will teach you three points of wisdom." The man agreed and the bird said:

"Never regret the past."

"Do not believe in the impossible."

"Don't seek the unattainable."

As the bird began its flight it said: "I have with me priceless pearls."

The hunter leaped upward and the endeavor to catch the bird was fatal.

"Silly man," mocked the bird.

"You forgot my lesson: First, you foolishly regretted having set me free. Secondly, you believed the impossible fact that I, a mere bird would possess pearls. Third, you attempted the unattainable feat of catching a bird in flight."

In conclusion Rabbi Liebman informed the congregation that Rabbi Krass of New York City was among those present.

While studying in New York, invariably we would avail ourselves of the opportunity of listening to Rabbi Krass's scholarly sermons at Temple Emanu-El. It was good to meet Rabbi Krass again this Rosh Hashonah and hear him ask in regard to Rabbi Liebman, with justifiable pride, "What do you think of my pupil?"

Rabbi Krass, may we take this opportunity of saying, we approve wholeheartedly of your pupil and the benefits of his wise, kindly, tolerant influence.

Will Help
In Poland

The board of directors of the American ORT Federation, thru their president, George Backer, have just issued a statement in relation to the European emergency. The ORT provides training in agriculture and industry to German refugees and Jews living in areas where a disproportionate number are forced to eke out a precarious existence as shopkeepers and peddlers. Since a great part of ORT's vocational and educational program is centered in Poland, there has been a serious question as to what plan should be followed in ORT work for the next year.

"Work that is indispensable in normal times imposes an even greater challenge when civilization goes on a rampage. Essential values remain unchanged. The precise situation in Poland cannot be known for some time to come. The extent to which ORT can continue functioning there obviously depends on how widely normal pursuits will be resumed in the affected areas. Vast numbers of refugees already known to have fled across Polish borders include more Jews than non-Jews. Refugee camps like those where ORT training centers already function in Switzerland, have just been established in Roumania at Hotin and Soroca. Neighboring countries are following suit. ORT, already well established in Lithuania and Latvia, must greatly expand its facilities to provide for this new influx. Obviously such concentrations of directionless emigrants call for vocational guidance.

Zionist Congress

In normal circumstances, the proceedings of the recent Congress would call out as much criticism and discussion in Palestine as in other parts of the Jewish world. As matters now stand, however, the strongest impression left by the Congress is also the most favorable, and relates to the Zionist policy adopted at the final session. In stressing its resolve to continue to combat the policy enunciated by the White Paper of May, 1939, the Congress made it clear that it would defend those fundamental Jewish rights without which the National Home would be a mere chimera.

In identifying the cause of the democracies with that of the Jews the Congress showed both its sense of responsibility for the Jewish people as a whole, and its realization that the destinies of Eretz Israel hinge upon the outcome of the struggle and that all Jewish forces must, therefore, rally to the support of the side that is prepared to fight for the rule of freedom and justice. Finally, in declaring most solemnly that the Jews of Palestine desire peaceful and friendly relations with the Arabs, whose rights and interests are not irreconcilable with those of the Jews, the Congress took a step that may help to avert a danger which, should war break out, would loom larger than ever.

RABBI A. H. SILVER MAKES AN APPEAL

Declaring that the agencies represented in the United Jewish Appeal must meet wartime needs on a peacetime budget in a year in which many unforeseen emergencies have drained their resources, Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver and Rabbi Jonah B. Wise, national chairman of the United Jewish Appeal for Refugees and Overseas Needs, issued a call this week to American Jewry to act in a spirit of unity and generosity for the rescue of Jews overtaken by distress and homelessness in Central and Eastern Europe in the present war emergency.

The statement emphasized that through the instrumentality of the United Jewish Appeal as the central unified channel of fund raising for the Joint Distribution Committee, the United Palestine Appeal and the National Refugee Service, Inc., maximum resources must be made immediately available for overseas relief and rehabilitation, Palestine settlement and refugee aid. The communities which have already held their campaigns in behalf of the United Jewish Appeal are urged to remit immediately as large funds as can be collected, while communities which have not yet conducted their drives for the current year, are urged to organize their fund raising efforts as promptly as possible.

ZIONISTS AID HOMELESS JEWS

An appeal to the Jews of America to mobilize the largest possible resources for the preservation of the Jewish position in Palestine and for the utilization of further immigration and colonization, was issued this week from London by Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the Jewish Agency for Palestine. It was disclosed at a meeting of the administrative committee of the United Palestine Appeal.

The meeting was called to consider the measures to be taken for maximum co-operation with the Yishuv and the Jewish Agency in the immediate emergency and in the months to come. Among those attending the session were Dr. Abba Hillel Silver, national chairman of the United Palestine Appeal; Dr. Solomon Golfrman, Dr. Israel Goldstein, Louis Lipsky, and Dr. Stephen S. Wise, co-chairman of the campaign.

An analysis of the situation in Palestine, in its effects upon the Jewish community and in its relation to the Jews of Europe, was contained in cablegrams from Dr. Weizmann and Eliezer Kaplan of the Jewish Agency for Palestine.

Both reports emphasized first that the impact of the European war was having immediate consequences in Palestine which would require the speedy mobilization of the largest financial resources; second, that the flow of immigrants from Europe was continuing and could be enlarged, inasmuch as the German government had not halted this program, and the Palestine government was not interposing obstacles to the entry of Jewish refugees and third, that the income of the national funds was being cut off in many countries due to the war and that a greater measure of responsibility than ever before rested upon the Jews of America.

Good Progress
In Palestine

War or no war, the restoration of Eretz Israel must and will proceed. In recent weeks preliminary arrangements have been completed for launching large enterprises that had long been planned and that will provide work for thousands of hands for a considerable period. A statement just issued by the Keren Kayemeth and Karen Hayesod contains statistics showing that building operations especially in the agricultural settlements, have increased to a very marked extent. The Government of Palestine has announced that it will grant a long-awaited subsidy toward the costs of the Huleh project, thereby enabling a vast work to begin which has been pending for some years. It will be recalled that the drainage of the greater part of the Huleh Basin will be carried out by the Jews at an enormous expenditure, and that large benefits will inure also to the Arabs on its completion. Lastly, now that a large loan for the canalization of Tel Aviv has been approved, the municipality will be able not only to improve

Israel and Europe

In these days of tense anxiety the Jews of Eretz Israel have become more conscious than ever of the indissoluble bonds which connect the homeland with the Diaspora countries, and more particularly with the countries of Europe. It is not only that they realize that the fate of Eretz Israel depends on what seems to be an inevitable conflict, but that almost everyone in the Yishuv is bound by close ties of blood and friendship to Jews in European countries who would be the first and probably the chief victims of the scourge of war.

In Germany and Poland the plight of the Jews, desperate as it already is, would be still further exacerbated. Thousands of people in the Yishuv are so consumed with anxiety for the fate of relatives in the witches' cauldron of a European war that their concern for their own possible difficulties is almost completely overshadowed.

sanitary conditions, but also to reduce unemployment in a substantial degree.

A REVIEW OF "GIST OF ART"

If you seek truth in art, read John Sloan's book, "Gist of Art," published September 15th by the American Artists' Group.

The book reveals the very heart beat of this man.

I have never read anything written in the first person, so utterly symbolic of selflessness.

Refreshing indeed is the reference in literature and picturization to "the little woman." Obviously "she also serves."

Philosophy, humor, technical guide posts in art—the result of a lifetime of research—over 250 reproductions and the artist's own statements are some of the salient features of the book.

"Gist of Art" is invaluable as a text book.

The accuracy of the indexed pages is a comfort and a joy.

Read "Gist of Art" and you will think, paint, write and sing better.

It takes courage to leave the beaten path—acclaimed a success by the critics—and start from the beginning to Never having been abroad, the author quotes the Chinese philosopher, "If you stay in one spot the whole world will come to you."

Mr. Sloan's life story inspires right thinking folk to strive to emulate his way of thinking.

Whether you are young in art or have painted or collected works of art all your life—mark John Sloan's teaching:

Any other than creative art is futile art.

Strive for every inch of the canvas to "justify itself."

The importance of memory work, study, inspiration and modesty.

How can one review this "master text book?" Perhaps in writing many volumes of books about it.

I should like to be permitted to have another try at it—say a dozen years hence.

The sculptured head is the painting "Vagis, the Sculptor," is of Mr. Sloan, presented to him by one of his many classes.

Among other stirring qualities one finds that John Sloan can always create definite, life-like motion in his work whenever he chooses, with realistic inventiveness.

I clearly visualize at this writing two of Mr. Sloan's works of art (not reproduced in this book):

"The Copyists," which depicts Mr. and Mrs. Sloan looking at the imitators—through inscrutable, indulgent eyes—and the painting of Angna Enters, comfortably seated, listening to music—her hands, eyes and soul, bring the rhythmic beauty of the music to you from the canvas.

One, the artist's "Mother," another "Our Corner of the Studio," and third, "Grand Central Station." This one somehow brings to my mind the words, "and strikes the sultan's turret with a shaft of light."

A Sloan mural is something to be conjured with. I for one intend to see the mural in the Bronxville Post Office (reproduced in this book) at my earliest opportunity.

I wonder if men who accomplish great service for mankind in one lifetime feel it their mission in life to make up for all the incompetence prevalent in this pleasure loving world . . .

Well done, John Sloan. May you and "the little woman" be permitted to enrich the world with your great font of knowledge for well nigh ever and a day.

It is fitting that John Sloan, the mentor of Helen Farr, should choose her to assist him in the collection of material for this book.

SCHOOL OF MUSIC TO MAKE APPEAL

Madame Avis Bliven Charbonnel, director of the Community School of Music, announces the school is open for registration at 97 Thomas street, but whether classes will commence as scheduled or the school continue to exist depends on the amount of money which can be raised in the next two weeks. A budget of $5000 is needed for the year's expenses, Madame Charbonnel said.

A special committee named by the school's board of directors was organized and is directing the campaign, Madame Charbonnel said. Letters are being written which will be sent to organizations and individuals in hopes of a generous response.

The committee is composed of Mrs. Niles Westcott, secretary of the board; Everard Appleton, treasurer, and Miss Dorothy Elliott. Mrs. Houghton P. Metcalf is chairman of the board. The Community School of Music is a non-profit organization. Applicants are not accepted unless they are proven to be unable to pay for musical instruction at the regular professional rate.

The faculty who serve without pay include Nicholas Slonimsky of Boston, whose course is theory for faculty members and advanced students; Herbert Neurath, Viennese refugee, violin and viola, who formerly played in the Vienna Philharmonic orchestra and was connected with the Vienna Conservatory; Lilly Neurath, cello; Lillian Swan, art, and Gertrude Prokosh Kurath, eurythmics.

In explaining the campaign to funds, Madame Charbonnel said, "The school is eligible to become a community fund member but the fund is not taking in any new charities and so its doors are closed to us." Donors will be classified in three groups: Contributors, $5-$10; associate members, $10-$20, and patrons, in excess of $20.

FIRST VISIT TO THE FAIR

Arriving at 9 a. m. we found the World's Fair alive with activity.

Only those who have already visited the Fair can understand the feeling one experiences when suddenly the first panorama of this wonder world stretches before us.

A perfect sunny day, throngs of visitors bringing additional color to the scene, and the willing helpfulness of the Fair attendants, gave an instantaneous electrical effect of anticipation and wonderlust.

Our itinerary: "Contemporary Arts"—among other things, Rhode Island's representation and John Sloan's study of Robert Henri.

"Masterpieces of Art"—could not leave the Rembrandts. Will speak of this territory in the near future, I trust.

"Palestinian Art" was indeed a source of inspiration.

Here we met Elias Newman, who is represented among the exhibitors. Mr. Newman is well known in our city. One of his water colors, purchased by the Providence Section, Council of Jewish Women, was presented to the Jewish Home For the Aged.

We dined at The Three Crowns Restaurant in the Swedish Pavilion. The meal including delicacies from Stockholm, Sweden, gave us a better understanding as to the enthusiasm of friends regarding the cuisine on the Swedish American Line, the owners of this restaurant.

It so happened that G. H. Lundbeck, the president of the Swedish Line, and his party were dining there at the time of our visit.

Henry Piper, assistant manager of The Three Crowns, is a well known radio commentator.

"The House of Jewels"—popular because of its intrinsic beauty and intrinsic value. The making of a diamond, etc.—Here is a case of "seeing is believing"—so come here and see for yourself.

This vast area of American soil, encompassed by the World's Fair—is a living symbol of good will in ventures in international human relations.

Broadway Hits For Providence

Sponsored by the Junior League of Providence, Inc., a series of four outstanding New York stage successes will be presented at the Albee Theatre this fall and winter by all-star casts.

To date the only gesture in the immediate vicinity which in any way resembles one of welcome to the so-called "legitimate", the new venture takes off October 25 with Ibsen's "The Master Builder," starring Eva Le Gallienne in her own acting version of the play. Miss Le Gallienne's leading man will be Earle Larimore, New York Theatre Guild star.

Other plays, with their dates of presentation at the Albee Theatre, are as follows: "What a Life," Jan. 3; "Golden Boy," Feb. 28; "On Borrowed Time," April 24.

Original Producers Approve

The cycle of plays, while they will not arrive here with the original casts will be played by companies whose personnel has been approved by the original producers. The companies go forth on their high mission of rescuing the drama from the doldrums under the banner of the Legitimate Theatre Corporation of America, co-sponsored by Fortune Gallo and Arthur M. Oberfelder.

Providence is among 125 cities destined to be tapped with the reviving Gallo-Oberfelder wand. Local sponsorship, as noted, is that of the Junior League. Starting with Ibsen, the four-play season at the Albee Theatre offers for its three remaining productions proved successes seemly of theme beyond all possible cavillings of censorship and wearing the medals annually pinned by Burns Mantle on the 10 plays he likes best.

Temple Emanu El In New York City

The dignity, quiet beauty and significance of the stained glass windows, the great height of the temple, the choir and the impressive solemnity of the sermons, make for an unforgettable experience.

Kol Nidre—time honored herald of Judea's penitence, brings to the ears of the congregation new, meaningful messages each year.

Israel is ever greatly moved during that sacred period in the services:

Taking "The Scroll from the Ark."—Returning "The Scroll to the Ark," and the words: "Its ways are the ways of pleasantness, and all its paths are peace."

The Rabbi told us that no dictator is invincible, as witness Napoleon's downfall and his last days of exile on St. Helena.

Would that this thought could be emblazoned on huge sign-posts through every city of our universe.

Newsstand

Don Freeman has undertaken a new enterprise, the publication of a periodical called "Newsstand." He calls it a magazine and the prints are from the original plates of his work. Each issue is to deal with a particular section of the city's life. The Fall number contains miscellaneous material. The Winter number, to appear at Christmas time, will be devoted to Broadway and the theatre. With apologies to The Times, he has chosen for his cover slogan, "All the news that fits to prints."—From The N. Y. Times.

COLONIAL SILVER

One of the leading arts and crafts in New England during the colonial period was silversmithing, and one of the leading colonies engaged in this industry was Rhode Island.

The Museum of Art, Rhode Island School of Design, has a representative collection of hollow from coins.

One of the leading silversmiths was Samuel Casey whose dates are c.1724-c.1773. One fine example of his work is a tankard which was given to the museum in 1938. It has a cylindrical body slightly flaring towards the base, a stepped and domed lid with a which is still used by the State as a symbol for the seal and flag of Rhode Island.

John Coddington was also a craftsman from Newport. His dates were 1690 to 1743. He was descended from Ann Hutchinson and Governor William Coddington. Although he acquired a rep-ware and flat ware by the outstanding silversmiths. Newport and Kingston were the important centers.

The New England craftsmen were influenced by the Puritan traditions. They did not follow the very ornate styles of the mother country but instead they perfected the shapes of the objects. The early silver was generally made turned finial, a scroll type thumb-piece, and an S-shaped hollow handle. The handle ends in a tip in the shape of a grotesque or mask.

Arnold Collins of Newport was another leading silversmith. He worked about 1690. One of his important achievements was the engraving of the Rhode Island seal depicting the Anchor of Hope utation as a prominent statesman it is his work in silver that has survived.

These men are all represented in the collection of silver at the museum. Tankards, creamers, teapots, spoons, porringers and cans show the beauty and simplicity of the work of the colonial craftsmen. Many of the shapes are copied today.

New England What Not

Short Changed

Have you heard of the World's cynic at the World's Fair who, expecting to see the world's famous jewels valued at $50,000,000, complained that he had only been shown $45,000,000 worth.

A Fine Firm

The Mack Construction Co. of 53 Hunts Avenue, Central Falls, R. I., has been in business since 1931 and the principal work of the company has been road construction and the applying of asphalt for cities, towns, state and other contracting firms. Some of the work has been on large estates in Rhode Island and Massachusetts, consisting of landscape gardening, erecting walls, laying out and construction of golf courses, tennis courts, etc. At the present time, we have a request for a large swimming pool for one of the nearby estates.

This company has also constructed numerous state, city and town roads. Perhaps the best known is the Smithfield Avenue highway from the Providence line to the town of Lincoln, which was some forty (40) feet wide and approximately one and one-half (1½) miles in length.

We are particularly well equipped to do all types of road and bridge construction because we not only have our own steam shovels and trucks to do the excavating but we also have rollers and even asphalt distributors to put on the final applications of asphalt. Many owners find this a great convenience.

Recently several outstanding installations have been made at gas stations and parking areas. Our company can install several

It may be interesting to note that Mr. John V. Kelly, former Chief of the Rhode Island State Division of Roads and Bridges, is now connected with our firm and the experience gained thru 31 years with the State Highway Department will be available to customers who will appreciate good quality workmanship. Mr. Kelly's experience not only covered engineer features but he installed and was in complete charge of the State Highway Testing Laboratories for ten (10) years, prior to becoming chief engineer.

He knows the quality of stone and asphalt in the Rhode Island area very thoroughly and he also had a good deal of experience with concrete mixes and the excellence of the present state highways in Rhode Island reflects the fine quality of his work. An Ideal Course

Golf at Comstock Park has been enjoyed by the thousands of sport loving men and women since 1929 when Jonathan F. Comstock first opened his course to the public. After spending the past year in Kentucky, Mr. Comstock has returned to Rhode Island and once more cordially invites the public to play on his eighteen-hole sporty golf course.

Between now and winter there will be many fine days when a game of golf will be just the thing to "pep" you up. Go to Comstock Park which is 400 feet elevation above the city and "out of the smoke zone—into ozone," where golf is at its best.

New Location

The Acme Jewelry Casting Co.
announces its removal to its new location at 121 Dyer street. Large-er quarters, plus new equipment, places them among the leaders in the casting industry. They are able, by their flexible mould process, to cast in white metal, objects otherwise impossible to cast because of undercuts and fineness of design. This process is of special benefit to manufacturers wishing to make up a line without the costly expense of tools, and at the same time feel out the trade before going to any great financial outlay.

They do absolutely no jobbing, and all models and designs are fully protected at all times. No order is too large or small, and they will welcome all inquiries, and will assist you in every way with your casting problems.

Change to Better Milk

Have a glass of Horse-Shoe Falls Farm milk at St. Claire.
 Note the superior flavor, the richness and freshness of this really fine milk. And most interesting will be the knowledge that this Rhode Island milk and cream costs only a trifle more than the inferior milk which is shipped to us from distant sources. You can order Horse Shoe Falls Farms milk delivered to your home and make breakfast a real start to successful endeavor.

Skillful Service

A veteran in public accounting work here, Mr. George H. Mead, is particularly skilled in setting up accounting systems. For many years Mr. Mead was the representative of the Baker-Vawter Co., the nationally known experts in accounting systems. His advice will be of great help to many of the smaller firms who wish to set up an understandable and not too expensive system. He accepts general accounting work and income tax service, too.
