Refugees and "Enemy Aliens"

A United States at war has complicated the lives of refugees who now reside here. The Department of Justice has issued regulations affecting all refugees. It is the duty of Refugee agencies to pass on this information. Technically speaking most refugees are now classed as "enemy aliens" and as such must obey the following regulations:

1. All persons who are natives, citizens or subjects of Germany, Italy and Japan, 14 years of age or over are classified as alien enemies. Persons possessing first papers are regarded as aliens.

2. No alien enemy shall have or use certain definite articles including short wave radio receiving sets, cameras or firearms.

3. Alien enemies are prohibited from travelling by air, except by permission.

4. Alien enemies deemed dangerous to the public peace are subject to immediate apprehension.

5. No alien enemy shall change his place of abode or occupation or otherwise travel or move from place to place without full compliance with regulations which may be made by the Attorney General.

There is no cause for alarm.

As long as refugees, who are classified as "enemy aliens" conduct themselves in accordance with law, they need fear no interference by the Department of Justice or any other agency of the Federal government. They may be assured, indeed, says Attorney General Biddle, that every effort will be made to protect them from any discrimination or abuse.

Rubber Rationing

Those who believe that the rubber shortage is just another "false alarm" like the gasoline shortage are due for an awakening. Rationing plans will become effective immediately. And now the motorist has the responsibility of learning the lessons of economy in driving that will give him maximum tire mileage.

Those who acquired the driving technique for saving gasoline (slow stops, gradual starts, reasonable speeds, careful turns) will find these tricks equally applicable to saving rubber on tires.

Motorists will be less affected by tire shortages if they refrain from spinning their wheels, keep their tires properly inflated, shift tires at regular intervals, check wheel alignments, and keep away from curbs.

The Nazi Rout

While observers believe that the supposed orderly German withdrawal in Russia has turned into a disastrous flight, a glance at the map has a sobering influence.

It is true that the re-emergence of names like Orel, Tula, Mozhaisk, Kalinin, Klin in the news under Russian auspices is refreshing and reflects the hard blow that is being struck at the Nazis.

Kashrut Code Countenances Use of Soap and Eating Out

NEW YORK. — Use of soap in washing dishes in kosher homes, and the removal of guilt from eating "prepared foods which may contain some forbidden ingredient that is not distinctly in evidence . . . when one dines in a public place," are two suggested changes discussed in a summary report on a new guide for Jewish ritual usage which is in the preliminary discussion stage by The Reconstructionist, organ of a branch of the Conservative movement.

The changes in the observance of kashrut are part of an ex-

Britain Approves Portable Temples

LONDON. — War-time Britain will see an innovation in Jewish religious life — portable synagogues.

The National Council for Jewish Religious Education announces that it already has government approval for its scheme to provide the larger Jewish evacuation centers with portable buildings which will serve as synagogues, kosher canteens and social halls, facilitating Jewish communal life in many areas.

tensive discussion of a larger "guide . . . designed for those Jews who cannot find adequate guidance in any of the traditional Jewish codes and yet feel the need for regulating their conduct by some form or standard of Jewish usage."

The new movement, with which a large part of the Conservative rabbis in the nation are in sympathy, is considering modification of ritual usage in practically every place of Jewish life.

The changes have been published in the last four issues of The Reconstructionist, which is edited by a group of rabbis including Rabbi Mordecai M. Kaplan and Rabbi Milton Steinberg, and are labelled, "tentative and exploratory."

New Jersey Voids 'Race Hatred' Law

Court Reverses Kunze Conviction

TRENTON, N. J.—New Jersey's six-year-old law making it a misdemeanor to voice hostility toward any race or creed was declared unconstitutional by the New Jersey State Supreme Court in an opinion reversing the convictions of Wilhelm Kunze, national leader of the German-American Bund, and eight others who were charged with making or promoting anti-Jewish speeches. There was an indication that Sussex County Prosecutor Charles Downing might appeal the ruling to the Court of Errors and Appeals, the State's highest court.

The decision voiding the "race hatred" law is the first test for the act, which provided a jail sentence of 90 days to three years, a fine of $200 to $5,000 or both for "inciting, counseling, promoting or advocating hatred, abuse, violence or hostility against any group or groups residing or being in this state by reason of race, color, religion or manner of worship." At the time of its passage by the New Jersey Legislature in 1934, the Civil Liberties Union had branded the measure "a gag law unparalleled in our history."

Psychologist Extracts Truth From Venerated War Reports

Dr. Maxwell J. Papurt, executive director of the Pride of Judea Children's Home in Brooklyn, (a post held by Maurice Stollerman, superintendent of Miriam Hospital, before coming to Providence) has a strange hobby or pastime, according to a story appearing in the New York World Telegram. He psycho-analyzes the official war communiques of nations at war and predicts the events to come.

Formerly chief psychologist of the New York State Department of Correction, Dr. Papurt is no poseur, no crackpot. It just came to him in the first rush of claims from the warring headquarters that, since official messages are written by human beings, they can be interpreted by normal human reactions, impulses and neuroses.

By the fifth week of the German-Russian war, he pointed out, both sides were claiming everything. Then he noted that the Moscow propaganda bureau injected into the daily communique, rumors of Herman Goering's downfall in the Nazi inner circle. On that day, Dr. Papurt told friends that the Russian air force must be in a bad way.

"They were just applying wishful thinking," the psychologist explained. "They knocked off the head of the enemy air force, and any man who has studied these things would immediately deduce that their own air force was being crippled.

"Then during the sixth week the Russians bombed Berlin. A dramatic gesture, to be sure, but the planes could have been used to much better advantage over oil depots and lines of supplies. That was just a case of overcompensating for an inferiority. My theory on that point was upheld subsequently when the Americans asked Stalin what he wanted — and in what order. He asked for planes and then for aviation gasoline."

Dr. Papurt has been studying with close attention recent official pronouncements of the Vichy French regime, and on the basis of his psychoanalytical scrutiny he is convinced that the Darlan crowd has been playing the United States State Department for a "sucker," stalling until the naval fleet is transferred.

Perhaps some of Dr. Papurt's longest shots are these: A peace offensive against Italy to knock her out of the war, engineered by the United States and the Vatican; morale trouble with American troops in Iceland and victory for the CIO by the passage of "sleeper" amendments rather than by a real rewriting of the labor laws.

against German invincibility. We must remember, however, that the Nazi plan calls for a winter line west of Leningrad, Novgorod, Somlensk, Kharkov, and the Crimea. The Russian advance will require tremendous momentum if the Nazis are to be prevented from forming strong defenses along the above line which would still give the Nazis some of the richest parts of Russia.

The crucial test of the Russian offensive is still to come.

For a WOMAN'S fancy

BY EDYTHE JAY

If you've wondered what makes it work
And were getting set to ask
Let us tell you what we've learned
About the grotesque gas mask . . .

With all sorts of precautions being taken for Civilian Defense in our state, we did a little research ourselves this week, and dug up the following facts about — gas masks . . .

Service masks used by army men, we were told, are large, constructed for greater action, with a long hose connecting the canister and face piece . . .

Civilian duty masks are stouter than ordinary civilian masks and are for use by air-raid wardens, demolition squads, fire fighters and others doing heavy duty . . .

Ordinary civilian masks for non-combatants come in three sizes, large, medium and small ones for children . . .

A baby helmet is a larger tank-like rubber contraption that fits over a baby's head . . . It needs constant pumping, because babies breathe very lightly, and watching to keep the baby from rolling over on the outlet or inlet valve and smothering . . .

Diaphragm masks are equipped for speaking and listening . . . There are also masks for horses and dogs . . .

The construction of a gas mask, we learned, is as follows: The face piece is of rubberized material which straps on with a head harness, covers all but the eyes and canister . . . There are lenses for the eyes . . . The canister is the "snout" — a box with an inlet valve in the bottom . . .

Air circulates inside, going through a mechanical filter which strains out dust and impurities (some gas even is in minute solid particles), and a chemical filter which neutralizes gases . . . The latter is activated charcoal and lime, highly absorbent, but should be frequently checked for efficacy because they may become permeated . . . Ask the air-raid warden how often, we were told . . .

The most fragile and vital part of masks, said our informer, is the outlet valve which is a round protrusion on the cheek . . . It is exposed and easily injured . . . DON'T use face powder under a gas mask . . . Chemicals in the powder, combined with perspiration and gases, may cause great discomfort, even poisoning . . . It is inadvisable to wear any cosmetics under masks . . .

Keep the mask dry . . . Dampness breeds germs and also deteriorates the mask . . . Take good care of it; it's a delicate possession . . . NEVER use someone else's, any more than you'd use someone else's tooth brush . . . Clean it with 3 per cent solution of formaldehyde, handling it always by

O. H. F. Discusses Committee Activities
At an executive committee meeting of the Order of Hebraic Fellowship, held last week at the home of Louis Russian, president-elect, discussion was held on nominations for various committees, including athletic, cultural, housekeeping, membership, social and publicity. It was proposed that the cultural committee secure speakers for lectures and conferences at the club.

Recently elected officers of the club will be installed on January 11, it was announced.

the face piece, not the canister . . . DON'T get the formaldehyde in the canister . . .

DON'T carry it by the straps . . . DON'T scratch the lenses . . . To put the mask on, stretch it open like a bathing cap . . . Put it on the chin first, then pull it over the head . . . The first time, loosen the straps before putting it on, and adjust them tightly so they will not have to be fixed again . . . To test tightness, close the outlet . . . Try to breathe . . . If you are comfortable then it is not tight enough . . .

Canisters are sealed for protection; leave them alone . . . DON'T be curious . . . Clean lenses frequently with kerosene or benzene . . . DON'T touch your mask or handle it until you need it, unless otherwise instructed . . .

Like every last American, we sincerely hope that none of you will ever need to put these instructions to the test of actuality, but still again like every last American, we believe proper information on all contingencies paves the up-road to VICTORY.

About the grotesque gas mask . . .

With all sorts of precautions being taken for Civilian Defense in our state, we did a little research ourselves this week, and dug up the following facts about — gas masks . . .

Service masks used by army men, we were told, are large, constructed for greater action, with a long hose connecting the canister and face piece . . .

Civilian duty masks are stouter than ordinary civilian masks and are for use by air-raid wardens, demolition squads, fire fighters and others doing heavy duty . . .

Ordinary civilian masks for non-combatants come in three sizes, large, medium and small ones for children . . .

Air circulates inside, going through a mechanical filter which strains out dust and impurities (some gas even is in minute solid particles), and a chemical filter which neutralizes gases . . . The latter is activated charcoal and lime, highly absorbent, but should be frequently checked for efficacy because they may become permeated . . . The most fragile and vital part of masks, said our informer, is the outlet valve which is a round protrusion on the cheek . . . It is exposed and easily injured . . .

Stork Derby Gets Under Way Jan. 1

Several Firms Join In Herald's Annual Event

On midnight, December 31, The Herald will officially open its watch for the first baby born of Jewish parents in Providence. Because the New Year conflicts with the publishing date, the name of the winner will not be published until the issue of January 9. As in previous years, merchants throughout the city have demonstrated their interest in this First Child, by offering suitable gifts.

A partial list of contributors and their gifts is as follows:

Brodsky Brothers, 667 Westminster street, a baby scale; Brookner, florist, 103 Broad street; Campus Cut Rate Florist, 137 Mathewson street, bouquet to mother and child; The Cradle, 236 Westminster street, a Safe-Tee Crib Robe; Insurance Underwriters, 73 Weybosset street, first payment on a $500 educational policy; Loebel's Youth Center, 303 Westminster, three dollars in merchandise; Leo Rubin's Kosher Meat Market, 55 Camp street, a rib roast of steer beef; Shiloh Bottling Company, Inc., 116 Lester street, one case of Shiloh Club Beverages; and The Jewish Herald, two-year subscription to The Jewish Herald.

Scene Around Town

BY HENRY DAVIS

The newest organization name in town is the Providence Kehillah, which replaces in name only — for the time being — the Community Council, which several years ago was the adopted nomenclature of the Jewish Federation . . . Early reports indicate that a committee is at work to solve the problems that face the Council . . . With the outbreak of war putting a premium on furloughs for soldiers, thousands of Jewish men in the armed forces throughout the nation this week offered to forego holiday leaves, so that a greater number of their Christian comrades might be with their families on Christmas Day . . . The lure of the Southland attracted Rose Gruber, who left last Sunday for a month's stay in Florida . . . Burleigh Greenberg and Ruth Levin of West Hartford, were feted at a dinner last Sunday afternoon at the Levin home, in honor of their recent betrothal . . .

Archie Smith relays the one about the Serb who was captured in the recent guerrilla fighting in Yugoslavia . . . He was brought before a Nazi officer for questioning, and was asked: "What do you think you're fighting for, anyway?" . . . "We're fighting for bread and liberty," replied the Serb, and impertinently added: "And what are you fighting for?" . . . "We," declared the Nazi, "are fighting for our honor." . . . "That sounds logical," the Serb came back . . . "Every man fights for what he doesn't have!" . . . The Mortyn Zietz's are spending the holiday with his folks in Philadelphia . . . The Drs. Samuel and Sidney Gorfine and Dr. Jay Fishbein are spending the Christmas and New Year holidays in the South . . . Advance reservations for the B'nai B'rith New Year's Eve dance indicate that the restriction of 100 couples might be enforced . . . Better reserve your tables now . . .

The Earl Armstrongs became the proud parents of a baby girl on December 20 at the Miriam Hospital . . . The mother was the former Ann Fishman . . . At the same hospital, on the following day, the Morris Gesualdi's announced the birth of a daughter . . . Mrs. Gesualdi was formerly Tessie Mankowitz . . . Errol R. Horenstein, son of Mrs. Joseph Horenstein, who was stationed at Manila, just missed the fireworks when the Japs attacked on December 7 . . . He was given a furlough the day before, and was returning home, when the island was bombed . . . After a short sojourn in Honolulu, he sailed for home — and for the first time in two and a half years visited his mother . . . When he arrived he was told that his father had died a year and a half ago . . . He was permitted to stay for only one week . . . Errol is a radio operator, and probably will be sent back to the Pacific theatre of war . . .

Arthur Deutsch relates the following anecdote about one of Providence's leading ladies — Mrs. Archibald Silverman — which occurred at the recent Inter-American Jewish Conference . . . It seems that Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State in his speech, chose to laud the Dominion Republic scheme of colonization . . . Mrs. Silverman, who was responsible for bringing most of the South American delegate to the conference, was smiling at Welles' speech, because she had just come, as he had not, from Sosua . . . Mrs. Silverman spoke her mind — much to the annoyance of Rabbi Stephan Wise . . . When Dr. Wise tried to appease Mrs. Silverman's wrath, he spoke of numerous problems that had arisen, and then said: "Now we have another baby placed on our doorstep by Sumner Welles and Mrs. Silverman — of course not together . . ." . . . Leave it to Dr. Wise to joke his way good-naturedly out of a dilemma . . . Incidentally, The Herald will publish Mrs. Silverman's most recent article on Sosua, next week . . . That's all for now . . .

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. — When Jack Feldman came to the recruiting station here last year, his mother, Mrs. Reba Feldman accompanied him. She was back again this week.
