Country Mourns Death of Rep. Bloom

Rep. Sol Bloom, New York Democrat and chairman of the House foreign affairs committee, died suddenly Monday night, stricken with a heart attack at the Naval Hospital in Bethesda, Md., two days before his 79th birthday.

A familiar figure in the nation's capitol for almost 30 years, Representative Bloom's career had included such various pursuits as song-writing, acting, business enterprises—which reportedly made him a millionaire before he was 20—and finally a seat in Congress and a position as one of the most prominent men in American foreign policy making.

He was born in Pekin, Illinois, the son of poor Polish immigrants. Most of his limited education was given him by his mother, a Hebrew scholar. From the age of eight, when he found a job in a brush factory in San Francisco where his family had moved, he made his mark in many fields, principally show business.

His wife died a few years ago and he had one daughter, Vera.

He had planned to celebrate his birthday as usual by giving one huge party for friends and newsmen, and another bigger one for

House Eulogizes Rep. Sol Bloom

WASHINGTON—The House of Representatives paused this week to eulogize Rep. Sol Bloom, dead of a heart seizure at 78.

Speaker Sam Rayburn told of his deep affection for Bloom, and said he had given "a full portion of fine service to his country."

Rep. Charles A. Eaton (R-NJ), Bloom's predecessor as chairman of the foreign affairs group, said that all "America honors him in his passing."

Democratic Leader John W. McCormack (Mass) called Bloom "one of the noblest and finest characters I have ever known."

Another of the many to eulogize Bloom was Rep. John Kee (D-WVa) who is slated to succeed the New Yorker as chairman of the foreign affairs committee.

Romania Closes JDC Offices

BUCHAREST—The government has closed the Romanian branch of the American Joint Distribution Committee, a Jewish aid organization, and sealed its offices. A Swiss Jewish office also was closed. The action was in line with a Romanian government policy of refusing outside help, as it did with Catholic Welfare Relief and the International Red Cross.

needy children. One of his favorite charities was the St. Ann's Catholic Orphanage in Washington, which has celebrated his birthday for several years with Mr. Bloom paying the bill. The orphanage announced that this year's party will go on as scheduled because the congressman would have wanted it that way.

Three More DP's Will Reside Here

Three Displaced Persons will arrive from Europe next week to take up residence with relatives in Providence.

Miss Sarah Kutun, the niece of Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Komros, of 6 Goddard Street, will arrive in New York from Germany Sunday. Miss Kutun will live with her aunt, uncle and cousin, Dr. Leonard Komros.

The sole survivor of her immediate family, Miss Kutun at 17 is the heroine of one of the most dramatic stories to come out of the past war. Just before their deaths, her family left her with a Polish farmer who cared for her two and one-half years with no one knowing she was Jewish. At the end of the war, the girl was taken to an orphanage in Warsaw, being transferred later to one in Austria. From Austria she was taken to a DP camp in Germany, where she stayed for over two years, her relatives in America meanwhile doing all in their power to get her into America.

Other arrivals will be Mrs. Irene Boch and her six-year-old son, Peter, relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Grueneberg of 58 Nellie Street.

Day School to Have Membership Drive

Rabbi Herschel Schachter, former U.S. Army chaplain, will be the guest speaker of the Providence Hebrew Day School, March 16 at 8:30 o'clock at the Narragansett Hotel, at a public meeting marking the opening of the school's forthcoming membership drive.

Rabbi Schachter, spiritual leader of the Mosholu Park Jewish Center in the Bronx, New York, was the first Jewish chaplain during the war to enter the notorious Buchenwald concentration camp, and he took immediate steps as chaplain to help the liberated camp victims, organizing them into the Jewish Committee of Buchenwald which became the first post-Hitler Jewish organization in Germany. He was then requested by General Eisenhower's Supreme Headquarters to supervise the rescue and transportation of Jewish children from Buchenwald to Switzerland.

Archie Smith, president of the Hebrew Day School, in an announcement released last week, emphasized the outstanding progress made by the school in its two years of existence and that a successful enrollment would make

Holzman Reports from Israel

Foreign correspondent Arthur B. Holzman is shown above with his wife Selma and daughter Judith. Mrs. Holzman is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Silverman of this city. Holzman's "on-the-scene" broadcasts from Tel Aviv, where he and his family now reside, are a feature of "Report from Israel," a new radio program sponsored by the Zionist District of Providence, beginning this Sunday, on WRIB.

UJA Seeking 50 Million in 12 Days

NEW YORK—Henry Morgenthau Jr., general chairman of the United Jewish Appeal, and other leaders of the 1949 campaign, appealed Monday for gifts of $50,000,000 within the next twelve days to meet "critically urgent" needs of U. J. A. agencies.

The request for immediate contributions was made to 15,000 Jewish leaders in 150 communities through a nation-wide telephone conference call with the statements amplified so that persons at meetings at the receiving end could hear them.

Speakers in addition to Mr. Morgenthau were Berl Locker chairman of the Jerusalem section of the Jewish Agency Executive, and representatives of the three major organizations comprising U. J. A.

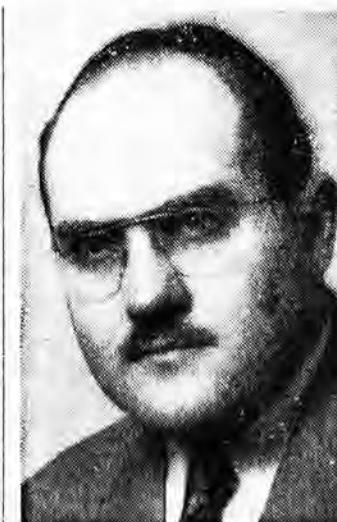

Mr. Morgenthau indicated that a particularly acute problem was that of "dated emigration" of Jews from "certain European countries." He did not name the countries to which he referred, but said that if Jews in them were not taken out immediately a generation might elapse before they would again be permitted to leave.

Beth-Israel to Hear Mrs. A. Silverman

Temple Beth Israel will welcome to its pulpit on the Sabbath immediately following Purim, Mrs. Archibald Silverman, American Zionist leader. Mrs. Silverman, who has devoted a lifetime to the service of the Zionist cause, will speak on "I Believe in Miracles".

An invitation is extended to all Zionist groups, to participate in this service and to be the guests of the temple at the Kiddush following the service tendered in Mrs. Silverman's honor.

The service beginning Friday night, March 18, at 8:15 o'clock, will be conducted by Rabbi Morris Schussheim with the assistance of Cantor Breitbart and Dr. Weiss.

Ben-Gurion Asks for Four-Year Plan

TEL AVIV—Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion presented this week a detailed foreign affairs and domestic development program which will guide the newly selected coalition government of Israel.

At the first Tel Aviv session of the Knesset (Constituent Assembly) Mr. Ben-Gurion proposed a four-year plan of internal development and immigrant absorption as the basis of his new "austerity" regime.

The ten-point platform, upon which he will seek an Assembly vote of confidence for his new four-party Cabinet, reaffirmed Israel's neutrality in foreign affairs, but promised radical changes in the state's internal life.

Under the four-year plan, the Prime Minister declared, Israel's 900,000 population would be doubled, and the state would meet the vast immigrant influx through a planned economy seeping into every walk of life.

Congregation Sons of Abraham will hold its 11th anniversary banquet tomorrow night at the Narragansett Hotel, it was announced this week by Isadore Lazarus, chairman. The occasion will be in honor of Rabbi Abraham Chill who has been awarded a life contract as rabbi of the Congregation.

The Daisy Maes started off decently enough with Ruth Tanenbaum's 96 taking top honors, followed by El Jacobson's 90 and Helene Preblud's 89. El and Helene finished one-two in the second string, El's 87 winning by one narrow pin's margin. La Jacobson's 80 won top honors.

The Pin Down Girls did better. Doris Graubart rolled 96 and Harriet Keller 91 in the first string. Bertha Boslovitz took the second with 87, while Dotty rolled 87 and Doris Levin 86. In the finale, Graubart started off with a bang and ended with a sigh—and a 96. Hylda Edelman paced the Hep Kats in the curtain raiser but

An Unnecessary Plea

The question of double loyalty has been raised again by the American Council for Judaism through a speech by the Rev. Henry Sloan Coffin, a prominent liberal Protestant theologian and a great friend of the Jews, delivered at a luncheon meeting of the Council. The speech had a note of alarm in it which does not seem to be justified at the present moment. "I beg of you, as Americans and as representatives of a great spiritual community, to keep your heads and stand fast on the American pattern. This is your homeland and not overseas somewhere," Dr. Coffin warned. In view of the declaration of the American Jewish Committee and of the stand of the ZOA, the alarm seems to be over-emphasized at least now. The fact is that the emergence of Israel seems to have clarified the question of double loyalty more than it has ever been, and because of this, the danger of it is smaller than ever before.

Israel in the U. N.

The Security Council vote of 9 to 1 for the admission of the new state of Israel as the fifty-ninth United Nations forecasts similar action by the General Assembly in its April meeting and the raising of the flag of the Star of David alongside the present fifty-eight national colors on the Flushing Meadows. Aubrey S. Eban's immediate promise that the new member will make its full contribution to the solution of international problems will, we are sure, be fulfilled.

Mr. Eban's statement and the statements of other leaders of Israel show that they recognize that admission to the United Nations carries responsibilities as well as privileges.

Britain's abstention on the Security Council vote, Sir Terence Shone explained, was because such large problems did remain. Although the majority did not follow the British reasoning to that extent, obviously believing the problems can be solved better with Israel a member of the family than outside the circle, it does present a challenge to the newest prospective member to work diligently and compassionately to find a just and proper formula. The nine nations that voted for admission—including both the United States and the Soviet Union—show their confidence in the Israeli leadership to do just that.

Your Hebrew Lesson This Week

PURIM

Tuesday, March 15 is Purim. The story of this minor holiday is told in the Book of Esther which you will find in your family Bible. Jews have been reading this story, the Megilah, in their synagogues and in their homes these last twenty-four hundred years, commemorating an event that took place in ancient Persia.

Read this story of Esther. Tell it to your children. They will like it.

Our lesson this week concerns the holiday Purim. It is a conversation between a mother and her child.

- Mother: Chag ha-yom, bi-tee.
Today is a festival, my daughter.
Child: Heint is a yom-toy, mein tochter.
Mah shem ha-chag, Imo?
What is the name of the holiday, mama?
Wos is der nomen fun dem yom-toy, mama?
Shem ha-chag Purim.
The name of the festival is Purim.
Der nomen fun dem yom-toy is Purim.
Mah o-sim be'chag ha-purim?
What do you do on this holiday?
Wos tut men um purim?
Be'chag ha-purim och-lim Homon-tashen.
On Purim we eat Homon-tashen.
Mir esen Homon-tashen um Purim.
Tov, imo, Anee o-he-yes Homon-tashen.
Good, mama, I love Homon-tashen.
Gut, mama. Ich hob lieb Homon-tashen.
Be'chag ha-purim kor-im Me-gi-las Esther.
On Purim we read the Story of Esther.
Um Purim leinenen mir die Megile fun Esther.
Sap-ree lee es ha-me'gi-lah.
Tell me the Story.
Dertzel mir die Megile.
Be'chag hapurim gam nos-nim Sha-lech Mo-nos.
On Purim we also give gifts to each other.
Um Purim gibben mir Sha-lech mo-nos.
Purim chag yofeh me'od, imo.
Purim is a very beautiful festival, mama.
Purim is seier a sheiner yom-toy, mama.

"One Man's Opinion"

The Fruit of the Vine

By BERNARD SEGAL

"One is obliged to become intoxicated on Purim", say our Rabbis. Not that you may, if you wish, mind you, but you are urged many a fight with my brothers over the sharing of this delicacy. We ate the skins, and the pits, and the soft little twigs, and they were good. The wine has a rusty brown sparkle and is as sweet to the mouth as honey, and contains the aroma of the sun drenched Southlands where the raisins grew.

So fill your cups, come next Tuesday, and drink. Drink one for good old Mordecai, and another one for the maiden "beautiful in form and fair to look on", Queen Esther, she who was Hadassah. Drink one for Ahasuerus, the King who reigned "from India even unto Ethiopia, over a hundred and seven and twenty provinces". Drink and ask old King Ahasuerus "So what?"

And then drink a big one in infamous memory of Haman, ignoble father to the brood of Jew-haters to this day. Then drink some more to each and every one of his ten sons.

By then you will no longer know the difference between "Blessed be Mordecai, and Cursed be Haman", which is as it should be on Purim. This is how it must be.

Strange that our tradition should make drunkenness a matter of obligation on this particular day, while it is an abomination all the rest of the year.

I remember only two occasions when strong drinks were served in the house of my father, in the little town of my birth, on the Ukraine. These two occasions were Purim and at the Passover Night feasts. This in a house where wine was used every Saturday for the Kiddush and the Havdalah, the sanctification of the Sabbath on its arrival and again on its departure. But that wine could hardly intoxicate the drinker, unless it was the intoxication with the holiness of the day. This was a kind of a beverage which one could drink to his heart's desire and never fear of hangovers. And it was a good wine, the like of which I have never again tasted since my childhood days. It was called Rozinke Wine, and it was prepared by mother every week.

As a public service, and in the spirit of Purim I am herewith revealing the recipe for all to copy.

One pound of raisins, big black ones preferred.

One jug, one flask, one funnel, and water.

Put the water in the jug and place the raisins into the jug on Friday. Allow to stand in a warm place until next Friday. Just before light kindling time on Friday evening filter the raisin brew from the jug through the funnel into the special Sabbath wine-flask. Squeeze every last drop out

Olympics Hear Rabbi Klein

Rabbi Carol Klein was guest speaker of the Wm. G. Cutler Olympic Club at its meeting last Wednesday. A question and answer forum followed his talk on Jewish history, laws, and religion.

The next club meeting will be held on Wednesday evening, March 16, at 7 o'clock, at the Marconi Gardens Restaurant, in the form of a supper-meeting which will feature sound movies of the 1948 Baseball World Series, a hitting and pitching training movie, and a speaker from the Providence Grays.

Members of the Club are invited to bring their friends for this meeting.

Historic Ramblings

By JOHN SOLOMON

Roger Williams is known as the father of religious democracy in America. He was banished from Massachusetts Colony because of his liberal religious beliefs and came to Rhode Island in 1636.

Williams had felt the bitterness of religious persecution and gave thanks to a divine Providence by granting religious freedom to Protestants, Catholics, and Jews that they might live here in peace and worship as their consciences dictated. Williams was a minister of the gospel and it is said he was deeply interested in Jewish history as well as Hebrew; yet, as far as I can ascertain, no Jews of any consequence came to live in Providence until more than two centuries later.

It seems singular that persecuted wandering Jews preferred to go to New Amsterdam in 1654, endure the harsh reception at the hands of Peter Stuyvesant and live under his stringent laws, instead of coming to Providence where peace and security awaited them in Roger Williams' haven of refuge. Perhaps the hand of destiny decreed that from this small difficult beginning should emerge the world's largest Jewish community.

Newport Lured Jews

It is said that Newport's proximity to the sea and its beautiful harbor lured the Jews there. The glories of the Jews in early Newport colonial days is well-known history, and also known is their despair and dispersion when they fled the town during its occupancy by the British in the American revolution.

It has always puzzled me why some of Newport's prominent Jews chose to go to Leicester, Massachusetts. Leicester was and still is a small inland town with very limited possibilities, while it would seem that Providence offered far greater opportunities to these prosperous Jews. American writers have said that the trading post at Leicester later proved a failure; that Aaron Lopez grieved, and that his tragic ending at Scott's Pond was a suicide from despondency instead of accidental drowning.

Incidentally, Scott's Pond is located in the town of Lincoln instead of the town of Smithfield as has been written in previous Jewish histories.

Jews Aided Brown

History records that the Jews of Newport contributed to the building of Brown University when it was moved from Warren to Providence in 1770. In 1771 Brown University was a small, struggling college and sent an emissary through the southern colonies soliciting funds.

Moses Lindo of Charleston, South Carolina, a wealthy Jewish planter and America's first producer of indigo, contributed five pounds; with a promise of giving more providing the college agreed to accept Jewish students on equal terms with non-Jewish students. Moses Lindo's offer was accepted and, it is said, tended to make the Brown authorities of those times more liberal and tolerant toward Jewish students.

Rhode Island Masonic history informs us that the Jews of Newport worked the first three degrees of Masonry in their homes for many years before being organized into a regular constituted lodge of Masons. There is little doubt that the Jews of Newport brought Masonry with them to America.

(This is the fifth in a series of articles written exclusively for the Herald on a subject of major importance to the reading public. It is hoped that these articles will be of assistance in helping expose those who solicit funds nefariously, in the name of charity. Ed.)

How to Control Charity Rackets

That the general public is vitally concerned and interested in the control of charity drives is evidenced in the following typical letter, received by the writer, which is quoted here in full:

"Your articles on charity drives are quite interesting and should prove to the general public the need for proper control and full information pertaining to the various agencies from the smallest to the largest.

"I believe a thorough investigation should be made before any agency is allowed to collect funds, and then to furnish a certificate from a reputable firm of certified public accountants to show what happened to these funds.

"In that way the public would have some protection and the agency would not be doubted."

A. H. M.

That particular letter is reprinted here because the proposed cure it offers shows deep thought and a knowledge of the problem—and also because the plan is a good one.

A somewhat similar system is currently in use in New York City, where authorities have become increasingly alarmed over the drain on the public's resources and the harm being done to worth-while charities whose potential funds are being swallowed up by unworthy drives.

The Better Business Bureau of New York City serves both business interests and the public, with its solicitations service. Neither recommendations nor advice are offered by the BBB, but it has compiled facts on charities that are provided free of charge to anyone who wishes to avail himself of the service, either by telephone or through the mail.

The BBB provides information on the origin and history of all organizations that are soliciting funds; it details the names and backgrounds of the officers and directors, the purposes, accomplishments and methods used in solicitation. And as a further guide, it lists financial statements, whenever possible, including past distribution of funds raised. While it has no enforcement power and no recourse to accountants it does solve part of the problem.

Some similar setup in Providence would probably be most helpful to the harassed public, who now have charity thrown at them from all sides without any sort of check.

Through a personal survey conducted since the beginning of these articles, the writer has determined that an independent board of religious and communal leaders, exclusive of those who now serve as officers or directors of charitable organizations, would best suit the public need. Set up as a clearing house for all charities, this board should be elected for a specific term. It should meet periodically for the following purposes:

1. To check on all appeals that will be made publicly within the coming year or six months or so.
2. To approve or disapprove these appeals, according to the evidence obtained, and to rate them according to their purpose, need and accomplishments.
3. To furnish all approved appeals with a card of credentials, together with the rating given the appeal by the board. The charity would be required to show these credentials wherever its appeals are made. The job of solicitation would be made easier, since the public would know that the card being shown represents a charity that has been investigated and approved.

Care should be taken that the right men and women are named to this investigating charity board. Its members must not be casually chosen, either as a reward for past service or solely because of financial rating in the community. Members chosen or elected should be those who have a knowledge of, or the means of finding out, the complete story of each charity directed to it.

Possibly an allocation of public funds should be made, both to stimulate honest and sincere service to the community on the part of the individual member, and to provide necessary expenses of investigation.

Next week—Control in the home and office.

Hollywood script writers could not have planned a more thrilling finish than the one scheduled for next week's final regular bowling contests. The Hochmans and the Steingolds both scored 3-1 wins this week with the Hochmans establishing new records in the team single—477, and team three—1334, while Louise Boren led the Steingolds to their victory over the Cohens with a high single of 112 and total pinfall of 289. Esther Miller took high three honors for the night with a 310, while Estelle Cohen and Ida Bernstein tied Boren's high single of 112.

Other good scores for the night included Betty Cohen's 111, Edith Hochman's 104, Tedi "new shoes" Green's 101, Esther Blonder's 98, and Babe Bernstein's 96. I've been requested to announce that June Stein is still bowling with us.

A BULLETIN FOR AND ABOUT THE JEWISH HOME FOR THE AGED

VOL. 3 NO. 3

DANIEL JACOBS, Editor.

MAX ALEXANDER, Executive Director

President of Ladies Association Scores Fake Rumors About Home

Cites Costs of Home Upkeep

(The following article represents highlights of the address given by Mrs. Mitchell Sherwin, president of the Ladies Association of the Jewish Home for the Aged, at the Straw Bonnet Festival held March 2 at the Narragansett Hotel.)

Not very often does one have gathered together so large a group, all interested in a common cause. Your presence here today confirms your interest in the Home. Thus, I am taking this golden opportunity to help explain the answers to a few questions that have been asked of me as President of the Ladies' Association.

A question often encountered is, "Why give money to the Home, they have plenty of money."

This is a misleading and inaccurate statement. It is true that the value of the land, property, and equipment exceeds $300,000. However, bricks, mortar, and land do not pay for the upkeep of the Home. In these days of constantly rising costs of operation the problem of maintaining and caring for 80 aged and infirm people is particularly great. It costs $80,000 a year to operate our improved and enlarged Home.

Eighty-thousand dollars seems like an exorbitant budget, but let us analyze it for a moment. At present we have 80 residents in the Home, the youngest being 65 and the oldest 94. To maintain one person one year costs $1,000. If you divide that figure by 52 weeks, you arrive at a cost of a little less than $20 per week per person. This $20 provides food, housing, nursing service, and medical care for those who cannot afford to pay. Where else could you receive this type of care, treatment and comfort at such a low cost?

As a matter of fact, we have letters on file in the office from other executive directors complimenting our administration upon our high standards of living at such a low cost per capita. Our expenses compare favorably with those of other homes throughout the country.

Another Misconception

Another misconception often raised is—people of means get preference in being admitted to the Home. This, too, is a rumor which is entirely unfounded. Each application is thoroughly investigated; his or her history is discussed in detail by the Admissions Committee, which makes recommendations to the Board which in turn takes a final vote on whether or not the applicant should be admitted.

Primary consideration is given by the Admissions Committee and the Board to the applicant's need for the Home, the possibility of his or her adjustment in the Home. The Committee and the Board, in determining eligibility of the applicant, are not influenced by the amount of money available; on the contrary, the sympathy of the Board goes out to those who are without means and resources.

18 Pay Full Cost

Among our 80 residents, there are 18 who pay the full cost of maintenance while the others are either paying part, receive an old age pension of $30 a month, or are entirely free. I repeat—that only about 20% of our residents can afford to pay for their care, while the other 80% are partially or entirely supported by the Home.

While we give preference to the needy, the Home also feels that an aged person who has well-to-do children should not be deprived of admission if he needs the services of the Home.

You who are here were undoubtedly already acquainted with these facts—but you could do a great service to the Home by combatting these false notions about the Home, and educating the public. The books and doors of the Home are always open and we invite your interest and cooperation!

In addition to your service of countering misinformation, won't you stress membership in the Ladies' Association and encourage your husbands and your husband's friends to join the Home? Membership dues represent the Home's main source of revenue to meet the current expenses and give our aged and infirm the care they need in their declining years.

The Home's future depends upon your continued assistance and labor. The Home cannot remain static. Its future is in your hands, in the hands of the Jewish people of Rhode Island. It shall be what you make it.

Home Praised By Visitors

"First let me thank you for your courtesy and time while visiting the Jewish Home for the Aged in August. As a former resident of Providence, and as one who witnessed the growth of the Home—and the changing concept of what a Jewish Home for the Aged should be, I must say I was delighted with the cleanliness and pleased with the attention given the guests of the Home. I feel that you are to be congratulated for the good work. Sincerely yours, Rabbi Meir Lasker, Temple Juden, 6929 N. Broad St., Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

I want to thank you on behalf of my sister and myself for the courtesy and hospitality shown us when we visited your Home re-

Importance of the Ladies Ass'n.

By MAX ALEXANDER
Executive Director

(Excerpts of address at Straw Bonnet Festival)

No matter how much we would try to make our Home a substitute for the old folks own home, it would still lack the atmosphere, the love, and the companionship of home, if not for the help and the interest of the women of an organization like yours. With your help we have succeeded to a remarkable degree in creating that homelike atmosphere, the closeness to the community, which gives the Home its security, giving our aged the feeling that they are not forgotten, and that they still count.

You bring to the Home the woman's touch, without which no home is complete or satisfactory.

I do not minimize the material contributions which you have made in the past in providing revenue for the maintenance of the Home, for your help in the membership drive in recent years, and finally for your gift last November, of $20,000 toward our Endowment Fund, representing your Life Membership income. It all has helped to give the Home the financial security it needs, and to make possible the higher standards of care. Your financial contributions have been greatly appreciated in the past and are needed in the future.

However, of greater importance in my mind, is the moral support and your interest in the affairs of the Home and of the residents. From this interest and support, which has been growing from year to year, have sprung your nonmaterial contributions in the form of parties, recreation, companionship and friendships, which our aged crave and need. In recent years, mostly through the effort of your organization, more and more organizations and individuals have taken an active interest in the affairs of the Home. I mention here the B'nai B'rith Young Women who provide a party once each month, the Ladies' Hebrew Union Aid, through their Oneg Shabbat, the Pioneer Women, through reading of Hebrew and Jewish literature, twice monthly.

More recently your organization started through your chairman of Occupational Therapy, Mrs. Mitchell Sack, assisted by Mrs. Fred S. Pinkney, Mrs. George Ludman, and Mrs. David Litchman, an Occupational Therapy Class every Monday afternoon. These activities not only encourage the old folks to make use of their failing and forgotten skills, but it gives them a feeling that they still can be useful, and that they still count in the scheme of our community.

These intangible things which you bring to the residents of the Home through your interest and friendship, and skills are priceless. I know how much your labor of love counts in the lives of our aged who have lost their sense of security and their closest friends. With a deep sense of gratitude for your material and non-material contributions to the growth and welfare of our Home, I bring you the sincere greetings from the folks at the Home and from its Board of Trustees.

Beth El Bowling

By JACK APPELBAUM

Last Thursday, Milt Weissman's "Hotshots," after a few weeks of slumping down near the rest of us, came roaring back to win four points, and push into a more substantial lead. Bert Marks and Saul Lerman both lost a few points with the result that it will take another bad night for Milt's warriors to tighten up the race again.

Allie Shatkin opened up with very nice 140 only to be edged by Sam Gordon who rolled an impressive 144. What a pleasure to watch them both bowl. They both look good even when they miss. Personalities in our league:

the floor, after a knockout blow, and is back fighting, and I am certain that he will, in a short time, fight his way back to the spot he has held in the findings industry. Good luck, Sam.

Festival Programs

The traditional reading of the Book of Esther from a parchment scroll will take place at Temple Emanuel in observance of Purim, Monday evening. Cantor Jacob Hohenemser will read the Hebrew portions and the English parts will be read by the following students of the religious school:

Stanley Fish, Carl Feldman, Myrna Kelman, Murray Rottenberg, Michael Abdon, Minna Saxe, Roslyn Miller, Philip Tenenbaum, Jerry Lavine and Barbara Rosengard.

A Purim assembly, consisting of a masquerade parade for the children of the younger grades of the Sunday School and the showing of the moving picture, "The Story of Esther", will be held Sunday. Refreshments will be served the pupils by the Sisterhood, headed by Mrs. Benjamin Goldenberg, chairman.

The Alumni Association will hold a program observing the festival at 8 o'clock on Sunday.

Olympic Bowling

By SIDNEY GREEN

With a finish that was worth the price of admission alone, "Bat" Hochman and "Junie" Levine sparked their team to a thrilling 3-1 win over a battling Jacobson quintet—both boys really picked spares that were "impossible" and got strikes when the chips were down.

H. Cohen and Co. stayed right with the Levines by taking three points from the Avens, although Moish Mallett contends that "his brudder-in-law" Irv Levine (of the losers) is still the best bowler. The Rodyns picked up another point in their first place lead, by sweeping their match with the Lobsels, while the Schwartzes moved into fourth place on the strength of Reeve Karten's bowling. Reeve will probably have to carry an extra load now because Capt. Joe will be absent for about three weeks.

High single for the nite was held jointly by Zatloff and Cofman with 126, while H. Cohen's 334 was high three. The Rodyns took HTS and HT3 honors with 535 and 1560 respectively.

BRIDGE, MARCH 15

Miss Sarah Bloom is co-chairman with Mrs. Norman Cohen for the annual bridge and mah jong of the Leonard Bloom Auxiliary JWV, No. 284, which will be held March 15 at the Congregation Sons of Abraham.

The Tea committee headed by Mrs. Mitchel Glick, includes: Messdames Charles Steingold, program book; Louis Cokin, ex-officio; Joseph Elowitz, treasurer; Herman Braff, publicity; Eli Levin, Benjamin Goldenberg, Jack Crovitz, Samuel Gorman, Emanuel Wittner, Abraham Barnett, Max Alperin, David Golner, Philip Hak, Harry Portney, Mitchell Sack, Lewis Kaplan, Charles P. SYD COHEN:

The Battle of Baseball

Sides have been drawn, legal armament is being prepared for battle—and baseball taking up the cudgel in behalf of all professional and organized American sports, gets set for its life and death struggle against the ideas embodied in the petition of Danny Gardella against its monopoly.

Except that I don't believe it is a life and death struggle at all. I think the outcome of the trial will establish sports on a higher plane of authority and public respect than ever before. And I have a further idea that the name of Danny Gardella will be silently blessed by all professional sports in the future for having brought the matter into the open and settled, once and for all, the question of the legality of the reserve clause.

Enemies of the reserve clause say it is foul and evil and should be done away with. Baseball supporters say the game cannot exist without it. The prosecution says that baseball does not dare take the case to court and would like to settle outside. The defense avers it dislikes the unfavorable publicity its client baseball is now getting.

None seems to think of the middle road point of view—that it is high time the nation stopped wondering what would happen if it did come to court. The case is a blessing if only that it will forever clear the air, one way or another, and stop all the loose talk on the part of fans and writers alike.

Danny Gardella is not responsible for the fight that looms. He is only the legality through which the case will be tried. Whether he had a complaint or not, sooner or later the status of the reserve clause had to be brought into the open. Until then, organized sports had to quake and shiver in their boots, not knowing actually where they stood.

With Gardella himself I have no sympathy. When he signed to play for the Mexican League, he took what military men call a calculated risk which he thought would be offset by the considerably higher wages he was offered.

According to the stories quoted widely at the time, Gardella and the others who jumped to Mexico were to get so much money that even if things did not go right they could afford to sit by and wait for the five year suspension to be lifted without suffering financial damage. That was the calculated risk. The money was guaranteed and deposited in advance in the player's name. He couldn't lose.

The structure of the Mexican League turned out to be weak. Players were shifted freely from team to team (something the reserve clause does not permit), facilities and the way of life were unattractive and the new venture was not all it was cracked up to be. The bargain turned out to be a bad one.

In fairness to its loyal players and its own established setup, baseball stuck to its guns and has insisted on the full penalty of the five year suspension. So Gardella, having lost his calculated risk and finding himself stuck with his bad bargain, seeks to put the blame on organized baseball, which he deserted at its weakest moment.

Danny preferred to be a big fish in a little pond rather than a small fish in a big pond. His chosen lake has dried up and he is now envious of the little fish he formerly gamboled with.

But Gardella is not the issue. Did he have the moral and legal right to flout the reserve clause and then demand reinstatement and forgiveness? Do other players have the right to name their own teams and conditions? Is the present structure of baseball and other sports defensible and just? These are the questions to be answered by the coming court action.

One thing about Gardella's suit strikes me as strange. He admittedly made more money playing in Mexico for the first couple of years than he would have made in the U.S. His financial losses stem from the time he has actually been unemployed as a ball player and his Mexican pesos should have covered part of that. His suspension was only for five years not life. How can he claim that baseball deprived him of a chance to make his livelihood and how can he claim damages amounting to $100,000?

Up to now, I can't see it, unless Danny assumes he would have made that sum in three years in the big leagues. Rated purely on ability, he would not have lasted long enough in the majors to make $100,000 if he placed his total gross earnings in one pile.
