Chaplain Resigns in Fuss Over Lights

TEL AVIV—A published statement by the chief chaplain of the Israeli armed forces that Talmudic laws permit the switching on of an electric light on the Sabbath evoked a controversy that ended in the chaplain's resignation.

Lt. Col. Shlomo Geronchik wrote an article for the Rabbinical publication "Sinai" which is edited by Rabbi Fishman, Minister of Religion, expressing that view.

Differences promptly arose between him and the Chief Rabbi, and Rabbi Geronchik finally submitted his resignation.

Reports Made at Annual Meeting

With last week's fourth annual meeting behind it, officers and leaders of the General Jewish Committee of Providence are now concentrating on preliminary plans for the local organization's 1949 fund-raising campaign in behalf of the United Jewish Appeal and 61 other local, national and international beneficiary agencies.

Present plans call for a goal-setting dinner meeting during the latter part of June. Summertime activity will precede the official launching of the drive with the staging of the Initial Gifts meeting shortly after Labor Day.

More than 60 officers and members were present at last week's annual meeting got under way with Archibald Silverman presiding.

Following the uncontested report of the nominations committee, the following officers were unanimously elected: Silverman for his fifth term as president; Alter Boyman, Benjamin Brier, Abe C. Fine and Alvin A. Sopkin, vice-presidents; Frank Licht, secretary, and Samuel Rapaport, Jr., treasurer.

Silverman, in his summary of the past year's activity, described his reunion with Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of Israel, at a dinner in New York last week at which the Providence GJC delegation advanced a loan of $200,000 to the United Jewish Appeal's 1949 nation-wide drive.

Kinsley Accepts Director's Post at Passaic

Announcement that he has accepted the directorship of the Passaic N. J. Jewish Community Center was made this week by Simeon Kinsley, who resigned early this year as executive director of the Providence JCC. Kinsley said he expects to assume his new duties on June 1.

A native of Maine, Kinsley first came to Providence in 1934 when he became principal of Hope School in Scituate, R. I., a position he held for seven years. During this time, he was engaged as part time club director and Sunday School principal of the local Center.

In 1941 he became affiliated with the USO in Tennessee. The following year he was promoted to the position of assistant director of the program department of the USO in New York City. Later he entered the Signal Corps.

Israel Accepted As UN Member

LAKE SUCCESS—Israel's long, hard, uphill battle to obtain recognition as an independent member of the United Nations was climaxed in achievement when the UN General Assembly, meeting Wednesday at Flushing Meadow Park, New York City, voted its approval of the year-old Jewish State.

Although carrying more than the two thirds vote required for admission to the UN, Israel nevertheless becomes the first nation to be seated on other than an unanimous vote.

Acceptance, however, marks the crowning achievement for the Jewish State, which was fighting for its very existence less than a year ago.

Particular emphasis was placed on children's programming, although the Young Adult and Adult division programs also were developed.

Russia and Israel

If there ever was a marriage—and we doubt it—between Russia and Israel, then certainly the honeymoon is now over. It was a very strange alliance to begin with. The Russian communism and the social democracy of Israel are hardly the kind of bed-fellows one would expect to remain together for very long. Certainly, any marriage that there might have been was one strictly in the mind of the Russian "spectre bridegroom."

The Russian ersatz "marriage of convenience" with Israel was based on Moscow's hopes of establishing a "foothold" in the political affections of Israel. Now that this seems to be a hopeless situation, an entirely new tack in the middle East is to be expected from the Kremlin. Israel has definitely tended toward the West. She would have liked to have remained non-committal in her world politics, but this is impossible the way things stack up.

There has been a new wave of anti-Zionist propaganda in Russia—a revival of the traditional Soviet attitude—as well as a suppression of indigenous Jewish cultural activity in Russia.

If Russia still supports the recognition of Israel in the U. N., it does so simply because such action is against the interests of Britain. This "going off in all directions" policy of Russia is nothing new for any country in recent years. Power politics play strange games and present even stranger ambivalences.

This will certainly point up again the impossibility of Israel's operation in a vacuum. Those who thought that the new state would be able to remain free from the entanglements of world politics will now certainly have to revise their opinions. Fortunately this has not been the attitude in Israel itself, but is more to be found among half-sighted Zionist leadership in America.

"One Man's Opinion"

Let's Talk About Los Angeles

By BERNARD SEGAL

Los Angeles to a New Englander means bright sunny skies, magic nights, orange groves, movie stars, a fairy-tale city, a place you must go and see one day.

But it is not of this Los Angeles I am thinking now. I am thinking of the Los Angeles that is fast becoming a center of Jewish learning.

So if you are still interested, let me tell you what I have in mind.

Several times in the past two years I came upon brief reports about the well planned and well coordinated program of Jewish education for children and adults in the far away city on the shores of the Pacific. The reports, brief as they were, aroused curiosity and intrigued the reader. But recently I came upon two articles in the Yiddish press written by a visiting lecturer and by a special correspondent. These two articles tell of a remarkable man—Peter M. Cohen, a pioneer settler in Southern California, a son of a Rabbi, a six foot tall former cow-boy, later business man and banker, now an undefatigable worker for the cause of Jewish education in Los Angeles.

Bear with me while I cite a few facts taken out of the two articles.

There are sixty Jewish schools of all types in the city, with seven and a half thousand children enrolled in them. All the schools are under the supervision of a central Bureau of Jewish Education. The Bureau does not interfere in the internal affairs of each school, and lets each group teach the subjects best suited to the philosophy of education close to the hearts of the parents. But the Bureau insists on high standards, helps in matters of methodical and technical aids to teaching, and serves as a unifying thread between the individual schools.

The sixty schools are partially supported by the Jewish Community Fund, each school receiving a fair share of the annual school fund appropriation, based on the number of pupils, and the type of service offered.

In the past year the schools of Los Angeles received from the Jewish Community Fund the sum of two hundred twenty-five thousand dollars. It is estimated that the Jewish community of Los Angeles spends more money for Jewish education, per child, than any other city in the United States.

But that is not all.

To prepare the proper atmosphere for an extensive program of children's education, and also to provide teachers for the many schools, the community maintains an academy for higher learning. This "University for Judaism" aims to bring up a generation of cultured parents and well trained teachers. The University offers, to qualified adults, advanced courses in Bible study, modern Hebrew and Yiddish literature, Jewish History, Sociology, Jewish music, dramatic art, social work, Philosophy, and related subjects.

The University is housed in an imposing building, and engages a competent faculty.

The reports also tell of a Jewish Museum at the University, with a fine collection of articles of great artistic as well as historical value.

But why go any further?

Just compare this with what we have here in Providence.

But, one might say, how can you compare Los Angeles to Providence? Los Angeles is a much larger city with a greater population.

True enough. But can we stand up and account for a fraction of the achievements of that city? The Jewish population of Los Angeles is a little over three times that of Providence. Can we boast of a third of effort on behalf of Jewish education as reported from that Western city?

Where is our third of the sixty schools?

Where is our third of the attempt at adult education?

Where is our third of the 225 thousand dollars budget for Jewish schools?

And did you ever hear anybody mention a word about a Bureau of Jewish Education?

Finally, where is our Jewish Community Fund, or anything similar to it, that would provide a budget for schools for children, an Academy for adults, or any cultural enterprise in the city?

is to prepare young immigrants mentally, physically and socially for a life of independent pioneering in Palestine.

The living example of the kibbutz, the kvutza and the moshave has a tremendous influence in shaping a healthy philosophical outlook upon life. And pleasant living conditions, modern medical care and sympathetic instruction have developed within these children a new hope and a new faith in both their own future and in that of their new homeland.

The 18,000 "graduates" of Youth Aliyah's program, prior to the outbreak of the war, are living testimonials to its spectacular achievements.

Szold Testimonial

The recently opened child reception center at Alonim, near Haifa, is a further testimonial to Miss Szold's work. Its existence was made possible through a special Hadassah grant of $480,000. Here, children of every age, type and nationality—350 at a time—mingle together, learning to overcome shyness and restraint—free to laugh, to play, and to learn.

Their torn and ragged clothing has been replaced with clean garments; after they have grown accustomed to their new surroundings, they are tested for physical and mental aptitudes. Study groups are created so that they can familiarize themselves with the language and living conditions of their new country.

Youth Aliyah in Israel is feverishly making preparations to receive within the next several months 35,000 more newcomers from Europe and the Arab countries. This is a total equivalent to the rescued in the first 15 years of its existence!

New housing units must be erected, new settlements built. Additional teachers must be secured and trained. There must be no cessation of activity until the last homeless child seeking refuge is safe at home in Israel.

Here in Providence, members of Hadassah and the Pioneer Women's Organization are proud of their work in bringing these children to a new life of liberty and creativity within the Jewish state.

Your contribution to the 1949 GJC fund-raising campaign is both assurance and insurance that this great work will continue!

Touro Installs Rabbi Lewis

By ELAINE RITCH

Rabbi Theodore Lewis, formerly of Dublin, the world's only Irishman who has ascended to the rabbinate, was installed Sunday as spiritual leader of historic Touro Synagogue in Newport at impressive ceremonies participated in by civic and religious leaders of Newport, Providence and New York.

The Irish-born rabbi, who speaks Gaelic with the best of the sons of Erin, now becomes officially a part of the American scene, and in no less important a post than the first synagogue to be established in what is now the United States.

The event was marked by the appearance of Rabbi David de Sola Pool of Congregation Shearith Israel in New York, a descendant of the first Jews to settle in Newport, who delivered the installation address. Cantors Eli Katz of Touro Synagogue and Israel M. Breitbart of Temple Beth Israel, Providence assisted at the services.

A Popular Figure

Actually, the installation ceremonies were anti-climactic, since Rabbi Lewis has become a popular figure in Rhode Island since his arrival here a few months ago. The unique idea of an Irish Rabbi in our midst has aroused interest everywhere—and Rabbi Lewis obligingly speaks with a strong Irish brogue which is the delight of his listeners.

Shortly after the Rabbi had settled down in his Newport post, I visited him there for an interview. In the vital statistics department, Rabbi Lewis is six feet, two inches tall, has rosy cheeks and large hands. I was more impressed, however, to find that even at that early date, he already had organized a Touro Cultural and Social Society for teen agers, which meets every Sunday at the Jewish Community Center for lectures, stories and songs.

Of interest to readers in the metropolitan Providence area is a statement by Rabbi Lewis that he will welcome school and organizational pilgrimages to Touro Synagogue, now a national shrine.

Planned Education Necessary

Planned education in Judaism is necessary for all Jewish youth, Rabbi Lewis believes. Better headway in that direction, he says, is being made in the larger cities such as New York, with the emphasis on post-Bar Mitzvah training.

Inevitably, every reporter who meets Rabbi Lewis must ask for a comparison between life in Eire and the United States. On that subject, Rhode Island's newest rabbi has this to say:

RABBI THEODORE LEWIS

This series of articles is prepared and written by the General Jewish Committee of Providence. The series is designed to acquaint the public with the inner workings of the GJC, and to describe how that agency operates from the preparation of its annual fund-raising campaign to the ultimate disbursement of funds.

Glance over the list of more than 60 beneficiary agencies who shared in the proceeds raised by the General Jewish Committee's 1948 fund-raising campaign and you will note the sum of $22,000 allocated to Hadassah for Youth Aliyah work, and $6000 earmarked for the Child Rescue Fund of the Pioneer Women's Organization.

It comes as no surprise to anyone who has made a study of the background of the Youth Aliyah movement, that women's organizations should be spearheading the drive for financial support of the program, as well as taking the lead in its dramatic development in the new Jewish homeland of Israel.

It was a woman—the late and great Henrietta Szold—who, in 1934, founded the Youth Aliyah movement. And it has been the distaff side who, in the ensuing 15 years, have assumed most of the responsibility of financing and supervising the humanitarian work of Youth Aliyah.

Here in America, for example,

Hadassah has been recognized by the Jewish Agency for Palestine as the official representative for Youth Aliyah collections in this country. In 1947-48, Youth Aliyah received $2,616,313 from Hadassah alone, in addition to a smaller sum from the Pioneer Women's Organization.

To appreciate what these dollars have meant in terms of human lives, one needs only to remember that every child rescued through Youth Aliyah is not only a life rescued—a remnant of Jewish youth saved—but also an integral part of the new generation of the new Jewish state!

Since Youth Aliyah's inception, more than 35,000 child victims from Nazi-infested lands in Europe and from the Middle East have been brought to Palestine and trained to become productive members of the new Jewish state.

Saved: A Generation

Thus was reclaimed what had threatened to become a lost Jewish generation; thus Youth Aliyah has become the greatest child migration movement that history has ever known.

It is the rehabilitation phase, rather than the rescue aspects of its program, however, that has made Youth Aliyah such a unique and significant force in modern Israel. Its educational system probably has no parallel in the pedagogical world. The purpose

A committee meeting at the home of Mrs. Alexander Rumpel, co-chairman, on May 19 will organize all captains and workers for the annual Torah Scholarship Fund garden party of the Temple Emanuel Sisterhood. Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen will speak to the group about the Torah Fund.

tenance of rabbinical students and students attending the Teachers' Institute at the seminary. The sum of $6.11 is the pledge asked of every woman attending this affair because that amount equals the sum of the numerical values of the letters comprising the word "Torah".

Captains include Mesdames Irving L. Solomon, Daniel Miller, A. Kumins, Hy Cotton, Charles Emers, Nathan Levitt, Abraham Blackman, Nathan Samdperil, Dudley Block, Harry Albert, A. L. Dress, and Herman Bernstein. The teams of workers announced so far are the Mesdames Ira Blum, B. Schuster, Jack Queler, A. SYD COHEN:

A New League Has Been Born

A new Jewish baseball league began operations this week in Providence and I suppose I should be jubilant, and offer congratulations and best wishes, since I have plugged for such a league for more than a year. Instead, I am disappointed and concerned.

The new league is not starting on a sound basis; it lacks proper direction and supervision; its funds and facilities are extremely limited; its participating teams are few in number; and worst of all, it has failed to arouse interest among those to whom it should be most appealing.

This league is for the younger boys, in their teens, and was started a few months ago at the Jewish Community Center. At that time, six teams were anxious to get in. That would have made a nice, compact setup for the first season. Now the list has dwindled to four, so I am told. At first it was reported that a prominent Jewish local organization would undertake to sponsor the league and provide the boys with the equipment and expenses they would need. That, too, has fallen through, according to my information.

So now our first baseball league since 1940 starts off behind the eight ball, with no direction, no sponsorship, no experience or experienced personnel—and so I am disappointed, and much concerned over its future.

Primarily, I am disappointed over the lack of interest on the part of the boys of this area as far as baseball is concerned. I hear that many of them would rather play softball, and I cannot understand it. Some of them have the ambition of getting into the Jewish Softball League, which seems to me a peculiar ambition, since most of the fellows in that organization would rather play baseball.

There are many reasons for the choice of softball among our local men, but these reasons should not apply to the boys. First, it is easier to play softball and it requires less conditioning and intensive training. Games are shorter and more informal in nature, and can be played at an accelerated pace, since pitchers don't need as much time or preparation between deliveries. The chances of injury are less and the amount of ground to be covered on the bases and in the field is smaller.

All these factors are appealing to the men who can devote only one morning a week to playing ball, who have families and other responsibilities, who are not in good condition, who are loath to exert themselves more than they have to, who would rather play the easier, more informal game than the exacting game of baseball.

Who forms the nucleus of the softball league now? I'll answer that at the risk of offending some of the younger fellows who also play softball and have done it for a few years. It is the so-called older men, who now comprise the membership of three or four teams that I can think of off-hand. They started the league and lent their experience to its organization.

These same men formerly played baseball in the old Jewish league that was prominent before the war. They played ball on Sundays and on weekdays whenever they had the chance. And they played some pretty good ball.

Now, with families and business responsibilities and less free time, they necessarily have to ease up on their athletic activities—and softball fits the bill. But when they were in their teens and early twenties, anyone who had the nerve to suggest a softball league would have been laughed at and hooted away.

I have talked this over many times with that group of former baseball players, and we agree that we cannot understand why the boys who should be playing hard ball and have the opportunity to do so, and who might conceivably make something of themselves at the game, are not interested. They should leave softball to us older fellows and get us to help them organize baseball on a permanent and progressive basis.

Until there is a definite sign of interest among the boys, there isn't too much sense in our trying to force our attentions on them. If they don't want to play ball, we can't make them do it.

But if only we could switch ages with them for the spring and summer seasons, what a wonderful baseball league we would have!

So—best wishes to the new league. May it prosper. To those boys who are in it, stay with it, make it grow and consider yourselves pioneers in this rebirth of baseball in Providence. Some day you'll have something to be proud of. And if you need help, come a-running. We may be able to do something about it.

Score Sheets Now Available

The Herald has just printed score sheet forms to be used in compiling box scores of baseball and softball games. These sheets are available to any groups that need them. Softball and baseball league scorers in particular should get some immediately. Simply call at the Herald office and pick them up.

Weinberg Is Temple Beth-El Speaker

SHOWN ABOVE is a photostatic copy of the check for $200,000 presented to Dr. Chaim Weizmann last week as an advance contribution to the United Jewish Appeal's 1949 nationwide campaign by officers of the local General Jewish Committee. Archibald Silverman, GJC president, made the presentation to the President of Israel, on behalf of the Providence delegation, at a huge dinner tendered Dr. Weizmann last Wednesday evening in New York. The $200,000 advance was made possible by local bank loans. GJC officials are hopeful that the loan can be retired as soon as possible, in order to save additional charges. Prompt payment of outstanding 1948 pledges will enable such retirement.

abroad, most actively expressed in Mizrahi and the General Jewish Committee. Also, there is some export carried on between Israel and Eire. The new Jewish state exports knitted garments and Jaffa oranges, the size of a large grapefruit and with a taste that is unexcelled in sweetness and flavor to any we have in America ("Tis a pity we do not get them here")—and receives from the Irish State salt herrings and kosher meats.

The Jewish Herald came in for a word of praise from Touro's new rabbi. He compared it favorably with the Jewish Chronicle of London, England, saying: "People don't sit down to their Sabbath meal without a complete perusal from masthead to classified, each and every week." He added: "If your advertisers were able to place the Jewish Herald in the hands of the people of Eire with the same goods available, a riot of sales would ensue."

Already besieged with speaking engagements, Rabbi Lewis plans to broaden his grasp of American life by actual contact and travel throughout the country. He is looking forward particularly to a visit to the Irish-Jewish Club of Chicago, a group made up entirely of Irish-born Jews, whose president was Bar Mitzvah in Dublin in 1879.

His next local appearance will be at the JWV Post 23 Auxiliary meeting on May 26.

Appropriately, the interview closed on a note of the Auld Sod. Mentioning the novelty—to Americans—of having an Irish-born Rabbi in our midst, I was delighted to hear Rabbi Lewis reply: "Sure, and what difference does it make, Macushla?"

Auxiliaries to Hold Joint Meeting

Plans for the next meeting of the Reback-Winsten Auxiliary Jewish War Veterans, to be held Tuesday, when members of the Fineman-Trinkel Auxiliary will visit, were made May 3 at the Ohawe Shalom Synagogue, Pawtucket. Mrs. Barbara Boren presided. Following the meeting, refreshments were served by Mrs. Esther Feldman and Mrs. Boren.

Hostesses will be Mesdames Marian Feldman, Sophie Fineman, Gertrude Max, Mollie Gordon and Tillie Vascovitz.

Mrs. Boren was delegate to the regional meeting of JWV auxiliaries held May 5.

TB Founders Plan Annual Charity Event

The Rhode Island Founders annual Charity Bridge and Mah Jong will be held Monday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the Commercial Travelers Hall, 77 Franklin Street. Mrs. Gordon Schleffer, chairman, is being assisted by the officers and board of directors of the organization.

The affair, the proceeds of which will go to tuberculosis hospitals, patients and ex-patients, will offer refreshments and door and table prizes.

Dear Friends,

I am sure many of you will be interested in knowing the policy of the Beachwood Hotel at Narragansett for the season of 1949.

We plan to open on July 1st and remain open until the day after Labor Day. We will operate under the American plan, serving two meals a day, a combination of breakfast and lunch from 8 to 10:30 o'clock in the morning and dinner from 6 to 8:30 o'clock in the evening. Rates under this plan will begin at $37.50 per person based on two people sharing a room. Of course, we have other rooms at higher rates, and shortly we will be open for visits, reservations and general inspection.

The dining room will be operated under my personal supervision this year with the crew from the famous Hampshire House in Boston. Nothing but the finest in quality will be served and the food will be Jewish-American style.

Children below school age will not be permitted at the Beachwood this year. I can assure you that a vacation with us will be a very happy and pleasant one. Please remember that early applicants will be assured more desirable rooms. For information write to the Beachwood Hotel in Narragansett.

A representative will be at the hotel to show rooms and book reservations beginning Sunday, May 15.

Cordially yours,

BENJAMIN WHITE

For the young moderns CONANT BALL presents MODERNMATES

DREAMS come true when you wake up in a bedroom with Conant Ball Modernmates (featured exclusively at the Modern Furniture Company). Storage space is solved by banking a wall with a group of mated chests. Notice how the bed and three-drawer dressers are built to come flush to the usual height of window sills so that at no time will this furniture interfere with the functional details of a room.

Bringing the livingroom into the bedroom is also a new but sensible touch. Two comfortable chairs facing across a low circular coffee table make an ideal spot for a late evening conversation. With Modernmates this is so practical, because all pieces in this modern Conant Ball line are perfectly adaptable to every room in the home.

Even though you may not need furniture at this time, you will enjoy seeing this display at the Modern Furniture Company, 376 South Main Street, Fall River, Mass. Be sure to ask or write for your complimentary copy of Modern's new booklet illustrating the entire Conant Ball collection.

GJC Reports Many Pledges Unpaid

members that the annual overall fund-raising drive was still the principal activity of the GJC but that gradually in the future the GJC would expand its program of service to other community fields in response to public requests.

In a letter to the gathering, Milton Sapinsley, GJC official, emphasized the same theme, stressing that the evolution of the local agency had proceeded, during the past four years, as planned in the beginning.

Sopkin Thanks Aides

Alvin A. Sopkin, 1948 campaign chairman who has accepted appointment as head of the 1949 drive, expressed his public appreciation for the cooperation he had received in past years, together with his confidence that he would continue to receive that same high level of assistance in the forthcoming campaign.

$233,000 Outstanding

Making known his grave concern at the substantial amount of outstanding 1948 pledges, Sopkin revealed that $233,000 still remains unpaid on gifts pledged to last year's campaign.

"We must clean up this outstanding balance before we can properly launch our 1949 campaign," he emphasized.

Joseph Galkin, GJC executive director, in his report called attention to the tremendous advances made in the past several years, disclosing that coverage has increased more than 2½ times since 1943 and that the local community last year contributed more than nine times the amount raised in 1943.

"The General Jewish Committee has a job to do," Galkin said, "and it is ready to serve the community to the best of its ability. It has no axe to grind. It is not out to push any one point of view or program; rather, it is set up to serve as a common meeting ground for all points of view in working toward common objectives for the advancement of our people and our community."

Forecasts Expansion

In reporting upon several of the related activities of the GJC, such as the "Food for Israel" and "SOS" drives, Galkin said: "This has been a starting point—we can move in broader directions as far and as fast as it is practical and the community wants us to."

Benjamin Brier, who presided during the election of officers, presented Silverman with a gavel in recognition of his office as president for another year.

SUNDAY'S SCHEDULE

Fall River vs Arden Mfg. at Hopkins Park A; Miller's Delicatessen vs Orioles at Roger Williams Park; Jack's Old Timers vs Mal's Comets at Hopkins Park B; Pinkerson's vs Windsor Rhodes at Dillon Park; Krasnoff Creamery vs Richard's Clothing at Collyer's Field.

Before the softball season started, the Old Timers club of Jack's Fabrics were considered one of the league's sleepers. After three weeks of play, however, they are wide awake and have swept to three successive double wins while the favored teams were caught napping. What is more, they are doing things the hard way; Sunday they broke a first place tie with the Ardens by whipping that previously unbeaten outfit twice, 14-3, 10-5.

Davidson and Steiner paced the Swartz-men to their twin killing. The former struck out 11 men in the opener and allowed five hits. Steiner twirled a six hitter in annexing the nightcap. The Old Timers featured a 25-hit attack, with Kaplan's four run homer showing the way.

Those two playoff rivals of last year, Mal's Comets and Miller's Delicatessen, went at it again, with Miller's coming out on top in both games, 4-2 and 4-3. Myer Jarcho's double helped his own pitching cause against the shoots of Mal's Red Foster. DelVecchio starred for the Comets. A seventh inning tally broke up the nightcap, featured by Harold Hersch's seven hit pitching and hitting. Hersch has won three straight. Three runs in the third ruined an otherwise fine pitching performance by Nate Ludman.

Richards Clothing maintained its unbeaten record by sweeping Windsor Rhodes, 19-2 and 6-3. The winners collected 24 hits in the opener, scoring ten times in the first inning. Len Lazarus led the attack with five hits, including a single, two doubles, a triple and homer, five runs batted in and a stolen base. Fradin softballing the losers into submission.

in the second game, with Blazer and Lazarus pacing the attack.

The hapless Pinkerson's outfit was deluged for the third straight week, losing to Fall River's Kavodians by 12-1 and 13-2 scores. Sherman of Pinkerson's gave up but six hits in the opener, while Gittleman allowed eight for Fall River, but shoddy support cost him the game. Stein handcuffed the locals easily in the nightcap while a six run fifth inning salted away the triumph.

The Olympics of Cadillac Textile and Krasnoff's Creamery split their twin bill, the Olympics taking the opener, 10-7, and Krasnoff's romping to an easy 10-1 win in the finale. Lefty Abe Lobel coasted all the way in the opener as the Olympics piled up a big lead in the early innings. Howie

Pardon Our Pride Over Shoppers Guide

When the Providence Chapter of Hadassah held its annual Donors Affair May 1 at Rhodes-on-the-Pawtuxet, the beautiful silver-bound Shopper's Guide that was given to each guest evoked considerable and favorable comment. Pride overcoming modesty for the moment, permit us to admit that the 216 page book was printed entirely by the Herald.

This being the silver anniversary of the Providence Chapter of Hadassah, particular pains were taken to assure that the Shopper's Guide would be at once the most outstanding, beautiful and comprehensive that could be published.

The silver anniversary motif was carried out with the aid of silver pages prepared from a special stock of silver paper, and specially prepared inks for these pages.

Although the 1949 Shopper's Guide was the largest in Hadassah's history, the entire book was turned out in the Herald's modern and complete plant on Byron Street. Preparation, editing, printing, by letterpress and offset, and publication—all were completed under one roof.

We don't ordinarily boast about our printing achievements, since that is our business; but we cannot help but feel pleased at the wonderful reception which was given Hadassah's Silver Anniversary Shopper's Guide. The Herald is proud of the part it played in the book's publication.

Cohen and Fred Zisquit paced the winners at bat. Another lefty, Harold Golden, set down the Olympics with no trouble in the second game, as his slow ball kept them popping in the air.
