Opposition Expected To MacIver Proposals For Overall Planning

Gen. William E. Riley, U.N. Chief of Staff in the Middle East, tells two interested and amused listeners a humorous tale. His audience, at a celebration of U. N. Day in Israel, are Mr. and Mrs. David Ben-Gurion. (An American Jewish Press Photo)

Zionists To Honor Local Pioneers Sun.

Pioneers in the Zionist movement in Rhode Island—including those men and women who have devoted 25 years or more to that cause—will be honored by the Zionist District of Providence Sunday evening at Temple Emanuel. The program, officially called "Z. O. A. Pioneer Night," will begin at 8 P. M.

Honor awards will be presented to the more than 80 Rhode Island Zionists who have qualified for the "pioneer" classification. A special, brief memorial service will honor the memory of other pioneers who are not living.

Louis Lipsky, chairman of the American Zionist Council and a vice-president of the ZOA, which he served as president for many years, will be guest speaker. Lipsky, in whose honor an Israeli project will be named next week, is considered one of the leading Zionists in the United States.

ADL, AJC To Lead Fight

NEW YORK (AJP)—Stiff opposition from two national Jewish groups to a watered-down version of the controversial MacIver Report is expected to develop this week-end at the important plenary session of the National Community Relations Advisory Council in Atlantic City.

Specific recommendations of the much-debated study sponsored by the NCRAC and prepared by Dr. Robert MacIver appeared doomed, the American Jewish Press learned. Instead, the conferees are expected to press for the adoption of principles contained in the report.

But even this step, the AJP was informed, is expected to draw fire from the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith and the American Jewish Committee, key opponents of the study's findings.

Though both groups are expected to accept the recommendation for coordination outlined by Dr. MacIver, neither is likely to favor the overall planning for the field as a whole. They fear that such acceptance might lead to allocation of functions and clear the path for possible implementation of MacIver's main points at some future date.

MacIver in his study flayed duplication of activities in the interfaith field and suggested that the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, joined by other religious groups, take the lead in promoting interfaith activities now handled by the ADL and the AJC.

Acheson To Receive Gold Medal of Merit

NEW YORK CITY (AJP)—Secretary of State Dean Acheson was named this week as the recipient of the Jewish War Veterans 1951 Gold Medal of Honor. He is expected to make his first major address on international affairs, following his return from Europe, when he receives the medal at a banquet in New York on Dec. 30.

Arabs Want Arms To Fight Israel

WASHINGTON (AJP)—Bar the Arab states from the Middle East Command against Communism because they're more interested in using their new arms against Israel, a leading Washington paper suggested this week, but keep Israel out, too, the paper added.

Israel, hinted the Washington Post, might use the arms given her by the Allies to defend herself against Arab invasions.

Contending that "the Egyptians and some of their friends have not the least interest at the moment in defense against Soviet aggression," the editorial said the Arabs "want arms from the West to use, if necessary, against Israel."

"Likewise," it continued, "Israel wants arms because of her serious financial plight and because of her constant fear of the Arabs."

The paper expressed belief that it would "be better not to have these nations in the new command, better to keep them waiting for new armaments, than to equip them for a renewal of the Palestine war."

The editorial concluded that "it will be time enough to arm the Arab states when they have shown some signs of wanting a reconciliation with their Israeli neighbors."

Allied leaders were complimented by the paper for "holding a door open for the Arab states and Israel" to join the Middle East Command in the future.

Home For Aged Expansion Plans Listed; Honor Aisenberg

Expansion of the facilities of the Jewish Home for the Aged was the dominant theme at the Home's 19th annual meeting Sunday afternoon. The need for larger quarters was expressed by Jacob I. Felder, president, in his report stating that only 18 persons had been admitted to the Home during the past year, out of a total of 47 applicants, because of lack of space.

Felder was re-elected president for his sixth term at the meeting, which included a tribute to Herman J. Aisenberg upon his completion of 21 years of service as recording secretary.

Other officers elected are Judge Philip C. Joslin, Dr. Ilie Berger, Mrs. Irving L. Solomon and Max Winograd, vice-presidents; Charles Brier, treasurer; Samuel Michaelson, assistant treasurer; Leo Rosen, financial secretary, and Morris S. Waldman, recording secretary.

Members of the endowment fund committee are Alex Rumpfer, chairman; Brier, Felder, Samuel Rapaport Jr., Mrs. Solomon, Alvin A. Sopkin and Waldman. Alfred Gilstein and Max Kesterman were made new trustees. The nominating committee which brought in the names was headed by Louis S. Garfinkel.

More than 200 persons in attendance at the meeting heard Felder, in his annual report, reveal that a building planning committee has been appointed to consider a possible expansion which would provide an additional 50 beds at the Home. Alex Rumpfer has accepted chairmanship of this committee. Felder pleaded for special facilities for the senile and mentally handicapped aged who also must be cared for.

Rosen, in his financial report, said that expenses for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30 were 13 percent higher than the previous year—a total of $113,782.72.

GIs Oppose "Tokyo Rose" Release

LOS ANGELES (AJP)—Opposition to the possible release of Tokyo Rose, who broadcast for the Japanese during World War II, was voiced here this week.

Commander Harry Rubin, of the JWV's California Department, warned that any move to release the female traitor would be "a travesty on justice as well as failure to keep faith with the boys who died fighting for the principles that these traitors were trying to destroy."

2 GJC Report Meetings Listed

In order to accelerate the pace of the General Jewish Committee campaign, there will be two report meetings next week—one on Monday, Nov. 26, the other on Friday, Nov. 30. Both will be in the form of sandwich luncheons at noon at GJC Headquarters.

Alvin A. Sopkin, GJC President, and Joseph W. Ress, campaign chairman, urge quickest possible coverage of all cards in order to complete the largest phase of the campaign before the first of December.

Before opening the present season in San Francisco, he announced that this season would be his last.

His Providence program will include Stravinsky's "Le Sacre du Printemps" which he gave its first Boston performance in 1924 and which he again conducted on his visit to Boston last season. It was this score which he gave its first world performance in Paris on a memorable occasion, when the music almost caused a riot. The concert will be in the Veterans' Memorial Auditorium on Tuesday evening, November 27.

Hadassah Donors Seek to Overcome Inadequate Medical School Facilities

Mrs. Morris Chusmir, left, a worker for the Hadassah Donors Affair, looks on as Mrs. Benjamin Bloom fills out the form that enrolls her as a Donor for the forthcoming Jan. 8 affair. The conversation between the two women, in which Mrs. Chusmir outlines the Hadassah Medical Organization's need for funds, appears below.

Last week we went along with a Hadassah solicitor as she explained the purpose and operation of the Hadassah Medical Organization, chief beneficiary of the annual Hadassah Donors Affair.

This year, it will be recalled, the gala Donors luncheon will be held on January 8 at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel and the Hadassah women are already hard at work signing up donors and making preparations for another successful affair.

Of course, there is more to Hadassah's Medical Organization than was reported in the one interview quoted last week. To learn more about HMO, we accompany Mrs. Alice Chusmir today as this worker solicits the support of Mrs. Ben Bloom as a potential donor.

We enter the Bloom household a step behind Mrs. Chusmir and hear her thank Mrs. Bloom for inviting her inside.

MRS. C—"I have come, Mrs. Bloom, to ask you to contribute to the new Medical School in Israel through Hadassah's Medical Organization."

MRS. B—"I don't understand—don't they have a Medical School yet in Israel?"

MRS. C—"Yes, but the circumstances under which it operates are certainly not up to American standards. This school is in temporary quarters. And Israel is facing a serious shortage of physicians—unless the Medical School can step up its training facilities to fill this urgent need. Here are some facts and figures that I'd like to bring to your attention, Mrs. Bloom. Of the 2800 doctors registered in the latest Israel census, 46 percent are 50 years old or older; 31 percent are 40 and over, and only 23 percent are under 40 years of age!"

MRS. B—"Well, I really don't see what difference the age of the doctors makes as long as there are enough of them and they are well qualified."

MRS. C—"Actually, there is no difference; but many doctors are needed to supervise Hadassah's school hygiene program, which cares for 150,000 persons yearly. More are needed to staff her two tuberculosis hospitals in Jerusalem and Safed, and still more to man the hospital at Beersheba, that was started two years ago with 50 beds and has now been increased to over 100.

"Now, Mrs. Bloom, I ask you to consider this. Sixty-three young doctors were graduated from the medical school last May and are now interning in Israeli hospitals. Because of the unparalleled immigration of the last few years, particularly from North Africa and Moslem countries, diseases have assumed alarming proportions and must be speedily checked.

"We must make room and provide facilities for more young people to study medicine!"

MRS. B—"You say there are only temporary quarters for the students now. Couldn't they do with that until the country is on its feet?"

MRS. C—"That is utterly impossible. There are over 200 clinical and pre-clinical students enrolled in the temporary medical school. The present conditions there are so primitive that there is only one research laboratory for teaching over 200 students!

"The pathology 'museum' is set up in a hallway in a small series of steps, and one of the laboratories is quartered in a small converted closet!"

MRS. B—"Why, that's really terrible! With handicaps like that, what method of instruction can they be using in the medical school?"

MRS. C—"Well, I think you will understand the problems involved when I tell you that the medical students come from such countries as Egypt, Rumania, Bulgaria, Hungary, Poland, Germany, Lithuania, South Africa, Belgium, Brazil, Austria, Yugoslavia, Russia, Czechoslovakia and Israel.

"However, medical instruction is based on American methods. Teams of five or six students are getting highly individualized attention, with the emphasis on bedside teaching and close observation in clinics.

"There is much more, Mrs. Bloom. I have only begun to scratch the surface, as you can see. But these remarks should be enough to explain the need of generous support for the Hadassah Medical Organization."

MRS. B—"I should say you have summed the case up very well, Mrs. Chusmir. Of course I cannot refuse to help such a worthwhile cause. I will be glad to help build a medical school in Israel through the Hadassah Medical Organization. If you'll pardon me a moment, I'll get my checkbook."

BOWLING

CRANSTON BOWLING

by Phil Chopak

We doff our caps to Moe Bernstein's Tigers, who showed their heels to the league when they captured team high three honors with 1527. This gives them a 26 pin lead over their closest rival.

Our spares are keeping their eyes sharp, as evidence Joe Cohen's 127, Sid Fox with 112, Hy Dubin 114, and Irwin Rubin 108, all made at the latest session.

Iz Press is the most improved man in the circuit. Great determination has taken Iz from the ranks of the also-rans and given him the confidence upon which spares and strikes are often built. Also in this department we pause to consider Doc Woolf and Ed Friedman.

Ed Lang's 131 was high for the session; Ed also was out in front with a 357 triple. Mike Miller came close with 129, Al Samdperil 124, Harold Tregar, Joe Potemkin and Wally Schwartz each gathered 119, and Henry Stampel 118.

Latest member to score a double strike is Jack Dreyfus. Jack capitalized on them to roll his 114. Moe Messing and Doc Dan Kouffman also attained 114. Max Levy had 113, Irv Rubin and Max White 112, Len Slaviv and Harold Warren 111, Al Cohen and Al Levy 110; Al Sydney, Ben Mellion, Art Segel, Bernie Wexler, and Stan Manne 109, Archie Kapstein 108, and Bernie Goodman and Sid Hoffman 106.

FINEMAN-TRINKEL BOWLING

by Jack Jacobson

They said it couldn't be done—but Mort Klibanoff did it. Mort bowled 403 (118-129-156), thereby breaking Don Cohen's previous high of 402. He had so very many near misses for spares and strikes that with just a bit of extra luck there's no telling how high his total might have been. He is now top man with a 113 average.

This was also the week for many upsets as practically all the top teams lost the three game series. The result is that in the National division only two points separate 6 of the 7 teams with Stue Steingold's Dodgers and Harry Goldberg's Reds tied for first place. In the American division Harold Golden's White Sox hold a 1 point lead over Art

LUCKY STRIKERS

By Evelyn Weinberg

Blanche Berman had high single with 106, followed by Florence Resnick and Miriam Snell 101, Sylvia Krasner 97, Harriet Kraus 95, Lil Weinberg 94 and Bunny Feldman 90.

Arlene Golden's 275 is still high three for the league, followed by Florence Resnick 270 and Miriam Snell 267.

A. E. PI BOWLING

by Marvin Geller

The high flying Bisons increased their first place lead as they defeated the Hornets. Irv Berman's triple of 337 and single of 128 paced the Bisons' attack. The Bears, led by Jerry Port's record-breaking triple 380, defeated the Flyers. Marv Geller led the loser's

The new home of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations in New York is a concrete proof that the center of Reform Judaism has moved to the east. The impressive seven-story House of Living Judaism unites under one roof, after years of separation, all the offices, personnel and departments of the centralizing agency of America's Reform congregations.

On Fifth Avenue, across from Temple Emanu-El, the new building of variegated limestone, with neat rows of aluminum-cased windows, in which some of the finest objects from the Jewish Museum of the College Institute will be displayed, will become not only a landmark on New York's most handsome thoroughfare, but it will be an important center for Jewish culture here. The House of Living Judaism will offer the Jewish community a variety of services including exhibition halls, a library, chapel and an audio-visual center.

Those Middle-westerners who have always been proud of the fact that Cincinnati enjoyed the honor of housing the headquarters of American Reform Judaism in the part of the country in which the movement originally started, may find themselves indulging in a nostalgic dream about the good old days when Cincinnati held the fort of Reform alone; then it will no doubt occur to them that the New York House of Living Judaism and New York College-Institute do not supplant their Mid-western forbears, but rather are an encouraging proof that Reform now has the vitality to spread beyond a regional center so that it has its impressive representation in the most important Jewish center in the country.

BY BEN FEINGOLD

Prizefight Vignette: His name was Mickey Butler. He fought in the Golden Gloves some years ago. One night he was matched with a Jewish lad in, of all places, Greenpoint, a rugged section of Brooklyn.

Just before the bell rang, a gentleman (?) in a voice drenched with Scotch and soda, ventured the opinion to a friend of Mickey who was sitting near him, that he hoped Mickey would kick hell out of the Hebrew.

Mickey copped the duke after a hard scrap, while the budding disciple of Hitler grew hoarse cheering him on to victory, while yelling anti-Semitic epithets at Mickey's foe.

When Mickey's pal turned to the anti-Semite and informed him that Mickey Butler, who had an Irish-looking face, was none other than Moe Bluttman, a Jewish lad, the louse's face turned so red that if he had crossed the street just then—he'd have stopped traffic!

"One Man's Opinion"

Your Opinion, Please!

BY BERNARD SEGAL

I find three entries in my note book, jotted down on different dates. At first glance they seem to be unrelated. But, like scrambled parts of a jig-saw puzzle, they fit together once I recall the details and the occasions associated with them. Here they are.

The first one reads: "Rummage Sale ... North Main ... Sabbath ..."

The other one, several pages later, reads:

"Dinner at X ... Good food ... Why bother ...?"

And the last one, written very recently, asks:

"Simchas Torah? So what, darling? ..."

Now, I know that these lines make no sense at all. But if you stay with me to the end, you might even laugh at me or become annoyed with me. So let me put some flesh and sinews and skin over these skeletons of notes, and present them to you. I submit them to you for an opinion.

The first entry concerns a rummage sale under the auspices of a ladies organization, an annual affair for a worthy purpose, to be sure. This time the empty store rented for the rummage sale happened to be on North Main Street. The lady who told me about it volunteered to work at the store on the third day of the sale.

But on coming home from the meeting she realized that the third day is the day of Sabbath. She called the chairman in charge of the rummage sale to discuss the matter. Not only would she herself not work at the store on the Sabbath, but in her opinion the store should not be open altogether on that day.

Let me hasten to explain that the lady does not set herself up as the Lord's guardian. She is not in the habit of telling people how to live, what to do, and what not to do. She herself does things on the Sabbath that would be unthinkable in the home* of her father.

But a sense of respect for a day so holy to so many Jews, through so many generations, aroused a revulsion in her at the thought of a Jewish organization, working for a Jewish cause, running a rummage sale on the Sabbath, on one of the city's main streets.

The chairman of the sale, however, was annoyed with my lady for raising the question altogether.

Towne, than any other person we know. The good Doc, a fine folk dancer himself, knows every step in the book ... Extreme left wingers and Reds drawing Broadwayites' ire for their smear tactics against Judge Kaufman who presided at the Rosenberg spy trial.

Murray Goodman, The International Boxing Club's crack publicity man, is married to a beautiful blonde Norwegian gal ... A Jewish actor and a Jewish producer can take bows today for the best stage musical comedy of the year and the best dramatic flicker of the year, respectively. Phil Silvers drew accolade after accolade from the critics for his comedy performance in "Top Banana," the sensational musical comedy at the Winter Garden, and Harry M. Popkin's production of "The Well" is drama at its daring best ...

After all, it is for a good cause, isn't it? You go shopping on Saturdays, don't you?

Well, here is the problem. What do you think of it?

The other entry was made after a friend of mine, one of our better Hebrew teachers in the city, told me of an experience he had with a dinner invitation sent to him by a Jewish agency. The purpose of the dinner-gathering was worthwhile. The speaker for the dinner was worth listening to. So my friend accepted the invitation. This, of course, also means that he accepted the call to work for the purpose, and to give it his financial aid to the best of his ability.

But on further checking my friend learned that the place where the dinner is to be held does not serve Kosher food and is not equipped to prepare such food. He, accordingly, called the secretary of the agency to verify the matter, and he was told that since the cause was so urgent people ought not to quibble over such things, and that, anyways, the food there is excellent, and he will surely have a wonderful time. So, why bother?

This last remark about the excellence of the food was said, of course, in an attempt to make light of the matter. But my friend was not inclined to take the matter lightly, and he declined the dinner invitation.

Here, again, let me note that my friend is not a relic of the past. He is a young man, educated in higher institutions of learning, who is capable of thinking things through intelligently.

His sense of propriety told him that it is not Kosher for a Jewish agency, sponsoring a Jewish cause, to sit over a non-Kosher dinner. The excellence of the food, and the urgency of the purpose can not gloss over the rough treatment given to an age-old principle in Jewish life. His own, or the committee's dietary habits, have nothing to do with it.

So, my friend wants me to tell him what I think of it, and I am passing it on to you. What do you say?

The third entry was made only a few weeks ago. The scene is a meeting of a social club of young people. The chairman announces the date for the next gathering, for the coming month. One of the members calls attention to the fact that the month of October is studded with Jewish holidays, and they better make sure that the day of the coming meeting does not fall on a festival.

While she is talking she is consulting her pocket calendar, and, sure enough, that day is Simchas Torah. She tells it to the group, and a hundred-odd pair of eyes turn on her in bewilderment, and the chairman is the first to regain her speech:

"Simchas Torah? Really, darling, that is too much! If it were Rosh Hashonah or Yom Kippur, that is different. But Simchas Torah? So what? After all ... I mean really ..."

A round of giggles from the audience clearly expressed the approval of the members, and that was that.

Who was the member who questioned the propriety of holding a meeting on Simchas Torah? No, she was not your grandmother, and she is not a leader of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Crusaders for the Observance of Simchas Torah, Incorporated. She is a young woman who looks as if she just came off the campus of Pembroke. She was born, raised, and educated here. She is at home in all that is fine in American life and thought. Her appreciation of music and of literature is above the average.

No, she is not what you would call "old fashioned." She is new-fashioned, all right. But she has a feeling of reverence for things that Jews revered through the ages. She may or she may not go to Shul on Simchas Torah. That is not the question.

Her sense of decency, though, as well as good taste, told her that it would be a sorry spectacle, indeed, to hold a meeting on Simchas Torah. Jewish daughters holding a meeting, collecting dues, nominating officers, discussing plans for a Harvest dance (or is it a Fashion Show?) playing a hand of bridge on a day when their forefathers rejoiced because they were chosen as the custodians of the Torah!

Oh, how they danced, how they sang, on Simchas Torah! They were sure, those forefathers of ours, that their children and their children's children, till the end of days, would remember the day and keep it holy. Well, not exactly keep it holy, but at least know of the day, honor the day, and revere it for memory's sake. That was all my young friend expected of the members of her club. Nothing more.

So, here they are—the three entries in my note book:

"Rummage sale ... North Main ... Sabbath", and "Dinner at X ... Good food ... Why bother ...?", and "Simchas Torah? So what, darling?"

My three friends turned to me for an opinion, and I in turn pass it on to you. What do you say?

D-Day Breaks Records In Workers, Results

The largest and most enthusiastic turnout in the long history of the General Jewish Committee of Providence could spell only success. And that was what the more than 325 volunteer workers who turned out for "D-Day" achieved last Sunday. The results of the one-day solicitation of more than 1,000 cards throughout Providence and neighboring communities resulted in an overall increase of $1,100 over the gifts of the same contributors one year ago. This total, and the number of workers, who helped make it possible, both spelled new records for this concentrated solicitation, climax of the 1951 fund-raising campaign which will benefit the United Jewish Appeal and other agencies.

By 9 o'clock all the workers had arrived, and were ready to tackle the gigantic job of distributing and covering more than 1000 cards. Their promptness and willingness in getting at the job at hand foretold the success of the project. The large photo at the left shows most of the record group of workers.

Alvin A. Sopkin, GJC president, greeted the D-Day workers and urged them to obtain maximum possible increases from their prospects. He expressed deep thanks for this largest and most enthusiastic D-Day turnout in the history of the General Jewish Committee. Also seen in the picture (top right) are Bernard Goodman, Joseph Galkin and Archibald Silverman.

AMERICANS OF SASA

In 1949, Israel Speaks published a "diary" of the first weeks of settlement in the kibbutz in Upper Galilee which is shown on these pages. In the past, Photographer Herbert Sonnenfeld, visiting this all-American—the fifth to be set up in Israel by members of the North American Hatzair—found a community where the stony wilderness had yielded to the tools and the energy of devoted men and women. Above them a group of people from whose faces shone out contentment and joy over their work or played with the robustly enchanting children who were born to them in these windswept hills. For those who wonder how the present days of hard struggle have broken the spirit of pioneering in Israel's message to the world, there could be few better examples than the evident tranquility, the rich sense of personal fulfillment in the building of a new life, which Sonnenfeld's camera has caught in the lives of these Americans.

The sign says Sasa.

Mrs. Goldstein Does It Again

That busy artist of the crocheting needles, Mrs. Rose Goldstein, has done it again.

Periodically, the Home News, monthly news page of the Jewish Home for the Aged, has reported Mrs. Goldstein's contributions to various Home functions—contributions that are made exclusively from the sale of her beautiful crocheted articles.

Now, Mrs. Goldstein, whose skillful fingers seem never to rest, has donated another $100, this time to the Endowment Fund. As usual, all the money was saved out of the earnings from her handicraft.

Mrs. Goldstein never misses an opportunity to tell people she meets about the fine life she leads at the Home; and her actions certainly bear out her words.

Book Review at Parents Meeting

Jewish Book Month will be observed at the Dec. 4 meeting of the Parents Association of the Jewish Community Center. The 8 P. M. program will be held in the Empire Room of the Crown Hotel.

Mrs. Lillian Ostrow of Boston, literary critic, will review Howard Fast's book, "My Glorious Brothers." Mrs. Samuel Eisenstadt is program chairman.

Providence Women In Piano Debut

Two former Providence women will make their debut as a concert piano team next Thursday evening at the Women's Union in Fall River. The pair are Mrs. Ruth Shand, formerly Ruth Miller, daughter of Mrs. Henry Miller, and Mrs. Evelyn Lowenstein, who was Evelyn Isserlis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Isserlis of 14 Taft Avenue.

Both are graduates of advanced schools of music and former teachers of piano in Providence. Now residents of the Bay City, they have been playing as a team during their leisure hours. Results were so good that they were urged to appear in public.

Next week's free public concert will mark their first appearance. The program will start at 8:30 P. M.

 GOVERNOR

PROCLAMATION
 THANKSGIVING DAY
 By Dennis J. Roberts
 Governor

More than three hundred years ago, our Pilgrim forefathers invited the Indians to join them in a day of celebration on which they would thank God for His goodness to them in their new home. We remember that the Indians brought gifts to the white man's table; and that warriors and Pilgrims sat side by side in peace. We know that this was the first Thanksgiving Day, a day which has since become a national holiday.

Though our way of life today little resembles that of our ancestors, we still feel in our hearts the same gratitude to Our Lord. Soon we shall celebrate another Thanksgiving Day. Across the nation, families will bow their heads in reverence and thank God for His infinite goodness. Particularly in these times of unrest and suffering, we should realize how many reasons we have to be thankful.

Here in America we enjoy the privileges and rights, which have elevated our standard of living to the highest in the world. We may attend the church of our choice, travel where we wish, speak, vote, and think freely and without fear. These are blessings that we often take for granted. Let us remember the brave men who are fighting and dying to preserve our American way of life. As we gather around our Thanksgiving tables, may we be humble as we thank Our Lord for the many blessings He has bestowed upon us. May we, the citizens of Rhode Island, join the people all over the country in expressing our gratitude to God for His goodness.

As we observe Thanksgiving this year, let us remember the principles on which this day was founded. May it be a day of prayer, praise, and thankfulness; AND NOW, THEREFORE, DO I, DENNIS J. ROBERTS, GOVERNOR OF THE STATE OF RHODE ISLAND AND PROVIDENCE PLANTATIONS, PROCLAIM asking that the Lord continue His benevolence toward us, and beseeching His continued guidance for strength, wisdom, and humility in all our undertakings.

THURSDAY, THE 22ND OF NOVEMBER, 1951, AS

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the State to be affixed this 9th day of November, in the year of Our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and fifty-one, and of Independence, the one hundred and seventy-sixth.

SYD COHEN:

Sports Fans or Murderers?

Are you a baseball fan, or a follower of the fights on TV? Do you like to watch football teams in action? Do you roar when a goalie makes a brilliant stop on the ice? Do you stand around with the boys discussing the ball scores in season?

If you are these things, don't feel so proud of yourself and your Americanism. You're not a sportsman, as you may think, but some sort of beast whose ultimate goal is to battle his fellow man to the death.

Wait a minute, now, these are not my sentiments—and I didn't say I approve the thought. But they may make for some interesting, even amusing, reading.

It all happened when Maurice Samuel opened the Temple Emanuel Institute of Studies for Adults with a lecture that was based on his most recent book, "The Gentleman and the Jew." Although I wasn't at the lecture, the information on the matter was supplied by Sam Feingold, a member of the committee.

Maurice Samuel is a dynamic speaker with a one-track mind. He devoutly believes every word he utters, and he hates to be interrupted. He is a crotchety but fascinating personality, and he would have no business making a sports column—or some sort of facsimile thereof—except for the fact that he takes sports fans and participants apart in his book.

Well, let's see what's wrong—Samuels version, of course—with sports and the fans. According to the author, the competitive urge that is the cornerstone of American ingenuity and success is really the worst thing in the world—that spirit leads eventually to the battlefield.

Back in the days of the old Romans, he says, gladiatorial combat was the apex of manliness. Pitting a man against a lion or against another man in duels to the death delighted the spectators as much as Red Sox fans today are thrilled by a 400 foot Williams homer.

Today, thousands of sports-minded folk scream themselves into a frenzy as a Marciano batters a helpless hulk of a Joe Louis. We glory in being able to hit farther or run faster than the next man. Our team must be better than the other team, just as a kid brags about what his father will do to the other kid's father. And it is this sort of thing, says Maurice Samuel, that leads to the ultimate in competition—war among human beings.

From one team to another, the competitive spirit leads us to square off one city against another, and then one country against another. This, you may say, resolves itself in the international Olympic games, but Samuel says even that only leads to more hatred and jealousy among the nations—and ultimately, war.

Unfortunately, Samuel chooses to divide these war-mongers and those who do not feel that competitive urge into two separate camps—one Christian and one Jewish. The Jews, he points out, preached the gospel of beating their swords into plowshares, in order that they might follow peaceful pursuits and not physical combat.

If that is so, then some one had better warn the Government of Israel that they are committing a serious wrong. Athletics are being encouraged in the so-called Jewish State, and a highly competitive soccer team even roamed across the U. S. on a recent tour which in no way could compare with an afternoon in the synagogue.

We have sent large stores of baseball equipment to Israel, and if that stuff doesn't foster competition among men it just won't be used at all. And I wonder what Samuel would say if asked to comment on the brilliant aggressive wars that were fought 2000 years apart, first by the Macabees and much later by the twentieth century Jews of Israel. It's a good thing the noted author isn't around these parts to see how worked up we heathens get over a mere ball game between the Red Sox and Yankees, how we crowd around the television screen to watch the fights, and even—you should pardon the expression—the wrestlers.

This must be wrong, since Maurice Samuel says the Jew is "rather a man of peace, as epitomized by his glory in books, reading and learning." The average baseball fan will cheerfully admit that part of it. Every ball fan does a lot of reading—box scores, averages, results of games, official records, etc. We certainly do glory in books, reading and learning.

Funny thing, though—that also means there are several million Christians running around the country who don't realize that they really are Jewish, according to Samuel's concepts.

Yup, it certainly is hard after all these years to realize that we are a people of warriors, not of God. Yet, knowing now how wrong we are, I'm afraid there isn't one of us who wouldn't prefer being thrown to the hungry lions to having to give up our ball games and street corner arguments about same.

I guess we are just a flock of sinners.
