Zionists, Hadassah to Sponsor Israel Bond "Caravan"

GJC Drive Total Hits $615,000; Plan Salute to Workers Jan. 29

Feverish activity marked all fronts of the GJC's fund-raising campaign in behalf of the United Jewish Appeal as it headed down the homestretch toward the "finish" pole.

Rounding into the final turn, the drive this week reached the $615,000 total—and campaign officials expressed guarded opinion that the sought-after $650,000 goal seemed more and more like a reality.

At the same time, Alvin A. Sopkin, GJC president, announced a "closing celebration" for Tuesday evening, Jan. 29 at the Sheraton-Biltmore hotel. As in past years, the affair will be termed "A Salute to the Workers."

With only ten days to go before the Jan. 29 meeting and with several hundred pledge cards still unreported, campaign officials were frank in admitting these two factors were the main handicaps confronting the drive's final finish.

Nevertheless, they noted that the fund had climbed approximately $25,000 since last week's report and that considerable inroads had been made in the number of outstanding cards. The latter total, at this date, was approximately 600—as compared to more than 8000 covered since the drive was launched last fall.

Joseph Galkin, GJC executive director, has been busy on the telephone for the past two weeks contacting potential donors who had not announced their pledges to the current drive. A number of substantial pledges were recorded, as a result of his pleas.

A "Worker's Breakfast" last Sunday at the Wayland Manor also helped to swell the drive's total to its present high level.

The return engagement of Charles Castleman, ten-year-old child violin prodigy, was announced this week by Joseph W. Ress, campaign chairman, as a highlight of the Jan. 29 celebration.

Streamlined reports by the various divisional heads and the announcement of key appointments to head up the 1952 campaign organization will be among the other features of the evening.

Music, entertainment and dancing will round out the affair to which all GJC members, workers and donors are being invited to attend. There will be no admission charge or solicitation of funds.

Shoshana Damari, Israeli folk song stylist, who will headline the program at R. I. School of Design Monday evening, Jan. 21 is shown conferring with composer-pianist Moshe Wilensky, and at rear is Ralph J. Kaplan, lecturer on Near East problems. Sponsors of "Caravan" are Providence Z.O.A. and Hadassah groups.

School of Design Scene of Show

Israel's beauty in song and story will be unfolded to a Rhode Island audience on Tuesday, Jan. 21 when the Providence Zionist District and Providence Chapter of Hadassah presents the Shoshana Damari "Caravan," named for the songstress of Israeli folk songs.

Miss Damari, on whose warm, sultry voice praise has been heaped throughout the United States, will present a repertoire of Hebrew folk songs at the R. I. School of Design auditorium.

Admission will be free and open to the public.

Chairman of the Z. O. A.-sponsored event, held in connection with the sale of State of Israel Bonds, is Arthur I. Darman of Woonsocket.

William D. Strong, president of the Providence Zionist District, has named M. Louis Abedon as District Israel Bond chairman.

Lending full cooperation to the Z. O. A. group in sponsoring the "Caravan" are the members of the Providence Chapter of Hadassah. The executive board of Hadassah discussed plans for the "Caravan" at a meeting today at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel.

Also appearing with the celebrated singer will be Moshe Wilensky, exponent of folk music and concert pianist; and Ralph J. Kaplan, Israel lecturer.

Miss Damari is of Yemenite Jewish background, and offers songs both in Hebrew and Arabic. She is a citizen of Israel, but has spent several months in America, before night clubs, on television, making recordings.

TIME magazine said recently of the diminutive Miss Damari: "Her warm, sultry voice conveys the sensuousness of the Orient. Captivatingly beautiful, she hypnotizes the audience with her Yemenite melodies. . . Here is Israel's cultural ambassador to America."

Mr. Wilensky, who has composed most of Miss Damari's folk songs, has often been called the George Gershwin of the new nation, and is recognized as one of its outstanding concert pianists and composers.

Mr. Kaplan, author, philosopher and officer in the Israel Army during the War of Independence, was a founder of the Universal College in Tel-Aviv. He is also widely recognized as an authority on Near East affairs.

Inventor Devises New Plastic Splint

LOS ANGELES (AJP)—Three Jews were credited this week with the invention of a new plastic splint designed to replace the customary five-pound plastic cast required to help heal broken bones.

Joining in the invention were Dr. Albert Goodman, Charles Levine, and David Sallen.

The new plastic splint, presently being tried on an injured German-Shepherd dog, weighs only three ounces and is provided with tiny holes allowing air to enter the covered area and eliminating much of the traditional itching which goes with wearing a plaster of Paris cast.

KOSHER HOTEL SOLD
ATLANTIC CITY (AJP)—One of the nation's oldest kosher-observant hotels, the 500-room Breakers Hotel, was sold this week for an undisclosed amount to a Lakewood, N. J., firm.

McCarthy Denies Ultimatum on Anti-Jewish Leaders

Appearance On Close Program Discussed

WASHINGTON (AJP)—Senator Joseph McCarthy flatly denied to the American Jewish Press in a second exclusive interview here this week that leaders of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith with whom he conferred privately more than a month ago had exerted pressure upon him during the parley to drop alleged associations with anti-Jewish leaders or risk being earmarked an enemy of American Jewry.

Denies Ultimatum

In denying that "any such ultimatum was given," the controversial Wisconsin senator labeled as "the most decent, fair and accurate coverage in a long time" the AJP's McCarthy interview of three weeks ago in which the senator confirmed the news service's original report of an "informal" New York meeting between top Jewish anti-bias chieftains and himself.

Senator McCarthy this week reiterated his hope that Jewish leaders would join with him in the future at "friendly and informal gab sessions."

"I'd like to sit down with them again," he told the American Jewish Press.

During the course of the interview, the Wisconsin solon, recently seated as a member of the powerful Senate Appropriations Committee, described the B'nai B'rith leaders with whom he had conferred as "good, intelligent Americans."

Says No Warning Given

Brushing aside a report that ADL leaders at the four-hour-long conference had warned him he would be marked as anti-Jewish if he associated with leaders of anti-Semitic groups, Senator McCarthy said, "why, it never came up. I was given no such ultimatum. I assure you, the meeting (Continued on Page 3)

"Bagel Blues" Grips N.Y.C.

Bagel Crisis Spurs Hijack; Offer 'Bathtub Bagel' Hints

NEW YORK CITY (AJP)—Bagel blues continued this week to plague the world's largest single Jewish community in the wake of recipes for homemade "bathtub bagels," the hijacking of a bagel delivery truck transporting the precious rings of dough and an employment "crisis."

The slowdown of bagel workers, now entering its third week, continued to leave hundreds of thousands of Gothamites with only lox and cream cheese as part of the traditional Sunday morning brunch.

Almost daily accounts of progress in mediating the dispute between workers and manufacturers of bagels have earned prominent display in the large daily newspapers here. One metropolitan paper, deeply in sympathy with the plight of bagel consumers, offered its own concoction on how to make the tasty rolls in one's own kitchen. The edition was a near sell-out.

Less humorous was the hijack-ing of one of the few trucks still delivering bagels. No one was hurt, but the precious bagels were placed on the missing list by police.

The bagel shortage had its effect upon employment here, too. Pretty Jennie Casella lost her job at the Yiddish-American Broadway Show, "Bagels and Yox."

Miss Casella's job was to dab cream cheese into bagels handed to the audience during intermission of the show.

Morgenthau Predicts Israel 'Self-Sufficient' In 6 Years

NEW YORK CITY (AJP)—An end of immigration coupled with "self-sufficiency" looms for Israel within six years, Henry Morgenthau, Jr., chairman of the $500,000,000 Israel Bond drive, predicted this week upon his return to the U. S. from the Jewish State.

Morgenthau, returning from a five-week honeymoon which included stop-overs in Europe and a visit to the Jewish State, told newsmen he believed Israel would be "self-sufficient" five years after immigration ceased. The Jewish leader estimated that immigration would be halted in about a year.

The chairman of the board of governors of the bond drive said he was "gratified" to see how funds already received in Israel were being utilized to develop public works, local industry and the port of Haifa.

Congratulations On New Format, Press Swamp Herald

The Herald is still basking in the warm glow of literally hundreds of expressions of approval and congratulations that have poured in to our office following the advent of the larger newspaper that was published for the first time last week.

Public response to the New Herald was spontaneous and immediate. By cards and letters, phone calls and personal contacts, readers of this newspaper were still commenting on the big event as this issue prepared to go to press.

Most significant was the fact that so many persons went out of their way to let us know that they had seen and appreciated the larger, more modern pages—made possible by the new Mann offset press. The newspaper-reading public generally accepts changing conditions without comment. That is why the overwhelming response has been doubly gratifying and thrilling. If ever there was any doubt as to the place the Herald has achieved in the homes and hearts of the Jewish community of Rhode Island, such doubt there can be no longer. To say that the editors of the Herald are grateful would be the understatement of the new year.

Considerable interest has been expressed in the new press, pictured on the front page last week, that has made the larger Herald possible. Many persons have requested more detailed information about the giant, as well as the desire to see it in person.

The Herald therefore extends a cordial invitation to all readers to visit our plant at 121 Dyer Street and inspect the Mann offset press as well as our ultra-modern plant.

Unpledged Donors Urged to Respond

With the United Jewish Appeal fund-raising campaign due to wind up on Jan. 29, the General Jewish Committee of Providence this week issued an urgent plea to remaining unpledged donors to contact GJC headquarters directly for recording of their contributions.

Recognizing that some potential donors still have not been contacted in person by voluntary solicitors, the GJC suggested that such persons either forward their pledge by mail to headquarters at 203 Strand Building, 77 Washington Street, Providence or telephone the office at GA 1-4111—in order that as complete a total as possible may be reported at the Jan. 29 closing celebration.

Rubinstein will address Leonard Bloom Auxiliary, JWV, on Jan. 21; Coleman Zimmerman will appear at the meeting of Roger Williams Chapter, B'nai B'rith on Jan. 22, and Mrs. Howard Presel will be the guest of Congregation Beth-David on Jan. 29.

National Leader at Farband Installation

Officers of Ben-Gurion Branch 41-B of Farband will be installed Sunday evening at Temple Emanuel. The program will start at 8 P. M.

Louis Segal, national general secretary of Farband, Labor Zionist Organization, will be guest speaker. Arthur Ellison, Boston lawyer, and vice-president of the New England Region, J. N. F., will install the officers.

A presentation will be made to a member of the local organization. Entertainment and refreshments will conclude the program.

The New Miriam Hospital will employ full time scientists in laboratory and X-ray departments.

Groups Ponder Entry Into "Goldberg" Row

NEW YORK CITY (AJP) — Several national Jewish groups were reported considering the possibility of entry into the torrid fight over the recent ouster of Philip Loeb, the Papa Goldberg of the TV hit, "The Goldbergs."

Loeb was dropped from the cast of the Jewish family show on the eve of the signing of a contract for a three-times-weekly 15 minute video series.

The veteran actor immediately charged that he was a victim of a "blacklist" appearing in "Red Channels," a listing of alleged pro-Reds in show business. Loeb denied he was a Communist or in sympathy with the movement.

Protests to Loeb's ouster from the show included a letter from the American Civil Liberties Union asking that the actor be given a hearing to answer the charges.

Loeb, who has instituted a suit against "Red Channels," received support from Actors Equity which voted to recommend to the union's governing body, the council, that "The Goldbergs" be placed on the "unfair" list as long as Loeb is barred from the show.

Meanwhile, at least two Jewish groups debate possible entry into the case.

Churches Score School Prayers

SCHENECTADY (AJP) — The proposed daily program for public schools throughout the state faced a new roadblock here this week as two Protestant church groups joined the local Jewish Council in opposing the plan.

A resolution opposing the plan suggested by the State Board of Regents and contending that "the place for the specific teaching and formal practice of religion is in the home and in the church," was adopted by members of the Methodist Church here.

The Unitarian Society late this week adopted a resolution in which it took exception with the school prayer proposals. "Each man should be free to find his own way spiritually and religiously," the resolution stated.

Obituary

SIMON GREENBERG
Funeral services for Simon Greenberg, 72, a retired merchant residing at 34 Warrington Street who had been active in civic organizations for the past 40 years, a son of Abraham and Rose Greenberg. He was a charter member of the Rhode Island Jewish Veterans Post and once served as president of that organization. He was also a founder of What Cheer Chapter, Independent Order of Brith Sholom, and served as its secretary for many years.

Mr. Greenberg served on the board of directors of the Hebrew Free Loan and was one of the first members of the Providence Jewish Fraternal and Congregation Sons of Abraham. He was keenly interested in the development of youth activities in South Providence.

In addition to the widow, Sophie (Leschinsky) Greenberg, survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Myer Lurie of New Haven and Mrs. Samuel L. Eisenstadt of Providence; a son, Abraham Greenberg of Manchester, N. H., and five grandchildren.

Funeral services for Phil I. Zawatsky, of 167 Camp Street, were held last Tuesday from the Max Sugarman Funeral Home. Burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery.

Zawatsky was born in Providence, son of Zelik and Leah Zawatsky, and had lived here all of his life. He was a member of the Ahavath Sholom Synagogue, and the Jewish Home for the Aged.

Besides his wife, Bessie (Benson) Zawatsky, he leaves two sisters, Mrs. Emma Klein, of Levittown, N. Y., and Mrs. Bertha Tatz, of California, and a brother, Julius J. Zawatsky, of Providence.

Funeral services for Leo Weiner, 61, 311 Taber Avenue, treasurer and founder of the Weiner Jewelry Mfg. Co., 137 South Street, were held last Sunday from the Max Sugarman Funeral Home. Burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery.

Mr. Weiner was born in Riga, Latvia, son of the late Zelik and Hannah Weiner, and had lived in Providence for more than 50 years.

He was a pioneer in the development and manufacture of indestructible pearls and was a leader of various national committees of pearl and jewelry manufacturers that advocated a higher tariff on imported beads, pearls and jewelry from foreign countries.

He was a member of Roosevelt Lodge, F. and A.M., the Touro Fraternal Organization, the Jewish Home for the Aged, B'nai B'rith and the Zionist Organization of America.

Besides his wife, Pauline C.

(Aron) Weiner, he leaves a son, Edward; two daughters, Mrs. Harold Levitt and Mrs. Henry Colson; two brothers, Albert and Alexander Weiner; and six grandchildren, all of Providence; and a sister, Mrs. Ida Hirshberg, of Detroit.

MRS. ANNA POLOFSKY

Funeral services for Mrs. Anna Polofsky, of 158 Friendly Road, Cranston, were held last Tuesday from the Max Sugarman Funeral Home. Burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery.

She was born in Austria, a daughter of the late Max and Jennie Horowitz, and had lived in this country most of her life.

Besides her husband, Joseph Polofsky, she leaves three daughters, Mrs. Bernice Bender, Mrs. Alice Harris and Miss Shelia Polofsky; three sons, Harry, Gordon and Michael; four brothers, Abraham, Harry, Charles and Pacey Horowitz; three sisters, Mrs. Lena Cohen, Mrs. Ethel Press and Mrs. Dorothy Pitocco, and three grandchildren, all of Providence. There is also another sister, Mrs. Sarah Goldberg, of Lowell.

Nancy Chase, Daughter of Local Couple, Shunned Movie Career to Further Singing Career

To Be Soloist With R. I. Philharmonic

Nancy Chase, dramatic soprano who will be soloist with the Rhode Island Philharmonic Orchestra on its second tour of concerts, Jan. 28 through Feb. 6, has been singing ever since she can remember. Ever since she could talk, it seems to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. I. Symonds of 195 Arlington Avenue.

Mr. Symonds is a vice president of the Rhode Island Philharmonic but he learned that his daughter was to be a soloist this season only after she had signed the contract.

Not long after her five concerts in Rhode Island Nancy Chase will make her opera debut in the historic Academy of Music in Philadelphia with the Philadelphia Civic Opera Company, Feb. 21, as Nedda in Pagliacci. She will sing the lead also in Carlo Menotti's "Amelia Goes to the Ball" which will be on the double bill instead of the better known traditional Cavalleria Rusticana.

Turned From Films

When she was 15 Mr. Symonds turned his daughter toward opera and away from what appeared to be an entrance into a successful career in films. She had then been in Hollywood for a year and while living with friends of the family had been studying at the Professional School for children of actors and young actors. On a visit to Hollywood Mr. Symonds made a contract for her with Eddie Cantor which he later decided to cancel and then refused an offer from RCA and another from Universal in which she was to have taken Deanna Durbin's place.

He brought his daughter back home to Worcester and enrolled her at the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston where she soon won a scholarship. She had previously studied voice in Worcester with Margaret Howe Burton before spending a year in New York at the Juilliard School which preceded her year in Hollywood. It was the tenor Jan Peerce who suggested to her family that she go to Hollywood, after he heard her at a Juilliard concert.

Won Caruso Scholarship

In the same way her singing in concerts at the New England Conservatory brought her to the attention of the late Albert Stoessel, noted conductor, of the Oratorio Society of New York and induced him to interest Edward Johnson, director, and Mme. Lucretia Bori, retired soprano, of the Metropolitan Opera in her career. On their advice she went back to New York and the Juilliard School and won a Caruso scholarship.

Under the will of the great tenor the scholarships bearing his name were to be given to a promising young tenor for study in Milan. It was war time. No young tenor was available. Nor was Milan a good place for study. It was Nancy Chase's good luck. For several years on Caruso scholarships she studied opera at the Juilliard. Then eager for graduate work she applied for a fellowship at the same school. She held fellowships for three successive years and then made her opera debut at Chataqua as Donna Anna, the leading soprano role in "Don Giovanni."

Musical Family

About this time love, the subject of most of her arias, began to take up her whole time. She was married in June 1943 to Harold S. Chase, a jewelry manufacturer who, like Mr. Symonds, is an amateur musician. Mr. Chase can sing duets from opera with his wife, can cue her on her solos and is her resident critic. The children, Nancy Ann, 7, and Harold Jr. 2, are already learning the melodies and stories of the operas their mother sings. The family lives in Flushing, Long Island.

Mrs. Chase, also a pianist, plays her accompaniments for daily practice. She makes tape recordings of her work and plays her singing back for her own criticism.

She is now studying voice with Sergius Kagen and opera with Maestro Giuseppe Bamboschek.

Her list of achievements is long and a host of music critics are enthusiastic in her praise. She has been soloist with the CBS symphony and the New York Philharmonic, and has been presented in concert in many cities of the East.

In 1949 she was soloist at one of the biennial American Music Festivals at Yaddo, an estate near Saratoga Springs, N. Y. These concerts are attended by music critics, composers, musicians and a few ardent lovers of music. The programs always contain some modern compositions. Mrs. Chase received rare praise for her work in difficult contrapuntal and atonal music.

Two years ago she was soloist at a young people's concert presented by the Rhode Island Philharmonic when the critic wrote that she looked like a fairy princess and sang like an angel and the children listened in rapture. That visit was a sort of home coming for this young opera soprano lived in Pawtucket when she was a little girl and went to Samuel Slater school there.

When she sings with the R. I. Philharmonic on its second tour this year she and her family will be guests of her parents in Providence.

was completely friendly."

What was discussed in the way of anti-Semitism, the AJP learned, was the appearance the Wisconsin senator put in on one of radio commentator Upton Close's programs. Close has been under fire from the ADL and others for anti-Jewish attitudes.

"But," remarked McCarthy, "I accept most invitations to appear on programs, even those of my enemies, since it gives me an opportunity to present my views to the American people."

In addition to the Close incident, the smear case launched against Jewish Asst. Defense Secretary Anna M. Rosenberg was discussed informally, the AJP learned.

Discussed Many Issues

"As I said before," the Senator stated, "what impressed me most about this meeting was the fact that in addition to discussing subjects of interest to the Americans of the Jewish race, we spent a lot of time talking over issues of national scope . . . things of importance to all Americans everywhere."

Asked for comment on the recent wave of outrages against Jewish centers and Negro projects in Florida, Senator McCarthy smilingly replied:

"Why, that's like askin' a fellow if he's against sin, evil and war."

W. C. Anniversary Program Sunday

A program reflecting the Workmen's Circle activities, presented by the activities council on the occasion of the 25th anniversary of the English-speaking division, will be held Sunday at 8 P. M. at the Workmen's Circle Center, 29 Snow Street.

The program will include the first Providence showing of the film, "With These Hands," based on the history of the I. L. G. W. U., presented through the Jewish Labor Committee by Louis Ackerman; selected readings by Rose L. Andelman; a W. C. pictorial parade, with a display of leaflets and literature depicting the value of membership within the Workmen's Circle, by Gladys Klitzman; and community singing, led by Sylvia Gould.

The arrangements committee includes I. Fine, chairman; I. Rottenberg, R. Carner, B. Feldman, J. Pavlow and J. B. Rothenberg. The public is invited to attend.

BRANCH 41-B MEETING

An executive meeting of Ben-Gurion Branch 41-B, Farband, was held at the home of Arthur Finklestein of Baker Street on Jan. 11. A program was planned for the coming installation of officers on Jan. 20. The birthdays of Finklestein and Albert Sokolow were celebrated.

Postar-Levitt

Miss Mildred Levitt of the Bronx, N. Y., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Levitt of Pittsfield, Mass., became the bride of Joseph Postar, son of Mrs. Bertha Postar of this city, at a double-ring ceremony performed by Rabbi S. Flaum last Sunday in the Bronx.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a ballerina length gown of nylon tulle over taffeta, with a basque waist, chantilly-lace top and Peter Pan collar. Her shoulder length veil fell from a seed pearl crown.

Miss Marion Levitt was maid of honor for her sister, and another sister of the bride, Miss Vivien Levitt, served as bridesmaid.

The brother of the bridegroom, Isaac Postar, was best man.

Mrs. Postar was graduated from

Saluting a great American eddie cantor
on his 60th Birthday

In Next Week's Herald

Out of the tenement-darkened streets came one who spoke with the voice of America, one who sang America's songs. A little fellow with big eyes and a bigger heart.

Who remembers that night at Miner's Old Bowery when Eddie Cantor began an era in show business? Or the Coney Island cabaret where he sang to the tunes of a pianist named Jimmy Durante? Who remembers him in Gus Edwards' show, with George Jessel and Walter Winchell?

But a whole nation remembers him as the "Apostle of Pep" in the greatest of the Ziegfeld Follies. The world heard him on the records that spun in a million homes. The star of "Kid Boots" became the star of "Whoopie" and the world applauded.

Count it up in 1929. Fame? Wherever men were free to laugh the name of Eddie Cantor was spoken. Fortune? Add it up to two millions. But 1929 had a month called October, so only the fame remained and the gift of laughter. Out of the Wall Street crash came a best seller entitled "Caught Short," and as America read it, for a moment the anguish was forgotten.

The image of the "Kid" danced on a thousand screens. Remember "Kid Boots" and "Kid Millions" and the "Kid from Spain?" Radio was born and another career opened for Eddie Cantor. America loved to spend this hour...

Big as the eyes are, the heart is bigger. Franklin D. Roosevelt called him the man behind the "March of Dimes." Spokesman for the heart of America, for Protestant, Catholic and Jew alike, Spokesman for the Jews of America in rallying support for the victims of tyranny and war. Fighter for the Jewish homeland. Builder of Israel. Leader in Israel's development.

The years are 60, and America will celebrate. Some of us will want to salute a great artist. Some will want to congratulate a great humanitarian. All will want to hail a great American.

Bloodmobile Ward in Temple Beth El

At first glance, it would be hard to recognize the scene above as one taking place at Temple Beth El. Such was the case, however, last Wednesday, when the Temple served as headquarters for the Red Cross Bloodmobile. More than 100 pints of blood were collected for American servicemen overseas. Ernest Krasner and Jack Welsh are seen in the process of donating blood, while Milton C. Kay, extreme right, relaxes after completing his contribution. Mrs. Ben Salter, volunteer Red Cross worker, is seen with Kay. Photo by Fred Kelman

Rabbi Klein Returns As Guest Sunday

Rabbi Carol Klein, formerly spiritual leader of Congregation Sons of Jacob, will be the guest of the congregation Sunday at 7 P. M. in the vestry of the synagogue. Rabbi Morton Berkowitz announced this week. The public is invited to attend.

Rabbi Klein has served as administrative director of Mizrahi for South America during the past two years. He visited Israel last year as a delegate to the World Zionist Congress. He will report on the Jewish communities in South America and their religious problems.

The arrangements committee for the affair includes Rabbi Berkowitz, Jack Glantz, Hyman B. Stone and Maurice W. Winograd. Refreshments will be served by a committee of the Sisterhood, including Mesdames Hyman B. Stone, Jack Glantz, Louis Sweet, Harry Kopit, Ida Gladstein, B. Glantz, Morris Lecht, J. Bilsky, N. Snow and Louis Steinberg.

Touro to Have Night of Fun

The next regular meeting of Touro Fraternal Association, on Wednesday, Jan. 23, will be a "Night of Fun," George C. Berk, chairman of the social committee, announced this week. Entertainment, refreshments and smokes will be provided. Dr. Harold Hanzel, president, will conduct the business meeting.

BOWLING

A. E. PI BOWLING
by Marvin Geller

The Bisons continued to lead the pack as they defeated the Barons. Buddy Flink led the attack with a 317 triple. Irv Beriman and Bob Gittleman each had a 121 single for the winners and losers, respectively. The Mohawks held on to second place, as they defeated the Flyers. Perry Delitch led the winner's attack with a single string of 131. Danny Glassberg was best for the losers with 117.

The Bears took the full measure of the Indians, as Jerry Port took high honors for the night with a 361 triple. This included single strings of 134 and 126. The Hornets climbed out of the cellar, as they defeated the Indians. Burt Himelfarb paced the winners' attack with a 130 single. Sid Dressler was best for the losers with a 312 triple.

In the New Miriam Hospital there will be bathroom facilities for each room, regardless of size.

Rabbi George Bernard Schwartz will give the benediction.

Members of the Sisterhood and Men's Club of the Congregation, as well as members and friends, are invited to attend.

Girls in S. Africa Have No Trouble

NEW YORK CITY (AJP)— Jewish brides-to-be in South Africa are facing more than the usual hustle-bustle worries that go with the average wedding, reports from that country disclosed this week.

The No. 1 headache here is to find a shule in which to be married! A check disclosed that all shules and halls are booked solid this month with weddings. In some synagogues and temples as many as 10 weddings a Sunday are scheduled to be performed.

Halls for the wedding reception are even worse, a survey showed. As far back as six months ago, the South African Zionist Record reported, halls customarily catering to Jewish weddings posted "SRO" signs.

Hadassah Medical Director Visits New Miriam Hospital

Foresees Establishment of Community Health Centers

Establishment of a series of community health centers around each group of settlements in the Jerusalem corridor in Israel was envisioned here last week by Dr. Eli Davis, director of the Hadassah Medical Organization, in an interview with two members of the Providence Chapter of Hadassah.

Dr. Davis, who was guest speaker at the Chapter's annual Donors Luncheon on Jan. 8, revealed this proposed program to Mrs. William Bojar, chairman of publicity for the Donors Luncheon, and Mrs. Marshall Leeds, editor of the Hadassah Briefs, the Chapter's monthly journal.

The community health centers are part of the plans for an integrated preventive and curative nation-wide program, based on the Medical School and the Hebrew University, said Dr. Davis, who is also chief of the out-patient department for HMO in Israel.

The proposed health centers, he added, are intended to take on the functions of public health forums, health clubs and educators in hygiene, nutrition and preventive medicine for the whole area. They will be operated by medical students who will be assigned there as an integral part of their training.

"There are many leading specialists available to guide these students," Dr. Davis asserted, "and Hadassah, which already runs the largest and most comprehensive medical organization in Israel, now has before it a great program to build a new medical center based on the medical school in Jerusalem, where modern medicine and technique can be taught."

Asked by Mesdames Bojar and Leeds about the cost of setting up and operating such an ambitious program, the HMO Director stated that "Hadassah is planning to raise eight million dollars to make possible the great new center for the first medical school in Israel and the first Jewish medical school in the history of that ancient land.

"This," he said, "is in addition to Hadassah's ten million dollar budget for Israel which includes, besides medical work, vocational guidance and support of immigrant child orphans."

Dr. Davis placed the burden for supporting this program squarely on the shoulders of Hadassah. "Israel, putting its first emphasis on immigration and defense, and cutting its food budget in an all-out austerity program, is unable to finance its health needs without American support. Pioneering efforts in medicine in Israel are largely dependent on the efforts and endeavors of Hadassah membership," he concluded.

JCC Parents Ass'n Plans Annual Bridge

The Parents Association of the Jewish Community Center this week announced initial plans for its fourth annual Card Party and Dessert Bridge, to be held in Hope High School cafeteria, which has a seating capacity of 1200, on Thursday evening, March 27.

Each guest at the affair will receive a sponsor book, listing the names of all women who have purchased four or more tickets. Highlighting the evening will be a new Apron Brigade, a group of teen-age girls who will act as waitresses.

The following committee appointments were announced by Mrs. Hyman Goldstein, chairman: Mesdames Albert Alter, co-chairman; Haskell Broadman, Abraham Fabricant and Maurice Share, refreshments; Isadore Wolf, publicity; Saul Etkins, table appointments; Harold Chase, chairman, and Elwin Rosenbaum, Murray Shiro and Nathan Schwartz, prizes; Seymour Torgan, telephone squad.

Area chairmen in charge of tickets are Mesdames Albert Alter, East Side; David Miller, South Providence, and Irving Feldman, North End. Mrs. Benjamin Lewis is ex-officio of the entire committee.

Committees Named For CJCC Dance

Plans for the annual dinner dance of the Cranston Jewish Community Club were made at a meeting at the home of Herbert M. Woolf, chairman. The affair will be held Sunday, March 16 at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel.

Included on the dance committee are Nathan Honig, treasurer and reservations; Bernard Wexler and Phillip Chópak, Cranston area; Bernard Margolis, West Warwick area, and Mrs. Ben Lerner, publicity and decorations.

Mrs. Jack Kilberg is chairman of the Souvenir Journal, assisted by Mesdames Saul Freidman, Morris Cofman, Samuel Jacobs and Jack Westerman, co-chairmen.

Foods To Remember

KASHA made of Buckwheat Groats has been associated with Jewish Cuisine for many centuries, especially in East European countries.

Here's one of the new and tasteful recipes that will bring you applause:

- FRUITED BUCKWHEAT GROATS RING
(Kugel, if you please!)
- 1 cup coarse, medium or whole Buckwheat Groats
 - 1 egg, slightly beaten
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 4 tablespoons shortening (schmaltz, vegetable shortening)
 - 1 medium onion, diced fine
 - 4 cups boiling water
 - 2 eggs
 - 2 tablespoons sugar
 - ¼ teaspoon cinnamon
 - ¼ cup finely chopped nuts
 - ¼ cup seeded raisins
 - 1 tablespoon finely diced citron
 - 2 tablespoons fine bread or cracker crumbs

Combine Groats with beaten egg in a large mixing bowl and let stand while frying the diced onion in hot melted shortening, stirring till lightly browned. Add the egg-coated Groats and salt and continue stirring over moderate heat till lightly brown. Stir in the boiling water and cook 10 minutes, stirring frequently to prevent lumps. Beat the eggs and sugar in a mixing bowl, using a rotary beater or fork. Combine with the cooked Groats and stir in the cinnamon, chopped nuts, raisins and citron. Pack the mixture into a well greased 8 or 9-inch ring mold and spread the crumbs on top. Set the mold in a pan of water and bake 30 minutes at 350 degrees F. or till nicely browned on top. When ready to serve, place a large round serving plate right side down over the ring mold, hold firmly while inverting plate and mold. If the contents do not unmold easily, wring out a wet dish towel and place it on the upturned mold for about 3 minutes. The molded fruited GROATS RING should come out of the pan easily. Serve hot with applesauce, crushed canned pineapple sauce, raisin sauce or a sauce made of lemon or orange juice thickened with cornstarch. Or serve plain with a dusting of confectioners' sugar on top. Serve as a Dessert and call it KUGEL if you like.

Serves 6 to 8.

Twilight of European Jewry

Whatever the future of Europe may be, it is now evident that for the Jewish people Europe has become a historic twilight era. It is difficult to accept the fatal facts. Communities which have taken a thousand years to develop are disappearing or losing their identity.

We do not know how many Jews, still identified as such, have survived of the 2,000,000 who lived in Soviet Russia in 1939. We know that all forms of Jewish life are gradually being liquidated there. Even the Yiddish press, which was nothing but communist propaganda in its last years, has disappeared.

Jewish religious life has been reduced to a few isolated congregations. Of the thirty-five synagogues in Prague, only three are open. Except in Lodz and Warsaw, the few remaining synagogues in Poland are without rabbis. In Yugoslavia there is only one rabbi remaining in Belgrade. In Romania, the rabbis have been forced to promote official "anti-imperialist" and anti-Zionist lines, and Jewish culture has been taken over by the Communist Party.

Students of history know that during the first one thousand years of the common era, Jewish life centered in countries in Asia and Africa. During the second thousand years, the center of Jewish life shifted to Europe, while the communities in Asia and Africa dwindled to insignificance. Today we see the twilight of European Jewry and the shift to the United States and the New State of Israel.

It is our faith that the new centers will prove as creative and may write as glorious a chapter as did the old historic centers. How tragically costly, however, is the transition, and what a great responsibility it places upon the leaders in the new centers.

Broadway Tales

Jackie Miles, the famous Jewish funnyman from the Bronx, no like filling out those "Estimated Income Tax Forms." Jackie protests—"How do I know how much money I'm going to make this year?"

So-o-o, he fills the Estimated Form out all right, sends it in, doesn't sign any name and observes—"If they want me to guess how much I'll make—let them guess—who sent this in!"

At Madison Square Garden recently, during the fights, a guy with a furtive look in his eye walked up to Henny Youngman and asked—"Do you want to buy a diamond ring?" "Sure!"—replied Henny. "Where is it?" Came back the zanyish reply—"On that guy's hand over there!" . . . Joel Gray, the young singing click of the Yiddish-American musical, "Borshtcapades," is the son of Mickey Katz, the singing star of the show . . . Norman Rosten wrote the script for the Chanukah Pageant at Madison Square Garden on New Year's Day. It was held to bolster the sale of Israel Government Bonds in the latter's $500,000,000 bond drive . . . Broad-sides of bouquets to Max (New York Post) Lerner for the following gem in his—"People And Things That Will Never Be Missed" column. "Commentators who bemoan the victory of the Israelis over their murderous Arab attackers, on the ground it has made the Arabs angry."

Overheard at a Jewish vegetarian and dairy restaurant—"She's going slowly nuts. Bought ten new hats. When she got home—she found every mirror in the house broken."

Izzy Goldenberg's Bakery in Richmond, Ind., is a mecca for folks all over the state who like Jewish baking. Gentiles and Jews alike, particularly on Friday, jam his place for the delicious "challahs." . . . Saul Tepper, the famed Gotham illustrator, is not to be confused with Sol Tepper, the noted booking agent. Saul, whose work has appeared in all the nation's leading magazines, is very versatile. He's written a song called "My Concerto," which has been recorded by Ezio Pinza, Ann Shelton, Tommy Edwards, bandleader Ray Anthony and Tutti Camarata, Decca Records' top arranger. A couple of years ago, Saul wrote the very popular song—"Don't Cry Cry-Baby," which was recorded by Nat "King" Cole and others . . . Broadway is like a battleground these days, with constant verbal battles breaking out on the street, in the cafes, theatres and restaurants, between adherents of Walter Winchell and Ed Sullivan.

Sullivan and Winchell never liked each other, but it remained for Sullivan to appear on Barry Gray's sizzling controversial radio show at Chandler's Restaurant recently and call Winchell highly uncomplimentary names for his attacks on Josephine Baker, re: the celebrated Stork Club incident.

This reporter cannot recall a heated controversy to rival this one in all his years on the Broadway Beat!

How To Give Away A Million Dollars

BY BERYL SEGAL

If you are still working on your first million dollars, this will not interest you. You just go on with your work. This is written only for those who have made their millions and their one worry now is how to give some of them away. If you are among them, you are my man. I am here to advise you how to do it. And this advice, mind you, is given to you absolutely free. Don't even bother to write a "thank you" note. I just love to tell people how to dispose of a few extra millions that are lying around and are just taking up space in the safe.

I might add that all my life I have been interested in this business of giving away millions. Much more so than in the business of making the millions. That did not fascinate me half as much, if at all, as the trick of offering a million dollars as if it were a cigar.

Making millions? Why, any . . . can do that. But passing them around, ah, that is different. That takes character. That takes courage. That tests the metal you are made of.

And one more thing has always interested me. Merely giving it away is not enough. Again, any . . . can do that. There is also the matter of giving it with a purpose. That too tests your metal. It takes understanding and the power to discriminate between the worth while and the ridiculous.

The lady who left her fabulous fortune for the building and the maintenance of a hotel for stray cats, did not display great wisdom and understanding. Her deed will not be remembered, nor her generosity admired. I remember reading the queer story, but search me if I could think of her name or the place in California where this monument to the lady stands. She will be remembered and admired by the stray cats perhaps. Even they, I suspect, will be found grinning slyly on the day of the good lady's Yartzeit.

No, my friends, this is not my advice to you. If you have a couple of millions you don't need, and if you have the power over your purse strings, don't get queer notions in your old age. Don't establish havens for cats or dogs or parrots. Do what Frank Atran did.

Who is Frank Atran? Never heard of him? Neither did I know of the gentleman until last week when his story was told in the Jewish Daily Forward of New York.

Mr. Frank Atran is very rich. He is also very wise. He is wise, if by no other token, than because he is alive, and because he is doing what he is doing while he is in perfectly sound mind and body.

He looked in the mirror one day, and he saw that his hair is turning grey, and his face is beginning to wrinkle, and his eyes are no longer what they used to be, and he said to himself:

"You are getting old, Frank Atran. Now, you have your grey hair, and your wrinkles, and the years on your shoulders, but you also have some money. You can't do a thing about your age, Frank Atran. But you can do something—in fact, you can do many things—with your money. So why not do it now, Frank, while you can still sign your name to the checks yourself, and not through a trustee or executor?"

And so he did. He founded the Frank Atran Foundation and began to look around for worthwhile things that he might endow, support, or establish. I do not know how much of his fortune Mr. Atran allowed for his foundation. But it must be considerable, judging by the two sums the foundation gave away in the first year. Earlier in the past year the Atran Foundation gave one million dollars to Mount Sinai Hospital in New York for a research laboratory. Toward the end of the past year the Foundation gave a quarter of a million dollars for a cause which is particularly close to my heart. He called in representatives of the Jewish Labor Committee, also of New York, and offered them a house and an endowment to establish an institution of learning. The house is a five story building on Madison Avenue, and it is to be known as the Frank Atran House of Culture. Didn't I say that Mr. Atran is a wise man?

Within this house, it is planned to concentrate half a dozen separate agencies engaged in cultural and educational activities, now scattered all over the city. This will be their home. The house is to have a library, a museum, lecture halls, class rooms, concert and theater facilities, and club rooms. It is a unique project. It is a much needed project. It may have far reaching influences.

Again, Mr. Atran must be a wise man. He selected a project that is not merely a duplication of many others of its kind. It further reflects on the man and his interests. They were apparently cultural as well as financial. The photograph of the building is shown in the newspaper, and it looks impressive. Any day, soon, Mr. Atran may drop in there for a lecture or a concert. I hope he finds a seat, at least.

Now, who is this man Frank Atran? He is a textile manufacturer. He must be an able man because he came to this country with empty hands, as many another immigrant, about 30 years ago. In 1918 Mr. Atran was still in Russia, active in the revolutionary movement, helping to overthrow the regime of the Tsars. He was no millionaire then. He was later disillusioned in the Bolshevik rule and left Russia. He spent some time in Germany, in Belgium, and in France. He must have come to America in the 1920's. The millions he is now giving away were made within the short period of 25 to 30 years.

This, by the way, makes Mr. Atran my contemporary. I came to this country at about the same time. Perhaps even on the same boat. He, like myself, comes from the Ukraine. But here is where our ways part. He has already made his millions, while I am still dreaming. He is giving away cash, while I am giving advice. Oh, well. So, here you are, all who have millions to spare. Go to a wise man and learn his ways.

That is all. Thank you.

Segal Praised For Blood Column

Beryl Segal's article on the giving of blood, entitled "A Pint of Soul", in his column, "One Man's Opinion," on Jan. 4, drew a letter of thanks this week from Johns H. Congdon, chairman of the blood drive being conducted by the Providence Chapter, American Red Cross.

In a letter to Segal, Congdon wrote:

"I want to compliment you and thank you for the very inspirational column which you wrote on blood donations.

"I sincerely wish that every newspaper in the country would run your splendid article. Such a fine explanation about the painlessness of donating blood and the inspirational idea of giving a "pint of soul" should be required reading for every resident of this country.

"There may be occasions when we would like to quote whole or part of your article. May we assume that we have your permission to do so and if not, will you please notify us to the contrary.

"May I again express the sincere thanks of the Providence Chapter for a very fine contribution to the cause."

Sincerely,
JOHNS H. CONGDON,
Chairman.

Lang Re-elected Bowling President

Edward Lang was re-elected president of the Cranston Jewish Community Club men's bowling league at the group's annual mid-season banquet held recently at the Farm.

Upon recommendation by Dr. Daniel Kouffman, chairman of the nominating committee, all present officers were unanimously chosen by the members to extend their term of office until May, 1953. Others re-elected to their posts include: Morris Filler, vice-president; Max Broomfield, treasurer; and Bernard Wexler, secretary.

Five members were chosen to serve on the Board of Directors for the 1952-53 season. They are: Ben Mellion, Ben Lerner, Albert Sydney, Harold Warren and Maurice Kessler.

Ben Mellion was in charge of the committee which handled banquet arrangements, and Max White was chairman of the program committee.

A feature of the New Miriam Hospital is outlets for television reception in each room.

DISASTER STRIKES IN ISRAEL!

A REVEALING GROUP of on-the-scene photographs, rushed from Israel, tells a tragic story of the devastation that stalks scores of immigrant camps in the new Jewish homeland—as a result of the worst storms and floods to strike the area in 30 years. The December storms raged continuously for 11 days, and the damage wrought totaled millions of dollars.

Hundreds of "tent homes" were ripped beyond repair; countless tin huts were completely demolished by the howling winds, and thousands of dollars of desperately needed crops were beaten to the ground and washed away by the floods that accompanied the storm.

WHILE OLDER RELATIVES worked night and day erecting makeshift dykes to stem the raging flood waters, little children—many barefooted and still in nightgowns, as shown above—did their best to anchor tent poles in the oozing mud, but to little avail in most cases. Outside the stricken areas, the people of Israel rallied to the rescue of these newly arrived refugees. Emergency food rations, garments and medical supplies were rushed to the worst-hit camps, but millions of dollars of supplies are still needed.

THE WINDS AND RAINS have died down (above) but the angry flood waters have only begun to recede. The youngster, clutching tightly to his father's back, is a symbol of the dire distress that the storms left in their wake. The United Jewish Appeal is spurring its drive for immediate cash funds in an attempt to meet half the damage cost—while the people of Israel are rising to sacrificial heights to pay the other half.

THE SWIRLING FLOOD WATERS (above), that struck so suddenly, completely ruined ten "tent cities" and severely destroyed 19 others. These forlorn women (left) are poring through the rubble and wreckage in the hope that they might salvage a few of their meager possessions, perhaps some pots and pans or a warm outer garment.

BASKETBALL

PEE WEE LEAGUE

In the closest game of the season, the Comets defeated the Celtics in overtime 18-16. There were five seconds left to play when Victor Fields fired a one-hand push-shot from 20 feet out.

The East Side A.C. played a double-header, winning one and losing one. In the opener East Side A.C. handed the Globetrotters their first defeat 31-21. Michael Abedon scored 16 points for the winners. In the second game the Jets defeated East Side A.C. 12-10. Barry Alperin scored 8 for the winners.

INTERMEDIATE LEAGUE

Roger Williams A.C. scored their first victory of the season, 38-37 and knocked Sessions A.C. out of second place. Behind 35-29 at the end of the third quarter, Andy Blazer and Paul Gross threw in 6 points apiece to give Roger Williams the victory. Wesley Briggs scored 16 points for the winners and Joe Stone 21 for the losers.

The Rockets came from behind in the fourth period to defeat the Dukes 37-29. Norman Bader scored 6 points in the final period to spur the Rockets on to victory. Don Cohen threw in 15 points for the Dukes.

The Rebels, led by Joe Preblod's 15 points and Bob Pliner's 12, defeated Pawtucket 46-24. Lenny Fine and Billy Frank recorded 8 points each for the losers.

The Cranston Bombers defeated Narragansett A.Z.A. 41-27. Don Lazarus continued to throw in the points, getting 13 for Cranston. Alan Klibanoff scored 8 for the losers.

TEEN-AGE LEAGUE

The Wildcats won their second game of the season, defeating the Warriors from Pawtucket 16-13. Leonard Brody scored 6 points for the winners, Marvin Horvitz 7 for the losers.

The Rangers won a thriller from the Greys 36-34. Marvin Hodash scored 19 points for the winners and Sonny Sipperstein scored 11 in a losing cause.

The Center Rollers, led by Solomon Rebe's 16 points, defeated the East Siders 50-26. Jack Talan scored 12 points for the losers.

The Streaks scored a 34-28 victory over South Providence as Elliot Cohen scored 12 points and C. Wagner scored 8 for the losers.

GIRLS BASKETBALL TEAM

The J. C. C. Girls Basketball team defeated the East Street Girls team 24-2. Cynthia Robinson and Marilyn Stone with 10 points each, and Terry Rosenblatt with 4 points, completed the

J. C. C. scoring. The defensive stars for the Center girls were Etta Rae Lisker, Lori Swartz, and Marcia Zura.

Day School Ladies Plan Two Affairs

Mrs. J. Dubin was hostess to the board members of the Ladies Association of the Providence Hebrew Day School at her home, 205 Princeton Avenue, on Jan. 9. Definite plans were formulated and committees chosen for the Donors Luncheon which will be held at the Narragansett Hotel on June 4. Mrs. L. Korn is chairman of the luncheon and honorary chairmen are Mrs. A. Smith and Miss P. Smith. Co-Chairmen are Mesdames A. Bilgor, J. Dubin, I. Segal and M. Sternbach.

Final plans were discussed for the paid-up membership and fifth anniversary party which will be held on Wednesday evening, Feb. 6 in the school building.

The program will start with a candle lighting ceremony, outlining highlights of the organization's progress. Tables of cards will be in play and there will be door prizes, table prizes and refreshments.

LADIES' AFFAIR WEDNESDAY

The annual paid-up membership tea and card party of the Ladies Hebrew Free Loan Association will be held Wednesday, at the Ladies Hebrew Union Aid Building, 191 Orms Street, at 1:30 P. M.

Special Door prizes and table prizes will be given. Refreshments will be served by Mesdames Jacob Bilsky and Fred Jurmann, chairmen, and the entire Board. Mrs. Hy Lipet is Membership chairman.

In the New Miriam Hospital there will be oxygen outlets in the wall beside each patient's bed. Oxygen will be supplied centrally from basement storage tanks.

Z. O. A., Hadassah Israel Bond Workers

Activity mounted to near-climax this week as scores of willing volunteers from the Zionist District of Providence and Providence Chapter of Hadassah got set for their big "Caravan" show next Monday evening, Jan. 21 at the R. I. School of Design auditorium. Headlining the "Here's Israel" entourage will be Shoshana Damari, beautiful, exotic, sultry-voiced songstress of Israeli folk songs. She has been a coast-to-coast hit in America, and has gotten top billings in night clubs and television. Her recordings are familiar to Jewish radio audiences.

Despite the stormy weather one recent night, Z.O.A. members devoting a lot of their time to insuring the success of the "Caravan" met to map plans at the home of M. Louis Abedon, 29 Cole Farm Court. Mr. Abedon is Israel Bond chairman for the District.

A large group of Providence Chapter of Hadassah members are participating in the joint Zionist drive to aid the sale of Israel Bonds. Meeting last Friday at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel, the following women completed their plans for the January 21 event at the R. I. School of Design Auditorium.

BOWLING

FINEMAN-TRINKLE

by Jack Jacobson

The lowly Cubs stopped the American League first place White Sox by taking 3 points. In so doing they also bowled a string of 583 which broke the previous high of 570. They were led by Jack Jacobson 315, Abe Lobel 312, Billy Edelman 305, Sam Shaver 303 and the heckling of Captain Sam Tapper.

"Ole Man River" Mort Klibanoff keeps rolling along; this time his 385 (which gives him a 115 average) was mainly responsible for the defeat which caused the Phils to relinquish first place in the National League to the Reds.

The A's lost all 4 points to the Reds as the latter posted good scores by Sam Miller 338, Mel Wasserman 318 and Justin Robinson 306. The Dodgers have hit their stride again and are now back in contention for first due to consistently even rolling by Charlie Steingold 331, Irv Schaeffer 314, George Lubner 311 and Stue Steingold 310.

Other good totals were Nate Gordon 339, Phil Shaulson 335, Max Cohen Jr. 329, Sam Feldman 327, Ernie Krasner 315, Max Runstein 323, Murray Gordon, Harry Shore and Al Resnick 321, Jerry Resnick 317, Harold Golden 308, and L. Resnick 305.

Good single strings were Lou Millen 121, Benton Goldblatt 119, Moe Goldman 116, Murray Siegal and George Feldman 113, Len Levin 110, Nate Schwartz, Sam Price and Speed Kessler 108, Marty Zawatsky, Murray Zuckerman, Irv Datz and Sid Brown 105.

CRANSTON MEN'S

by Phil Chopak

After two weeks of inactivity, the league was again "in business" for the stretch-half of the season. The lay-off didn't bother Joe Potemkin's Yanks who had no mercy on Al Levy's Giants as they established a new three string team total of 1815. Harold Warren was the chief villain, bunching strings of 134, 121, and 125 for the night's high of 380.

Moe Cofman and Henry Stampel helped the White Sox hold the once deadly Cubs to a split-series, Cofman netting 351, Stampel 311. Hy Wasserman's 341 was a big help to Charlie Strauss and the Dodgers, as they clubbed the Braves for 3 points. Moe Kessler, with 322, kept the Cards in the running as they split with the Pirates. Bernie Wexler, another "Murderers Row" member, rolled 318, Mike Miller 317, Doc Ferst-man 315, Sid Levy 314, and Ed Berman 312.

Norm Bomzer joined our Double Strike club as he rolled 113, Ira Davis 112, and Joe Potemkin 110, also gained the inner circle. Dan Kouffman rolled 117, Seymour Kriss and Joe Cohen 110, Monroe Somer 110, Wally Schwartz 109, Max Broomfield, Al Silverstein and Ben Mellion 107, Al Sydney 107, Joe Balter 106, Jerry Fish 105, Jim Abeshaus and Jack Dreyfus 104, Burt Litchman and Murray Potemkin 102, and Eric Kuntzler 100.

EMANUEL BOWLING

By Sid Green

Sherm Price led his Indians to a 4-0 sweep over the number two club, Athletics, rolling a neat 344. Jerry Tesler's 118 in the last string helped his captain. The Red Sox moved into second place by taking the Giants 4-0. Solmer again was the leading figure, his 330 clinching the points. Dave Ettine's Browns moved into a tie for third by taking a 3-1 win from the White Sox. Saul Faber's double strike in the last two boxes pulled this one out in the last string. Help came from Capt. Dave and Howie Cohen.

Reizen and Stallman battled it out as the Tigers hung a 4-0 shut-out on the Pirates and moved into contention. Both had 335, but Reizen had a better supporting gang. Myles Goldberg, 322, and Milt Price, 346, ganged up to give the Reds a split with the Dodgers after being down 56 pins after six boxes of the last string. Milt's triple and Myles' 140 single were high for the night.

Lefty Goralnick with a 132 single and 322 triple was overpowered. The Cards and Cubs also split, Henry Markoff leading the Cards with 322. The Braves and Yanks split.

Good singles included Nussenfeld 130, Al Chase 127, S. Price 125-124, M. Price 124-121, Curly Dick Chase 124, Reizen 124, Abe Press 124--122, Lou Chase 125, Leo Miller 122, Jerry Miller 121, Giantz 119, Markoff 117, and Davis 115.

by Louis Sacarovitz

Ben Swerling was high man with a 122 score. He had four spars in a row. It makes him second for high single behind Aaron Seigal. Arden Klar had 305 for high three. Other good singles were Bert Reffkin 105, Seigal 103, Millman 101 and Kotlen 99.

Team 2 lost three games to Team 4, while Team 1 won two out of three from Team 3. Team 1 now leads Team 2 by eight games.

BETH EL BOWLING

Joe Schwartz was the kingpin of last week's bowling as he smashed all existing league records for high three with a startling 427. The three strings were consistent with 155, 128 and 144. His outstanding total, aided by teammate Sumner Pomerantz's 331, helped boost the team into first place in the race for high team three as the team racked up 1619. The previous high team three was held by Bill Matzner's team with 1595.

Other high scores were Lou Feldman 350, Al Gordon 338, Allie Shatkin 337 and Murray Trinkle 335.

PROVIDENCE FRATERNAL BOWLING

by Ben Medwin

After last week's success, bottom team Justice bowled over top team Loyalty four games, for their first such loss this season. Capt. Chaiken with 335, Seltzer 322 and Delerson 305 helped Justice. Second place Unity took four over fourth place Liberty, and at the same time broke high team single and high team three with 658, 592, 639 for 1889. Capt. H. Wagner had 364, White 321, Lisker 315, Gladstone 297, Levins 283, and G. Labush a single string of 119. Security and Fraternity split.

A few other scores were B. Labush 336, Garrick 327, Goldenberg 318, Smith 314 and Brown 311.

Gertrude Smith, Esther Wasserman and Shirley White 95 each, Mickey Asher 93, Florence Cohen, Ida Bernstein, Hope Mellion, Sally Potemkin and Bev Sugarman 92, Elaine Stiegel 91 and Melba Kaplan 90.

The Green team is still leading the league, with the Blues now in sole possession of second place, and a three-way tie for third.

BETH ISRAEL BOWLING

By Evelyn L. Krasnoff

High singles were made by Mildred Millman 108, Frances Cohen 104, Betty Frye and Charlotte Mushnick 96, Anna Steinberg 93 with a spare on a spare. High threes included Mildred Millman 306, Frances Cohen 273, and Betty Frye 263. Pembroke won over Hunter 3-1, Wellesley took Radcliffe 4-0, and Vassar beat Smith 3-1.

At the end of the first half, Pembroke stands at the top of the list, with Wellesley climbing into second place after a close run with Smith.

RUSSIAN FAMILY CIRCLE

The Russian Family Circle held its second annual Chanukah party in the vestry of Sons of Zion Synagogue on Dec. 30. Officers for the coming year were installed by the outgoing president, Ira Kulman, and the installing officer, Raymond Cohen. Refreshments and entertainment were provided by the Social Committee. Members and guests were present from New York and Connecticut.

SYD COHEN:

The Legend of Marciano

It was boxing night at the Auditorium even though a hockey game was in progress. First of all, the Reds, after a fast start, played as if they had boxing gloves on their feet instead of skates. Second, the big fight in Boston was only one night off.

Up in the press box, between the first two periods, the Araujo-Saddler fracas was the big topic, and that was natural. But it was in the intermission between the second and third periods that the subject of this particular column came up.

Tony Petronella, boxing's walking encyclopedia and good will ambassador, as well as secretary of the State boxing commission and a vice-president of the National Boxing Association, listened to Howie Cohen's description of a steak he once saw Rocky Marciano put away—and that was all Tony needed. For the next ten minutes Tony regaled us with stories about the Rock—stories, he predicted, that some day will be considered legends.

Marciano Eats

Talk about Marciano's eating habits, and Petronella tells of the time he took Rocky into Al Schacht's restaurant in New York. Bill Corum was there, and Arthur Daley of the New York Times, and these writers asked the heavy-weight for an interview. Rocky was willing, but he also was hungry, so Schacht motioned to a waiter, and presently the Brockton Bomber was vigorously masticating a gigantic steak, completely buried in a mountain of potatoes, dripping with gravy and surrounded with the fixings.

In good time—excellent time, in fact—the platter was clean. A normal man should have sat back, licked his chops, opened his coat and got to the business at hand. But Rocky Marciano is not a normal man—not where eating is concerned. He whispered to Tony that he was still hungry, but ashamed to ask for second helpings.

Tony solved the problem. He talked to the waiter, and pretty soon along came five lamb chops—but what chops! Each was as big as a steak, and each was a meal in itself. These chops, big as they were, also were smothered and all but invisible beneath a mountain of potatoes and the usual trimmings.

Rocky polished off the entire plate!

All this and a quart and a half of milk, too! Schacht's place does not cater to a milk-drinking crowd—so when Rocky asked for milk, they had to send someone next door to fill the order.

And I forgot to ask what he had for dessert.

This Is Normal?

A normal breakfast for Marciano, says Tony, starts off with ten slices of toast, four eggs and more than a pint of juice.

He is very mild-mannered, not at all swell-headed, and no dope. He reads good books, can hold a good conversation. He neither drinks nor smokes, and is strictly a one-woman man.

Mild mannered or no, he did once take on four British trouble-makers in an English pub. Four against one, and it wasn't a fair fight. Rocky reached out a few times with both massive fists, and the fight was over.

Incidentally, it was Petronella who suggested that the original family name be shortened. It was too long and awkward for sports writers and composers, Tony said. Rocky agreed, asked for suggestions, and accepted Tony's recommendation of Marciano.

A Fast Trip to Providence

That reminded me of the story told by Bert and Erwin Summer of Richards Clothes. It seems Marciano came in for a special suit that he wanted to wear that very night. Rocky left his home town of Brockton by doing some fast roadwork. Several miles out of town, he hitched a ride for a few miles, then got out and ran some more, finally arriving in time for his fitting on Mathewson Street.

That accomplished, Rocky headed for home the same way—running for several miles, riding a while, then running some more.

Tony said that's right. Rocky is always conditioning himself. He says he doesn't ever break his

Don't forget the annual awards dinner sponsored by Words Unlimited, sportswriters and sportscasters association, Thursday, Jan. 24 at Johnson's Grille. The greats of the sports world will be there—to name a few, Chet Nichols, Max Surkont, Clem Labine, all the Boston Braves, three American League umpires (Bill Summers, Hank Soar and Jim Duffy) and many more, including a nationally prominent guest speaker. Tickets available at the door or through this column.

training routine because he is afraid he might get in the habit of it.

There is the time he accepted an invitation to a party. He got there around 8 o'clock, and the guests started arriving quite a bit later than that. At a quarter to ten Rocky ambled over to his host and said goodnight. He was tired, and wanted to get to bed.

"But Rocky," protested the host, "The party hasn't even started yet. Why, all the guests aren't even here."

Marciano relented, said he would stay until 10:15. And when the half hour had gone, so had Rocky.

Signed by Cubs

Originally, Rocky was a baseball player. While at Brockton High School, he won All-State honors as a catcher (also as a center on the football team) and was signed to a professional contract by the Chicago Cubs. After one season in the minors he hurt his shoulder and had to quit the game. It turned out to be a blessing in disguise for Rocky, and a life-saver for the boxing game.

The tale that really surprised and touched me was the one about Rocky's treatment of Carmine Vingo, the heavyweight whom he nearly killed in the ring a few years back. Vingo still hasn't fully recovered from the effects of his beating and is in a fairly bad way financially.

Call Him Champ

Never did a conqueror show more consideration towards an opponent. Up to and including the recent Louis fight, Marciano had cut in Vingo on every one of his purses, to the tune of ten percent. That's what I said—ten percent of Rocky's take on every bout has been given outright to the unfortunate Vingo, who is a close friend of Rocky's and can usually be found in the Marciano dressing room at every fight.

And when Vingo took a bride, he received $2,000 as a wedding gift from Marciano!

After hearing that one, I am ready to start calling Rocky the "Champ" even before he wins the title, and regardless of whether he ever does.

dence Pulverizer get out of character. Tony Petronella says that when Marciano is champion these stories will become legends, and legends they should be, even now.

One of the favorite legends, no doubt, will concern this period following the Louis fight, when Rocky has been pocketing a bundle of cabbage for refereeing fights and wrestling matches and making various personal appearances.

The boys probably will always get a chuckle when they think of this clean-living boy—truly an example to the kids of America, a great fighter with muscles of solid iron—accepting a vaudeville engagement to skip the rope and similar stuff on the stage of that most sedate emporium . . . that theater of national and perhaps international renown . . . that museum of fine art, that home of physical culture . . . Boston's Old Howard!

Stow away our hearty meals . . . watch big-time shows, dance to two fine orchestras. Or if you're in the mood for lassitude, just relax and let the world go by; you'll catch up to it later in fine fettle.
