To Honor Zimmerman at Testimonial

Coleman B. Zimmerman, Minority Floor Leader of the R. I. House of Representatives, and president of Roger Williams Lodge, B'nai B'rith, will be honored at a testimonial dinner-dance, sponsored by the Lodge, on Sunday, March 29 at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel.

Rabbi Arthur J. Lelyveld, national director of the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation, will be guest speaker at the affair, which will start with a reception at 6 P. M. Dinner will be served in the ballroom at 6:30.

Zimmerman, an attorney, has served in the House continuously since 1946. In 1951 he was appointed Deputy Minority Floor Leader. He served for three years as a vice-president of Roger Williams Lodge prior to his election as president. He formerly was president of Temple Beth-Israel and is a member of the board of directors of the Jewish Community Center.

Reservations for the testimonial may be made with Joseph K. Levy, treasurer.

Joseph M. Finkle is chairman of the arrangements committee, and is assisted by Jacob J. Alprin, Abraham Belliove, Bertram L. Bernhardt, Morris H. Bromberg, Herman M. Feinstein, Hyman Fishbein, George M. Goldsmith, Abraham E. Goldstein, Charles G. Greenstein, Joseph K. Levy, Thomas Pearlman, Sidney L. Rabinowitz, Bernard Roseman and David Yanover.

Opposes Arming Arabs At Israel's Expense

LONDON—Prime Minister Winston Churchill assured the House of Commons that Britain would be careful in supplying jet planes to the Middle East not to alter "appreciably" the balance between Israel and the Arab states. The statement was cheered.

The Prime Minister, who said that the number of jets to be supplied the Middle East states was small, reviewed the situation between the Arab states and Israel and pointed out that the four-year-old war is in a state of precarious truce—not peace. Britain must therefore be "very careful" not to alter the balance of power, he said.

"Here's Israel" Show Tomorrow

The Jewish Community Center and the Zionist District of Providence will present "Here's Israel—1953 Edition," an American-Israeli cultural and entertainment package show, tomorrow at 8 P. M. at the Center.

The show will feature Ada Pincuk, youthful Israeli-born concert pianist; Ralph J. Kaplan, Israeli lecturer, world traveler, news analyst and an expert on Israel and Middle East affairs, and Norman Atkins, young ex-GI, whose baritone voice has led to his recognition as one of the nation's leading singers.

Denies Influence In Ending Broadcasts

WASHINGTON—Charges that the Hebrew-language broadcasts of the Voice of America beamed to Israel had been ordered discontinued as a result of Communist influence in the government agency, drew a slashing rebuttal here.

The charges had been made before the Senate sub-committee, headed by Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, by Gerald Drogher, head of the Middle East services of the VOA, and Dr. Sidney Glazer, head of the Hebrew desk. They protested that the order to discontinue the Hebrew programs had come just at a time when, they said, anti-Communist propaganda could have been most effective in Israel as a result of the Prague trials and kindred developments.

In the course of his televised testimony, Dr. Glazer told the senatorial committee that the Communist propaganda line exploited the "equation"—McCarthyism equals Fascism equals anti-Semitism.

Dr. Berger Heads Israel Bonds Redemption Month

Dr. Ilie Berger was named chairman of "Israel Redemption Month," a period of intensive Israel Bond cash collections on commitments, beginning today and ending April 20.

Dr. Berger accepted the post on his return from a Florida vacation last weekend and following a telephone call from Henry Morgenthau Jr., former U. S. Secretary of the Treasury and now chairman of the Board of Governors for Israel Bonds, who urged that Dr. Berger conduct "an intensive, unceasing campaign for the conversion of Bond commitments into cash."

As the climax of Israel Redemption Month, April 20, which will mark the fifth anniversary of the establishment of the State of Israel, is to be observed with special celebrations in every section of the country.

Characterizing the "prompt collection of all outstanding Israel Bond subscriptions in the Providence area as a primary obligation of the Jewish community," Dr. Berger sought the co-operation of signers of commitment cards to make good on this pledge to purchase an Israel Bond, in order to make possible the presentation of large sums of cash from Israel Bonds as the "finest birthday gift that may be sent to the State of Israel."

Bond Meeting Set For Next Thursday

Arrangements are fast nearing completion for the visit to Providence of Dr. Dov Joseph, Israel's Minister of State, on Thursday evening, March 26, when he will be the guest of honor at a dinner-reception sponsored by the State of Israel Bonds of Rhode Island, at the Narragansett Hotel.

Gov. Dennis J. Roberts, and other civic dignitaries have already signified their intention of joining the Providence community in paying tribute to the Israeli Minister, who is coming to this city to present an intimate, frank account of economic progress being made in Israel and also to offer his analysis of Communist attacks in the Iron Curtain countries against the Jewish people.

A private reception for the Israel dignitary is being planned by Dr. Ilie Berger, who has been named chairman of "Israel Redemption Month," immediately preceding the dinner at the Narragansett Hotel. It is expected that Dr. Joseph will present to this group his "inside story" of events that took place in Jerusalem during the War for Independence, at which time he was that city's Military Governor.

Dr. Joseph has been a member of the Cabinet of Israel since its inception as a State in 1948 and is a leading authority on Israel's program of economic development.

In a telephone conversation with Dr. Berger, Dr. Joseph this week outlined the purpose of his visit to Providence.

"In view of recent world developments, the economic consolidation of Israel becomes a more urgent necessity than ever before. I can tell you that as a result of some $160,000,000 received from Bond sales, our new economic policies are very successfully reducing inflation. They have brought about some dislocations, such as a temporary increase in unemployment. But the basic purpose of establishing our economic structure on sound foundations is gradually coming into sight.

"We are now passing through a transition period," continued Dr. Joseph, "where dollar investments represent the key to the agricultural expansion and industrial progress that is within our grasp. They are indispensable to the extensive development work which must be carried out as expeditiously as possible.

"Already the funds which Americans have invested in Israel Bonds have flowed into every important vein of our economy. This is true of the large irrigation projects that are now being carried out as well as of the general expansion of basic industries and the development of electric power, railroads and harbors.

Fight on Bias Thwarts Reds

NEW YORK—Elimination of religious, racial and other forms of bias in the employment, amusement, resort and related fields was cited by the State Commission Against Discrimination today as a vital weapon in the fight against domestic and international communism.

The state's anti-bias law, once regarded as "an enlightened experiment," is now considered essential for ending discriminatory practices, the commission said in its annual report to Gov. Dewey.

Admission of a Negro into a major railroad union and the opening of other occupations and industries to members of once-barred nationality or religious groups were cited by the commission as the beginning of "employment pattern changes that should pervade all segments of our economy."

SCAD held that employment opportunities for minority groups

Detroit to Probe Kosher Meat Prices

DETROIT—An investigation into the retail price of kosher meat in this city has been launched by the internal relations committee of the Jewish Community Council following widespread complaints that kosher butchers had failed to reduce prices in line with recent reductions in wholesale prices.

The Detroit Retail Butchers Association took sharp issue with the council, which had charged that kosher meat prices were too high. The butchers asserted that they had cut prices 15 percent and that their special sale prices were far below the OPS ceilings.

The investigating group declared that "the Jewish community is entitled to know the facts if we find kosher meat prices are out of line with recent wholesale price reductions."

Shinders Seek To Adopt Child In "Baby Sale"

TORONTO—The lawyer for a childless Brooklyn couple who failed in a recent attempt to take a baby out of Canada said he had been instructed to seek adoption papers for the infant.

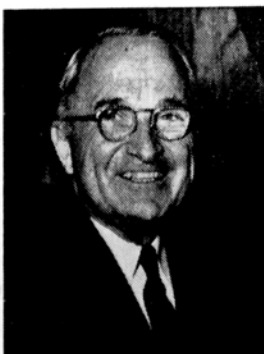

The attorney, Louis Herman, said he would accompany Mr. and Mrs. Jack Shinder to the Children's Aid Society. The society took control of the baby after the Shinders were stopped by Immigration agents Feb. 25 on their way home to Brooklyn with the infant.

The child's 15-year-old unmarried mother yesterday asked the Hospital for Sick Children to turn the infant over to her. The child is being cared for at the hospital, although it is not sick.

Superintendent Joseph Bower refused the request.

"I felt that the hospital should not take the responsibility and advised Mr. Shinder and the young mother to consult the Children's Aid Society," he said.

R. I. to Join National Mobilization For Freedom at Telephone Rally

Rhode Island will join with Jewish communities throughout the country on Sunday afternoon, March 29, as part of an audience numbering millions who will be listening to the "National Mobilization for Freedom"—a unique coast-to-coast telephone rally that will point up American Jewish concern for the victims of Soviet oppression.

The local "Mobilization"—sponsored by the R. I. Zionist Emergency Council in cooperation with the General Jewish Committee of Providence and numerous other groups—will be held at the Narragansett Hotel in Providence at 2 P. M.

The nationwide telephone hook-up will enable Rhode Islanders to hear a host of distinguished speakers addressing a huge rally in New York City. Their messages will be simultaneously relayed to Providence and hundreds of other communities in every section of the nation.

Frank Licht, chairman of the "Mobilization" arrangements here, emphasized this week that "it will be far more than a mere protest. Rather, it will be a firm demonstration of American Jewry's resolve to act on behalf of all Jews threatened by oppression in Eastern Europe. And it will be an inspiring message of hope to the courageous people of Israel who have been among the chief targets of the Soviet assault on freedom."

Edward M. M. Warburg, general chairman of the United Jewish Appeal, and Abba S. Eban, Israel's Ambassador to the United States, will be among the international personalities whose voices will be heard on March 29 in answer to the tyranny overseas. Brief comments by local speakers will precede the 2 P. M. telephonic hook-up.

Participation of Rhode Island Jewry in the "Freedom Mobilization" was unanimously voted at a conference held last Sunday under the sponsorship of the R. I. Zionist Council. Jewish organizations throughout the state will be urged to send delegations. In addition, the general public is invited to attend. There will be no admission charge or solicitation of funds.

Assisting Licht in planning a hoped-for record attendance at the local "Mobilization" are the following committee members:

M. Louis Abedon, Dr. Ilie Berger, Max Berman, Alter Boyman, Mrs. Lewis Blumenthal, Mrs. Rose Gerber, Archibald Silverman, Mrs. Archibald Silverman, Sherwin Kapstein, Mrs. Morris Lecht, Rabbi George B. Schwartz, Elliot Slack, William D. Strong, Nathan Temkin, Harold Tregar and Joseph W. Ress.

MODEL SEDER

A model Passover Seder demonstration will be conducted at Sons of Abraham Synagogue by Rabbi Abraham Chill Monday at 8:30 P. M. The model Seder is sponsored by the Men's Club of the Congregation. Members and their ladies are invited to attend.

PASSOVER LAWS EXPLAINED

The Sisterhood and Mothers Association of Congregation Beth-David will hear Rabbi George B. Schwartz in a talk entitled "Passover—Its Laws and Customs" Monday at 8 P. M. at the synagogue.

HADASSAH BOARD MEETING

The board of the Providence Chapter of Hadassah will meet Tuesday, March 24 at 1:30 P. M. at the Jewish Community Center. Plans will be discussed for the party for the sewing groups.

Name Committee For Hebrew Circle

Under the chairmanship of Alter Boyman, a group of twenty Hebrew speaking members of the community met in the Conference Room of the General Jewish Committee and decided to organize a permanent Hebrew Circle. Those having a Hebrew background who are not fluent in speaking the language will be able to recapture control of it by participating in sessions conducted entirely in Hebrew.

A committee consisting of Rabbi Akiva Egozi, Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Klein, Rabbis Morris Schussheim and Nathan N. Rosen, Mesdames George B. Schwartz, Joshua Bell, and Fanya Gross is considering plans for future activities. Rabbi George Ende of the Bureau of Jewish Education will act as secretary.

The committee is planning a Melaveh Malkah for all members, at the Providence Hebrew Day School, 151 Waterman Street, Saturday evening, April 11 at 8 P. M. The program includes a lecture on the Renewal of the Sanhedrin in Israel, community singing, and a discussion in Hebrew. A New Life

By JENNIE GOLDBERG
93 Years Old

When my husband died eight years ago, leaving me a childless widow, I thought the world had come to an end. For 60 years we had led a very happy life. Arriving in Providence in 1894, we had found only about fifty Jewish families in town and the East Side was not built up at all. My husband and I used to take long walks up to what is now Blackstone Boulevard, which was then wooded wasteland.

We owned and operated a crockery store on North Main Street in the section now known as Constitution Hill. We dealt in china-ware, kitchen utensils, antiques, silverware, and household goods. Business was particularly brisk around Pesach. Jewish people from all over the city used to come to my store and we established a good reputation.

As my husband grew older and failed in health, we were forced to give up our business and we took a small tenement on Pratt Street, where we lived until he died in 1944. After his death I felt very lonesome and was afraid to live alone. Besides, my hearing was bad and I couldn't hear when people knocked at my door.

Reluctantly, I applied for admission to the Home for the Aged in December of 1944 and in March 1945, about eight years ago, I entered the Home. I arrived just in time for the first Seder and when I saw how everything was so beautifully arranged and conducted, I felt like being in seventh heaven, and from that time on I have spent many happy hours in the Home. It seems to me as if I acquired a new lease on life.

The people in the Home have been so wonderful to me, everybody, including the nurses and the doctors, particularly Mr. and Mrs. Alexander. They saw to it, when I was sick, that I got medical attention and twice I was admitted to the Rhode Island Hospital, where I underwent two serious operations. I never thought that I would come out alive but thanks to the wonderful care which I received and the skill of Dr. Eske Windsberg and Dr. Wilfred Carney, I came through with flying colors. I am still getting some treatments at the hospital. (About a year ago the Home provided me with a new hearing aid and I can now listen to the radio and converse with people like any other person with normal hearing.

The Home and the grounds are so beautiful and I am so happy here that I hate to leave all this, and I am praying to God that he grant me a few more years. I am grateful to all the women and men who take an interest in the Home and who now are working to enlarge the Home to make it possible for people like me to "gain a new life."

SYD COHEN:

Shifting the Big Leagues

There is great gnashing of teeth in the baseball world this week, and you hardly know who to feel most sorry for. There is wailing in Boston, whose historic Braves are so close to leaving forever. There is great lament in St. Louis, where the poor Browns barely maintained their foothold this week.

Take the case of Milwaukee, and of Baltimore. Both these cities confidently expected to don the robes of major leaguers for the coming season. They are terribly let down. Pity poor Hartford, which stood at the head of the line for the Baltimore franchise, and woe to Toledo, which would have replaced Milwaukee in the American Association.

Spare a tear for Providence, R. I., which again drew honorable mention as a site for minor league ball.

Honestly, for whom do you feel the most, and who is most deserving of sympathy?

Well, I take the unpopular side. I feel worst for the filthy millionaire capitalists, the club owners of the major leagues.

Depending on which source you read the most or believe the most, all owners are greedy operators, who are interested only in making a quick buck and maltreating the players, the fans, the public. I have had many an argument on this score. I maintain the owners have been one of baseball's greatest strong points, not the weak link. I say they have been a boon to baseball.

And now that a few of them—regardless of who they may be—have decided they have had enough, have decided to move to more fertile pastures, I say good luck to them, and it's about time.

That does not mean, of course, that these radical moves should be made so abruptly. A year of planning, of public announcement, would be better and the two leagues ought to get together—the American taking in Milwaukee, the National, Baltimore. That would preserve the present East-West alignment, and prevent Baltimore and Washington from killing each other off as rivals for the fans' patronage when both clubs are home at the same time.

If Milwaukee and Baltimore and other cities don't break into the major leagues this year or next, they certainly will in the near future, and nothing can stop them; for they are growing, and some of the present two-team cities are stagnating. The mournful yelpings of Boston's mayor and the governor of the Commonwealth and the State Legislature and the City Council, and the angry sports writers, will not change the destiny of the baseball map. Simply stated, it is time for a change.

Why should Boston have two major league teams? The average crowd at last year's Braves games was about 4,000. That kind of a crowd at a Providence hockey game is only just decent—nothing to rave about. For a major league team it is catastrophic. And the way baseball and hockey seats are priced, LOU PIERI HAS MORE INCOME FROM A CROWD OF FOUR THOUSAND AT THE AUDITORIUM THAN LOU PERINI DOES FROM A SIMILAR CROWD AT BRAVES FIELD!

During the time the Braves and Red Sox home games were broadcast over the same station by the same announcer, with the other team out of the public eye while it was away, the Braves had a fair hold on public affection. Out of necessity, as many persons heard the Braves play ball during the season as listened to the Red Sox.

But then, two years ago, the Red Sox decided to send their own broadcasting team all over the league, at home and away. And since New England is an American League hotbed, what with the Red Sox and the Yankees, the poor Braves had no chance. They started to die that next season. Last year hardly anyone listened to them, fewer saw them.

The Braves are through in Boston, whether you like it or not. Boston and surrounding area is American League, and go do something about it. The team had a bad year in the field in 1952, and even the mosquitoes found it hardly worth the effort to show up and add to the fans' annoyance.

Yet Chicago's Cubs have had bad years recently—and with no night ball, either—and the Cubs have prospered financially, with an annual attendance of around a million.

Detroit finished 'in the cellar last year for the first time. The fans hated to see the team broken up—but the Tigers still drew well, and the loss, if any, was not great. The fans were loyal.

In Boston it is different. Boston, despite its traditions, is not the best of sports towns. The Braves drew none too well when they won the pennant five years ago. They will not draw well this year, with an excellent young team on deck. The fans will flock to see, or listen to, the Red Sox, and complain about the poor Braves.

Why should this franchise be kept in Boston, outside of the sentimentality attached, outside of the fact that the team has been in the National League since Paul Revere woke up the neighbors?

Where were the mayor and the governor and the Legislature and the Council and the sports writers last year when the Braves were not drawing flies? Did they jump to be of assistance, and to help the club remain a Boston institution? Don't be silly! Did they plug the team, and try to urge the fans to go to see them? Of course not.

Lou Perini may have made mistakes, all right, but don't blame it on him. Look at how Tom Yawkey and Joe Cronin have been outfoxed consistently in the past 20 years. Yet the fans, swearing at Cronin and bemoaning the fate that sees their team always on the short and haunting end of every deal, still visit Fenway in droves.

Boston, alas, is a Red Sox town. The Braves will not be missed, and they should go where they can be appreciated. They are a fine bunch, too. Perini has a good organization, and a popular one. The sooner, the better, as far as the Braves' tieup with Milwaukee is concerned—and Godspeed!

Add the yolk to the Matzo Meal mixture which has cooled while beating egg white. Stir well. Fold in the beaten egg white and let stand 15 minutes. Form the mixture into small balls, 12 knaidlach, and drop them into salted gently boiling water. Cover after dropping in the last ball and cook 10 to 12 minutes. ISRAEL INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY

ISRAEL INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY (The Technion) founded forty years ago in Haifa, was made possible by funds contributed by the American philanthropist Jacob Schiff and others. It is the oldest academic institution in Israel.

ISRAEL INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY is the only technical school of university status in Israel. It has been called the M. I. T. of the Middle East by Dr. James R. Killian, President of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

ISRAEL INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY consists of an Engineering College with all departments of engineering and architecture—Civil, Chemical, Mechanical, Electrical, Aeronautical, Hydrotechnical, Transport Engineering, and Economics and Industrial Management. It also includes a Graduate School, a Technical High school, and a Nautical School for Israel's Navy and Merchant Marine. It has the largest technical library in the Near and Middle East.

ISRAEL INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY student body—Jews, Arabs and Christians—consists of men and women who come from 32 countries. The President of the Institute is Major General Yaacov Dori, first Chief of Staff of the Army of Israel. The Vice President and academic head is Dr. Sydney Goldstein, world-famous British Aerodynamicist.

ISRAEL INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY, built forty years ago to accommodate a maximum of 300 students, now has an enrollment of 1800 and is forced to turn away hundreds annually. Plans are now under way for the building of the new ISRAEL INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY on a 250-acre site located nine miles outside of Haifa. The stability of a State depends upon its technological and industrial resources. Therefore, the American community, through the American Technion Society, is being called upon to participate in this vital program which will help speed up the mechanization and industrialization of the new State, by providing it with adequate, well-trained engineers and technicians.

Congressional Immunity

For many years members of both Houses have been demanding the heads of government bureaucrats allegedly guilty of incompetence, confusion or stupidity. Now Rep. Roosevelt (D-Lib.) has revived the thought that Congress ought to apply some critical standards to its own members.

He has specifically asked the House to fire Rep. Velde (R-Ill.) from his post as chairman of the House Un-American Activities committee in the light of two breath-taking boners staged in record time. The first was Velde's attempt to crucify Mrs. Agnes Meyer for what turned out to be words spoken by an entirely different woman. The second was his wild proposal for an investigation of the country's churches—a move which he hastily abandoned after a nation-wide outcry.

These two quick catastrophes ought to indicate that Velde is an acute victim of that ancient Potomac ailment known as foot-in-mouth disease. But the chances are that Roosevelt's resolution will be swiftly interred, possibly in a pigeonhole near the one where the Senate buried its own devastating report on Joe McCarthy's finances. Rep. Roosevelt will probably be accused of violating the club rules by even mentioning Velde's vagaries in a public place.

"More Than Bricks and Mortar"

by Alexander Rumpler, Building Committee Chairman,
R. I. Jewish Home for the Aged

Before me, on my desk, is a handsomely executed drawing. It is an artist's conception of the proposed four-story, 60-bed addition to the Jewish Home for the Aged on Hillside Avenue.

In flowing lines, it traces on paper what can become a beautiful reality in terms of bricks and mortar, lumber and metal—if Rhode Island Jewry rallies behind the Home's Expansion Building Fund Campaign.

Obviously, planning the physical characteristics of such a major structure was not an easy task. Years of research, numerous visits to comparable Homes in other communities, countless meetings, consultations with experts in every field of building construction and design—all this is in the background of the drawing before me, although the artist has penned in only trees and landscaping.

But, always in the committee's collective mind, was the realization that the addition must be sufficiently flexible to meet the needs of the future, as well as those of the present.

Thus, "flexibility" was a significant factor in all our deliberations. It will be found, for example, in the planning of the bedrooms. Most of them will be single units, with adjoining bathroom. Some rooms, however, will have removable partitions so that they can be converted into double rooms at a moment's notice.

In this way, we recognized the desire of most residents for privacy—as well as those who like to share their quarters with others.

Future expansion of the kitchen and dining rooms is incorporated into the design. These units are planned so that they can accommodate 250 people, if need be, at any given time. Furthermore, an auditorium, with a capacity of almost 300, will be next to the dining room. It has been designed so that both these latter two units can be converted into one large room, when necessary.

The dining room itself will lead out to a beautiful patio and the grounds of the Home.

Three handsome lounges will connect the three floors of the present building to the new structure. Each will be glass-enclosed to provide residents and their guests with a maximum of sunshine and light, and adequate space for comfort and relaxation.

The need for additional infirmary facilities was also met by the committee. Two floors of the new wing are designed so that they can be used either for the sick or well. In addition, there will be two separate three-bed infirmary rooms.

A main entrance and elevator are among other features of the proposed addition. And the new dining room it will contain will permit the present one to be converted into an occupational therapy center—a facility badly needed now.

This, then, is the type of far-sighted planning that is such an integral—although unseen—part of the drawing before me.

We have tried to design a structure that meets not only today's needs—but also those that will inevitably arise in the future. We have tried to provide not just food and shelter, but also those health, recreational and social facilities that make up a full life. We have planned for both sexes, for both the sick and the well, for those who can afford to pay and for those who cannot.

In short, we have planned for the needs of our parents and relatives now and in the future decade—and possibly for our own needs two or three decades from now!

"One Man's Opinion"

BY BERYL SEGAL

A Teacher Passes

All of us have passed a goodly portion of our lives with teachers. We had teachers in the lower grades, in high school and in college. We had teachers in special skills and arts. Some of those teachers we remember with fondness, others we can hardly recall by name. A few have given direction and purpose to our lives, and we think of them with gratitude.

But all these teachers have come into our lives by sheer accident. Through an assignment in the principal's office, through a chance schedule of subjects and hours, we happened to walk into this or that teacher's room. We had no choice at all. We could have easily missed them. But then we have teachers who come into our lives when our school days are over. These teachers we choose by our own free will. We do not drift under their influence by accident or by assignment. Of such teachers Jews of old spoke as Masters, Rabbis, Guides, and Lights of our eyes.

These teachers are not instructors in special subjects, nor do they train us in skills. Rather do they inspire us and open for us the world of ideas and aspirations. Of them it is said in the writings of our fathers that their pupils sit at their feet, and drink of their refreshing waters, and are warmed by the light that radiates from their great souls.

We must not necessarily know these teachers face to face. We may follow them and call them Teacher through the works of art they created, the book they write, the ideas they nurture, and the lives they live. They are invisible teachers. Their word reaches across the barriers of oceans, and continents, and of language, and of ages.

Such a teacher, master, and inspiration to hundreds of thousands of Jews the world over, and to many in our own city, was Hayim Greenberg, who died in New York last Saturday.

The day the news of his death was printed in large black type on the front pages of the Yiddish and Hebrew newspapers was a day of sadness and mourning to all who knew Hayim Greenberg through his spoken and printed words in Yiddish, Hebrew, and in English. One Yiddish daily wrote in the leading editorial of that day:

"Hayim Greenberg, one of the most influential, most creative, and finest Jewish personality of our generation is no longer with us."

The news of the passing of Hayim Greenberg took us back, my wife and myself, to the days when we—teen-agers in a little town on the Ukraine—came under the spell of this great personality.

From Kiev, the capitol city and the cultural center of the Ukraine, came tidings of a new name, a new idea, a new word. The new name was that of Hayim Greenberg, a young man who lectures on Philosophy and Greek literature at the Kiev Academy. Unlike so many Jewish intellectuals of his day Hayim Greenberg did not turn his back to his people, but was enriching Jewish thinking.

The new word was Zeire Zion, Youth of Zion, a party which Hayim Greenberg was forming and whose ideas he was formulating. Youth, high school students, college men and women, in particular—they flocked to him and to this party.

One of them, a student in the blue uniform and the shining golden insignia of the Academy, brought the new name and the new word to us, and won the hearts of all who were young and thirsty for new ideas.

And the New Idea? It was new then, startlingly new, and it had the magic of spring for us. As we understood it then, Hayim Greenberg and his Zeire Zion called for a double return. A return to the land of our fathers, and a return to the ethics of our fathers.

What is the land of our fathers? That we all knew; but we also knew that this land was under the rule of Sultans and Kings, and not until they will it, will it be ours once again.

Zeire Zion, on the other hand, told us not to depend on the favors of kings and diplomats. Go up, they argued, settle the land, dry up its swamps, renew its waste lands as in the days of old, and the land is ours. Return to the land like children returning to the home of their fathers. Children do not wait for invitations, and do not ask permission, to come home.

The other return was just as important. We have strayed far from the moral teachings and the ethical conducts of our fathers, thundered the speakers for Zeire Zion, in the name of Hayim Greenberg. We will not be a normal people as long as we drink from foreign springs and feed in foreign pastures.

The moral guide for the good life, and the ethical yardstick for the just life is all to be found in the writings of our teachers, scholars, and guides. They are clearly written in the words of the ancient prophets, in the writings of the medieval philosophers, and on the pages of the modern poets, essayists, and scholars.

I can still hear them now, the inspired debaters of the Zeire Zion, in their student uniforms, quoting the prophet Micha, of ancient Israel, the poet Reb Yehudah Halevi, of medieval Spain, the scholar Achad Haham of Odessa, and Hayim Greenberg of Kiev.

Wars came. Revolutions came. Lives were lost. Lives were uprooted. After wanderings in many lands, Hayim Greenberg came to America in 1924. Since then, until the last day of his life, he continued to speak, to write, and to spread these two essential ideas: the political, and the spiritual rebirth of a people.

But of his many-sided activities in America, as leader of Labor Zionism, as editor of journals, as lecturer, and as advisor to the government of Israel, many volumes will be written. Much will also be written of his pure spirit, of his ethical life, of the high standards of conduct he set for himself.

I think that the measure of the man Hayim Greenberg is well indicated in his will, which he wrote shortly before his death. In it he asks in part:

"I hope that there will be no speeches at my funeral. Just a simple religious ceremony is sufficient. Let them read or chant one or two Psalms (Psalms 23, 32, 103) and a chapter from the Book of Job (Chapter 28).

"There must be some men and women whom I caused sorrow, of them I beg forgiveness. I did not do it on purpose. If I sinned against people it was not because of love for evil, but because of human weakness."

Thus closes an era. A name that appeared on the horizons of Jewish youth in Russia and the Ukraine like a shining star, has drifted into eternity. An idea that came to us some thirty-five years ago like a breath of Springtime, has ripened and brought forth fruit, and is now become history.

To those of us who came under his spell when we were young and eager and aspiring, the name of Hayim Greenberg will always remain a legend, a magic word from far-away lands.

BROADWAY TALES

Some Alibi

Comedian Henny Youngman, whose brother has just gotten a job as a life guard in a car-washing establishment, was standing at Broadway and 42d Street, when he suddenly felt a hand in his pocket.

He quickly grabbed it and snarled at its owner, "What's the idea?"

"Oh, I was looking for a match," was the reply.

"Why didn't you ask for it?", Henny demanded.

"Because," the goniff brazenly explained, "I never talk to strangers."

The 40 Thieves Were Lucky

George Jessel, reminiscing to a friend on a recent afternoon, noted, "Y'know, I used to be a boy on the East Side." "Izzatto?", the friend quipped. "What were you on the West Side?" "The greatest and most sought-after young basketball star in the country today is Lenny Rosenbluth, formerly of James Monroe High School, in New York. He's now at Stanton Military Academy in Virginia, where he's preparing for the University of North Carolina. He scored 62 points in a game the other night. Thirty colleges sought him..." Did you know that the first Jewish Chaplain to serve in the United States Army was Rabbi Jacob Frankel, of Philadelphia in 1862? ... Writer Erwin Savelson's stirring talk at the Riverside Plaza Hotel, on "Israel's Struggle" and "The Current Wave of Anti-Semitism Behind the Iron Curtain," elicited a tremendous amount of interest in Jewish circles... A band of Arabs from Egypt, attempting to steal pipes from Jewish settlers in Israel, were sent reeling back over the border, with heavy losses, the other day. Ali Baba and the 40 Thieves never had it as tough as their modern counterparts—there was no Israel then... Sign in an efficiency expert's office on West 59th Street—"The improbable we do at once—the impossible takes a little longer."

LEVY FAMILY CIRCLE

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel J. Levy of Sumter Street entertained at their home recently at a dinner-meeting of the Levy Family Circle. Plans for a banquet and picnic were discussed. Prizes were won by Miss Lillian Levy and William Hirsch. Movies were shown by Benjamin Ferdman. Mr. and Mrs. Barrow Zisserson of Providence were guests.

Club Leaders Needed at JCC

Young people of this community are responding to club organizations in increasing numbers, according to Mrs. Leo Borenstein, chairman of the Children's Activities Committee of the Jewish Community Center, and Miss Deirdre Meadow, children's activities director.

Mrs. Borenstein added that club development is presently handicapped because of a lack of adult club leaders. "There is a special leadership need for a club leader for a group of 11-year-old girls who meet Friday afternoons," the chairman announced. Anyone interested in working with these youngsters is asked to contact Miss Meadow at the Center.

CHANGE DEDICATION DATE

The date for dedication ceremonies of the Cranston Jewish Center has been changed to May 10, Dr. Joseph Jagolinzer, chairman, announced this week. The previous date, May 17, was found to conflict with other scheduled events.

HOW LONG CAN I WAIT ?

It is hard to realize that I am old. Life was good to me and I was not too aware of the passage of time, but the passing years have taken their toll. I now know I can no longer care for myself—I no longer can live alone. My only child—my son—lives far away and can only help by sending me money. I thought when I applied to be admitted to the Home for the Aged that there would be no difficulty. However, I was told there is, at present, no room for me. I am on the waiting list—but How Long Can I Wait?

There are now 35 people on the waiting list of the Rhode Island Jewish Home for the Aged. The Home is now conducting a campaign for funds to enable it to enlarge its building. This new addition will accommodate 60 more persons. The old people of our community ask—"how long?" You can tell these people "soon" with your generous support and contributions to the building fund campaign.
