Name Committee for Tribute Dinner for Judge Frank Licht

Invitations have been mailed out and early returns indicate an overflow attendance for the tribute dinner in honor of Frank Licht, associate justice of Rhode Island Superior Court, Sunday night, April 15, at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel.

Benjamin Brier, who has worked with Judge Licht on various committees of the General Jewish Committee, is chairman of the dinner and arrangements committee. Senator John G. Coffey, a close friend of Judge Licht, will serve as toastmaster for the evening.

Due to the unprecedented demand for reservations for the dinner, Brier urges anyone wishing to attend the affair to respond without further delay.

Judge Licht, the youngest man to be appointed to the Superior Court bench, long has been active in Jewish affairs. He is a vice president of the General Jewish Committee, former president of the Rhode Island Zionist Region, and is currently local chairman of the United Jewish Appeal Special Fund.

A souvenir program booklet that the committee feels the many friends of Judge Licht will be most pleased to possess will be distributed at the dinner.

A reception will be held at 5:30 P. M. and the dinner is scheduled to start at 6:30 P. M.

Joseph W. Ress is treasurer of the arrangements committee, and Joseph Galkin, executive director of the GJC, is secretary. Other committee members are Herman Aisenberg, Senator Coffey, Burtleigh B. Greenberg, Julius Michaelson, Daniel J. Murray, Arthur Novogroski, Rabbi Nathan N. Rosen, Alvin A. Sopkin and Berrick H. White.

An honorary committee composed of leading citizens in all phases of community life is in process of formation.

The arrangements committee is planning an interesting program, details of which will be announced in next week's issue of The Jewish Herald.

Montor Urges Buying of Arms To Save Israel

NEW YORK — A serious battle against the Montor group—known as the American Friends of Israel—is now developing behind the scenes. It may involve the Israel Government and its embassy in the United States. The Zionist Organization of America decided to ask the Jewish Agency and the American Zionist Council to explore with the Israel Government the "propriety" of the Montor group. It also adopted a decision to ask the Israel Government to discourage activities planned by the American Friends of Israel.

The American Zionist Committee for Public Affairs similarly decided to ask Israel Ambassador Abba Eban to discourage the Montor group from going ahead.

The Montor group presented to the Israel Ambassador a confidential survey conducted on the effects of the present public relations activities in this country in behalf of Israel. It established that the word "Zionist" has a connotation which is not helpful to Israel's cause in this country.

Buy Arms—Montor

Montor told the Los Angeles B'nai B'rith messenger:

"It is time that American Jewry assume the moral responsibility for Israel and for its own salvation. American Jewry must resist psychologically, financially and morally the forces that seek to destroy Israel, and publicly raise money to buy arms to fight the enemies of Israel and America—the Arabs."

Hearty Welcome To Israel Vessel

NEW YORK — The 10,500 ton Israeli steamship Zion arrived in New York this week-end on her maiden voyage from her home port of Haifa. The vessel, like her sister ship the S. S. Isreal, with which she will share the Haifa to New York run, was built in Hamburg as German reparations payment to Israel. It is owned by the Zim Israel America Line.

The liner was greeted by steam whistles of other ships in New York harbor, towering steams of water shot into the air by fire boats and helicopters circling overhead as she steamed toward her berth. The Zion has accommodations for 313 passengers and 5,000 tons of general cargo, and is 504 feet long and 64 feet wide. Her cruising speed is 18 knots.

Testimonial Dinner for Judge Philip C. Joslin Set for May 13

A dinner in tribute to Philip C. Joslin, Associate Justice of the Superior Court, on the occasion of his seventieth birthday, will be held at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel on the evening of Sunday, May 13. The Providence Community in cooperation with the Providence Committee for State of Israel Bonds, will pay homage to Judge Joslin for his lifetime of service to the Rhode Island Community, the Jewish people here and abroad, and for his aid in furthering Israel's economic achievements and development.

Milton C. Sapinsley will act as chairman of the dinner, and a committee of community leaders and friends is in the process of formation.

Founder in 1924 of Temple Emanuel in Providence, Judge Joslin served as its first president for a period of 24 years. Among the many local and overseas Jewish institutions and agencies in which he held high office are the Jewish Home for the Aged, Jewish Children's Home and Foundation, Miriam Hospital, Jewish Community Center, Jewish Family and Children's Service, General Jewish Committee of Providence, Touro Fraternal Association, Rhode Island Seminar of Human Relationships, and the National Council of the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee.

Judge Philip C. Joslin

In his many civic activities, he was a member of the Providence School Committee; a member of the State Commission on Joint Levies and Appropriations; a member and the speaker of the House of Representatives of Rhode Island; and has been Associate Justice of the Superior Court since 1932.

Further details of the event will be announced in future editions of the Jewish Herald.

April Designated "Freedom Month" Israel's 8th Anniversary to be Observed on Monday, April 16

NEW YORK — The United Jewish Appeal has designated the month of April as "Israel Freedom Month" in honor of the new State's eighth Anniversary to be observed officially on Monday, April 16, it was announced this week by Joseph M. Mazer of New York, national chairman of the UJA's Special Survival Fund.

Mr. Mazer pointed out that the Freedom Month observance by the UJA would be marked by more than 500 campaign fund-raising meetings in communities from coast to coast, and by 9 regional conferences devoted to campaign progress in a total of 20 states.

These regional conferences, he noted, will be addressed by a number of well-known figures in American and Israeli affairs, among them U. S. Senator John J. Sparkman of Alabama; Brig. Gen. Yigal Allon, conqueror of Col. Nasser's forces in the Arab-

Israeli War of 1948, and at present a member of Israel's Parliament; Congressman Emanuel Celler of New York; Dewey D. Stone, a national Chairman of the UJA; Henry Levy, Director of Welfare and Relief Program in Tunisia for the Joint Distribution Committee; Zvi Kolitz, noted Israeli motion-picture producer, and others.

To Place Elderly In Foster Homes

SAN FRANCISCO — An experimental program for the care of the aged in foster homes has been started here by the Jewish Committee for Personal Service. The pilot group of 10 to 15 elderly men and women will be selected from state institutions where they now reside for placement in private homes in this city. A committee to select the homes will use the services of competent volunteers. Final decision in each case will be made by a social worker.

Israel Asks U. S. Bank For $75,000,000

JERUSALEM—Israel has asked the United States Export-Import Bank for a $75,000,000 loan repayable over 25 years to help finance a four-year agricultural development program, it was reported here recently.

The program, details of which will be supplied to the bank in the next few weeks, calls for increasing Israel's agricultural output by 60 percent over 1955, through the greater use of agricultural machinery and the further exploitation of Israel's water resources other than the Jordan River.

Meanwhile, it was learned that Israeli engineers have initiated a comprehensive study of Israel's underground water resources, particularly in the coastal area. It is understood that they plan to sink 100 new wells, in a project assisted by the United States Operations Mission in Israel.

THE MIDDLE EAST

While the Arabs and Soviets are stalling Security Council action in the fear that Dag Hammarskjold may finally discover who the real culprits are, news from Washington reveals that the White House will now not object if Paris and London sell arms to Israel. . . . The U. S., however, is still undecided on Israel's request for 63 million dollars worth of jet planes and other U. S. military equipment. . . . Reason given is that shipment of U. S. arms now jeopardize the current U. S. Security Council move to ease tensions in Middle East. . . . Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr. assumes the chairmanship of the Security Council for the month of April.

Under the title "Egypt on a Rampage," the N. Y. Times had this to say editorially last week: "The rise of Egypt to a position of primary importance in the Middle East today is one of the most dramatic and most disturbing developments of post-war history. The importance in this case," the Times continued, "lies in the ability and determination to cause mischief. . . ." And TIME Magazine comments: "The West had not yet achieved a sense of direction. But it was an advance of sorts that it had acquired at least a sense of motion." . . . Jordan's king Hussein made the cover of the same April 2nd issue of TIME. Opening its story on "The Boy King," TIME says: "Jordan is a country that has little or no excuse for existence. A chunk torn from the desert, with boundaries traced on sand, it has no geographical unity, national identity, political history or economic viability. It was created by the British for the British: an armed camp at the crossroads of the world, a watchtower in the cen-

Blacklist Officials Of Anti-Nazi ilk

FRANKFURT—In a confidential circular, the state government of Rhineland-Palatinate has decreed that awards and certificates of merit will not be conferred upon civil servants who were ever convicted by a Nazi "special court."

Since "special courts" were created by Hitler to handle cases of anti-Nazi political activity or of anti-Nazi attitude, the circular goes out of its way to penalize foes of Nazism.

Arnold J. Toynbee makes amends. In an article titled "Man Owes His Freedom to God" (Colliers, March 30), British historian Toynbee repeats time and again the great debt Christianity and Islam owe to Judaism: "each learned their lesson from the same source — Judaism," he insists. In his recently published history, Toynbee discounts the historic role of Judaism and places the offshoots above the Mother Faith. . . . Is it possible that Toynbee has discovered his error?

Foods To Remember

Now that the Passover Holidays are over, and Springtime is just around the corner, our thoughts turn to lighter, springtime meals. We make a hurried search through recipe files, handy cookbooks, clippings not yet filed, etc. Naturally enough, we search for something different to please lagging appetites, and are happy to come up with something time-saving, especially for luncheons.

How about utilizing some leftovers of meat, poultry or fish? Dicing or flaking even small portions of meats or fish—boiled, broiled or roasted—and combining with diced hard cooked eggs and diced celery ribs and leaves, green pepper, parsley and/or fresh mint leaves, then blended with French dressings or mayonnaise and a dash of herb seasoning, can come up as a very hasty-tasty filling for scooped out tomatoes, green peppers cut lengthwise (seeds removed, of course). Or served on a bed of shredded lettuce. Maslinas or green olives, radish roses, with French Fries or tiny biscuits, potato salad, beet salad or cole slaw with grated raw carrots added—all of these make excellent garnishes. Remember to prepare fillings in advance. Chill in the refrigerator about an hour before using.

Here are a few suggestions we have found helpful:

Fleishig and Pareve Filling:
1 cupful diced cooked meat, poultry or fish
2 hard cooked eggs, diced or chopped
½ cupful diced green pepper, celery or green onions
1 tablespoon Mayonnaise or French Dressing
Herb seasoning (thyme, oregano) mint leaves or parsley
Salt and pepper or paprika to taste

Milchig Fillings:
1 cup cottage cheese (creamed or large curds)
½ cup cream cheese
¼ cup diced celery or green pepper
¼ cup chopped nuts (walnuts, almonds, hazel nuts)
Minced parsley and/or celery leaves as desired
Salt and white pepper to taste
2 tablespoons sour cream

Combine with a fork as lightly as possible just before filling scooped out tomatoes or green peppers. Top with more sourcream at table and sprinkle with minced greens of any kind. Looks and tastes good on chicory leaves, escarole as well as lettuce.

1 cup cottage cheese
½ cup grated Cheddar Type Cheese (your favorite kind)
½ cup grated raw carrot (packed tightly for measuring)
½ cup minced green celery leaves and/or parsley
3 thin strips green pepper per salad
Mayonnaise Dressing for topping—1 or 2 tablespoons each serving
Lettuce Leaves or shredded salad mixed greens

Combine in the order listed, the first 4 ingredients. Chill about 1 hour. Form into balls the size of walnuts and serve 3 per individual salad, topping each with a pepper strip. Top with Mayonnaise or sourcream or combination of both.

The Partition of Israel and Loss of the Middle East

The interests of the United States of America in the Middle East are vital. The Middle East for one thing is the world's richest source of oil, still the major fuel of industry, our own as well as Europe's, and it is the place where hundreds of millions of dollars of American capital have been invested. The Near East is also the crossroads of world trade by sea, air and land. Militarily it is an area of the highest strategic significance; and it is also Russia's bridge to Africa.

The policies of our State Department with respect to this vital area are hard to understand. The official explanations, such as the wish to avoid any arms race between Israel and the Arab Governments, and the determination to preserve peace through the moral authority of the United Nations do not jibe well with the heavy shipments of offensive weapons to Egypt, Saudi-Arabia, Syria, Transjordan and other Arab states by both the United States and Great Britain during the past year. Nor does the haste to bring censure upon Israel in the United Nations for border violations, while ignoring the open blockade of Israel carried on by Egypt in direct violation of two United Nations orders quite square with the alleged objective of enforcing peace in the area through international law and authority. Also disturbing is the heavy veil of secrecy that has been drawn over the shipments of arms from Britain and the U. S. to the Arab nations at the very time that strong and widely-publicized accusations were being leveled against the Russians for doing the same thing, only openly.

What can the ordinary citizen get out of this maze of apparent contradictions? That it will somehow affect his welfare, the value of his investments, and the peace of his nation is perhaps the only obvious truth in the matter. One can however look into the confusing pattern of events and find certain trends that have been consistent and deliberately advanced over a period of years. Such trends by their persistence point to a plan. They are the only even partially reliable evidence of what is actually being undertaken.

There are three main trends in the joint American-British policy on the Middle East which are clearly discernible and which have been consistently followed over a period of years. Unless reversed by some dramatic new development, the three policies point to the partition and crippling of Israel as a state and to the eventual loss of the Middle East to communism. Were the Middle East lost, Africa would be easy picking within a decade. And this desolate projection is the happy probability. There is a less happy one too and it also appears to be possible: the massacre of the Israeli population and the outbreak of atomic war.

The Three Main Discernible Trends

What are the discernible trends of American and British policy with respect to Israel and the Arab states? First, is the persisting effort to isolate Israel morally in world opinion. Second, is the policy of shipping offensive weapons to the Arabs while refusing defensive weapons to Israel. Third, is the repeated offer by the British Foreign Office to act as mediator in the "dispute" over the existence of Israel. The British mediation plan would offer territorial concessions to the Arab states which would add an insignificant percentage of land to the large territory already claimed by them, but enough of the tiny parcel that now belongs to Israel to cripple that new nation as a political economy. If Israel's territory were so reduced by partition, the assumption is that a compromise could be worked out that would permit the remnant of Israel to survive, if not as a nation, at least as a kind of cultural center in a tolerant Arab world.

The Implementation of the Three Policies

The moral isolation of Israel has been very largely achieved. In the recent United Nations vote of censure against Israel there was not a single dissenting voice. (This was the censure against Israel for silencing the Syrian artillery that fired across the border upon her citizens. The Israeli retaliation was deemed by the United Nations to be out of proportion to the Syrian provocation.) Israel drew censure and was threatened with economic sanctions as well if she again attempted to defend herself in such a manner. But there was no censure of Syria for opening artillery fire on civilians. No voice was raised to censure Egypt for its long-continued and open blockade, carried out deliberately, uninterruptedly and openly for years in the face of two United Nations orders to desist. Indeed the blockade was further implemented only a few months ago by a shipment of British gun boats to Egypt. No voice was raised to protest the hundreds of raids across the open borders of Israel nor the Egyptian radio propaganda preparing the Egyptian people for a second invasion effort.

What with one twist or another, the propaganda drums have succeeded in beating out the tune that Israel with its two million people and eight thousand square miles of territory is entertaining aggressive designs against the forty million Arabs in their two million square miles of territory. Israel therefore is now the moral pariah, and peace-loving Arab neighbors have been given to understand that Britain and the United States are their friends who stand for them in the councils of the United Nations.

To Premiere Jazz Pieces at Concert

Several original jazz pieces will be heard for the first time at the concert entitled, "Jazz Locale", to be presented by the CREATIVE Workshop on Wednesday evening, April 18, at the Rhode Island School of Design Auditorium.

Featuring the sounds of three modern jazz groups, the concert will introduce the residents of Rhode Island to talented musicians living in the area. The three groups, "Quintet", "Quartet", and "Septet", will feature such musicians as Jake Brill, who has played with Claude Thornhill's Orchestra; Joe Coccia, composer-arranger for the Stan Kenton Orchestra, and George Masso, an alumnus of the Jimmy Dorsey band. The original music for the concert was written by Coccia, Jack Quigley and Art Pelosi.

Tickets may be obtained at Turner's Inc., 287 Weybosset St. or at the box office on the evening of the performance.

GROWTH REPORTED

NEW YORK—Religious groups in the United States are building their houses of worship at a record pace, according to the Wall Street Journal, with $760 million invested in new buildings in 1955. Figures in the article showed the pace of Protestant groups' building, but it was also noted that "Catholic and Jewish congregations have shown even greater percentage gains in membership than Protestant.

The coming Biennial Convention of the National Jewish Welfare Board which opens in New York this week-end will be watched with deep interest by all acquainted with the long record of JWB in respect to services to the Armed Forces and the Jewish community Centers of this country.

We deem the Biennial one of the most important gatherings of a Jewish organization. We base this on the array of distinguished Jewish leaders, educators, rabbis, historians and public figures who will speak as well as on the nature and wide variety of problems that will come before the delegates at some 40 workshops.

The JWB Biennial will serve among other things as a platform for a reappraisal of Jewish Community Center work and service in the light of changing community needs. Jewish Community Centers under JWB leadership have been and must increasingly be, in a world of tensions, a place for making good citizens and a haven for providing youth with a sense of belonging, a sense of purpose and consciousness of their identity as Jews and Americans.

Recruitment of new Jewish Community Center personnel — of overriding importance today — physical education and health problems connected with service to teenagers, and the elderly, and the whole question of leadership in American Jewish life will come before the delegates in a series of workshops set up for widest participation.

The stubborn fact of a million man Army, of responsibilities resting on JWB and the community from the fact of the dispersal of servicemen over six countries will be frankly discussed in small and plenary sessions, where leaders of the military, the chaplaincy and rabbinate will expound their views. To be considered at the session also will be the new Reserve Act, Pre-Induction programs for prospective draftees, relations to USO, the Jewish Chaplaincy Procurement Program, and the needs of the hospitalized veteran.

JWB has for over three decades been a partner with the Armed Forces in respect to morale work. Never before in peacetime was it so essential to implement this partnership through mobilization of volunteer support for the forging of the morale life line between the GI and his family and community.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Breyde Murphy and Moishele

By BERYL SEGAL

I was reading in Life magazine about the book, "The Search for Breyde Murphy", and the craze that is now sweeping the country in the wake of the book. Hypnotists are doing a rushing business, and people under their spell are searching for reincarnations in another life, in some other person, in earlier generations, and perhaps even in other parts of the earth.

Life magazine shows pictures of people in a trance, "regressing" in time, and talking freely of reincarnations. Specialists in psychology are arguing the matter, trying to find the key to the craze as well as to numerous reincarnations that are springing up in Chicago, in New York, in Texas, and, of course, in California, the home of the original reincarnation, Breyde Murphy herself.

Hypnotism and regression and reincarnation are becoming the talk of every party, and an inexhaustible source of jokes for radio and television comedians.

On The Ukraine

In my childhood, in the little town on the Ukraine, the belief in reincarnation, in a previous life before birth, inheriting the soul of someone who lived ages ago, all this was taken for granted, and we knew it without the benefit of hypnotism and long before Morey Bernstein of Pueblo, California found his gold mine in Breyde Murphy. In Chasidic circles it was very common to say:

"Our Rebe, the Holy Man, has the soul of so and so."

And the so-and-so was usually a famous scholar, or mystic, or wonder worker who lived centuries before.

The story was told, and we children listened to every detail of it in fear and shivers as the story was unfolded of the infant who began to speak while sucking the milk of his mother's breast. And the words that the infant spoke were of the mysteries of creation, predictions of the end of days, of the secrets of the universe that no ear has ever heard, and no son of man can understand. The infant would not stop talking until the wonder-working rebe came in haste and commanded the child to keep his peace because the times are not ready for the things he speaks of. And to parents and the people who stood in fear and anxiety around the child, the rebe explained that the infant had inherited the soul of a great mystic who knew all the mysteries of heaven and earth.

Morey Bernstein could write a best seller of this, but, alas, I don't know what became of the child when he grew up, and he

Pinkas The Peddler

A 14th Century tale translated and retold

By SARAH KUSSY

In one of the narrow lanes in Prague, of which its historic ghetto section abounds, I saw the age-blackened Pinkas Shul and heard the story of Pinkas the Peddler, after whom it was named. Daily did he trod the cobbled streets, with pack on shoulder, returning wearily at night to his humble shack.

Regaling his famished body with a simple meal, he sought spiritual relaxation in one of his precious volumes that contained the stored wisdom of Prophets and Sages. Close by, his wife Sorel would sit, patching clothes that already had become but a bizarre mass of patches.

Starvation often threatened, prevented by the kindly help of a nobleman who liked Pinkas and discovered the innate shrewdness his old garments hid. Pinkas was useful and would be remunerated for negotiating loans for the Count with Jewish moneylenders. On the approach of the Sabbath or a Festival, additional coins would be added.

A Lesson

"Did you enjoy the day?" his patron would ask. Invariably came the reply: "Yes, Your Highness, God helped." It is always God, thought his patron, when he knows it is I who help. We will teach you a lesson, ungrateful Jew.

Passover approached, but no help appeared. Embarrassingly Pinkas pleaded for a loan to purchase the extra Passover food. The Count claimed a financial loss that restricted his wonted liberality.

Sorel wept and retired right after the children had gone to bed. Pinkas mechanically opened one of his rare volumes, but failed to concentrate on its wisdom that night. Suddenly a dark form was catapulted through the window. A cry of dismay burst from Pinkas, awaking Sorel.

"Shima Yisroel!" she cried, wringing her hands. On the floor lay a dead ape, staring at them with lusterless eyes.

Suspect Treachery

"An enemy of the Jews has done this," Pinkas wailed, trembling with fear, "we must dispose of him before his owner arrives." "The oven!" Sorel whispered, hurriedly replenishing the dying embers.

As they raised the ape, coin after coin, all golden double eagles, fell from its gaping mouth. Too excited to pause, Sorel rushed for a kitchen knife and opened the beast. Aghast, they looked at the mass of double eagles that lay revealed. Hurriedly Pinkas hid them in a bag.

"Burn the creature!" Sorel counselled, pointing to the dying embers. They replenished the fire, threw the dead ape into the stove, where the blazing flames consumed him.

"Pinkas," said Sorel reverently, "your piety wrought this miracle. The Prophet Elijah was here tonight." Pinkas looked startled. Then a glow overspread his pale countenance. He bowed his head.

Surprise Visitor

What a shopping spree the family indulged in! And what a Seder they were enjoying! The festive meal was about to be served.

Hush! A knock at the door. Excited with anticipation, Pinkas hastened to open.

"Your highness!" he exclaimed, recognizing his patron.

"Yes, Pinkas, I thought perhaps you might really be in need and require help."

"God helped!" Pinkas answered relating his astonishing tale.

"An ape, with gold in his body, you say? My pet monkey died a few days ago and a pile of money disappeared mysteriously at the same time."

"Carlos!" he called to his coachman, waiting without. Did you bury the ape as I commanded?" Carlos fell on his knees. "Forgive, master. Wenzel said, 'Throw him into the Jew's house. It will be fun.'"

An explanation

"Your money is safe" interrupted Pinkas, proffering his bag, "what was used we shall try to repay." The Count waved it aside, saying, "No, Pinkas." He then related what must have happened. He was in his counting-room, counting his cash. Testing each coin with his teeth, to prove its quality, the watchful monkey behind him imitated his master's act, but swallowed the coins. Turning to Pinkas he said: "The money is yours, a gift from the God in whom you trusted. God helped."

Pinkas established religious and philanthropic institutions, but remained in prosperity as modest as he was in his poverty. This story however, survived. It cheered the needy and strengthened their faith that "God will help," if you trust in him.

The above story is one of the famous Sipurim (tales) of Prague, compounded of legend and history intertwined, that developed in the historic ghetto, through a thousand years of living experience.

is not at present available for a hypnotic regression in time and space.

And In Israel

Another story comes to mind, this one reported in the newspapers from Jerusalem about two years ago.

One summer morning a teacher was instructing his charges in Aleph Beis and elementary reading, in his cheder in one of the narrow streets of the Holy City.

One of the pupils, four-year-old Moishele, did not pay attention to the rebe, lost his place in the reader, and watched, instead, two butterflies fluttering their ritual dance in the bright sunlight near the open windows.

The rebe came over, and the frightened little boy began to look this way and that way for the place in the book before him. The rebe pointed out the word and asked Moishele to repeat after him.

Moishele did repeat, but he also continued to recite by heart the next word, and the next line, and the whole page. With his eyes tightly closed the little boy read on and on from books he never could have seen, and he spoke of things his young mind could not normally grasp.

The terrified teacher dismissed his frightened pupils, and carried Moishele in his arms to the home of his parents as fast as his feet could carry him.

The astonished parents listened to their Moishele, the mischievous playful Moishele, recite with his eyes closed from any book the teacher took off the shelf. All Moishele needed was one word only. He took up from there and continued whole paragraphs, whole pages, on and on he recited until he was stopped.

The father who is a chasid of the famous rebe of Belz, ran to him for guidance and advice. The rebe immediately forbade the boy to speak to strangers, and he warned the parents to keep away all physicians and scientists who flocked to the house to test and to examine the child.

From then on Moishele is being taught at home. The mother watches over him and keeps away all strangers, especially reporters and photographers and American tourists.

Still, we are told, curiosity seekers and tourists of all kinds find their way through the narrow streets of Jerusalem to the home of Moishele, the wonder child, in hope of getting a glimpse of the boy, and perhaps hearing a word from his lips.

But the little boy does not speak to strangers. Not even to hypnotists and reincarnation experts. I doubt whether the prospects of big royalties from a best-seller would induce the parents to subject the child to a hypnotic trance.

Not even for the sake of science. The Rebe of Belz knows best.

Nasser Called '4th Class Pharaoh'

LONDON—An editorial in last week's "Sunday Express" described Egypt's dictator Nasser as a "fourth class Pharaoh" who is currently one of Britain's bitterest foes.

Among the acts of animosity listed by the newspaper is Egypt's refusal to permit British oil tankers to pass the Suez Canal on the way to Israel. Instead of yielding to Nasser, the paper went on to say, the time has come for Britain to begin handling Nasser with the harshness he deserves.

A New League Is Born

To put it in the form of a note in the society column, the Providence Jewish Community Center is proud to announce the birth of the latest member of its family group — the Tween Baseball League.

The infant organization, conceived and planned and nurtured into being by the Center's athletic director, Abe Lobel, will utter its first loud cry at 1:30 P. M. on Sunday, April 15 at Sessions Street Field (adjoining the Center), at which time and place the tryouts and first practice session will be held.

The Tween Baseball League is designed expressly for boys between the ages of 11 and 15 who are Center members. There will be, in this first year of operation, six teams of fourteen players each. That adds up to a total of 84 players. As the mailing announcement prepared by the Center says, "first come, first taken!" So it will behoove the boys who are interested to get on the ball and send in their registrations pronto.

Registrations are already being taken—in fact, the DEADLINE for registering to play in the Tween Baseball League is Tuesday, April 10, five days before the first practice.

The boys' letter of application must include, in addition to the Center dues, a fee of one dollar for compulsory insurance, which will cover all players in the event of injury. The applications must be mailed or brought to the JCC no later than the deadline date, which is this very next Tuesday. The application should include also signature, phone number and date of birth.

Now that the registration procedure is out of the way, let's have a look at some of the features of the Tween Baseball League.

Uniforms, Coaches, Insurance

In the first place, the six teams will be completely uniformed and outfitted, and uniforms will even be fitted to the individual players! Oh happy day! Six sponsors already have been "signed" for this first year (names a bit later).

Second, each club will have a coaching staff of two men who are or used to be ballplayers themselves. The names of several of these men are available now, and also will be listed farther along in this essay.

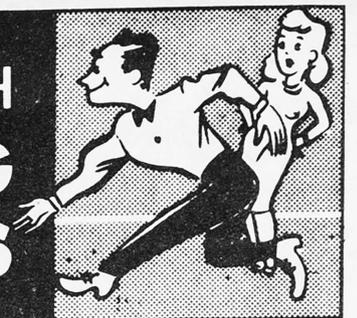

The season will extend through ten games for each team, which means that each outfit will meet every other club twice. Games will be played on Tuesday evenings and Sunday afternoons.

Even the fields have been arranged! They include the Sessions Street field for teams whose

WHEREFORE ART THOU, BETH DAVID KEGLERS?

A few months ago, the Beth David bowlers challenged members of the Sackin-Shocket league to a challenge match.

The Vets accepted the challenge.

Nothing has happened since.

A note from Sid Jacobson says Beth David made the challenge. Sackin - Shockett is willing to meet them, but there has been no further word from the Oakland Ave. boys.

Asks S-S Correspondent Jacobson: "Have they chickened out?"

EDITORIAL

Here's a bit of advice to officers of the various leagues in the R. I. Jewish Bowling Congress:

If you haven't started selling tickets for the June 4 annual awards night and banquet of the congress, get on the ball. The banquet at Rhodes-on-the-Pawtuxet is only two months away. Tickets go fast for this popular affair, and we are certain none of the congress bowlers want to be left out.

Several innovations have been instituted for this year's banquet. For one, leagues will be permitted to reserve tables for their members in blocks of 10 to a table. The seating arrangement for reserved tables will be on a first-come-first-served basis.

Secondly, a father-and-son touch has been added, since so many bowlers have boys who are keenly interested in sports and would like to see and meet the galaxy of leading figures in the world of sports. For the first time, fathers will be able to purchase tickets for their sons or other boys they would like to have with them for this high point in the congress bowling year.

There is one final word of warning: Don't expect to find a long line of ticket buyers at Rhodes the night of June 4. A limit of 50 tickets will be available at the door.

Souvenir Program Banquet Feature

Officers of the R. I. Jewish Bowling Congress are planning a souvenir program for the annual banquet and awards night to be held Monday, June 4, at Rhodes-on-the-Pawtuxet.

Initial discussion calls for a 32-page book with background information on all the leagues in the congress, how they were organized and their records.

Advertising for the book is being handled by Murray Trinkle of Beth El and Morty Miller of Harold Bloom. Anyone who wishes to be represented in the advertising pages of the souvenir program is urged to contact either Trinkle or Miller, or tell his league president.

Further information on the souvenir program will be published in the coming weeks.

Congress Delegates Tab Results of Delayed March Sweepstakes Sunday

The delayed March sweepstakes tourney of the R. I. Jewish Bowling Congress finally has taken place among member-leagues.

At least, that is the hope of congress officials as they prepare to meet at 9 o'clock Sunday morning with league delegates at Topp's Gaylord, North Main St., to tabulate results and determine the winners.

The combination of Passover layoffs and cancellations resulting from the recent blizzards has kept a number of leagues from the bowling alleys in the past few weeks.

As a result, dates for holding the March sweepstakes were extended through this week, and the congress delegates' meeting was put off one week until Sunday.

Nat Alterman of Beth El, congress president, wants to impress on delegates the starting time for the breakfast-meeting. It is 9 A. M., half an hour earlier than usual.

The winners of the three major prizes awarded each month in the sweepstakes—$25 for high total, $15 for second high three and $10 for high single—will be announced in next Friday's Jewish Herald.

Officers Will Be Nominated Sunday

The 16-member nominating committee of the R. I. Jewish Bowling Congress will present its slate of officers for the 1956-57 season at Sunday's meeting of congress delegates.

The election of officers will be held at the May delegates' meeting, and the new officers will be installed at the June 4 congress banquet and awards night.

Dave Ettine of Cousins is chairman of the nominating committee.

Congress Bowlers Signing in Pairs For First Men's Doubles Tournament

There still is time to enter the first men's doubles tournament of the R. I. Jewish Bowling Congress.

The interesting matches will be held Sunday, April 15, at the Legion Bowladrome on Park Ave., Cranston, starting at 11 A.M. Sam Segal of Beth Israel, tournament chairman, says late bowlers will have to start bowling before 2 P. M.

Here is an opportunity to pair with the top bowler in the league and compete for prizes in three classes:

- 215 and over
- 200 to 214

and 199 and under.

These figures, of course, are the combination average of the two-man team.

Equal prizes will be awarded in each class, so it matters little in which group you and a friend compete. There is expected to be plenty of hot competition in all levels, since many high and low average men will be teaming up for the tournament.

Fill in the entry blank found elsewhere on this page, and give it, together with the entry fee of $2 per bowler, to your league representative.

Get Your Congress Banquet Tickets Early — They're Available Now

Tickets are being distributed to the various leagues for the June 4 annual awards night and banquet of the R. I. Jewish Bowling Congress.

League representatives who still have not received their allotment of tickets will be able to get them Sunday morning at the monthly meeting of congress delegates at Topp's Gaylord Diner, North Main Street. Breakfast will be at 9 o'clock and the meeting at 10.

Since there was such an unusually brisk demand for tickets last year, Irving Zaidman of Warwick, congress treasurer, urges everyone to get his ticket early.

The price is $13 per ticket for dinner and an evening with some of the leading sports personalities.

An outstanding program is being arranged by Sam Feldman of Fineman-Trinkel, banquet chairman, and Murray Trinkle of Beth El, speakers' chairman.

The names of the guests and the recipients of various awards will be announced in the near future in these columns of the Jewish Herald.

For the first time, congress bowlers will be allowed to bring along their sons as guests at the banquet.

Another reminder to the leagues is that if they want to reserve groups of tables for their members, they must do so in blocks of 10 and notify Feldman as soon as possible. It will be first-come-first-served in the arrangement of reserved tables.

Should any league representative require additional tickets, he may obtain them from Zaidman by calling him at RE 7-6194.

Delegates Meeting

The Rhode Island Jewish Bowling Congress' monthly delegates breakfast-meeting will be held on Sunday, April 8, at 9 o'clock sharp, at Topp's Gaylord on North Main Street.

HAROLD BLOOM By Harry Fellman

Here is a recap of what's going on in the league, since there is no bowling to report, because of last week's Seder night.

With five weeks to go, Air Force leads by one point over Reserves, and Coast Guard, the first half winner, are in third place. Only seven points separate the top and bottom of the six-team league.

Gerald Cherniak leads Douglas Mushnick by a fraction, with both boasting averages over 109. This correspondent is third with an average over 108.

Note: If a bowler competes in more than one league, his best mark in each category is considered in each individual category.

It was planned originally to run the latest compilation of the season's high marks next Friday, but this was moved ahead one week, because of the scarcity of other news from member-leagues.

The foundations of the league—bowlers with perfect attendance—are Judah Rosen, Fred Fishman, Charles Stern, Julius Nasberg, William Nasberg, Aaron Soren and Ted Nasberg.

With modesty and pride, this reporter lists himself for high single and high three—164 and 410.

Air Force holds the high team single, while the Reserves' 1576 stands as the top triple.

SACKIN-SHOCKET By Sid Jacobson

In the biggest upset of the season, second place Navy was bombed by Air Force, 4-0. Jimmy Weiss paced the winners with 354 and two 119 strings, while this writer contributed a 311 total and a 116 solo. Herb Gold, a 90-average man helped with 121, and Morty Dwares came up with 114 to boost the airmen to third place. Navy's big guns were Mark Sugarman with 343 and strings of 133 and 120, Irvin Covinsky with 340 and a 119, and Larry Koffler's 104. Air Force had the night's top scores of 1534 and 537.

First place Seabees increased their lead to five games with a 3-1 victory over the Marines. Jerry Manekofsky had 320 with a 117, Harold Kaufman pinned a 106 and Babe Kirshenbaum 105 for the Seabees. The Marines were led by Sam Jarcho with 117, Norm Bader 107, Jerry Waksler 109 and Lew Weinstein with 108 and 107.

Army, the first half champs who now are last, split with Coast Guard. Jordy Hoffman led the Army charge with 333 and 117, Cookie Kaufman had 313 and 114, Sweeps Broomfield rolled 308 and 114 and Morty Kessler had a good string of 110. While Buz Labush paced Coast Guard with 344 and 130, the big surprise was a good 306 with a 121 by Jerry Einshorn, an 87 bowler. Herb Weiser and Joe Epstein rolled 111's and Hy Levin had 104.

By Jack Appelbaum

Joel Orchoff's team rolled a blistering 1621 with a 559 single to take four points from Jerry Goldstein's quintet and knock the latter out of a first-place tie with Sam Pritzker's powerhouse.

Backing Orchoff in the big effort were Ben Trinkle, Cy Berkelhammer, Frank Supnick and Milt Weissman, who rolled the night's high total of 371.

Pritzker's strong men, Bud Lewis, Bob Bernstein, Joe Levine, who rolled a 138, and Murray Trinkle went over the 1600 mark again, this time by five pins, to take four points and sole possession of the top. Another four-point winner was Louis Bloom's team, which moved into second place with the help of Saul Haas, Yours Truly, Morris Feldman and Alie Shatkin by rolling 1603. The team also had the night's top single of 583.

Hal Webber rolled a 137, while Shatkin pinned 133 and 354. Mac Morgan had two 128's, a single duplicated by Lou Feldman. Myer Jarcho pinned 125 and leads the league with a 114 average.

"home" is on the East Side, the field adjoining the Great Scott market on Smith Street for the club from the North End or Smith Street area, and either Tim O'Neil Field in Roger Williams Park or Sackett Street Little League field for the South Side games.

As it stands now, four teams will be based on the East Side, and one each on the North and South Sides.

Would you agree that all this is sufficient for the opening announcement? Well, believe it or not, there is still more! The league officials are setting up a system of playoffs and selection of an all-star team, and on the word of E. Leonard Chaset, who is the commissioner of the Tween Baseball League, all personnel involved in the competition will get a free trip to Boston to see the Red Sox in action during the summer.

AND — following the season, there will be a sports night program at which awards will be made.

How It Came About

Now all this didn't happen by itself. There had to be a lot of talking and planning and running around and phone calls and personal visits and the like. When Lobel first started talking Tween Baseball League to Center officials, he asked for permission to scout around and see if he could get his organization rolling without causing any expense to the JCC.

Permission granted, Abe got to work, aided and abetted by Leo Borenstein, chairman of the Center's athletic and physical education committee, and other members of that group. Len Chaset accepted the commissionership, and tackled the project enthusiastically. Jerry Salter became the league's secretary-treasurer, and Jerry Feinstein, Ben Abrams and Donald (Buddy) Cohen were appointed as Tween League committee members. Many men chipped in with their contributions of time, ideas and money whose names do not appear on the committee listings.

So now the Tween Baseball League is ready to go to work on its first season, and here is the lineup of sponsors and teams: Rhode Island Cycle Co. will sponsor the team from the South Side, and Senak Corporation will lend its name to the North Siders. Sponsors of the four East Side clubs will be Superior Fuels, Alco Jewelry Co., M & F Insurance Co. and Miller's Delicatessen.

The sponsorships were obtained through Leo Borenstein for Miller's, Buddy Cohen for R. I. Cycle, Jerry Feinstein for M & F Insurance, Commissioner Chaset for Superior Fuels, Joe Levy and Sydney Kane for Senak, and Ben Abrams for Alco Jewelry.

The full complement of coaches has not been released; but as of press time this week the list included Syd Cohen, Sidney Green, Herb Goldis, Irving (Tex) Rabinowitz, Elwin Rosenbaum, Lou Weiner and Ralph Winn. (Fathers interested in assisting with the league operations are invited to call Lobel, UN 1-2931.)

Sees Year-Round Program

Speaking again of Abe reminds me that the JCC athletic director envisions the Tween Baseball League as a major step forward in the direction of a year-round athletic organization at the Center. A thriving basketball league already is established, now the Tween league is coming into being, and following that Abe and the athletic and physical education committee hope to go to work on a touch football league. That will round out the program, for this age group, at least.

So that's it for now. Registrations are being accepted, practice next Sunday, and a fine ten-game schedule coming up.

A hearty Mazeltov to the creators of the new arrival, and the column's best wishes for a long and productive life to the JCC's Tween Baseball League!

The Partition of Israel and Loss of the Middle East

The second discernible trend is the shipment of offensive weapons to the Arabs and the withholding of all but token shipments to Israel. Even before the Russians sent jet planes and tanks and submarines to Egypt, Israel had protested the shipment of British planes, tanks and gun boats as well as American weapons to the Arabs on the ground that these created a dangerous imbalance in the Middle Eastern power alignment. Israel requested aid to redress the situation created by the shipment of our arms, even before the massive shipment of Russian weapons was under way. The request was taken under consideration, but nothing has yet been done, except to explain that the United States does not wish to encourage an arms race in the Middle East. While this explanation was being offered and at the very time that vigorous accusations were being broadcast against the Russians for shipping weapons to Egypt, the United States and Britain were secretly sending offensive armor to the Arabs, too. Significantly the refusal to ship defensive weapons to Israel and the assurance that its request for defensive weapons was "under consideration", was accompanied by a standing offer to "mediate" the dispute through the good offices of Sir Anthony Eden and the British Foreign Office. Apparently, the opinion was entertained that if the lower portion of Israel could be cut off and given to the Arab states, the British and Americans could then persuade the Arabs to accept what was left as a peaceful neighbor. The one quarter of Israel's territory that would be given over to the Arab states would not be of any significant territorial advantage to them, for 25% of Israel's territory would not add 1% to that of the Arabs. But such a partition would weaken Israel economically and militarily to the point where the neighboring Arab states would have no need to fear her rapid economic development. Then, too, there was the possibility that oil might be found in the lower part of Israel which was to be partitioned off under the Eden plan, and this too may have sharpened the appetite for partition.

So, the scheme looks like this:

First, isolate Israel as a moral pariah. Second, mount another invasion, this time making sure that Arab power is overwhelming. Third, step in to "mediate" the deplorable dispute, calling upon both sides, under God, to accept a peaceful adjudication, which would turn out to be the Eden plan or something like it.

In general, the scheme seems to be well on its way to accomplishment. Israel has indeed been morally isolated. The Arab armies poised on her open borders have been massively armed and in a few months will have been trained in the use of their new arms. The "mediation" offer (the partition plan) already rejected by Israel, is kept ready for presentation after the second, and this time successful, invasion. When accomplished, the Arabs will have peace of mind again and they will know us for their friends, who have aided them not only to achieve the political security they wish, but who also stand ready to provide the material aid they need to develop their economies.

Is Anything Wrong?

A few things, however, are not going as well as might have been hoped. We have lost our posture of chief friend to the Arab nations in the United Nations' councils. When the British and Americans led the condemnation of Israel for silencing the Syrian artillery that had been firing across her borders, the Russians went farther: they not only condemned Israel, but moved for punishment as well. Thus, the Russian position was even more favorable to the Arabs than Britain's and ours. We were outbid.

The same annoying slip seems to have occurred in the matter of the arming of the second invasion. When British planes, gun boats and tanks had been sent in such quantity to Egypt as to draw open protests from Israel, the Russians merely offered the Egyptians an even larger quantity of arms. They also sent technicians in large numbers to train the Egyptian army in the use of the Russian-made weapons and they offered training facilities for Egyptian pilots in Czechoslovakia, where according to the Hearst press, there are now 2,000 under instruction. Again, our posture of friendship was rendered ineffectual because we were outbid.

The United States and Britain will probably offer to mediate the settlement of the next war of invasion by advising both sides to use restraint and by bringing forward the partition plan as a mediation effort. It is quite obvious, though, in view of what has been happening on the United Nations' front and on the arms front, that the effort to appear as the friend of the Arabs in the partition plan is also doomed to failure. For when Britain and the United States offer one-quarter or one-third of Israel's territory to the Arab states, the Russians will surely offer one-half or three-quarters. And again we will be outbid.

Thus, the main objective, which seems to be to establish ourselves and our British allies as the great friend and protector of Arab nations, is already doomed, for it appears that the Arabs can find a greater friend elsewhere, as their moral defender in the United Nations' councils, as a weapons supplier, and in due course, as a mediator.

That leaves the United States with only one other way to bid for the friendship of the Arab states: to offer large loans for capital improvements like the dam project in Egypt. But here too we seem to be on dangerous, if not treacherous, ground. The governments of the Arab states whose friendship we court are not representative governments. They are technical governments - under feudal sheiks or army juntas. Such governments can easily be taken over by well-trained conspirators at the right time and in Egypt today, there are already 3,000 Russian "technicians". If these technicians have no political errand to perform in addition to their military one, it will be the first time that Russia has sent such a multitude into any backward country for such a limited purpose. The 3,000 "technicians" go with the planes and the tanks; and when the right day comes along, they will find it no trick at all to bump off a couple of colonels and a few sheiks, and only a handful of people in all Arabia would know or care.

In the Middle East there is desperate need to reclaim the desert and improve the living standards of the people. Their poverty is pitiable. They are the backward people who are the most fruitful soil for communist indoctrination. With the rapid development of the State of Israel as an example, the rest of the Middle East would be prodded into developing itself politically as well as economically and along democratic lines. But with Israel crippled or destroyed, the economic development of the area would be retarded. The spur of example, competition and trade would be gone. Communist agents would have established their bridgehead and the United States would hesitate to make the large investments in the capital goods so badly needed by the Arab people but now so easily convertible into communist assets. Because progress would be retarded, the revolution would be assured.

Our policy is to win the friendship of the sheiks and colonels, on the theory apparently that these are the people of the Middle East. But the people of the Middle East will be prone, if they are like other people, to trade a handful of feudal overlords any day for such promises as the communists will give; and with the sheiks and colonels removed, we would find ourselves without government allies in lands where the masses of the people had been conditioned to anti-democratic beliefs. The value of the Arab rulers now lies only in their ability to inflame nationalist sentiment. But in the long run they will stand or fall on what happens to the standard of living of their people; and in Saudi Arabia, Syria and Transjordan very little improvement has occurred under the traditional form of government. The longer the economic development of the Near East is retarded, the greater is the danger that it will fall to the communists, who if they have little capital to offer, can at least through political sophistication and high aptitude for organizing illiterate masses, hold a great advantage over us whose desperate effort it is to retain the friendship of a few toppy rulers.

Once the Near East fell under communist domination, the smoldering resentment of the Africans farther South and West would flame out into full revolution in short order. For the communist revolution, as has been proved time and time again, can run like wildfire through territories and nations that are without representative government, without a decent standard of living, and without national self-respect. Our own South American dictatorships would then be next in line for attention.

The stakes in the Middle East are high, yet if the policies which have been in effect for so long persist into the future, it appears that we have already lost. We might have a hope in the State of Israel as a bridgehead of democracy and as an example of something better than communism, if Israel were a strong and vigorous nation. But our policy, clearly defined in the trends, is to scuttle Israel.

It is not altogether improbable that the sell-out of Israel will result in an even more shocking end-result than that implied by the British partition plan. It is quite possible with the arms imbalance as great as it is today, and the Israelis practically defenseless in the face of this situation, that nearly the whole of the population of Israel will be massacred. The incitement to war here is of a fanatical nature - a jihad. Civilization in this part of the world has not progressed as far as we like to think it has elsewhere. Such an outcome could hardly fail to bring about some loss of faith in the United Nations' integrity and especially in those moral virtues which we of the West like to think of as our special field of excellence. And in a world of desperate dangers, the loss of faith in the integrity of the United Nations could be a lethal blow.

More immediate is the risk that the United States and Britain, in furtherance of what seems to be the partition scheme, might step into the middle of the Arab-Israeli war, as we stepped suddenly into the middle of the Korean war - if anything so one-sided as this could be called a war - and in so doing find ourselves lined up against Russian forces. The Russian Foreign Office has already announced that it regards the Near East as an area of legitimate concern and that it would resist any attempt by the United States, Britain and France to violate the sovereignty of the nations of that area. This is plain notice not to intervene when the invasion gets under way unless the intervention is shared by the Russians, who in that case would also share in the bid for the favor of the Arabs in any "mediation" scheme that would later be preferred.

Unless we are willing to fight communist armies in Arabia, the Russian camel already has his nose and forequarters in the Near-East tent. In case we do decide to fight, we have just had the word of Marshall Zhukov for it that in a war between Russia and the West, atomic weapons would be used against American and European cities. Our cities are less widely dispersed and our industries less skillfully concealed than those in the Russian and communist areas. Our vulnerability to atomic bombing appears therefore to be greater.

America could use a brand new foreign policy for the Middle East.
