Senators Score Arabian Bias

NEW YORK—Six major national Jewish organizations in a joint NCRAC statement welcomed the action of the U. S. Senate in unanimously adopting a resolution which declares that "It is a primary principle of our nation that there shall be no distinction among U. S. citizens based on their individual religious affiliations." The organizations called for the embodiment of the Senate resolutions in the programs of all agencies of government.

Joining in the statement were the American Jewish Congress, Jewish Labor Committee, Jewish War Veterans of the United States of America, Union of American Hebrew Congregations, Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America, United Synagogue of America.

Protect Integrity

The Jewish organizations, which have been deeply concerned about the discrimination being practiced by Arab countries against American citizens of the Jewish faith, stated: "We are gratified that the Senate has reaffirmed as public policy that 'the protection of the integrity of United States citizenship and of the proper rights of United States citizens in their pursuit of lawful trade, travel, and other activities abroad, is a principle of United States sovereignty.'"

They said, "The maintenance of this principle will require prompt correction of present policies under which agencies of our government seem to have acquiesced in discriminations by foreign governments against American citizens" and called for "vigorous efforts . . . by the State Department to obtain abandonment of the practice by certain foreign governments of denying visas to American citizens who are Jewish." They also urged

"an end to the screening of American troops and personnel designed to exclude Jews from assignment to American bases in any part of the world."

Hail Senate Vote

All major national Jewish organizations issued statements welcoming the Senate vote.

Cairo Offers "Friendly" Advice

LONDON—The Cairo Radio, in a Hebrew-language broadcast, said this week that Egypt would not oppose the building of a canal in Israel parallel to the Suez Canal, but warned that such a project "would turn Israel into a colony of many foreign states."

An earlier broadcast on the Egyptian Hebrew-language service had accused "Zionist extremists" of trying to make common cause with the West against Egypt. The commentator expressed confidence, however, that Israelis were too intelligent to be taken in by "Zionist warmongering of this kind."

Congress Turns Down Fund Aid

WASHINGTON—Congress has turned down the State Department request for spending approximately $3,500,000 in U. S. funds now deposited in Israel for scientific and cultural projects in Israel.

The request was originally submitted by Bernard Katzen, consultant on the use of local currencies acquired by the United States in Israel under the information media guarantee program. It would have benefitted more than 40 Israeli institutions.

British Jews Ask Arming of Israel

LONDON — Egyptian seizure of the Suez Canal Company makes it even more imperative than before for the signatories of the Tripartite Declaration of 1950 to reaffirm that stand and consider Israel's request for arms, R. N. Carvalho, president of the Anglo-Jewish Association, declared in a statement here.

Expressing his strong fear of an Egyptian attack on Israel, Carvalho asserted that the whole raison d'etre of the present Egyptian regime is to prepare itself for what it hopes will be a death blow at Israel. "It is my urgent hope that the British Government will give immediate and serious consideration to Israel's plight and supply Israel with those arms so urgently required for defense," the non-Zionist leader declared.

B'nai B'rith Gets Dulles Assurance

STARLIGHT, Pa. — B'nai B'rith, Jewish service group, this week quoted Secretary of State John Foster Dulles as saying the State Department will continue diplomatic action aimed at ending Arab restrictions on American Jews.

Mr. Dulles, it is reported, sent B'nai B'rith a statement that attributed Arab state restrictions on U. S. Jews to the Arab-Israel conflict. The organization said Mr. Dulles added:

"In some countries where, as a result of the Palestine conflict, the discriminatory policies are of recent origin, we have been able to make headway in obtaining the mitigation or removal of regulations and practices discriminating against American citizens.

"I assure you we will continue these efforts in other countries along several lines, including formal diplomatic action, in an attempt to reduce tensions arising out of the Palestine hostilities and to raise standards of social development and human understanding."

B'nai B'rith said the restrictions have included refusal to honor visas for international travel, prohibiting trade between Arab business firms and American companies that are Jewish-owned or have Jewish executives and "in extreme instances," exclusion of Jewish U. S. military personnel from Middle East duty.

Philip M. Klusznick, B'nai B'rith president, said at Camp B'nai B'rith here that Mr. Dulles' statement "suggests an improvement over our government's previous position in the matter" but asserted its present "position falls short of giving equal protection abroad to all American citizens."

AID TO EGYPT

CAIRO — Egypt will receive $3.8 million in U. S. technical aid in the coming fiscal year, the Cairo weekly, "Akhbar el Yom" reported.

Assails Jews for Sparking Fight Against Segregation

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Retired Rear Adm. John G. Crommelin says the fight against segregation is sparked by "Felix Frankfurter, a Jew, Arthur Spanger, a Zionist Jew, and Sen. Herbert Lehman, a Marxist Jew."

Crommelin, who retired after a public reprimand from the Navy for leaking confidential documents while fighting armed forces unification policies in 1949, made his statement before a White Citizens Council rally last night.

"Don't you know it's their kind of people behind this whole mess?" Crommelin asked his audience after assailing Supreme Court Justice Frankfurter and the New York Senator. He refused to identify "Arthur Spanger" for reporters, and newspaper records provided no information.

Crommelin, red-faced, shouted: "If the Rock of Gibraltar—and by that I mean constitutional segregation — is taken off the books, Alabama would leave itself open to integration in the schools.

"We've got to keep this last frontier of the real Anglo-Saxon race — and if I am wrong, my name's Finkelstein!"

The admiral, who recently ran for the Senate as an independent against incumbent Sen. Hill and was thoroughly trounced, showed up to discuss a segregation amendment to the state constitution which will be submitted to the voters Aug. 28.

Mental Health Course

NEW YORK—Yeshiva University will share a Federal grant with two other major universities to develop mental health curricula for theological students.

The grant was made by the National Institute of Mental Health. The National Academy of Religion and Mental Health, which helped develop the program, will act as consultant.

CANADA MAY HELP

OTTOWA—The Canadian Government did not slam the door on Israel's request for the sale of jet fighter planes when it refused to supply the planes without support from other Western sources.

Observers note that Canada has contacted a number of European countries, including Britain, France and Italy, to jointly supply Israel with arms, among which would be Canadian-built Sabre-jets.

coming the Senate's unanimous adoption of the resolution.

The American Jewish Committee pointed out that the Senate "has rendered all Americans and the cause of Constitutional freedom a significant service, for it has made clear to the world that this nation honors its constitutional commitments to all of its citizens and its commitments to the charter of the United Nations." The Committee declared that the resolution underscored effectively "the fact that discrimination against one group of Americans necessarily invades the rights of all Americans."

The passage of the resolution by the Senate protesting discrimination directed against American citizens on the basis of religious affiliations was also commended by B'nai B'rith.

MONUMENTS ARE A JEWISH TRADITION

The custom of erecting a monument over the grave is as old as Hebrew history. No other type of memorial is in keeping with Jewish tradition.

Modern counterpart of the pillar of Rachael's time is today's monument of granite or marble. Reasonable in cost, visible all the year long, its sheer beauty will speak your love silently yet eloquently... down through eternity.

INFLATION WARNING

TEL AVIV — "Haboker," the General Zionist newspaper, warns that Israel is at the beginning of a new inflationary cycle as a result of the surrender of the manufacturers to trade union demands.

Women's Division Begins Campaign

The Women's Division phase of the 1956 campaign of the General Jewish Committee began last Tuesday with more than 150 volunteers attending the Workers' Conference at the Ledgemont Country Club.

The present situation in Israel and the urgent needs of the people there was explained and reviewed by Mrs. Charles Potter of Providence, who just recently returned from a trip to that country.

A member of the Board of Jewish Education and the Rhode Island League of Women Voters, she asserted that "Israel is continuing to make important forward strides in all fields despite the constant threat from neighboring Moslem countries." She warned that time is of essence and urged the workers to put forth extra effort this year in making the GJC campaign a successful one.

Preceding the talk by Mrs. Potter, the volunteers were briefed on the various phases of the forthcoming campaign, on their various duties in connection with the campaign and details of the campaign itself.

A highlight of the program were workshops conducted by the workers with chairmen of the various divisions and groups serving as moderators. The workshops, held after the address by the speaker, enabled the volunteers to review the campaign strategy and the methods to be employed in the fall drive for funds.

Those participating in the conference, in addition to the chairmen of the various divisions, were the Initial Gifts Workers, Vital Gift workers, M-Day co-chairmen and presidents of Jewish organizations in Greater Providence area.

Beth David Plans To Open School

Dr. Elkin announced that the Sunday School will open on Sept. 9. Registration for the Hebrew and Sunday School will be held on the afternoon of Aug. 27 from 1 to 1:30 P. M., and in the evenings of Aug. 29 and 30 from 8 to 9:30 P. M. Registration will be continued during the week between Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur.

Appointed to the registration committee were Mrs. Charles Kilberg, Mrs. Jordan Reuter, Mrs. Jessie Edenbaum, Max Tippe and Lester Aptel.

The slate of officers will be presented at the next meeting to be held on Wednesday at 8 P. M. The nomination committee includes Mrs. B. Auerbach, Mrs. Isadore Wolfe and Lester Aptel.

'Student Prince' Next at Warwick

"Student Prince," a perennial favorite with millions, moves into Warwick Musical Theatre on Monday to close an exciting month of dramatic and musical productions at the big theatre-in-the-round.

Included in the audience will be a large delegation from Attleboro, Mass., home town of Robert Rounseville, who plays the leading role of Prince Karl.

An all-star Broadway cast has been assembled to support the tenor, best known for his thrilling songs in the British film, "Tales of Hoffman."

Beth Am Ladies To Meet Monday

The Ladies Auxiliary of Temple Beth Am Warwick Jewish Community Association will meet Monday at 8 P. M. at the administration building of the Hillsgrove Airport. Miss Nagel, Warwick elementary school supervisor, will discuss subjects of interest to parents of grade school children. There will be a question period at which time such problems as double sessions, methods of teaching reading, and curriculum will be answered.

List Golf Tourney Entrants As Deadline Approaches

There seems to be as many last minute registrations for the Herald's golf tournament as there were pre-deadline entrants. So, as this was written, the Herald still could not publish a final list of the contestants in this year's tourney, which starts at Louisquisset on August 27.

Here is a partial list of the tournament golfers, including only those who have definitely registered, and not counting those who were intending to sign up as the deadline approached. Late comers will be accepted all this week, but this paper's news deadline does not permit listing this week the complete tourney list. Here's the partial list:

Milton Isserlis, Dr. Frank Goldstein, Burt Rosen, Dr. Jack Dreyfuss, Reuben Alexander, Dave Altman, Harold B. Aven, Sumner Alpert, Martin Buckler, Maynard S. Burt, Dr. Joseph G. Fishbein, Gerald Shaulson, Shelley Sumner, Jack Swartz, Walter Weissman, Arnold Winston, Melvin Bloom, Ed Beren.

Fred Abrams, Ben Abrams, S. Abrams, Sidney Cantoff, Dick Chase, Irv Chase, Lou Chase, Harry Chase, Sidney Feldman, Bill Gollis, Earl Horvitz, M. Horvitz, Norman Horvitz, Ruby Pollock, Harvey Cooper, Phil Shore, Ed Lief, Murray Trinkle, Dick Loebenberg, Justin Robinson and Walter Rutzman.

Trinkle, incidentally, is the defending champion in the championship division. There are four divisions, or flights, this year, although no assignments will be made in these groups until after everyone has completed the qualification round. And just to make sure everyone understands what it is all about, here is another brief look at the rules.

The qualifying round must be played between Sunday, August 27, and Sunday, September 2, at Louisquisset. It is suggested that this match be played in foursomes; at any rate, at least two contestants must play together. The name of all companions must be included on the score card, which must be sent immediately to the Herald office, 1117 Douglas Avenue, Providence.

That's important — get your score card in to the Herald office. Based solely on these score cards, the committee will determine the winners of low gross and low net honors in each of the four divisions. Eight trophies in all will be awarded in these categories. Before that, of course, the committee will divide all contestants into the four flights, according to handicaps. That is the last time handicaps will be used in this tourney.

Let's re-phrase that, to make sure it is perfectly clear. The committee will first take the names and handicaps of all contestants, and divide them into the four flights, according to relative ability. Then, after all the score cards for the qualifying round are in, it will be determined which golfers, in each flight, posted the cup-winning low scores.

The best eight golfers in each flight will survive the qualifying round, and advance to the match play phase of the tournament. Thirty-two, in all. They will be paired by the committee, and will play without the advantage or disadvantage of handicaps. The committee figures that expansion of the tourney to four flights assures that every competitor will be playing with someone in his own class. Thus, no handicaps.

There will be, of course, a trophy for the champion and runner up in each of the flights. Total awards—16.

That should about do it. Except, if you are one of those last minute men, this is your final chance. Call the Herald or one of the committee members (Dick Loebenberg, Murray Trinkle, Justin Robinson or Lou Chase) pronto. Then the big thing is to get out and play that qualifying round with other members of the tourney.

New School Term To Begin Sept. 9

The final enrollment period for the new school term will go on next week in most schools and continue through Sept. 5, according to an announcement of the Bureau of Jewish Education.

In accordance with a decision of the School Council, Jewish schools in the Greater Providence area will open on Sunday, Sept. 9. Parents whose children are beginning Sunday School or Hebrew School are especially urged to enroll their children in advance of the term opening.

For information about school enrollment and Jewish educational opportunities in the community call the office of the Bureau, Dexter 1-0956.

Ben Gurion: Non-Israeli Jews Possess 'Split Personalities'

JERUSALEM — The Jew in countries outside of Israel lives in two sometimes conflicting worlds and is a split personality, Premier David Ben Gurion said last week in an address to some 1,500 youths from 24 Western countries at a rally of students from various summer institutes.

Only in Israel, the Premier declared, can there be a Jewish life of their own production and their own creation. Speaking in English, Ben Gurion told his audience to weigh carefully whether they wished to give up their homes and comfort for difficulties, danger, tribulations and uncertain security in Israel.

One thing, however, is unobtainable outside of Israel, Ben Gurion insisted, and that is national Jewish dignity. The Premier received a tremendous ovation when he concluded his speech of welcome.

Eliahu Dobkin, head of the Jewish Agency's youth and pioneering department, welcomed the youths from abroad and the several hundred visitors and Hebrew University students. About half of the youths were from English-speaking countries and 300 from Spanish-speaking states. Of the total, 562 were planning to spend at least a year in Israel.

350 Youths From Abroad
 Dobkin gave a special welcome to some 330 youths who had come to give Israel a period of service in response to an appeal proclaimed at the World Zionist Congress three months ago. Ninety of them will stay for two years. He singled out for citation participants from the United States.

Dobkin disclosed that of 460 new settlements established since Israel's independence, 30 are inhabited by Western youth immigrants whose contribution he termed a great asset for Israel. He deplored the fact that only 21,000 of some 800,000 immigrants had come from those countries where 75% of the Jews were concentrated.

He further revealed that 18% of the young men and women who had participated in seminars in Israel in the last three years had returned to settle in Israel. He expressed the hope that seminar participants who returned home this year would convey to Jews in their countries that Israel was not only a haven for the persecuted, but a home for every Jew seeking a full life and where he is fully the master of his fate.

Dr. Joseph Burg, Minister of Posts, told the young people to resolve their doubts before coming to Israel, because "Israel is no place for doubters."

New Air Force Regulation Permits Holy Observances

WASHINGTON — The United States Army and Air Force, acting as a result of efforts initiated by the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America Armed Forces Division, have ruled that the Jewish Sabbath shall henceforth have equal religious status for Jewish servicemen as does Sunday for their Christian comrades. It was announced by Reuben E. Gross, Chairman of the Armed Forces Division. This historic step, incorporated in revised regulations, marks the first time in which the military establishments has effectively implemented the policy of official parity for the Jewish Sabbath.

Besides its great moral value, the ruling offers a major gain for Jewish religious life in the service. It will greatly facilitate Sabbath and Holiday observances by Jewish personnel. The revised regulations direct commanding officers to excuse Jewish men from duty on the Sabbath upon request, subject to the same military exigencies and requirements as to total duty time as apply in the case of Sunday religious observance.

MAC Condemns Both Israel and Jordan

JERUSALEM—The Israel-Jordan Mixed Armistice Commission, in two separate resolutions, condemned both states for an incident in which Jordan anti-aircraft batteries shot and forced down an Israeli plane.

The Israelis protested their condemnation, on the grounds that the MAC had not proved that the plane was an army aircraft and, therefore, should not have been in the area.

To Recognize Leadership

American Jewish community leaders seek no glory. They contribute their time and money generously, merely for the pleasure of seeing American Jewish life strengthened and Jewish institutions functioning. However, beginning with this year, some of them will be marked for special distinction. The Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds is introducing a medal as a token of recognition of lay and professional leaders for outstanding achievement in Jewish communal service.

Eligible for the award—which will be presented annually—are men and women who have demonstrated constructive leadership in Jewish communal activities, especially in the achievement of cooperation among Jewish organizations. The medal, which will be known as the Edwin Rosenberg Award, carries Mr. Rosenberg's name in recognition of the role he played in bringing about the merger of HIAS, United Service for New Americans, and the emigration department of the J. D. C. into a single organization, now known as United Hias Service.

The award is financed by Ben Touster, former president of HIAS, and later of the United Hias Service, who admires Mr. Rosenberg's devotion to ending overlapping functions among Jewish organizations.

The projects for which the award will be given may involve the smallest as well as the largest communities. Small communities will not be handicapped in consideration for the award by the size of the project.

Jewish communities and individual Jewish community leaders are being asked by the CJFWF to submit entries and recommendations for the award before September 15. The recommendations must state specifically in what manner the leadership of the persons recommended has been so pre-eminent as to merit consideration. The first presentation of the medal will be made at the national convention of the CJFWF, which will take place in Toronto in November.

San Francisco Jewry — Solid, Firm and Yet Ultra-Modern

By Saul Carson

Six years ago, Earl Raab, writing a profile of the Jewish community of San Francisco, quoted Jews in the Golden Gate city as insisting — some boastfully, some "sadly" shaking their heads—that "there is no city like San Francisco." In his brief visit, this reporter did not meet the shakers of heads—which does not deny that they may exist, perhaps even in stronger numbers than Raab found. But the sentiment heard from those interviewed is very definite — for them, there simply is "no city like San Francisco" as far as Jewish life and Jewish community activity is concerned. Atop its hills, San Francisco — Jewish San Francisco — sits firmly, solidly, full of confidence, steeped in tradition, yet ultra-modern in outlook; as cosmopolitan and genteel as the rest of the town, yet activity concerned about its Jewish character, including Israel in spite of a strongly entrenched group extremely active in the American Council for Judaism.

It is not at all difficult to understand, even during a brief visit, what it is that gives San Francisco that sense of utter security. Most of the early Jewish arrivals in this country — including the group that first came to New Amsterdam a little over 300 years ago — came into communities already settled. The Jews came as a minority, and had to work their way upward toward community acceptance. Not so in San Francisco. Here, in 1849, after the Gold Rush had started, two separate Jewish congregations held Yom Kippur services. The Jews were there as early as any of the other North Americans. During the early 1850's, when the Gold Rush tide was its strongest, Jewish groups and congregations appeared all over the State of California.

Growing Community

By 1865, 22 San Francisco firms had signed a pledge to keep their business closed on the Sabbath. As San Francisco grew toward supremacy in mercantile and banking activity, the Jews grew with it. They were part of the life of the overall community from the beginning — they are part of the overall community today.

The president of the newly-merged organization which combines the old Welfare Fund and the old Federation into the Jewish Welfare Federation — that leader is president of the board of trustees of Stanford University. Another prominent Jewish leader is a member of the Board of Regents of the University of California. The chairman of the Jewish Community Relations Council, a woman, is a prominent city judge. And so on, down the line. San Francisco Jews are not merely dabbling at being either community-minded or Jewish-oriented; they are both, and successful at both simultaneously.

SET MEETING DATE

JERUSALEM — The next meeting of the Small Zionist Actions Committee will open here September 10, it was decided here at a session of the Actions Committee praesidium. It was further decided that the 33-member Small Actions Committee will meet quarterly to hear reports of the World Zionist executive.

The fact that the Welfare Fund and the Federation did merge, consolidating into one central group the fund-raising, budgeting, and social planning for the entire Jewish community — that fact alone shows that San Francisco Jewry, in spite of being solid, is not static. It thinks, and acts, in modern terms.

Yet tradition plays a very vital role in the community. The leadership is almost entirely in the hands of the old families, descendants of Central European immigrants, many of whom had come "around the Horn" in the early days, some of whom had trekked across the American plains and the Rockies to the new golden land of old California.

The Role of Philanthropy

Jewish philanthropy in San Francisco is almost as old as the congregations founded in the days of the forty-niners. The Eureka Benevolent Society was founded in 1850; it still functions along ultra-modern lines today under the name of the Jewish Family Service. In some circles, you are told that there is a certain amount of covert, as well as overt, anti-Semitism. But most people will tell you that anti-Semitism in San Francisco is at a very low minimum.

Because traditionalism is strongly entrenched, San Francisco as a whole shows neither high peaks nor low valleys when its philanthropic contributions are charted over a period of years. In 1948, when most Jewish communities went enthusiastically wild with contributions to the overseas Jewish causes, San Francisco did contribute about $200,000 above its usual quota, but it did not, in the words of one top executive, "get hysterical." On the other hand, when the UJA, in 1954, asked for special funds to help consolidate Israel's foreign loans, San Francisco sent in a check for $1,000,000.

Such reactions are considered there "typical" of San Francisco. An executive explains: "We are a business community; businessmen don't act by leaps and bounds; when the emergency is real, they act accordingly; but they don't let themselves get panicked, one way or the other."

The essential unity of the community might be illustrated by referent to the strong Council for Judaism movement in the town. When the Council was formed in 1943, 1,400 of its reported 2,500 national members were reported to be San Franciscans. Yet very few of these anti-Zionists withdrew support from the Welfare Fund; perhaps a dozen stopped giving; in one year, anti-Zionists withheld as much as about a quarter of a million dollars from the Welfare Fund; but again, no one "panicked." Top leaders of the community have visited Israel several times; the UJA and other pro-Israel causes get, on the whole, what they expect to get, in dollars and cents, from San Francisco.

Population Growth Slow

The Jewish population has not grown dramatically as it has in other cities. The 1938 Jewish census showed a Jewish population of about 38,000. Today, while the city itself has grown somewhat, to an overall population of a little over 800,000, there are still only about 51,000 Jews in San Francisco. Some of that increase is due simply to natural accretion. About 6,000 migrants came from Hitler-dominated lands during the early years of the Nazi regime when emigration was still possible. Again, San Francisco Jewry was in the lead; it was among the first in the country — some say it was first outside New York — to form a Committee for Service to Emigrants.

There has been growth in some suburban communities in the last decade. But those new Jewish residents in suburbia are not San Franciscans; they have come from many other parts of the U. S. A., by-passing San Francisco altogether. Yet San Francisco's Jewish community assumes responsibility for the new Jewish residents; helps them develop Jewish institutions; extends to them the services of the older health and welfare and educational agencies. In one area where seven years ago there was one synagogue, there are now four Temples, two Reform, two Conservative. Some say that's about two Temples too many; nevertheless, the new congregations flourish. And over the entire area, metropolitan as well as suburban, Jewish education, especially for children, flourishes also.

There are some in San Francisco who tell you that there is much inter-marriage, much assimilationism among the older Jewish families. Others will point to continuity of Jewish interest and tradition in those old families. One points out that today's president of the Jewish Welfare Federation, a descendant of one of the old families, started to learn how to work in the Jewish community when he was only a young man of 24 or 25, fresh out of law school, when he got his training in Jewish civic work at the old Y. M. H. A.

San Francisco Jews point out proudly that there is no "ghetto" in their town. Jews live where they choose to live. True, the old Jewish Community Center—formerly the Y. M. H. A. — has lost many of its former Jewish neighbors; but Jews point out that the Center continues to operate in the same community, although about 25% or 30% of the people it serves now are not Jewish.

A few years ago, it was predicted by some students of Jewry that there would be a swing in San Francisco away from the old, traditional leadership to a newer element, perhaps composed of East European Jews. So far, that prediction has not come true.

There certainly are changes taking place. The Federation-Welfare Fund merger is the most important recent example. Now, for the first time, all three major functions of community activity — fund-raising, budgeting and social planning — are housed together. Inside the merged group, committees are at work on new plans. It is much too early to foresee the shape of the new social, health and welfare plans. But of this much, even the cursory reporter must be certain: San Francisco will find a formula for combining the old, conservative, traditional with new forms and new formats of social service.

San Francisco Jewry, atop its hills, is as solid as the rocks guarding its Golden Gate. But it is neither solid nor static. In its beautiful setting, it has all the vigor of modern adaptability resting on a firm foundation as old as the Republic of which it is a part.

Anti-Semitism Is Gaining in Europe

PARIS—Anti-Semitism is gaining ground in France and arousing increased concern in West Germany, the European office of the American Jewish Committee disclosed here after completion of a survey of anti-Semitism in 12 Western European countries. The survey was based on the opinions of Jewish community leaders throughout Europe.

There has been a noticeable increase in unfavorable comments about Jews, in the appearance on street walls of signs like "Jew, Go Home," and publications with anti-Semitic tendencies have, moreover, appeared in France in recent months, the report said.

In West Germany, the AJC survey noted, many Germans are now warning, with increased urgency, of the need to take vigorous counter-action against a renewed flow of neo-Nazi literature, against the German public's tendency to excuse and ignore the evils of Hitlerism, and against the infiltration of former Nazis into important posts. They point out that present democratic progress in West Germany has been made in a period of outstanding economic prosperity and political stability, and that the German public's attitude toward democracy has not yet been tested by difficulties, such as those which beset the Weimar Republic in the 1920's for example.

Outside France and West Germany, anti-Semitic elements constitute a "nuisance" but pose no serious problem at the present time, according to the reports received by AJC from the European Jewish communities. In addition to France and West Germany, the survey included Austria, Belgium, Great Britain, Greece, Italy, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Spain, Sweden and Switzerland.

"Open anti-Semitism is still considered a 'political mark of Cain' in post-war Europe, a fact recognized even by the anti-Semites themselves," the report continued. "As a result, they prefer to work anonymously and under cover, or deny their anti-Semitism even while engaged in anti-Semitic activities."

MARRIED TOO YOUNG

TEL AVIV—A Yemenite rabbi was sentenced to 50 days imprisonment for performing a marriage ceremony in which the bride was a 15-year-old girl. Israeli law forbids the marriage of women under the age of 17.

Mixed Groups Are 'Zion' Shipmates

NEW YORK—A group of non-Jewish high school students from the Middle West and a group of college student members of the Jewish Agency's Summer Institute were shipmates recently on their recent voyage from New York to Naples aboard the Israeli liner "Zion."

The Bloomfield High School group from Michigan are on a study tour of several European countries, and the Agency group are on a similar tour of Israel.

The high schoolers end their European tour at Gibraltar where they will board the "Zion's" sister-ship, "Israel" for the homeward voyage to New York.

In a letter to a friend, the group leader described the "Zion" as "homelike."
