Jewry Split Over Moral Code For Public School Classes

NEW YORK — Three major Jewish groups testified here at public hearings, at the Board of Education on a proposed Board statement regarding "The Development of Moral and Spiritual Ideals in Public Schools," indicating various degrees of opposition. Two of the groups noted that they would approve the statement if certain deletions were made.

Opposition was expressed by

Leo Pfeffer of the American Jewish Congress. He warned that the proposal "could well lead to the imposition of a religious test for public school teachers." Pfeffer, author of books on church-state problems, insisted that adoption of the statement on the teaching of religious values might "make inevitable the introduction of religion into every phase of school life." The American Jewish Congress said that religious instruction should remain the responsibility of home, church and synagogue.

Committee In Favor

Rabbi S. Andhil Finebreg, representing the American Jewish Committee, criticized the statement and urged the deletion of a number of passages which, he said, violate the right of religious dissent. However, he gave "qualified endorsement" to the statement which he found to be a "significant advance" on the original draft offered last Summer.

The New York Board of Rabbis, one of the leading groups in opposing the original statement, also found this statement an improvement. The Board represented by Rabbi Harold Gordon, said: "We believe if the statement is modified and if the program is carried out with nonsectarianism we would be glad to give it our approval." He asked for six changes in the text.

Brier Reports GJC Campaign At $357,417

Benjamin Brier, general campaign chairman of the 1956 General Jewish Committee drive, today announced that the results of the first report luncheon held last week have brought the total contributions to $357,417—a substantial increase over last year at this date.

This total—which includes the Women's Division — represents only 883 cards, Brier said.

Henry J. Hassenfeld, GJC president, said that he is pleased so far with the response in this year's campaign and contributions are running ahead of last year. However, he pointed out that cov-

Leaders in Area Divisions Predict Success in GJC Drive

Predictions of the best campaign in the history of the General Jewish Committee for the Area Division were made today by Alter Boyman, chairman of that important division in the 1956 fund-raising drive now underway.

Boyman said that the entire Area group has "caught the overwhelming enthusiasm manifested by the GJC leaders and workers in the Greater Providence area and is determined to surpass previous years' results by substantial margins."

With the continual movement of Jewish families to the suburbs, the Area division has taken on an added importance in the final results of the 1956 campaign. Boyman, who is being assisted by Jacob I. Felder, associate chairman, pointed out that all of the leaders and workers in the Area Division are cognizant of the urgency of this year's campaign and are sparing no effort in making this drive one of the most successful ever conducted.

The Cranston division, which now boasts a large Jewish population, has made plans to conduct an intensive drive in that city under the chairmanships of Harold Ratush and Jerry Fish. They said that a large committee has been appointed to work with them with the aim of doing the "best possible job." This group also will join with the Greater Providence D-Day division on Sunday, October 21, to cover the Cranston cards.

Increased enthusiasm also is evident in the Warwick area, which also is the scene of a large influx of Jewish families over the past year. Jack Mossberg once again is taking over the chairmanship of that group and said that all indications are that the Warwick Division will "do more than its share in this vital campaign." Ben Hazen and a hard-working committee are conducting the Bristol-Warren Area drive and Hazen announced that volunteers are set to conduct a thorough drive in those towns to assure increased contributions to the 1956 GJC campaign.

In East Greenwich, veteran communal worker Herman Silverman is once again chairman of that division. Silverman has assured GJC leaders that this year East Greenwich will "take care of its responsibilities to the people of Israel and the local community better than ever." "We anticipate increased contributions all around and should surpass last year's mark," Silverman added.

Max Margolis and William Deutch, who have for many years turned in magnificent results, once again are co-chairmen of the West Warwick division. They also have assured the GJC officials that this town in combination with East Greenwich will "far surpass last year's results."

Neumann Heads National ZOA

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Dr. Emanuel Neumann of New York was unanimously elected president of the Zionist Organization of America at the closing of its 59th annual convention held here.

Dr. Neumann, a member of the Jewish Agency Executive, served as ZOA president in the two year period from 1947-1949. He is also now head of the Herzl Institute, the Agency's cultural center in New York. A life-long Zionist, the newly-elected president is among

Betty Dubro Returns to Grand Opera As Diva In Monterey, Mexico Festival

In far-off Monterey, Mexico, the grand opera season is drawing to a close. Tomorrow will mark the final performance of the two-week festival, which is featuring operatic stars and other artists imported from Italy for the occasion.

Only one American is appearing in Monterey opera house, and she is a mezzo soprano who resides at 25 Kenilworth Way, Pawtucket. The name is Mrs. Robert M. Shoor—better known in opera, in the theatre and on the concert stage as Betty Dubro.

Being the only American with the Monterey Opera Company is hardly a drawback to Miss Dubro. She is featured diva in the festival, and as such was permitted to choose one of the two operas presented during the two-week season.

The vehicle she selected was "La Forza del Destino," by Verdi. The other opera, one she had to learn this past summer, was "La Favorita", which has not played in this country in some 20 years.

Miss Dubro had been away from the theatre for three years prior to her current trip to Mexico. She last appeared on Broadway in the musical "My Darling Aida", in which she alternated in the leading role with Dorothy Sarnoff. Because of her family ties here in Rhode Island she was reluctant to assume the role on a full time basis, an arrangement was made whereby Miss Dubro sang in four performances weekly — Monday, the Wednesday matinee, Friday and the Saturday matinee. "Aida" ran from October until February.

The resumption of her singing career came about because of some friends from Italy whom she met while appearing in South America seven years ago. One of these friends, an opera star in his own right, came to the United States to appear at the Metropolitan Opera Company in New York. Remembering Miss Dubro from their weeks of singing together in Caracas, Venezuela, he contacted her and invited her to see one of his performances.

The Shoors accepted the invitation, and after acquaintances had been renewed backstage, the Italian singer asked if Betty would be interested in singing in opera again if he could secure the mezzo's role for her at the Monterey festival. The assurance that she would consider such an offer was all he needed. The formal invitation to appear at Monterey followed shortly.

When the Shoors flew to Mexico five days in advance of the open-announced today by Alfred Abelson, chairman in charge of plans for the event, which will be conducted at the main Center building on Wednesday evening, Oct. 24, at 7 P. M.

Certificates of merit will be presented to all boys who participated in last season's Center sports activities, and special awards will be presented to teams with highest standings in the basketball, touch football and baseball leagues.

Guest speakers, including Gov. Dennis Roberts and leading sports figures, will be included on the evening's program; an informal dinner will be served and exciting door prizes will be awarded to some lucky boys present.

Admission to the affair will be open to all boys who are Center members and their fathers at no charge.

The committee in charge of plans includes Mr. Abelson; awards — Everett Abrams and Eli Diamond; refreshments — Leo Borenstein, Harry Feldstein and Jerry Saltzer; certificates — Sydney Green and Ira Schreiber; trophies — Leonard Chaset; reception — Ralph Winn, Myron Gorodetsky and Hyman Hochman.

Powers and Ewing Explain Party Planks

Stating that the Democratic platform favored arms for Israel "to make good on the American government's pledge of Israeli security," Attorney General William E. Powers explained the Democratic positions on issues affecting Israel, at an election symposium on Oct. 3 held under the auspices of Plantations Lodge, B'nai B'rith, at Temple Ahavath Shalom.

Bayard Ewing, State Republican Party leader, answered that, "such shipments of arms would place Israel in even greater danger, and that Israel should rely more on the American guarantee to defend her independence."

the top ranking figures in the world Zionist movement.

At its closing session, the convention voted "in the interest of a more efficient and effective conduct of the organization" to consolidate the National Executive Committee and the National Administrative Council into a single body to be known as the National Executive Council. Abraham A. Goodman of New York was elected chairman of the newly formed Executive Council and Rabbi Max Nussbaum of Hollywood, associate chairman.

To Head Division—An Optometry Division was formed for the 1956 campaign of the General Jewish Committee after a preliminary meeting last week between several leading optometrists; Benjamin Brier, general campaign chairman, and Joseph Galkin, executive director of the GJC. Brier appointed Dr. Bernard J. Bernstein as chairman of the division, and Doctors Morton Silverman and Richard Albert as associate chairmen.

ing of the season, Betty had with her all her costumes and accessories, including wigs, jewels, shoes, hair pieces, buns and the like. Most of them were made in Italy.

With no costuming problems to be met in Mexico, and stage business having been learned in advance, she expected two piano rehearsals and one general rehearsal before the opening performance. The Verdi opera was presented the first week, and "La Favorita" the second and last.

Mrs. Shoor, to revert to her family name, made her debut in "Il Trovatore" in Milan, Italy in 1947. She was a featured singer (Gloria) with the Phil Spitalny all-girl orchestra, and appeared on a concert tour in the New York City Center, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Washington and other cities, as well as South America.

Once under the option of Mike Todd, Betty was singing in opera (still her first love) and on TV at the time she married. Todd lost the option long ago, and Husband Bob now has assumed the duties of business manager—at least for this trip to Monterey.

erage of cards appears to be lagging and urged that this phase of the campaign be stepped up so as to assure the continuance of an intensive and rapid campaign.

At the same time, both Hassenfeld and Brier urged a continuance of "increased giving in view of the critical situation in Israel and the Middle East and additional needs of beneficiary agencies of the GJC."

The second in a series of report luncheons was held yesterday at the Narragansett Hotel. Results of that report are expected to increase substantially the combined total of campaign contributions.

Change Dates for JCC Dance Classes

Changes in arrangements for adult dance classes in the Jewish Community Center's main Center building were announced this week by Arthur Eisenstein, JCC program director.

Classes in the meringue, the cha-cha, and other Latin-American dances will be conducted by Roy Duskun, with Monday evening classes for beginners and Tuesday evening classes for advanced students beginning the week of Oct. 22, instead of Oct. 15 as originally announced.

Beginners' classes will be conducted on Monday evenings from 9:15 to 10:30 P. M. and advanced classes on Tuesday evenings at the same hour.

Adults interested in joining the classes are urged to register in the main building.

Mothers' Alliance Installs Officers

Mrs. Jack Melamut was installed as president of the Jewish Mothers' Alliance at a meeting held on Monday. Mrs. Morris G. Silk was installing officer.

Also installed were Mrs. Rebecca Shapiro, Mrs. Morris Adelman, and Miss Sara Rodinsky, first, second and third vice-presidents, respectively; Mrs. Yetta Outler, treasurer; Mrs. Edward Kagan and Mrs. Getzel Zaidman, corresponding secretaries; Mrs. Kagan, financial secretary; Mrs. Nathan Edelman, recording secretary; Mrs. J. Cantoff and Mrs. S. Horowitz, trustees, and Mrs. B. Yankin and Mrs. Morris Lecht, publicity.

Named honorary presidents were Mesdames Harry Weiner, Lecht, and Aaron Cleiman. Mrs. L. Fishbein and Mrs. A. Tobin are honorary vice-presidents, and Mrs. Zaidman is honorary treasurer.

It was announced that money was sent to various Israeli orphan's organizations including Dinkins Orphan's Home, General Israel Orphan's Home for Girls, and Zion War Orphans.

A coffee hour followed the meeting. Miss Rodinsky was hostess.

Announce Program Of Sports Activities

Abe Lobel, physical education director of the Jewish Community Center, announces that Center sports activities are now under way, with some new programs for JCC members already operating and many more on the way.

At the main Center building, the following schedule will prevail:

Touch football — boys 11 to 15 years, Monday afternoons, 3 to 5:30 P. M.; boys 8 to 11 years, Wednesday afternoons, 3 to 5:30 P. M.

Men's Sunday Gym — outdoor handball and basketball, 10 A. M. to Noon.

Sunday clubs' athletics — for Sunday Club members, 2 to 4 P. M.

The Center's outdoor hard-surfaced playing field is now being equipped for outdoor volleyball, basketball, paddle tennis, shuffleboard, hop scotch and other games. A full schedule of afternoon activities for this area will soon be announced.

At the Center's South Side Branch building, gym activities for men will get under way Sunday morning from 10 A. M. to noon. Herman Rosenberg, chairman of the South Side health and physical education committee, announces that the program will include handball, basketball, gym activities, weight lifting and a series of health talks. Lockers, showers and a steam room will be available to participants, with the program directed by Anthony Neri, gym director.

Additional gym activities at the South Side building will be included on the following schedule:

Junior girls' gym (age 8-12) — Tuesdays, 3:30 to 5 P. M.

Junior boys' gym (age 8-12) — Thursdays, 3:30 to 5 P. M.

Junior high boys' basketball — Mondays and Wednesdays, 3:30 to 5 P. M.

Senior high boys' basketball — Wednesdays and Thursdays, 7 to 9 P. M.

JCC Sunday Clubday To Open This Week

"Sunday Clubday", the Jewish Community Center's year-round Sunday series for boys and girls from six through sixth grade, opens at both JCC buildings this Sunday afternoon at 2 P. M., and will continue weekly until the end of May.

One of the Center's prime children's activities, the Sunday clubs offer to boys and girls a well-rounded, supervised small group activity which includes sports and games, arts and crafts, dramatics, music, holiday festival celebrations and many special events, in addition to the beginnings of group organization.

Club members are grouped in some 20 clubs, according to age, and are under the guidance of trained assistants.

All-over supervision of the Sunday Clubday programs are the responsibilities of Peter Rosedale at the main Center building, and Miss Sandra Crovitz at the South Side Branch building. Abe Lobel and Anthony Neri supervise athletic activities, while Mrs. Lee Spruyt will direct the arts and crafts program.

Membership in the Centers' Sunday Clubday programs is open to all Center members at no additional registration fee. Children may be registered at either Center building this Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Greenberg and their daughter, Janis, have moved from 285 Auburn Street to their new home at 47 Coulters Road, Cranston.

Is Tea Hostess

Mrs. Milton Rose of 463 Washington Street, South Attleboro, Mass. was hostess in her home at a tea which she gave in honor of Miss Marjorie Lesnick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lesnick of 19 Richter Street.

Miss Lesnick will become the bride of Mr. Norman G. Bader on Jan. 20, 1957.

Cohen-Ludman

A 7 P. M. ceremony at the Crown Hotel was the scene on Sunday for the wedding of Miss Norman Ludman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Ludman of 55 Higgins Avenue, and Carl Cohen, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. Cohen of 70 Marbury Avenue, Pawtucket. Rabbi Morton Berkowitz, assisted by Cantor Pressman, officiated. A reception at the Hotel followed.

Mr. and Mrs. Ludman gave their daughter in marriage. She was gown in full length Chantilly lace over satin, designed with a portrait neckline, short sleeves and a fitted bodice. She carried a white orchid and stephanotis on a Bible.

Mrs. Albert Goldstein of Philadelphia was matron of honor for her cousin. She was attired in full length mauve lace over pink satin, styled in princess lines with three-quarter length sleeves. Her bouquet was a cascade of autumn flowers. Anita Rae Ludman and Diane Marie Ludman, the bride's neices, were flower girls. They wore pink nylon dresses with skirts of accordin pleats, and carried baskets of rose petals.

Ben Cohen was best man for his brother. Ushers were Dr. Harold Ludman and Nathan Ludman, brothers of the bride; Leo Pasteur, Aaron Goldstein, Donald Karp and Paul Lincoln.

The mother of the bride chose a ciel blue taffeta, cocktail length dress with a lace panel front and a portrait neckline. Mrs. Cohen wore cocktail length mauve lace. Both wore orchid corsages.

After a wedding trip to Miami Beach, the couple will reside at 194 Jewett Street.

Third Child Born

Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Dwares of 120 Eighth Street announce the birth of their third child and son, Curtis, on Sept. 28. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Morris Gold of 18 Gallatin Street and Mr. and Mrs. Philip Dwares of 236 Fourth Street.

Sheldon L. Phillips, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Phillips of 193 Tenth Street, has left for Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas, to begin his four-year enlistment.

Karas-Globus

At an evening ceremony last Saturday in the Haitian Room of the Taunton Inn, Taunton, Mass., Miss Laurel Linnet Globus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Globus of Rehoboth, Mass., became the bride of Aaron Bernard Karas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Karas of New York City and Kauneonga Lake, N. Y. A reception followed the evening ceremony in the main ballroom of the Taunton Inn.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, wore a gown of imported Chantilly lace over blush pink taffeta with scalloped portrait neckline and short sleeves, and a bouffant skirt of lace and tulle terminating in a chapel train. Her finger tip veil of imported silk illusion was caught to a hat of silk illusion and alencon lace with scattered sequins and pearls. She carried her sister's prayerbook with starlight white and briarcliff pink roses and shower of stephanotis in cascade effect.

Mrs. Martin Knell of Warwick was matron of honor for her sister. Miss Jane Quinton of Providence and New York City and Miss Helene Globus, cousin of the bride, of Norwich, Conn. and New York City were bridesmaids. The attendants wore identical jade green Italian taffeta waltz length gowns, with sabrina necklines, fitted bodices with bouffant skirts, and matching headpieces. Their flowers were bronze and yellow chrysanthemums in cascade effect. Miss Susan M. Knell, dressed in pink with a headpiece of pink roses and carrying a colonial bouquet of pastel flowers, was flower girl for her aunt.

Engaged—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Newman of Oak Hill Avenue, Pawtucket announce the engagement of their daughter, Patty Lynne, to Melvin George Alperin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Alperin of Nottingham Way, Pawtucket. Miss Newman is a student at Bryant College. Mr. Alperin is in his Junior year at Dartmouth College and a member of Pi Lambda Phi fraternity. The wedding date has been set for Aug. 11, 1957.

Daniel Karas of New York City and Kauneonga Lake, N. Y. was best man for his brother. Dr. Martin Knell, brother-in-law of the bride of Warwick, Harvey Saffier of Hartford, Conn. and New York City, and Eugene I. Gordon of Boston, Mass. were ushers. Michael E. Knell, the bride's nephew, was ring bearer.

The mother of the bride wore a cognac Chantilly lace princess style dress with matching accessories.

Miss Annemarie Berchtold

To Conduct Ballet Classes at Center

Ballet instruction, for third grade boys and girls and above, will be offered at the main Center building on Wednesday afternoons, from 4 to 5 P. M. Classes will be directed by Miss Annemarie Berchtold, outstanding ballet artist from Augsburg, Bavaria, who has appeared in solo and ensemble ballet performances throughout Europe. First course for ballet students will include 10 sessions, beginning Oct. 24 and continuing through Jan. 2.

Classes in Creative Dancing for young children will be conducted by Miss Barbara Ann Scott, who has studied widely with outstanding instructors of the dance, including Martha Graham, Nita Rom and Nona Schurman. Pre-school children's classes will be conducted on Monday afternoons, from 4 to 5 P. M. and classes for kindergarten through second grade will be conducted on Tuesday afternoons from 4 to 5 P. M., beginning the week of Oct. 22.

Miss Scott will also conduct classes in the classic modern dance for third and fourth graders on Thursday afternoons, 4 to 5 P. M., and fifth and sixth graders, Friday afternoons, 4 to 5 P. M.

Classes in modern dance for teen agers will be conducted if sufficient interest is indicated. Parents interested in enrolling their teen agers in modern dance classes are asked to contact Mr. Eisenstein, at the main Center office.

Ballroom dance for junior high school boys and girls will be conducted at the South Side Branch building by Roy Duskin, well known local dance instructor. Classes will be held on Wednesday evenings, at 7:30 P. M., beginning Nov. 7.

Ballet Russe Here Oct. 27

Two different programs will be featured with the appearance here on Saturday, Oct. 27, of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo at the Veterans Memorial Auditorium.

The matinee performance at 2:30 P. M. will include "The Minkado," "The Blue Bird," and "Coppelia" in three acts. The evening program at 8:30 P. M. will feature "Les Sylphides," "Pas de Deux Classique," "Sombrosos," and "Gaité Parisienne."

Performers in the Oct. 27 programs include Novak, Borowska, Chouteau, Howard, and Igor Yousekevitch.

sories and a corsage of green cymbidium orchids. The mother of the groom chose a blue satin and lace sheath dress with matching accessories and a corsage of pink cymbidium orchids.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Massachusetts and did graduate work at Rhode Island College of Education. The groom was graduated from Cornell University and received his master of science degree from the University of Massachusetts. He is presently attending the Brooklyn School of Law. He served as a lieutenant during the Korean War.

After a wedding trip to the Thousand Islands and Canada, the couple will live in Fleetwood, N. Y.

Sisters, Niece Reunited

Three sisters residing in Providence and New Bedford were reunited recently with a niece whom they had not seen for 35 years. The meeting came about through the visit to Providence of Mrs. Brana Fincheltub of Venezuela to see her aunts, Mrs. Philip Gabrilowitz of 195 Alabama Avenue; Mrs. Abe Weinstein of 33 Glenham Street, and Mrs. M. L. Schwartz of New Bedford.

Mrs. Fincheltub, who visited her family in Israel for two months prior to her trip to Providence, was the house guest of Mrs. Gabrilowitz and Mrs. Weinstein during her two week stay here. A farewell party was given in her honor before her departure last Saturday for South America.

Kay-Lang

Carrying a cascade bouquet of white fuji mums, Miss Joyce Lang, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lang of 43 Ausdale Road, was married last Sunday to Irwin M. Kay, son of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Kay of 22 Emeline Street. Rabbi Julius Goldberg performed the 6:30 P. M. ceremony at the Sheraton Biltmore Hotel. One hundred fifty guests attended the reception which followed at the Hotel.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a gown of ivory peau de soie and re-embroidered Alencon lace, designed with a scoop neckline trimmed with seed pearls and sequins, a fitted bodice, and bouffant skirt which ended in a chapel length train. Her French illusion veil fell from a crown of sequins and pearls.

Miss Bea Parness was maid of honor. She wore a flame peau de soie gown, styled with a tucked bodice and a floor length bouffant skirt. Her veil was attached to a crown of sequins and pearls.

William Rosenberg was best man, and ushers were Burt Abrams, Sidney Goldsmith, Bruce Lang, Charles Gorman, Fred Resh, Marvin Broomfield, Harold Kaplan and Bernard Spigel.

After a wedding trip to Bermuda, the couple will reside at 281 Doyle Avenue.

RESUME CLASSES

Sunday School classes for the Eastward Jewish Center resumed at the Kent Heights School on Pawtucket Avenue, East Providence. Frank Sleprow, Sunday school chairman, announced that the school enrollment has doubled since last year. Anyone interested in enrolling a child may contact him at GE 4-0977.

Mrs. Aaron Bernard Karas, who was married last Saturday evening in the Haitian Room of the Taunton Inn, Taunton, Mass., is the former Miss Laurel Linnet Globus.

JCC Announces New Activities Schedule

A new schedule of activities for junior and senior high school members of the Jewish Community Center has been announced for the main Center building, 170 Sessions Street, and will become effective immediately.

For junior high schoolers, the Tween Boys' and Girls' Groups meet regularly on Thursday evenings at 7:15 P. M. Under the direction of Miss Irene Mungui and Leonard Yanku, teen workers, these groups are now planning for a series of bi-weekly Saturday night dances and a variety of social, educational, inter-city and community service activities.

Canteen activities for Junior High Schoolers will begin Sunday afternoon, Oct. 14, from 3 to 5 P. M. at the main Center building and will feature table games, informal dancing and refreshments.

Two new organizations for high school boys and girls who are Center members will hold their organization meetings Monday evening at 7:15 P. M. Trips, special vacation programs, Saturday night dances, athletic leagues, and many special activities are among the items being planned for this group. Canteen activities for senior highers will be held on Tuesday evenings from 7 to 9 P. M. at the main Center building.

South Side Center To Register Classes

Registration for adult dance classes and adult art classes at the Jewish Community Center's South Providence Branch building will open this week, it was announced by Sol Kutner, Branch director.

Adult art classes in drawing and painting for beginners and advanced students will be conducted by Norman A. Surdat, Providence artist and a graduate of Rhode Island School of Design. Mr. Surdat's classes will be conducted on Monday evenings at 8:30 P. M. beginning Oct. 22 and continuing for seven sessions.

Classes in the latest Latin-American dances including the cha-cha and meringue will be presented by Roy Duskin at the South Side building on Wednesday evenings at 9 o'clock beginning Nov. 7.

Adults interested in joining the above classes are urged to register at the South Providence Branch building or call ST 1-2080.

Colorful, Vigorous Mrs. Halprin

Closeup

 By OLIVER PILAT

Since her job, the most far-reaching one ever held by an American woman in international Jewish welfare work, requires frequent shuttling across the Atlantic, Rose Halprin reads a lot of mystery stories.

She reads them to pass the time and to conserve her energy. On a transatlantic flight about a year ago, she was absorbed in a cerebral and socially-solid mystery by an English woman writer—the kind she likes best—when somebody brought over a copy of Gamal Nasser's pamphlet: "Egypt's Liberation: The Philosophy of the Revolution."

Because the pamphlet fell within the field of her interest, she felt obliged to glance at it. One glance was enough—it spoiled her trip. Even today, the recollection flaws her composure.

"It seemed fantastic," she says, biting one faintly-rouged lip. "It reversed the years."

A small cool woman with a non-committal face, seated carefully at a table in the office of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, 16 E. 66th St., Mrs. Halprin ruffles pages of the Nasser pamphlet.

"Listen to this and tell me whom it reminds you of . . ."

"When I consider the 80,000,000 Muslim (Moslems) in Indonesia and the 50,000,000 in China and the millions in Malaya, Siam and Burma, and the nearly 100,000,000 in Pakistan, and the more than 100,000,000 in the Middle East and the 40,000,000 in the Soviet Union, together with the other millions in far-flung parts of the world, when I consider these hundreds of millions united by a single creed, I emerge with a sense of the tremendous possibilities which we might realize through the cooperation of all these Moslems, a cooperation growing not beyond the bounds of their natural loyalty to their own countries but nonetheless enabling them and their brothers in faith to wield power wisely and without limit."

There was an obvious enough resemblance to Hitler in "Mein Kampf," urging the liberation of people of German stock and Aryan race in Czechoslovakia, Eastern Europe and Russia.

Rose Halprin reads a few more passages to show the diffused, disorganized style, and its heavy load of symbolism. She cites a reference by Nasser to Pirandello's "Six Characters in Search of an Author," and a suggestion that an historic mission was now seeking its hero.

"Here is the role," wrote Nasser. "Here are the lines. Here is the stage. We alone, by virtue of our place, can perform the role!"

Parodying Nasser's call to arms, Rose Halprin says, "Here is a man who started out as a very small man. He was helped to believe he was the great man of the Near East by the Western world, which is now reaping the fruits of its own short-sighted policies."

"Now all of us are rereading that pamphlet, including," she says, using a pause for emphasis, "including, of course, the State Dept. people . . ."

ROSE HALPRIN HAS BEEN A LEGENDARY FIGURE

in Zionist circles for a long while. In Hadassah, the American women's Zionist organization, she holds rank as the most colorful and vigorous leader since the late Henrietta Szold, the Baltimore founder of the organization, whose remains repose in Israel.

No other woman, with the possible exception of Mrs. Golda Myerson, Israel's foreign minister, enjoys a greater reputation in Middle East welfare work.

Mrs. Halprin is not easy to know. From requested personal details, she is likely to shift subtly to larger frames of reference, such as Egypt and the ambitions of President Nasser. When she tells an anecdote, the date and the place and the names of others involved are usually hazy, out of an instinctive distaste against possible indiscretion.

She stands only an inch over five feet. The totality of her appearance—the dark red hair pulled smoothly away from her face into a chignon at the back, the serviceable summer print dress, the single-strand pearl necklace and the neat pearl button earrings—suggests a person under steady self-discipline. There is an amused glint in her brown eyes as she denies, without prejudice, that she is a native of Brooklyn.

At the age of 10 or 11, she concedes, she was president of a children's Zionist group on the lower East Side of New York, where she was born. "I remember I made my first big speech at that age in what seemed like a very big hall," she says.

ALTHOUGH SHE HAS A HALF-DOZEN GRANDCHILDREN of her own now, Mrs. Halprin is as devoted, and as tireless, in the service of Zionism as she was in her own childhood.

Last Spring, at the international conference in Jerusalem which paved the way for her subsequent ap-

Rose Halprin

"My forte is the spoken and written word"

pointment as acting American chairman of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, associates recall that she started work at 10 a.m. as chairman of a steering committee. All that day and all that night she worked, making her report the following morning, extemporaneously, in Hebrew, without having slept in more than 24 hours.

"Although I prefer mystery reading for travel, I do my serious reading in the evening. If I'm interested, I go on, and if it's essential, I go on anyway, so I never get to bed before midnight."

"Currently, I'm reading Maurice Samuel's 'The Professor and the Fossil.' That's the answer to Professor Toynbee, you know. He called the Jewish people a fossil. Well, if so, we're a mighty funny, squirming, kicking kind of a fossil!"

Mrs. Halprin speaks five languages fluently. This is due partly to the international conferences she has been attending for 25 years, partly to her determined drive for an education after she was married.

HER PARENTS WERE PHILIP LURIA AND REBECCA ISAACSON LURIA, who met and married in this country. Their parents came from Vilna, then in Lithuania, and now part of Russia. Rose Halprin thinks of her father as the most influential person in her life. Though a conservative in his religion, he gave her a taste for tolerance, she says.

At a "Sweet Sixteen" birthday party for a playmate, Rose Luria met Samuel W. Halprin.

"After we were married," she says, "I attended Hunter College for two years. Then I had Larry. Then I attended Columbia two years, and then I had Ruth."

"I took history, philosophy, psychology and languages, above all, languages. When you don't have to work for a degree, you can have fun in college. I recommend it."

After being lectured by a friend, unnamed, for staying temporarily away from Jewish things, Rose Halprin, became educational chairman of the Brooklyn Hadassah in 1927. Five years later, she was serving the first of several terms as national president of Hadassah. Then the organization had about 30,000 members. Now it has 300,000.

"When I came to a realization of the Jewish problem," she says, "it was tied up with my own life. Some people are in the movement for negative causes. Mine are positive. I've had no personal experience with discrimination or unpleasantness, nor have my children.

"I believe in the Jewish people and in their survival."

"I believe the world would be a loser if we were to achieve complete assimilation. I believe we are a very good catalytic agent in the world. If you believe that, you have to work for it, and I believed it long before Hitler."

"Brandeis came to Zionism late in life after much heart-searching, but it was a very natural thing to me, without pains or pangs."

"In those early days we were approaching people on a philosophic basis. Then came the Hitler period. It showed people what they might not have accepted in pure philosophic terms, that Jews could be destroyed by millions in the 20th century just because they were Jews. It also showed that rescue did not come in time because there was no physical center of Jewry which could offer haven. Realization of these things brought about the great growth of Hadassah."

Chosen in 1947 as the only American woman member of the executive board of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, Mrs. Halprin joined the late Dr. Chaim Weizmann, first President of Israel; David Ben-Gurion, Dr. Abba Hillel Silver and Dr. Nahum Goldmann in arguing the cause of a Jewish state before UN bodies.

THE EXTENT OF THE AGENCY'S WORK MAY BE gauged by the simple fact that the Jewish population of Israel has more than doubled through immigration since it became a state in 1948.

Whatever she has accomplished, says Rose Halprin, has been made possible by the fact that her husband, who is in the import-export business, and her children, "have the same approach."

"I could not do what I am doing otherwise," she says. "You know Ruth, now Mrs. Kaslove, of Norwalk, Conn., is president of the Hadassah chapter up there."

"Larry, a landscape architect, whose home is in San Francisco, believes in Zionism. He spent a year and a half in Israel. When he lectured recently at Hebrew University in Jerusalem, he talked in Hebrew," she notes with a typically fond mother's smile. "Both he and Ruth are two-language kids."

Liz Taylor May Be Wouk's 'Marjorie'

By HERBERT G. LUFT

HOLLYWOOD—Movie producer Milton Sperling told me that Elizabeth Taylor is his most likely choice for the lead in "Marjorie Morningstar," which he will film for his own United States Picture company for release through Warner Bros.

Sperling further advises me that Everett Freeman completed the screen play Sept. 15. Author Herman Wouk is scheduled to come to the Coast to polish the dialogue and, together with the picture's director, prepare the final shooting script. "Marjorie Morningstar" would be Miss Taylor's first picture away from MGM where she was discovered some 13 years ago, and played another Jewess, the daughter of Isaac of York, in Walter Scott's "Ivanhoe."

Sperling, son-in-law of Harry M. Warner, who resigned from the presidency of the firm several months ago, still has another hot story property, "Melville Goodwin, U.S.A.," which he has turned over to his home studio for Martin Rackin to produce, to concentrate his efforts on "Marjorie" and assure an early November shooting date for the Wouk story. He intends, however, to maintain his interest in the "Goodwin" picture which he will supervise.

"Melville Goodwin, U.S.A." was purchased by Sperling originally as a vehicle for Humphrey Bogart and Lauren Bacall. However, illness forced Bogie to withdraw and Kirk Douglas was signed to replace him in the title role, sharing top billing with Susan Hayward. Keenan Wynn plays an important featured part.

Due to his new commitment, Douglas must postpone his own "King Kelly" opus in which he was to star as a fabulous character of the Civil War period, current. (Continued on Page 7)

Painting Classes To Open Monday

Classes in painting for adult men and women and young adults will begin Monday evening at 8 P. M., at the Jewish Community Center's main building, under the direction of Ben Blau, local artist and art instructor.

Class members, both beginners and advanced students, will receive a thorough grounding in sketching and painting with oils, and will turn out at least two completed paintings during their course of instruction.

The current series will include 10 sessions, with registrations open to all adults and young adults, both JCC members and non-members. Registrants may join the class this Monday evening, or may enroll in advance at the Center office. Information on supplies, registration fees, etc. may be obtained by calling UN 1-2674.

Report Only Two Rabbis In Poland

WASHINGTON D. C. — There are only two rabbis—and no Jewish religious teachers—in all of Poland, reports an American rabbi who recently returned from a trip behind the Iron Curtain.

Dr. Israel Mowshowitz, rabbi of the Hillcrest Jewish Center, Flushing, N. Y., said that Jewish community leaders in Poland were eager for American Jewry to aid them in reestablishing Hebrew schools and seminaries.

Dr. Mowshowitz headed a delegation of the New York Board of Rabbis on a visit to Russia, Poland, and Czechoslovakia. Some of his observations:

1. Anti-Semitism still exists in Poland.
2. Polish Jews speak openly of emigration, and Rabbi Zev Morenu, in Lodz, told an audience gathered in honor of the American rabbis that instead of spending so much energy trying to rebuild Polish Jewry "we must ask the Polish Government to permit us to go to Israel, where we can create a new life for ourselves."
3. This year, for the first time, heads of Jewish religious communities throughout Poland were elected by their constituents; until last March, they had been appointed by the Government.
4. In Czechoslovakia, there are six rabbis, whose salaries—like those of all ministers—are paid by the state. The Jewish community may elect its own rabbi, subject to approval by the Ministry for Ecclesiastical Affairs.
5. Religion is taught in the Czech public schools, but those who study it face obstacles in gaining entrance to schools of higher education.

To Continue Series At Beth Sholom

Temple Beth Sholom will continue its late Friday night series with a service to be held tonight at 8:30 P. M. Rabbi Benjamin H. Tumim, spiritual leader of the Temple, will be in charge of the service and will preach the sermon. He will be assisted by Cantor Karl Krititz and the Temple Choir.

For his theme, the Rabbi has taken, "Do You Consider Yourself 'Chosen'?" He will deal with the "distortions to which this age-old concept has been subjected throughout the centuries," and will present the meaning of this idea in Jewish tradition.

On Saturday morning, regular Sabbath services will be held at 9 o'clock at which time the Bar Mitzvah of Wayne Pomiansky, son of Dr. and Mrs. Louis Pomiansky, will be observed.

HOLD FIRST MEETING

The first meeting of the season of the Eastward Jewish Center was held last evening at Legion Hall in Riverside. Mrs. Henry Jacober was hostess for the evening.

SOA Sisterhood Begins Season

The first regular meeting of the Sisterhood Congregation Sons of Abraham was held on Oct. 3. Mrs. Sidney Pepper, president, presided.

Mrs. Abraham Chill, program chairman, narrated "This Is Your Life, Sisterhood." Past presidents gave a resume of events during their administration.

Every Monday afternoon from 1 to 3 o'clock, a sewing group meets to sew cancer dressings. Mrs. Abraham Sholovitz is chairman.

That Might be a Solution

The running attacks made by a Citizens' Council official in New Orleans against the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith sharply focuses the advancing dilemma of Southern Jewry brought on by the Supreme Court ruling on desegregation.

The New Orleans official has charged the ADL with being "a Communist front organization" because of its support of integration. Thus Southern Jewry, caught between the fire of those who demand its identification with Southern custom and traditional Jewish concern for minority rights, increasingly bears the brunt of intemperate attack by hate-mongers.

For bigots, liberty and democracy are concepts to be determined by the measure of their prejudice. In this case, integration does not fit into the pattern, and its proponents are ruled "Communist."

This is the basis of the New Orleans Citizens' Council official's charge against the Anti-Defamation League. Would it be too much to hope for Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, who made a major foreign policy address before B'nai B'rith early in May, to set the record straight and put the lie to the charge?

'Happy to Be Able to Help GJC' Says East Greenwich Civic Leader

By ELAINE OSTRACH HILL

Last March, Governor Roberts, senators, judges, and ordinary citizens jammed the Varnum Armory in East Greenwich to pay tribute to a small-town businessman, Herman N. Silverman.

This event describes the man better than a thousand words.

A leader in Kent County, the March of Dimes, B'nai B'rith, the Anti-Defamation League, and the General Jewish Committee of Providence, this warm hearted, silver-haired man of 73 thanks God for "my health and faculties so I can do my humble best for mankind."

"I was the oldest of nine children in Troy, New York, and learned early to do without. Naturally, I always tended to lean toward the underprivileged. There are tremendous rewards in wholesome living, and a great satisfaction in knowing that your efforts are helping people. Sure, I'd like to be able to relax after a hard day at the store, but this year the people of Israel are in desperate circumstances, and I feel that I just have to help raise funds to keep them going," commented Mr. Silverman.

His humanitarian philosophy has remained unchanged throughout his life, despite two recent personal tragedies: the death of his wife, and of his ten-year old grandson.

This kindly gentleman has lived in East Greenwich for 48 years, operating a clothing and shoe store. He and his family are loved and respected by their neighbors, and are proud of their position in this predominantly Gentile community. He has five children and four grandchildren.

Had To Do Best

"I was busy with business and various charities when I was first invited to a General Jewish Committee dinner eleven years ago. As I viewed the people there working hard for this cause, and heard their tales of need of Jewry throughout the world, I personally felt that as busy as I already was, I had to do my best for them," said Mr. Silverman.

"My interest lies in all the agencies in Rhode Island and the world covered by UJA and GJC funds. Locally, I am most interested in Jewish education and the Anti-Defamation League—both vital factors in the preservation of the Jewish way of life," explained Mr. Silverman.

"Recently, I read of a community in Israel completely inhabited by blind persons who are being re-educated to live with their affliction. The thought immediately struck me that I, who can enjoy daily pleasures, have no reason to gripe when I'm a little tired after a day at work. Here are our fellow men, women, and children needing aid from sources that only we can provide through our gifts to GJC."

This Was Heaven

Mr. Silverman told us about some Polish relatives of his who were living in Czechoslovakia whom he was able to bring to Israel and then to the U. S.

"During the year they spent in Israel, they lived in a hut in the Maarbaroth, but they said that even this was Heaven compared to the Hell in Poland. Here, at least, no one would come knocking at their door in the middle of the night and spirit them off to Siberia, perhaps leaving their lovely ten-year-old daughter to the elements."

Think, as you sit in your comfortable safe homes reading this, what a Heaven it would be for the 500,000 Jews trapped in

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Notations In A Note Book

By BERYL SEGAL

In the days of mass immigration, during the first quarter of the century, the Yiddish daily newspapers served a number of purposes. They were, in the first place, the only source of news of the world for the immigrant. Few could read any other language. In addition, the dailies were a store house of information on all kinds of things in the immigrant's new environment. They taught him the system of government.

The immigrants all came from lands where kings and absolute emperors ruled. They prepared the immigrant for citizenship.

They lectured to him on economics and the function of trade unions and the benefits he could derive from joining the union in his trade.

The pages of the Yiddish newspapers of those days resembled a correspondence course in literature, philosophy, history, and sociology.

Nor were the sciences neglected. The immigrants came from a civilization that was at least a hundred years backwards in technical development, and the newspapers considered it their function to bring them up to date on the advances of science.

But the most curious features in the newspapers of those days, at least curious to us now, was the tutoring in manners.

Articles would be devoted to table manners, to the use of the napkin, to the proper behaviour in a restaurant, and to the appreciation of American dishes. They would be instructed in the art of speaking in public, not to interrupt, not to use unclean language, and to be tolerant of other people's point of view.

You would find articles on the evil of spitting and cursing and quarrelling. They were taught the habits of "punctuality, because time was not so precious in the eye of the immigrant. Meeting never opened on time, and even theater performances had to be held up until the customers straggled in.

That gave origin to the phrase "Jewish time" which we hear so often repeated by people who, by the way, are not punctual themselves.

the ghettos of North Africa to be safe in Israel.

Mr. Silverman helped inaugurate B'nai B'rith in Rhode Island, and he was their first president. He feels that the Anti-Defamation League is one of its most important functions.

"B'nai B'rith and the Anti-Defamation League are direct recipients of GJC funds, so in a real personal sense, your gifts to GJC are protection for yourselves.

"The ADL is like a Minute Man on guard. Most interracial and interreligious trouble is started by one 'rabble-rouser' and it is ADL that steps in and makes sure that no person or group starts trouble. Jews are almost always a target. If a Jones does wrong, only he is censured, but if a Goldman does

The newspapers taught the immigrant the virtue of keeping quiet in a lecture hall, at a concert or other public gathering.

It did not always help. Habits are not so easily broken. And people would often despair of teaching the immigrant the importance of coming on time, refraining from talking during a performance, or living up to the standards of Emily Post.

And there were those who said, "This generation of immigrants is a lost generation. They will never shake off the habits of the small towns of Poland and Russia. They will never master the niceties of polite society.

"But their children. Ah, their children, those who were brought up here and have no memories of the old ways, and those born here who were never exposed to the European air, they will be correct in all their ways. There will be no trace in them of the looseness of discipline, or the neglect of good manners so objectionable in their parents."

So people reasoned. And now, behold, we meet the offspring of the immigrants of the first quarter of the century, and we find that they indeed differ greatly from their parents.

They no longer read Yiddish, and the Yiddish newspapers are no longer their mentors on good manners. They no longer talk like their parents, no longer dress like them, and have long erased all traces of the old neighborhoods and the old habits of their immigrant parents.

They have, in their zeal, shaken off many of the virtues of their immigrant parents together with the not-so-virtuous ways.

But every once in a while one wonders whether those offspring could not benefit by the lessons given the early immigrants by the Yiddish press.

It is especially needed in matters of good taste and punctuality.

I find in my note book an entry made during the summer which reads: "Funeral in Temple. Whispering all around."

And I remember the occasion well. The deceased was a man well known and highly respected the same thing, then all Jews are to blame. If there is any anti-Semitism around here, it is deeply buried — and B'nai B'rith deserves a lot of credit for this harmony in our state. A few years back, I gave a citizenship award to Judge Leighton with clergymen of all faiths present, and the following year, I awarded service citations to two non-Jewish district nurses who had served well for 40 years. This sort of thing helps bring about good — will and reaches beyond the pale of our own faith.

"I would like to say here," continued Mr. Silverman, "what a fine lot of men and women represent the GJC, but only too often they come into a home and are received coldly. The very least you can do for people who among business men and professionals, and he was a charitable person, giving and working for a goodly number of community agencies. The temple was full of people who came to pay the deceased their respects.

As I sat listening to the din of conversations, in whispers of course, but whispers multiplied a hundred fold, I remembered funerals in the little town where I was born and had lived my childhood and youth. Funerals were frightening affairs with us. The women, relatives and strangers, were crying and wailing. Men walked in gloom. Now, we have changed greatly.

We no longer carry on in the presence of death. But we have also lost the sense of reverence and awe in the presence of the mystery we call death. We talk about business, we joke about golf scores, and whisper of all manner of nonsense while the organ plays and the dead is before us.

Another notation in the book reads: "Bar Mitzvah . . . latecomers . . . Rabbi's remarks".

And I remember the Sabbath morning of a spring day. The sun shone in the windows of the almost empty synagogue when the Bar Mitzvah service began. As the morning service went on more and more invited guests arrived, in little groups they straggled in, not interrupting their conversations as they walked along the aisles, not betraying any feeling of guilt for coming late. On the other hand, they stopped to exchange greetings with friends, shaking hands, ignoring completely the goings on up there on the pulpit, and obviously sensing no impropriety in their behavior.

A young couple slunk in at just about the time the services were over, and smiled rather sheepishly, as well they might.

The Rabbi, a mild mannered and soft spoken man, spoke harshly of this lack of reverence and good taste. And I was reminded of the Yiddish newspapers of 30 or 50 years ago and the lessons in table manners, and lectures on proper behavior to the parents and grandparents of these irreverent late comers to houses of worship in our own days.

What goes on at funerals and at Bar Mitzvahs because of some ill-mannered among us, has nothing to do with religion or lack of it. Rather it is a matter of good taste or the lack of it.

(Mr. Segal's opinions are his own. His views are not necessarily those of this newspaper.)

give so much of their time is to receive them whole-heartedly. I want to pay special tribute to Max Margolis and William Deitch for their excellent work in West Warwick.

"With all the money already given, with all the blood, sweat and tears already shed, Israel is still not safe. This year, the situation is especially desperate. Not only do we have to provide funds to relieve daily suffering and resettlement problems, but to help prevent that powderkeg in the Middle East from exploding. If it ever blew up, the consequences would reach throughout the world and into our own homes. This year, as in 1948, we must give, through the GJC, not only a token amount, but a substantial offering for Israel, and for ourselves."

Complete Plans For GJC D-Day

Ben Rottenberg, chairman of D-Day, today announced that plans are completed for the annual one-day house-to-house canvass for funds for the 1956 campaign of the General Jewish Committee on Sunday, October 21. Rottenberg said the enthusiasm of volunteer workers is greater than ever and all indications are that this will be one of the finest D-Days ever conducted by the GJC.

Headquarters will be set up in the Narragansett Hotel. Before starting out on the city-wide card coverage, the workers will be served breakfast and given a last minute briefing and their cards to be solicited. As soon as the cards are covered, the workers will report back to headquarters.

Details of this phase of the 1956 campaign were reviewed and completed last week at a meeting of D-Day captains at the home of Archie Palm. Some 45 captains and associate chairmen attended the meeting.

The following are the D-Day captains: Jerry Bruman, Harry Chas. E. Leonard Chas. Murray J. Cohen, J. Fred Coleman, Arthur Einstein, Herman Feinstein, Harry Finkelstein, James Goldman, James Goldsmith, Leroy Haft, Harry Hoffman, Samuel C. Kagan, George Katz, Irving Kaplan, Irving Kaufman, Charles B. Kushner, Solomon Lightman, Arthur Novogroski, Gerson Permet, Max S. Portnoy, Abraham W. Rabiner, Dr. Richard Rouslin, Erwin Robinson, Arthur H. Rosen, Louis Schuman, Maurice Shage, Louis Strauss, Albert Surdin, Leon Temkin, Sol Wald, Samuel H. Wilk.

Graduate — Janis Abekop, daughter of Mrs. Rose Abekop and the late Hyman Abekop of 126 Elton Street, graduated on Oct. 3 from the Massachusetts Memorial Hospital's School of Nursing, Boston, and is now affiliated with that hospital.

Habonim to Plan Season's Program

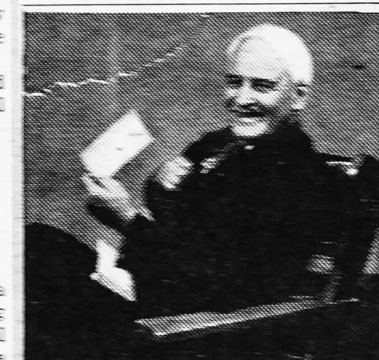

A group of 20 high school-age boys and girls held a get-acquainted picnic last Sunday afternoon as the first meeting of Habonim of Greater Providence. The 10 boys and 10 girls from Hope High, Classical and Pawtucket West are meeting again this Sunday at 2 P. M. at 34 Marbury Avenue, Pawtucket, for election of officers and to plan a program for the season ahead.

Movies are to be taken during the afternoon activities. All high schoolers interested in what Habonim is and does are welcome to attend the Oct. 14 meeting. For details call PA 3-4682.

Fred Safer, leader of the Providence Habonim Club, is a senior at Boston University, and has a background as a counselor at Habonim camps.

Congress to Honor Late Harold Warren With Memorial Tournament on October 21

The R. I. Jewish Bowling Congress will pay tribute to the memory of Harold Warren, who died earlier this year in a tragic accident.

The congress will hold the Harold Warren Memorial Tournament, Sunday, Oct. 21, at the Legion alleys on Park Avenue,
Cranston, from 11 A. M. to 3 P. M.

Two-man teams will bowl in the following classes:

211-220, 200-210 and 199 and under.

Bowlers will be permitted to register until 3 o'clock, according to Sid Dressler, tournament chairman. Bowlers will roll three strings for the $2 entry fee.

During his years as an Emanuel and Cranston bowler, Warren established many records, which are expected to stand for years to come.

In addition to the memorial tournament, the Congress will inaugurate its monthly sweepstakes,
Oct. 22. Each bowler in the 15-member leagues will be able to compete for cash prizes to be awarded for high three and high single.

Per-string handicaps will be figured against a 120 average. Bowlers will roll on their regular league nights. The entry fee again will be 25 cents for the three strings.

Winners will be announced in the Nov. 9 Jewish Herald.

Bleacher Invasion

There is one Dodger fan who must have thought of me as he woefully departed from Yankee Stadium on Sunday and Monday. This Negro gent had kept the bleacher denizens well under control for several hours on Saturday, with a shrill whistle that nearly punctured our ear drums, and a penetrating, booming, raucous voice that tolerated no interference as it praised the Brooklyn Bums and insulted the more genteel Yankees.

Finally, the handwriting was on the wall, and Whitey Ford was just in the act of putting the finishing touches on the first Yankee victory. The Dodger fan, preparing to steal away and lick his wounds, could not resist one parting shot:

"Yah, you had to beat us with your best (Ford). Now you got nothin' left. We'll moider the rest of those lousy Yankee pitchers!"

As one who honestly feels that the National League is overrated, as far as the difference in caliber between the two circuits is concerned, I could not resist one final grandstand play of my own. Making sure that my voice was loud enough to carry to all the fans in our section of the bleachers, I informed the Brooklynite that the lousy Yankee pitchers were going to surprise the heck out of him before the Series was over, and I invited him to remember, the next couple of days, who told him so.

I hope he remembered.

Brother Dave and I had a wonderful time at the Series, most of it occasioned by the fact that we saw game three from the bleachers. The world has changed mightily since baseball became a national institution; the age of electronics and atomic energy has superseded all that went before; horsepower has just about done away with horses; television has brought the far-flung reaches of the world right into our homes.

But one thing has not changed from the early days of the horse and buggy, gaslight and the nickel street car ride. There is still no substitute for a day in the bleachers.

I have sat in every section of baseball parks, all the way from press box to bleachers, and never have I enjoyed ball games as much as those witnessed from the bleachers. It's a different world out there, an exciting world, an unpredictable world.

In the bleachers (the price jumped ten cents this year, to $2.10 per ticket), you look with scorn at the standees in the grandstand who paid twice as much as you, yet see about one quarter as much; you look down your nose at the poor suckers who paid a lot of money for reserved seats that afford only a neck-cracking view blocked by steel girders and situated at an angle that is far from ideal.

Somehow, you feel you are of the intelligentsia out there, even if there is the slight matter of some 400-plus feet between you and the plate. The view is surprisingly good, so much so that you unabashedly assist the umpire in calling balls and strikes. (He doesn't always agree with your call, in which case you magnanimously concede that he may be closer to the play than you are). Believe it or not, you can follow the curves and the change-ups, the fair balls and the foul, and the close plays on the bases.

The bleachers are the home of soap box orators. With plenty of time before the start of the game, many of the fans begin to argue the merits of their respective favorite clubs. A Dodger fan climbs up on one of the seats and enlightens the fans for rows around with stories of the prowess of his team. He makes a point and is roundly cheered.

Then a Yankee fan jumps up on a similar platform and lands his team to the skies. As he concludes his arguments he too is lavishly cheered. The debate may go on for a half hour, with no limitations of time.

Two boys unfurl a large home made sign. Swaying between the two poles they hold high is this legend: "We did it once. We'll do it again!" No indication as to whether they are rooting for the Bums or the Yanks. The sign, incidentally, first appeared at 8:27 A. M.

An old gent with a cap that is loaded with pins and ribbons of various sorts bounces up on his seat to "lead" the band as it plays one of its many numbers. At its conclusion, he takes a deep bow and is rewarded with generous applause for a valiant effort, if not a job particularly well done.

But generalities such as these do not tell the whole story. The fact is that Dave and I were exposed to the Brooklyn influence, but good!

We sat surrounded by a group of staunch Dodger rooters and rabid Yankee haters. You think Red Sox fans can hate the Yanks? Brother, you haven't lived! Such venom of voice! Such insulting invective! Such scorn! One of them would be enough, but when there are Brooklyn fans as far as the twitching ear can probe, then you are really living it up.

Hours before the game started (in the bleachers you get there early if you intend to see the ball game) one large woman fan settled herself into comparative comfort and proclaimed loudly that she was prepared to commit mayhem on any Yankee fans she found. Fortunately, she was all bark, and was not heard from again.

There was the man sitting off to our right who inserted his own opinions of his heroes as the line-ups were announced over the public address system. Speaking in tones of reverence that you would expect him to use in church, he greeted the announcement of "Snider, center field" with a fervent repetition: "Best in the business, best in the business." At the mention of Jackie Robinson, (Continued on Page 14)

Couple From 'So Many Places' Tell of Extensive Travels

Mara and Steve Vamos Relive Days of Feast and Famine

By ELAINE OSTRACH HILL

Mara and Steve Vamos seem to be like any other young American couple as they sit in their 4½ room apartment on Waterman Street. Steve proudly exhibits the three-pound trout he caught in Canada recently, while Mara points out the blond wood modernistic end tables that Steve made during the do-it-yourself fad. Nine-month old Mark is sleeping now, but pictures of him taken by both, who are amateur photographers, are scattered throughout the room. It is not until they speak and you notice their accents that one thinks of asking "Where do you come from?" Mara chuckles and says, "We come from so many places—well maybe I'd better tell you about me first, then Steve will tell his story."

"I was born in Kishinev, Rumania—a little town noted for pogroms. I had a normal childhood until the Russians marched into Bessarabia, then my parents, younger sister, and I went to Bucharest. My father was always an ardent Zionist and had a visa to go to Palestine, but couldn't make up his mind to leave the country of his birth until the Germans came and made it up for him. We managed to get on the last boat which left legally. I was only 15 and didn't really realize the gravity of the situation, as a matter of fact I loved the beautiful trip through the Dardanelles, Syria, Beirut—I even wrote poetry along the way. We finally settled in Tel Aviv where I matriculated at the British Institute."

"The next year, with the Second World War raging, I went to Hebrew University in Jerusalem, and I must say it was nothing like the campus life you have here. There I was, engrossed in my studies of French, English Literature and philosophy, in an ivory tower so to speak, unaware of the Germans who were almost on the Suez. In Israel you can study straight through for a Master's degree, which I did until 1947 which was a most eventful year. That was the year I began studying for the stiff oral and written exams, working on my thesis, and met Steve at a student's party. Steve had returned from the war a year earlier and was also studying for his Master's in Chemical Engineering."

Steve, a heavy-set curly-haired man broke in, "I'd better give you my background now—the rest of our adventures involve us both."

"I was born in Budapest, an elegant city reminiscent of Paris. While I was in high school, I decided that I wanted to become a chemist. There was arch anti-semitism in Hungary and by official law the universities could accept only the proportionate number of Jews as there were in the country. In the chemistry department, that meant that only one Jew every other year could be admitted. Even though I was head of my class this meant I had to go elsewhere to college, so having relatives in Yugoslavia, I went to the University of Belgrade. I had to learn a new language, but managed to get through that first year."

"When I went home for the summer vacation, the war broke out in Yugoslavia, and I couldn't go back. I couldn't go to school in Hungary either, and a great disgust filled me about the Jewish situation. Here I had this tremendous urge to study and could do nothing about it, so in September, 1939 I became a Zionist—as Hitler began goosestepping through Europe. I finally managed to get student visas for myself and two bosom pals to study at Hebrew University. I owe my life to this urge. During the Second World War, I snuck into Budapest through the Russian lines and found that all my old friends were gone. Not one young Jew remained."

After one year at Hebrew University, war again interrupted Steve's studies, and he joined the British army intelligence as a private. He served in Italy, Trieste and Yugoslavia. At the end of his 5½ years service he was a lieutenant.

"Our big problem, of course, was to get the European Jews to safety. The British allowed little emigration, so the Jewish soldiers from Palestine figured out quite a few gimmicks. All Jewish soldiers, even Americans, supported 'Achsharot', which were camps to prepare refugees for life in Palestine. When the Jews in the British army got home leave, they gave their papers to a refugee in the Achsharot, who then posed as him until he reached Palestine. Then he quietly disappeared. All told there were 30,000 Palestinian soldiers, most of them in Jewish units."

"Now back to Jerusalem after we met," interposed Mara. "We knew each other six months before we went to a movie—and not because of our studies. If you remember, the British were still sticking to the White Paper, and the Jews were waging terrorist war. Every time there was an incident, the English would impose a 6 o'clock curfew."

"One day, finally the British lifted the curfew and Steve and I went to a little restaurant. I remember sitting there rejoicing because we finally could go to a movie, when suddenly there was a terrific explosion. Someone had thrown a bomb, and the curfew was on again!"

"There the memorable UN decision to partition Palestine was made, then war, and the siege of Jerusalem. Water is always a problem there, but during the siege the shortage became so acute, I was afraid my two dogs would die of thirst, so I filled the bathtub with water, and saved it for them. Food was so scarce everyone was practically starving."

"I remember tramping through the streets for 8 hours," reminisced Steve, "and finally finding one limp stalk of celery. I took it to Mara's place and she made a soup out of it."

"I will never forget the grass that looked like spinach," shuddered Mrs. Vamos. "It grew on the roofs, between the loose rocks on ancient buildings. People were cooking it—and everyone was fighting over his share. Luckily, Steve's apartment was in such an old building, so we had some. Only, once we cooked it, we couldn't eat it. It even made the dogs sick. A convoy came through one time, bringing a package of food from my mother. Steve and I celebrated by going to a movie. Remember how we had to duck Arab bullets all the way, Steve?"

"Yes, and I also remember when we got home, we found the dogs had eaten up the whole package."

Haganah cleared the roads one day for a convoy, and Mara and Steve managed to get permission to leave for Tel Aviv. Here, just 45 miles away, it was like peacetime. They went into a restaurant and ordered roast duck for themselves and Mara's dogs.

"It seemed almost incredible," remarked Steve, "that in the morning we were starving, and that afternoon we were glutting ourselves on roast-duck."

Mara was in the army and worked for the Ministry of Defense, while Steve worked as a police chemist, and did guard duty at night with one gun for five men. After the war, they married. Mara went to work for El Al, Israeli's first airline, and Steve started his own business. El Al sent Mara to Paris, but once there, she resigned as she decided she'd like to be on her own. After three months, Steve joined her and they had a belated honeymoon in England, France, Italy and Switzerland. When they returned to Israel, Mara was lucky enough to get a temporary job as the assistant to the American director of the Chamber Theatre, and from there went to work for the American Embassy for three years. Then came another six months' tour of Europe. She ran out of money in France, but luckily got a job with the UJA as a lecturer in Algiers. After two weeks of this, Steve wrote her that the visa to the United States for which he'd applied ten years ago, had been granted.

"We went to some of Steve's relatives in Kalamazoo first and made a pact. I would go to Detroit and Steve to Chicago. Whoever got a job first, that's where we'd settle. Steve got a job in Chicago the first day. Later I got a job there with a publishing company and kept it until Mark was born last December—two months premature."

"It was a miracle that he survived. I fasted and prayed three days, until he was out of danger," recalled Steve.

Last April the Vamos family came to Providence to live.

"You see," explained Steve, "we left Israel because I wanted to go into plastics, so when I got a better opportunity in this field at Chemical Products, Inc. in East Providence, I took it."

"We've really become Americanized. We've become used to the fabulous luxury you have in this country—compared to the rest of the world—we've even become used to television. I can't iron without it now," added Mara.

As every other American couple, they have a dream. Mara is working towards her Ph.D. at Brown and is a part-time French instructor with the hopes of becoming a college professor, and Steve hopes eventually to own his own plastic company. Little Mark, redheaded like his mother, will probably want to be a rootin' tootin' cowboy like every other red-blooded American boy.

Beth El Men, Guests To Hear Hal Boyle

Associated Press columnist Hal Boyle, the "poor man's philosopher," will be the speaker at the opening meeting of the year of the Brotherhood of Temple Beth El next Wednesday night in the temple meeting hall.

Members, their wives and friends are invited to the 8 P. M. program.

Boyle won his reputation as a correspondent during World War II, and his reporting of the conflict also earned for this prolific writer the Pulitzer Prize.

He landed in North Africa with the first assault troops, and later crossed France and went all the way to Berlin with our forces. Boyle was one of the first correspondents into Tokyo after V-J Day, and he reported from Korea after that fighting started.

Boyle will be introduced by Hyman S. Goodwin, president of the brotherhood. Arrangements are being made by Albert Gordon, program chairman.

Next Friday the service at the Temple will be a welcome to new members. The brotherhood is sponsoring the service and will serve a collation afterward. A. Archie Finkelstein is chairman.

News releases submitted for publication in the Herald should be typewritten, double-spaced, on an 8½ x 11 sheet of paper.

third base, he intoned: "Goes on forever, goes on forever!" And so on down the Dodger lineup.

These Dodger fans really can make a case for their boys and heap abuse on the enemy, using logic that suits them fine, even if it would not stand up in a scholarly debate. So it was that we heard all about how the Yanks have to buy and steal their players, while the Dodgers raise all their own. Yankee fans had neither the guts nor the opportunity to remind them that Brooklyn had a guy named Maglie and another answering to Bessent who were not home grown, yet were solid heroes.

Amid Dodger bragging that the "old men" were winning this Series for Brooklyn, the fact that youthful Roger Craig was performing nobly on the mound, as had Bessent the day before, was cheerfully and conveniently overlooked.

Topping it off was the repeated sneering and scornful charge that the Yankees can win only at home, while the delicate subject of Brooklyn's ability to win only one game in the Stadium out of some eight previous attempts (it has since become one out of ten) blithely was ignored.

Throughout the game, there were diverse comments—always a full storehouse of comments—praising the defending world champs, talking to their heroes as if they were sitting in the same room, blasting shrilly on that piercing whistle, shouting encouragement in voices that must have been submitted to many years of careful bleacher training.

Old Enos Slaughter should have been severely censured for hitting his game-winning home run. Had he seen what a dismal effect his blow would have on these poor citizens of that other world known as Brooklyn, he might surely have suffered pangs of remorse as he rounded the bases.

The whistle thenceforth was quiet, the Brooklyn chatter died out, and even in the bedlam of the happiness of the Yankee fans, the gloom of the Flatbush faithful was so thick it could have been cut with a knife.

Kind To Mothers!

I'm Roy MacKenzie . . .

A Lincoln Woods Farms Driver salesman who brings such great dairy foods to so many happy homes every week in

CRANSTON

You bet I am kind to mothers and not just to merit votes from mother, either.

Just think how much simpler it is for Mom to prepare all her meals with the large variety of fine fresh foods that I deliver.

Take our orange juice, for example. This is real, pure juice from tree-ripened fruit and the secret of its top taste is the speed with which it is rushed to you.

Think how much time Mom would have to spend otherwise, in preparing this essential, vitamin-rich drink for you.

She'd have to go marketing, lug heavy bundles home, wash the oranges, squeeze them...oh well, you know the story.

And juice is just one of many delicious products that I have on hand, ready to leave at your home. Try them. You will guard your family's health and slash your living costs with a good supply of:

Milk Mello-D Cottage Cheese
Cream Margarine Butter
Extra Large Eggs Slend-R-Ade
Chocolate Milk and Batter Up.

By the way, my picture is at the top because I'm looking for votes, through added sales. Enough votes get me an all-expense trip for two to Washington. Thanks a lot.

To Hold Ninth Gerber Oration

Dr. Alexander B. Gutman, professor of medicine, Columbia University, College of Physicians and Surgeons, of New York City; director of the Department of Medicine, Mt. Sinai Hospital, and founder and editor of the American Journal of Medicine, will give the ninth Dr. Isaac Gerber Oration on Wednesday at 8:30 P. M. at the Miriam Hospital auditorium.

Dr. Gutman who won the Distinguished Service Award in medical journalism in 1954 became internationally famous by the introduction of the acid phosphatase test for prostatic cancer. He was the recipient of the Francis Amory Prize from the American Academy of Arts and Sciences in 1948.

His subject for the evening will be "Gout", a topic on which he has done considerable research and writing in recent years.

The Gerber Oration was founded by the staff of Miriam Hospital during the lifetime of Dr. Gerber in recognition of his outstanding service to the Miriam and other hospitals in this area.

Beth Israel Men To Open Season

The opening meeting of the Temple Beth Israel Men's Club will be held at the Temple on Monday evening at 8:30 o'clock. The president of the Men's Club, Marvin A. Brill, and his committee, have arranged for an evening of entertainment by a well-known comedian from Boston.

A buffet supper will be served at the end of the meeting with a cocktail hour before. A short business meeting will precede the entertainment.
