B'nai B'rith to Honor 3 Judges

Judge Antonio A. Capotosto

Judge Jeremiah E. O'Connell

Judge Hugh B. Baker

The three recently retired Justices of the Rhode Island Supreme Court will be honored at the Annual Awards Dinner sponsored by Roger Williams Lodge B'nai B'rith this Sunday, Oct. 21, in the Garden Room of the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel. The affair will begin at 6:30 P. M.

This awards dinner represents the first affair of its type tendered by a civic group for Judges Antonio A. Capotosto, Hugh B. Baker and Jeremiah E. O'Connell since their retirement.

Judge Meier Steinbrink, retired Justice of the New York Supreme Court and former National Chairman of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, will be guest speaker.

Among the invited guests are Governor Dennis J. Roberts, Judah C. Semonoff, president of the R. I. Bar Association; Chief Justice Edmund W. Flynn and the entire membership of the State Supreme Court.

Burton A. Finberg, Lodge president, has announced that persons who are unable to attend the dinner program are invited to attend the presentation of awards ceremonies and the speaking program. (Continued on Page 2)

Emanuel Institute for Adults To Cover 'Psychiatry and Religion'

Under the general chairmanship of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Mandell, full plans have been completed for the Temple Emanuel Institute of Jewish Studies for Adults.

The first topic of the series, which will begin on Wednesday evening, November 7, at the Temple, will be a discussion of the subject, "Psychiatry and Religion—Are they Compatible?"

Rabbi Edward Sandrow will be the lecturer and a local panel consisting of Dr. Joseph Zucker, F.A.P.A., Rabbi Abraham Jacobson, Temple Beth David, and Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen, Temple Emanuel, as moderator, will further discuss the question. The complete series of five lectures will take place during the months of November and December, and an informative group of study courses will precede each lecture.

The executive committee planning these evenings includes Mrs. Alfred Jaffe, treasurer; Mrs. Ben-

Brier Announces Special Luncheon

Benjamin Brier, general campaign chairman, today announced that a special report luncheon for all workers in the 1956 campaign of the General Jewish Committee and D-Day captains will be held Wednesday at the Narragansett Hotel.

The latest report on the number and total amount of contributions will be made. In addition, cards that have to be reassigned because of change of address or other reasons will be given to D-Day captains for solicitation.

Brier reiterated the urgency of this year's campaign and said that no effort will be spared in making this the most thorough campaign ever conducted. Every card will be covered, Brier declared, with the aim of giving Israel all the assistance that is humanly possible.

Warwick D-Day Set for Sunday

Warwick D-Day — the one-day house-to-house canvas of funds for the 1956 campaign of the General Jewish Committee—will be held on Sunday.

Some 25 volunteer workers will meet at Topps Mayfair on Post Road near the Hills Grove State Airport at 9 A. M. for breakfast. At that time, the workers will be given a final briefing on the intensive one-day solicitation and the cards to be covered will be distributed.

Jack Mossberg, D-Day chairman, pointed out that more Jew-

GJC D-Day Sunday

With the Middle East situation—particularly in Israel—becoming worse each day, some 300 volunteer workers are poised to make this year's D-Day of the General Jewish Committee campaign one of the most successful in the 11-year-history of the community organization.

D-Day—the intensive one-day house-to-house canvas in the Greater Providence area for funds for the 1956 campaign—is set for Sunday, October 21.

Ben Ruttenberg, D-Day chairman, said today that the increased daily tension in Israel and surrounding Arab countries has brought the enthusiasm of workers to a fever-pitch.

"The workers and D-Day captains are well aware of the new danger Israel faces with the announcement that Iraqi troops may be moved into Jordan, which borders Israel," Ruttenberg said. "That, plus the Suez Canal muddle and the generally deteriorating conditions in that part of the world, have made the volunteers in the 1956 fund-raising drive more determined than ever to make this one of the most successful campaigns of all time."

As in the past, headquarters will be set up in the Narragansett Hotel. D-Day captains and their workers will first have their spirits and energy bolstered with a breakfast and last minute briefing on methods to be employed in the city-wide solicitation. Then cards to be covered will be distributed to each worker. As soon as coverage of cards is completed, the workers will return to headquarters to report on the results.

Some 45 captains will lead the solicitation teams in what is scheduled to be one of the most intensive and thorough fund-raising drives conducted by the General Jewish Committee. This is the final major event for the Men's Division in the 1956 campaign of the GJC and officials are confident that this event will serve as the impetus that will push the final totals considerably over the 1955 campaign mark.

District to Hear Dr. Sidney Marks

Dr. Sidney Marks, national executive director and national secretary of the Zionist Organization of America, will be guest speaker at the installation of officers of the Providence Zionist District on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock at Temple Emanuel.

A specialist in mass communication and public relations, Dr. Marks was formerly professor of law at New York Law School, is a member of the New York Bar, and is fully accredited as a public relations counsel by the Public Relations Society of America and the American Public Relations Association. He recently returned from one of his frequent visits to Israel and the Jewish communities of Europe.

Preceding the installation ceremonies, the Providence District will hold a memorial observance in honor of the late George Pullman. The public is invited to attend.

New Rabbi Takes Office at Temple

Rabbi Benjamin H. Tumim, formerly of Englewood, N. J., has assumed the office of spiritual leader at Temple Beth Shalom here.

A graduate of the College of the City of New York, Rabbi Tumim has done graduate work in the philosophy department of Columbia University. Most of his ministry was served in Norwalk, Conn., where he was a member of the Ration Board, the Draft Board, the Red Cross, the Welfare Bureau, and several other community organizations. He received the Selective Service Medal and was voted the "Outstanding Citizen of the Community" in 1945.

Fred Spigel was elected president of Congregation Shaare Zedek at the synagogue's annual meeting last Sunday. Other officers elected include Charles Oelbaum, vice-president; Maurice Gordon, secretary; Emil Ross, treasurer; Morris Gold, first Gabbai, and Israel Schwartz, second Gabbai. Mr. Spigel is the Congregation's second president.

Elected to the board of directors are Abraham Bazar, Samuel Bazar, Samuel Berman, Hime Buckler, Charles Dickens, Leo Greenberg, Joseph Grossman, David Hassenfeld, Abraham Kelman, Lewis Korn, Jack Mandell, Joseph Margolis, Jacob Osterman, William Reich, Judah Rosen, Abraham Rosenberg, Harry Schwartz, Elisha Scoliard and Edmund Wexler. Mr. Hassenfeld is retiring president of the Congregation.

Officers will be installed at ceremonies to be held in December, it was announced.

Golf Champs In Next Issue

Because of limitation of space in this issue, the stories of the four championship matches in the Herald's annual Golf Tournament will appear next week. All award winners will be listed at that time.

WHICH CEMETERY WOULD YOU RATHER VISIT?

Most Americans select their family burial plots in traditional cemeteries that allow them the privilege of erecting a monument of marble or granite. Forever beautiful, always visible, it is not only an eternal tribute to the Dead, but an inspiration to the living.

The park plan cemetery permits only flush metal markers. Devoid of distinction, subject to corrosion, covered with leaves in the Fall and snow in the Winter, the family plot so marked is difficult to find, suffers from monotony.

Moreover, for what it costs to mark the average non-monument cemetery plot with individual flat metal markers, you can purchase a beautiful family monument of granite or marble.

ish families have moved into Warwick during the past year which increases the potential contributions. He said plans have been made to cover all known Jewish residents in the area and expressed confidence that this year's total gifts will surpass last year's mark. "The tenseness and danger of war in Israel and the Middle East has served to spur on our workers and I am sure it will result in the same effect when it comes to giving on the part of the Jewish residents of Warwick."

Associate chairman for the D-Day is Abe Tobin; D-Day captains are Alfred Mossberg, Bernard Silver, Zeidman and Harold Stein.

Resnick-Becker

Wearing an ivory silk shantung gown trimmed with rosepoint lace with a scoop neck and chapel length train, Miss Harriet Becker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Becker of 2849 N. 49th Street, Milwaukee, Wis., became the bride last Sunday of Kenneth Kiera Resnick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Israel Resnick of 79 Sayles Avenue, Pawtucket. Rabbis Louis Swichkow and Max Tickin officiated at the 5 P. M. ceremony at the Beth El Ner Tamid Synagogue, Milwaukee.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She carried a white orchid with stephanotis.

Miss Miriam Rabinovitz was maid of honor for her cousin. She was gowned in ballerina length aqua crystallete, fashioned with a square neckline and a bow at the bodice. Her bouquet was of white mums and red roses. Bridesmaids were Mary Roitblatt, Leonore Resnick and Mrs. J. Baum, both sisters of the bridegroom, with Susan Rabinovitz, the bride's cousin, as junior bridesmaid. The bridesmaids wore gowns similar to the maid of honor's. Miss Rabinovitz' gown was of the same color and material with a bow in back. Beth Kniaz was flower girl dressed in white crystallete with an aqua sash.

Joseph Teverow was best man for his nephew. Ushers were Jack Baum, Lee Robbins, and Alvin Becker, the bride's brother. Martin Becker, another brother of the bride, was junior usher.

The mother of the bride chose brown and gold silk, and Mrs. Resnick was dressed in blue-grey silk.

After a honeymoon in Florida, the couple will reside in Providence.

Lepcio to Speak At Sports Dinner

Wednesday evening is the time set for the Jewish Community Center's sports award dinner, the first in several seasons, and all JCC junior and teen sportsters and their dads have been invited to attend. The program, to be conducted in the auditorium of the main Center building, will begin at 7 P. M.

Featured speaker of the evening will be Ted Lepcio, Boston Red Sox second baseman. Other sports celebrities expected to attend the affair are Bob Robertson and Ivan Irwin of the Rhode Island Reds.

Al Abelson requests committee members be present at a final meeting on Monday at 8:30 P. M. at the Center.

Jim Mendes to Be At JCC Dance

The Center Seniors, the Jewish Community Center's new high schoolers' organization, will sponsor an informal disc jockey dance at the main Center building Monday evening at 7:30 P. M.

Open to all senior highers, the event will feature Jimmy Mendes, WICE disc jockey and popular music commentator, who will present gift records to some of those attending. Refreshments will be served.

The Center Seniors meet regularly on Monday evenings at 7:15 P. M. at the main Center building.

Adult Program to Open at South Side

After a season of programming for children, youth and older adults, the South Side Branch of the Jewish Community Center will now offer programs for adults.

The three programs to be initiated are an adult dance class to begin on Wednesday evening, Nov. 7, with Roy Duskin as instructor in Latin-American dances; an art class to begin this Monday evening at 8:30 o'clock with Norman A. Surdut, instructor; and a gym program for men on Sunday mornings from 10 A. M. to 12 noon.

Adults interested in the activities are asked to contact Sol Kutner, Branch director at ST 1-2080.

Ballet Russe Here Oct. 27

The Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo returns to the Veterans Memorial Auditorium on Saturday, Oct. 27, to give two performances. Two notable programs will be presented, each widely different from the other.

Saturday matinee at 2:30 will open with "The Mikado", balletic version of the famous Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, this to be followed by the Blue Bird, great classical pas de deux from the "Sleeping Beauty" ballet. Concluding the afternoon will be "Coppelia", the noted three-act ballet.

In the evening will be seen Les Sylphides, the epitome of the romantic ballet; pas de deux Classique, Tchaikovsky's great classical duet; "Sombremos", sensational newcomer to the repertoire since the Ballet Russe was last here; and last but not least "Gaité Parisienne".

just one Sunday morning...

it means so much to tens of thousands of jewish men, women and children throughout the world

THIS SUNDAY IS D "D" DAY

Early this Sunday, October 21, scores of your friends and neighbors will leave their homes to begin a big and important task.

Before Sunday morning has passed, these hard workers will have visited literally thousands of Jewish homes in order to accept, in one day, the gift of our community for the General Jewish Committee Campaign.

You can make their task easier if you will plan to be home this Sunday morning to welcome your neighbor, the GJC worker, and be prepared to make a maximum gift.

WHAT YOU DO THIS SUNDAY MORNING MEANS SO MUCH TO SO MANY OF YOUR FELLOW JEWS AT HOME AND ABROAD.

PLEASE be at home on "D" DAY This Sunday, October 21

Israel's Quiet Path

While Middle East headlines have taken on banner proportions in telling the story of Suez, and the vital need to keep the oil-ways free of obstacles, journalists have completely passed up what, in our estimation, could well be a more vital feature story from the same geographical area. We are referring, specifically, to a recent "Atoms for Peace" exhibit which was held earlier this month in Tel Aviv. Many months ago readers enjoyed our little jibe at the big Eastern and Western nations, when we implied that Israel could make its mark on the world by setting a pattern for peaceful and profitable exploitation of atomic energy.

Today, the jibe isn't quite so humorous, nor should readers take the possibility too lightly. Israel, in her very quiet and self-contained manner, is doing vast research and making considerable progress in the examination of atomic energy. Israeli research has taken this direction more or less out of necessity; the small nation lacks other power resources, her fuel imports have been economically out of proportion, and her security situation is such that she cannot rely with a free mind upon such imports. There is a strong possibility that Israel will devise an economically viable use of atomic energy long before other nations which are generously endowed with more conventional forms of power.

But atomic research does not stand alone on Israel's scientific stage. The Haifa Technion recently completed construction of a centripetal air pump, built under a research project sponsored by the U. S. Air Force.

There is, obviously, to Israel's dark cloud, a very significant silver lining. The economic and military boycotts which are thrust upon her might well force her into a creative and ambitious pioneer in several of the important sciences. It might be postulated that eventually all of the world's powers would come to Israel, on her terms, for this scientific know-how. And wouldn't Israel be the popular nation if she could manage to finance her long-dreamed of oil pipeline from Elath to Haifa, which would serve as a by-pass to Suez? Premature dreams, but pleasant ones nevertheless.

A Hebrew School On the Sand

"A friend of Beryl Segal's and mine once remarked, 'Beryl's articles are great except when he writes on politics.'"

"I may be slightly prejudiced, but I maintain that Beryl is great on any subject he touches, and greatest when he returns to his home base and dives into the seas of Hebrew culture. One pearl he came up with this year was 'In Love With a Book.' Another was the Simchas Torah story, 'The Hebrew School in the Sands' in the Jewish Herald of September 28.

"My own test for a good story is that while the author apparently tries to carry us away into a fantastic and dream world, he actually deals in everyday realities.

"Beryl in his Simchas Torah story is doing just that. Intentionally or not he exposes another peculiarly Jewish trait. Other people can build and better on rock or solid ground. The Jewish people alone have the vision and courage to build on sand. One of Israel's greatest achievements is the building on the Negev sands flourishing communities and security posts.

"Less than ten years ago, a small, unassuming group of people of little fame and less wealth, but with an abundance of faith and enough courage undertook to build a Hebrew Day School in Providence.

"A very dear lady friend of mine then told me, 'Shayah, I admire your courage, I sincerely wish you succeed, but I fear you are building on sand.'"

"I wish many of the sympathetic doubters were with me at the last Simchas Torah party at Sons of Abraham where a few of Minyonim Day School children, ages seven to fifteen, actually breathed new life into the celebration, singing Hebrew songs from 'Vetehzeno Eineinu' to 'Techzakno Yedei', and dancing Chasidic Rikudim and Israeli Horas until close to midnight.

"It was a great satisfaction to Mrs. Segal and myself when people came over and congratulated us, saying, 'This is the fruit of your labor.' 'These are your children.' My most rewarding satisfaction, however, was when I remembered the words of my lady friend, '... you are building on sand.'"

"And with Beryl's story of the first Hebrew school in the sands fresh in my mind, I thought to myself, 'This is not history repeating itself, this is Jewish continuity. And we did our bit in this eternal process.'"

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Lights in the Dark Night

By BERYL SEGAL

Our friend, Mrs. Anna Phillips, said in the course of a conversation:

"All my life I have worked for a better world, for a happier humanity. But it seems that the world is getting worse, and people more evil as the years go by."

She said this on a day when the newspapers told of shootings in Cyprus, riots in Hong Kong, border clashes in Israel, and race hatreds in our own South. And it could have been said on any day. Names of places may differ from day to day, but the story is the same. The cruel story of strife and bloodshed, and impending doom.

The words of Mrs. Phillips, a woman who has given much of herself to humane causes throughout her adult life, would not give me rest. I remembered a story which I read during the summer, and I went back to the pile of newspapers and magazines at my desk. It was a story by Jacob Patt in the Yiddish weekly, Der Wecker, of last August.

Jacob Patt, a noted journalist and lecturer, and the director of the Jewish Labor Committee of America, tells of a letter he received from Father Marie Benoit, a Capuchin monk of France, now residing at the Vatican in Rome. The letter is addressed to the Jewish Labor Committee and in it Father Benoit is pleading for financial aid for a certain woman, Mrs. Fernand Labuche.

It is of these two people, two luminous souls in a sea of darkness, that I wish to tell, and to find comfort for my own disturbed mood and to the cry from the depths of the hearts of women like Mrs. Phillips.

Father Benoit lived in a monastery in France when the Nazis occupied his native land. He joined the resistance movement and was appointed chairman of the committee whose mission was to help in the escape of those who fell into the hands of the collaborators. In the habit of a monk he could move around freely and do his work of mercy.

Jacob Patt heard of this remarkable monk from refugees who were delivered from the clutches of death through this man. They told unbelievable stories of courage, of disregard for his own safety, of his tireless zeal in his mission. They referred to him as the Angel of Mercy, the Deliverer, the Redeemer.

They told of passports provided by him to Jews, passports with Italian names, by which the doomed victims could escape. They told of food cards and rental permits provided by the monk to those who escaped, of hiding places provided by him, and of his assistance in getting across the border and to safety.

In recognition of this, Father Benoit was decorated by his native France with a medal of honor, and the Jews of Italy gathered in the synagogue of Milan, on April, 1955, to offer the Capuchin monk their thanksgiving.

Put Father Marie Benoit on one scale and all the rulers of the earth in whose hands and mouths the fate of the world is balanced on the other scale, and judge for yourself which of the scales will tip.

So much for Father Benoit, a name we should never forget when gloom and despair knock at the doors of our hearts.

Now for the woman, Madam Fernand Labuche. Of her, Father Benoit writes in his letter to the Jewish Labor Committee in New York:

"I, the Capuchin monk Marie Benoit, have the pleasure and the honor to present Madam Fernand Labuche to you, of the Jewish Labor Committee.

"I have known Fernand under the tragic condition of the Second World War. I was then in my monastery in Marcell, and I was in contact with the Jewish organizations of that region. It was my purpose to save people who were in danger for no other crime than that they were Jews."

And the letter goes on to tell of Fernand Labuche, a Catholic woman who was married to a Jew, Ludwig Nodelman. When he was arrested, together with other Jews, and taken to a concentration camp, Fernand came to Father Benoit and told him of her plans to help her husband escape to freedom. She asked for advice and help.

That was the beginning of a heart-warming saga of heroism and a devotion to the mission of saving lives that will shine as a beacon light in the thick darkness that enveloped Europe in those days.

Ludwig Nodelman escaped, but was arrested again when he made an attempt to help another victim escape. This time he was deported to Germany and he never returned.

The loss of her husband did not break the spirit of Fernand Labuche. Now she was determined to honor the memory of her husband by saving other victims of the concentration camps. She was always by the side of Father Benoit. Together they provided false passports, held in hiding suspects who were marked by the police for arrests, helped them to the border and freedom.

Father Benoit and Fernand Labuche, two least suspected people, snatched the victims of hate from the very clutches of the enemy.

But then came the inevitable.

The police learned of the activities of the pair. They came to the monastery to look for Father Benoit, but he was fortunately on a mission to Rome. Upon his return Father Benoit gathered documents and evidence of the Nazi atrocities for the archives of the Vatican, and he returned to Rome. Fernand Labuche was the only soul who knew of his return to France and departure. She followed him to the Italian border where they separated, promising each other to continue in their work of rescue.

And she kept her promise, Fernand Labuche, the Catholic wife of a French Jew. Who can number the men and women and children who are alive today because Fernand Labuche, born in the image of the creator, would not betray that image as so many others did?

Put Fernand Labuche on one scale and the diplomats who scheme and plot to "assure" peace on earth on the other scale, and see which of the scales is favored.

Now Fernand Labuche is lonely and in need. Father Benoit writes on her behalf to the Jewish Labor Committee in New York:

"I was an eye witness to the great deeds of this woman, and I cannot think of her courage without a feeling of warmth. She was my rock and my inspiration in my work. I consider it my duty to tell of her great merits to the Jews who escaped the horrible storm."

And Jacob Patt who tells of these two saintly people exclaims:

"Life is worth living as long as such people, Jews and non-Jews, trod this earth."

And of course the Jewish Labor Committee will not forsake this wonderful woman in her hour of need.

Let it be noted here that the Jewish Labor Committee is on the list of allocations of our General Jewish Committee. The Jewish Labor Committee of America receives an annual sum for its activities from our campaign.

through our contributions, have It is good to know that we, a share in honoring and awarding Madam Fernand Labuche of France, the modern Ruth.

(Mr. Segal's opinions are his own. His views are not necessarily those of this newspaper.)

70 Pledge $4,511 At YAD Dinner

One hundred and fifty people, mostly couples, attended the Young Adult Initial Gifts Dinner, October 11, at the Ledgmont Country Club. After hearing a speech by Zvi Kolitz, some seventy pledges amounting to $4,511 were made. This represents an increase of $1,561 over last year's initial gifts pledges. Norman Robinson, chairman of the Young Adults Division, urges that to maintain this rate of increase, all initial gifts cards should be covered immediately.

Rabbi Tumin gave the benediction before dinner. Norman Robinson introduced the head table: Martin Temkin, chairman of the Initial Gifts, and his co-chairmen, Martin Dittelman, and Dr. Joseph Fishbein; Allen Flink, chairman of General Solicitations, and his co-chairmen, David Roth, and Herbert Emers. Louis Goldstein was also seated at the head table.

There was dancing to Marty Curran's band after dinner, and an exhibition by Bill and Ramona.

With the excitement of the Initial Gifts Dinner barely over, the Young Adult Division goes into "Y-Day" next Sunday, with an army of volunteers, meeting at the Indian Room of the Narragansett, and then spreading themselves over the city to ask for your donation for GJC.

Which Would You Rather Visit?

SHARON MEMORIAL PARK or a Typical Old-Fashioned Cemetery.

The advantages of a memorial park are easily seen from the pictures above. There's a sense of decorum... a feeling of dignity in Sharon that makes it a pleasant place to visit. Here you find:

SERENE BEAUTY. Sharon is a natural lovely garden. A place of refinement and consolation, where one can meditate upon shared experiences of the past.

EVERLASTING BRONZE MEMORIALS set level with the lawn are indestructible, less expensive than tombstones and eliminate distinctions between rich and poor beyond life.

ENDOWMENT CARE. The tranquil beauty of Sharon Memorial Park is assured for all time by an irrevocable trust fund established with Old Colony Trust Company of Boston. Such protection for future generations is not available in any other Jewish cemetery in New England.

COURTEOUS ATTENDANTS. There is always an attendant on duty ready to help the visitor in every way and to guide him personally to his family lot.

IN KEEPING WITH TRADITION. Sharon Memorial Park is conducted in strict accordance with Jewish tradition, and approved by Orthodox, Conservative or Reform Rabbinical authorities.

A demonstration lesson in the teaching of Hebrew as a modern language will be given by Paul Hartman, instructor of Hebrew at Hope High School, according to an announcement by Mrs. Charles Potter, chairman of the Hebrew Culture Council.

The program will be held on Sunday afternoon, October 21, at 2:30 P. M. in Temple Emanuel's School Building, Room 11. Following the demonstration lesson there will be a discussion and analysis of the program. Teachers, parents and students interested in the study of Hebrew are invited to observe the lesson.

Students participating in the demonstration lesson are enrolled in first year Hebrew at Hope High School. They include: Carol Pedliken, Robert Greenstein, George Brown, Michael Summerfield, Elinor Gueber, Sheila Hollander, Samuel Backman, Sheila Marks, Phyllis Cohen, Sandra Bolotin, Rose Guenberger, Charles Newman, Robert Miller, Joyce Shore, Selena Levine, Valerie Halperin, Judy Rosenthal.

Cites Record of Education Bureaus

Max Winograd, honorary president of the Bureau of Jewish Education, presented a report at the recent meeting of the Board on the Jewish Education Workshop sponsored by the Council of Jewish Federation and Welfare Funds in New Haven for the entire New England region.

Winograd, who chaired the workshop at the regional meeting, led a discussion on the problems of Jewish education confronting communities in this area. In his statement to the Providence Bureau Board he underscored the thought that communities which have community bureaus of Jewish education, such as Providence and Boston, have advanced much further in their educational planning and achievement than those communities which lack a communal instrument for Jewish education. The latter, he indicated, reflect weakness and planlessness in their approach to Jewish education.

State Representative George C. Berk is shown here with his wife, Claire, and his children, Suzi, 9, Mimi, 4, and Robert, 3. Rep. Berk (D-Prov., 22nd District) is a candidate for re-election in November. While a member of the House of Representatives, he served on the Finance Committee. A veteran of World War II, Rep. Berk is a practicing attorney, having graduated from Harvard College and Harvard Law School. He has been active in various community organizations, including Knights of Pythias, Touro Fraternal Association, Harvard Club of R. I., R. I. Bar Association, Congregation Sons of Abraham, Jewish Community Center, and General Jewish Committee, (United Jewish Appeal.)

SYD COHEN

This Is Baseball

Baseball is a game, a sport; yet to so many millions of us, it has become a part of our very lives, even though we are mostly spectators at it, and unpaid strategists. Baseball is a vicarious experience with us; we derive pleasure from it and we suffer from it in direct proportion to the fortunes and misfortunes of our favorite teams and players.

Baseball is a game of inches, of circumstance, and you might add, of ball park dimensions. Ebbets Field and Yankee Stadium offer outstanding examples of that, and that is as good a place as any to start this musing of the recent World Series.

Take the perfect game of that new national hero, Don Larsen. It was pitched in spacious Yankee Stadium, where Brooklyn's long ball hitters were at a disadvantage (so were the Yankee right handers, of course). That ball that Gil Hodges hit, and on which Mickey Mantle made a Joe DiMaggio type catch way back on the outfield horizon, probably would have been off the wall or over it had the game been played across the river. That's what a difference a park makes!

And look here! Had Casey Stengel not been so quick to lift the big right hander so early in the second game, when he had a 6-1 lead, and if Larsen had gone on to pitch the route, or most of it, Don never would have gotten to pitch in the Stadium, and there would have been no perfect game. So the decision on which Stengel drew most of his Series criticism, and which Larsen admittedly sore, boomeranged the pitcher into the Hall of Fame, not to mention sudden wealth and prominence beyond his dreams.

Luck of the gods!

Remember the last previous attempt at a perfect game? The one I am thinking about happened more than 20 years ago, the day that Tommy Bridges of the Tigers retired the first 26 men to face him. Walter Johnson, Washington's manager, trailing by something like 13-0, sent up his best pinch-hitter, Sheriff Dave Harris, to bat for the pitcher, and Harris singled to ruin the perfect game.

Remember how Floyd (Bill) Bevens lost his no-hitter in 1947? Bevens had been wild that day. Nine walks but no hits—that was his record when limping Pete Reiser came up to pinch hit with two out and a man on second, with the Yanks leading 2-1. Reiser, suffering from a leg injury, could not have beat out any kind of ground ball, yet Bucky Harris, then managing the Yanks, ordered him passed. That became the tenth walk—still a Series mark for one pitcher—and then Cookie Lavagetto hit a high outside fast ball, meant to be a waste pitch, off the wall for the first hit and the winning runs.

Waste pitches! An, there is a subject to keep many hot stove

"Every Touchdown Starts
With a Savings Account"

Says Ben Thrifty,
The Old Colony Money-Watcher

"Parents don't get cheers . . . but they ought to," says Ben Thrifty. "Every football player, every student in the stands is there because somebody saved — and saved hard — for a college education. What about your youngsters? Will your savings be ready for college when they are? Make sure! Use either or both of these Old Colony savings plans now."

Monthly Savings now pay 3 1/2 % yearly dividends compounded every 6 months. Your funds build up rapidly, for example: $20 saved each month grows to $4,000 — $25 per month, to $5,000 — and so on up.

Convenience Savings let you save any amount anytime and still earn generous dividends, now 3% yearly compounded every 6 months.

Baby's Friend!

I'm Roy MacKenzie . . .

A Lincoln Woods Farms Driver salesman who brings such great dairy foods to so many happy homes every week in

CRANSTON

No. I don't make a practice of going around kissing babies, although I know that is supposed to be a popular way to win friends.

I win friends through what I feel is more constructive action. I deliver fine foods that will help guarantee baby's health and growth (and which are wonderful for adults, too!)

Every baby requires orange juice. Our orange juice is pure and wholesome, tasty and fresh. It is iced right after being packaged, and is sped to your home. Our juice is economical, too. There's no wastage, no time lost in shopping.

And, speaking of votes, I'll be accumulating votes when I bring to your home a quart or two of juice and such other fine food products as:

Milk Mello-D Bamer Up Cottage Cheese Slend-R-Ade Chocolate Milk Margarine Cream Bamer and Extra Large Eggs.

These votes could send me and my wife on an all-expense trip to Washington, but what is more important to you, the foods you have delivered to your home could PREVENT you and your family from taking a trip—a needless trip to the doctor, because of the energy and health that abound in our great dairy products.

league fires burning for a long time. With two strikes on Yogi Berra each of the two times that he faced him, Don Newcombe tried twice to waste a pitch. He didn't waste them enough. Both of Yogi's seventh game homers were off these meant-to-be bad deliveries. They were bad, all right—bad enough to be called balls had not Berra slugged them out of the park.

And how about Tommy Byrne, when he faced Duke Snider in the second inning of the second game, with the Yanks leading 6-3? Tommy got Duke to miss a low curve, then tried to set him up with a fast ball outside—a waste pitch. But the ball got away from Byrne, came in over the plate. Brethren, we will now pray . . .

Last year it was changeup pitches. Bob Grim threw only three, but two of them disappeared off the bats of Snider and Amoros. And that lost the game. Another Yank pitcher lost a game on a changeup homer. Yet Johnny Podres won two games—and the world title for his mates—on his masterful changeup.

And how about that Stengel? In one of the final games of the regular season, he used a record 25 players, and in the second Series game he used a record seven pitchers. Then he goes through the final five games without once making a change in his starting lineup. Not only that! For four straight games of that string the same men played every day, save for the pitchers, all of whom went the route. Two changes occurred in the seventh game—and both men who came in slugged home runs.

At the risk of being trampled under an avalanche of protests from those who do not think that Stengel is much of a manager, let me call attention to one little-noted episode from the great Brooklyn victory in the second game. Pitcher after pitcher was being mauled by the Dodgers' big bats. The score became bigger and bigger, the Yankee debacle grew greater and greater, ultimate defeat in the World Series beckoned, and the manager's face, as shown by the TV cameras, grew longer and longer.

Then Bob Turley went in, pitched a perfect inning—including two strikeouts—and was immediately sent to the showers by his manager. How come, when no pinch hitter was involved? Casey had a simple but illuminating answer. If Turley could look that good for two days in a row (he had pitched briefly in the opening game), Stengel figured he might be worthy of a starting assignment; in which case, why waste him for several innings in a losing cause?

So Turley, the only pitcher among seven who stopped Brooklyn cold, was pulled out of the game, and the slaughter went on. It seems to me you have to admire the manager for being able to think ahead like that at a time when he was most in trouble. Most men would have been most concerned with keeping the score down, except when it was time to pinch hit for the twirler.

Random Thoughts

Wonder if National League still thinks Yanks would finish in second division over there? . . . With perfect defensive play, Yank pitchers would have had two nine inning no-hitters around one single by Brooks. After Larsen's gem, Turley allowed clean hit by Snider in first inning, then nothing but misjudged base hits the remaining nine.

Does this prove anything? McDougald, Mantle, Berra, Skowron grand slam home runs (all in last six years) were hit in National League parks. Closest in American League park was belt by Bauer in 1951 that struck top of bleacher railing in left center, well more than 400 feet away.

Here's an oddity. In a Series that went seven games, not one pitcher on either side won or lost more than one game. I can't recall a parallel to that. And only two hurlers—Maglie and Ford—had more than one decision. Their records were 1-1.

But the ultimate topper of the Series is tied up in the retirement of Babe Pinelli, the National League umpire. After a long and distinguished career, Babe made his final appearance calling balls and strikes behind the plate in the first no-hit game in World Series history, the first perfect game in 34 years!

10 minutes from terror!

In Israel today the enemy is only 10 minutes away — thanks to his new Communist-supplied jets.

If the jets do come there will be no radar warning, for Israel has no radar. There will be little or no other civilian protection: air raid shelters — food stock piles — or auxiliary power for electricity or water.

You see, Israel has been doing its main spending for peace, not war — building schools, homes and jobs, and taking in refugees.

Right now, while the people of Israel concentrate on their own protection, the rescue of tens of thousands of Jews who must leave strife-torn, dangerous areas, depends on your prompt gift to the United Jewish Appeal through the General Jewish Committee of Providence. The need is great — the need is now!

Give more than before to the General Jewish Committee and to the United Jewish Appeal.
