AJC Denounces Sunday Laws

JERSEY CITY — The American Jewish Congress regional executive here adopted a resolution last week denouncing compulsory Sunday observance laws as "violating the principle of religious liberty by compelling persons to adhere to a law, the motivation and operation of which is basically religious."

The resolution which will be forwarded to Gov. Meyner and members of the State Legislature declared: "Religious liberty is an indispensable aspect of democratic freedom and indeed the very foundation of American democracy. As a nation of people attached to many different religious faiths or to none, we owe our survival and our unity to the universal acceptance of the uniquely American concept that the relationship between man and God is not and may not be subject to government control or regulation."

The American Jewish Congress urged members of the Legislature to adopt amendments to any Sunday observance law, "exempting from the operation of those laws, persons whose religious convictions compel them to observe a day other than Sunday as a religious day of rest."

Campaign Total Reaches $552,000

The 1957 campaign total has reached $552,000 as General Jewish Committee officials press their drive to reach $600,000 by the first of the year.

Henry J. Hassenfeld, GJC president, in announcing the latest total said that there are several important cards still unreported. He pointed out that some contributors are waiting until the end of the year before making known their pledges to the annual fund raising drive.

Mr. Hassenfeld urged all contributors to make payments before the first of the year so that an additional check may be turned over to the United Jewish Appeal. A check for $125,000, representing the initial proceeds of the 1957 campaign, was presented to the UJA a few weeks ago.

Mr. Hassenfeld asserted the GJC hopes to be able to present an additional check for $125,000 to the UJA shortly after the first of the year. In order to do this, he declared, the GJC 1957 campaign needs some $48,000 in additional pledges within the next week.

Omit Questions About Religion

WASHINGTON — The proposed inclusion of questions bearing on religious affiliation in the 1960 Federal census went by the boards when the Census Bureau here ruled that the controversy precipitated by the planned inclusion of such questions made it inadvisable to go ahead with the original plan.

Opponents of the proposal maintained that such a line of questioning would violate the privacy of conscience as well as the concept of separation of church and state.

According to Census Bureau director Robert W. Burgess, "the primary reason" for the retreat "was recognition that at this time a considerable number of persons would be reluctant to answer such a question in the census where the reply is mandatory."

In New York City, officials of the American Jewish Congress hailed the action of the Census Bureau, Dr. Israel Goldstein, president of the AJC, called it "a far-reaching victory for traditional American freedoms."

To Bury Youth In Jewish Cemetery

TEL AVIV—Ahron Steinberg, a five-year-old Jewish boy who was buried outside the gates of the Jewish cemetery of the town of Pardess Hanna because he had not been brought into the fold through Abrahamic rites will be reburied in the town's new municipally-owned cemetery with a full burial ceremony.

The latest development on this gruesome incident was a resolution by the Pardess Hanna municipal council to permit reburial of the child on the municipal cemetery.

When the child died some two weeks ago, the overseers of the Jewish cemetery refused burial on the ground that the child, whose mother was Christian, could not be given a Jewish burial because he was uncircumcised.

The incident aroused much protest not only in the immediate area but throughout the country, threatening to undermine the harmonious relations between the Ben Gurion coalition and the religious bloc.

Dag Hammarskjold Appoints Colombian As Representative

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. — United Nations Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold this week announced formally that he has appointed Dr. Francisco Urrutia of Colombia as his personal representative to deal with the Israel-Jordan dispute regarding Mt. Scopus.

"I attach very great significance to this mission," he said. "If it succeeds, it will stabilize this situation which if allowed to drift and not resolved could give a great deal of trouble."

As to the possibility that Dr. Urrutia's mandate from the United Nations may be extended to the broader area of the possible extension of the Israel-Arab armistice agreements into peace talks, Mr. Hammarskjold said: "Dr. Urrutia is going there to undertake certain practical steps connected with an agreement for the demilitarization of the Mt. Scopus area made between Israel and Jordan in July, 1948. His terms of reference do not open the door to any other negotiations."

Hammarskjold's statement about Dr. Urrutia's mission was made by the Secretary General at a press conference at which he dealt chiefly with matters that had been on the agenda of the General Assembly which closed

In response to a query whether he still perceives a "will to peace" in the Middle East, Hammarskjold said: "Definitely — if anything my impressions at this time confirm my previous conclusions." The Secretary General said that when he visits Egyptian authorities in Cairo at the end of this month he hopes to "cover all ground outstanding between Egypt and the United Nations."

In reply to a question whether he will discuss with Egypt the Security Council's six-point declaration of 1956 regarding operation of the Suez Canal, Hammarskjold said "whether we will talk about this matter specifically, I hate to say 'yes.' Aspects of this problem could be quite in order, although there is no agenda." The council's declaration specifically forbids Egypt to bar ships of all nations from passage through the waterway.

Henry Cabot Lodge, American delegate to the United Nations, suggested that the new $100,000,000 special projects fund for economic aid set up under UN auspices could be adapted to development aid to the Middle East.

Asks Support For 'Peace' Bill

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y.—Abba Eban chairman of Israel's delegation here called last week for unanimous support of a resolution concerning "peaceful neighborly relations among states." He spoke in the debate before the General Assembly's political and security committee after Yugoslavia, Sweden and India presented such a resolution in line with the Soviet Union's insistence that "peaceful coexistence" be taken up by the United Nations.

Eban welcomed the opportunity to discuss the issue and the resolution, which was subsequently adopted unanimously. "The item submitted by the Soviet Union," he said, "invites us to reflect on the broad principles which underlie our international fraternity. The delegations of India, Sweden and Yugoslavia responded to this invitation by submitting a lucid expression of our Charter obligations."

Speakers in the debate with the exception of Saudi Arabia's Ahmed Shukairy had followed a level of tolerance, he stated. Israel's delegation, he said, believed that "a transformation of climate" was a condition for peace, perhaps survival, and therefore unreservedly supported the three-power draft.

Israel abstained earlier when the Assembly voted a resolution concerning financing of the clearance of the Suez Canal. Mr. Eban explained that there was no evidence that a resolution passed by the Security Council, six years ago, calling for removal of restrictions in the use of the Canal had yet been observed.

JDC Approves 1958 Budget To Aid More Than 200,000 Jews

NEW YORK — A budget of $28,591,000 for the year 1958 for aid to more than 200,000 Jewish men, women and children in Europe, the Moslem areas and Israel was adopted here at the 43rd annual meeting held at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

Approval of the budget was voted by the more than 500 delegates attending the meeting at a business session following a report by Charles H. Jordan, director-general for JDC operations overseas, on his recent visit to Poland, where he helped set up a program of JDC assistance for some 10,000 Jews who had been repatriated to Poland from the Soviet Union.

Mr. Jordan stresses that "the $28,591,000 which JDC requires in 1958 will provide only for those 200,000 Jews who are already known to be in need. It does not, nor can it, provide for tens of thousands of others who may turn to JDC during the year ahead for help."

Budget Increased

The new budget, representing an increase of more than $2,000,000 over the budget adopted a year ago, includes $1,000,000 for emergency aid to refugees, with the largest single expenditure, some $12,000,000, to go for support of Malbem, the JDC welfare program on behalf of aged, ill and handicapped newcomers to Israel.

The budget was submitted to the National Conference of the United Jewish Appeal, from which the JDC receives the bulk of the funds for its humanitarian activities overseas.

Following adoption of the budget the delegates re-elected Edward M. M. Warburg as JDC chairman for the 13th consecutive year.

Edward M. M. Warburg, who presided at the dinner session, noted that in the late 30's and early 40's ships carrying Jewish refugees were refused permission to land in many countries, with tragic consequences, and that other groups of Jews were deported into "No Man's Land" at the borders between Germany and Poland and other countries. With the existence of Israel, Jewish refugees "now have a place to go to," Mr. Warburg declared, adding that "there will be no more refugees in No Man's Land."

U. S. Violinist Loses To Russian

WARSAW — Sidney Harth, 32, concert master and assistant conductor of the Louisville, Ky., Symphony Orchestra, was confused by the points system which resulted in his being beaten out of one of the world's top honors for violinists by a Russian girl.

It's "so complicated," he said, "it would take a genius to understand it."

Harth lost to Rosa Fajn, 29. Her teacher, the noted Soviet violinist, David Oistrakh, scored them equally in the finals. He was one of 17 judges — 10 from Soviet bloc countries, 7 from the West. Each could award 25 points.

When the 409-406 score was announced, British judge Max Rostal stormed out protesting that the American and the Russian should have been declared co-winners.

Some of the judges," said Harth,

"and I don't mean Mr. Oistrakh, were pushing their own pupils.

"I never saw a contest before where professors judged their own charges."

He was the first American to reach the finals in the Henryk Wieniawski contest, which ended last week-end in Pozan. Wieniawski was a 19th century violinist and composer.

"This Rosa," said Harth of the winner, "is a sweet girl and a good fiddler."

He was astonished by the responsive audiences.

"Would you believe it, we packed a concert hall at 10 on a Monday morning. At the laureate concert Monday night they gave me an ovation."

How did he feel about the prize? "After coming all this way it seems sad to just miss the top spot like this."

To Speak at Beth El—Rabbi Maurice L. Zigmund, New England regional director of the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundations, will be the visiting preacher at Temple Beth El on Friday, Jan. 3. The topic of Dr. Zigmund's sermon will be "A New Year and an Old World."

Talent Hunt Leads To Talmud Torah

HOLLYWOOD — 20-Century-Fox's talent hunt for a young Jewish girl to play Anne Frank led last week to a mass interview of girls enrolled in local Talmud Torahs. Of the 150 girls interviewed, the choice has temporarily narrowed down to two, one of whom, aged 13, comes from an orthodox home, the Fox Studio revealed. Since "Marjorie Morningstar" also chose its Bar-Mitzvah boy from one of the local shuls, one Hebrew teacher remarked, one must conclude that, in Los Angeles at least, it really pays to go to Cheder.

Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Evelyn Wasser, Mrs. B. Holland, Mrs. Paul Ladd, Mrs. H. Kaminsky and Mrs. I. Winoker.

Israel's Deficit Same As In 1949

TEL AVIV — The deficit in Israel's international balance of payments during the last nine years (excluding the first year of statehood) amounts to $2,700m., it was stated by Mr. P. Sapir, Minister of Commerce and Industry, in a review of the present economic situation before the Knesset Economic Committee.

Mr. Sapir said that the current annual deficit on consumer goods alone amounts to $153m., approximately the same as in 1949. During this period, however, the population of Israel increased by one million, prices on the world markets rose by 20 per cent and the standard of living in Israel rose considerably, he pointed out.

The Minister thought that this phenomenon was encouraging, even in view of the prospect of the deficit increasing by $10m. to $15m. in 1957 owing to the rise in the price of fuel and increased stockpiling.

Mr. Sapir said that the estimate of $20m. exports in the current year will materialize and the estimate for next year is $250m. through the expansion of exports to new markets in West Africa and the Far East.

Industrial output rose an estimated 15 to 18 per cent, and agricultural production by 10 to 11 per cent during the current year. Some 6,000 new workers were added to industry. Productivity in industry, meanwhile, is rising by about 3 per cent yearly.

He went on to say that the cost-of-living index would probably rise by 13 to 14 points during 1957, compared to an increase of 11 points in 1956. He regarded this as an indication to the relative stability of prices in the country.

Blocks Leave For Italy, Israel

He is a vice-president of the Cranston Jewish Center and former Bulletin editor of the Providence Lion's Bulletin. He has directed and produced several plays during the past year at the Cranston Jewish Center and R. I. School of Design.

Mrs. Block is a former president of the Cranston Chapter American Medical Center J. C. R. S. at Denver, and was the first official delegate of that chapter to attend the annual conclave at the Denver Hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Block expect to return about Jan. 23.

Respond To Call For Conference

Judge Frank Licht, general chairman in Rhode Island of the 10th anniversary celebration of the declaration of Israel as a state, said today that many organizations already have responded to the call for a planning conference on Jan. 5 at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel.

However, Judge Licht said that several organizations have not yet been heard from and he urged them to send in the names of their delegates immediately to General Jewish Committee headquarters, 203 Strand Building in Providence.

Each Jewish organization in the Greater Providence area is permitted three delegates to the conference.

A nation-wide observance of Israel's 10th anniversary is planned for next April with Providence and other Rhode Island communities participating fully in the events.

Turks Expect No Arab-Israel Peace

ISTANBUL — United Nations Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld's visit to the Middle East has aroused no hopes here of an Israel-Arab settlement. Turkish opinion, expressed freely in last week's press, holds that as long as the Arab states deny Israel's existence there can be no progress towards peace.

The newspaper, Dunya, wrote that "we do not expect positive results from Mr. Hammarskjöld's visit because we cannot see any realism in King Hussein." The same publication, referring to Iraqi King Feisal's statement in Parliament calling for the destruction of Israel, noted that "as long as this mentality exists no peace can be achieved."

The daily, Yenisabah, was also pessimistic over the Secretary-General's prospects. It, too, cited Feisal's words and concluded that the "Arabs should give up the dream of wiping Israel off the map. Only then can the present minor conflicts be solved."

First Israel Storm Causes Damage

TEL AVIV — The first gale and rainstorm of the winter which held Israel in its grip last weekend was reported to have claimed its first life in addition to causing heavy damage to crops, disrupting communications and washing out roads and bridges.

The settler lost and presumed drowned lived in the Ashdod area, one of the worst hit by flood waters which, pouring out of the surrounding hills, cut the Tel Aviv-Askelon highway and bridges in the area. Police units managed to establish temporary contact with the isolated area and army engineers put up an infantry bridge at the site of a destroyed permanent structure to keep essential supplies rolling in. Army half tracks managed to get a doctor into Ashdod to assist a mother to give birth to her child.

High winds and mountainous seas closed the port of Haifa. One vessel attempted to put out to sea for Cyprus but was forced to return shortly, after two of her crewmen were injured as a result of the pounding the ship took.

In addition to their other emergency tasks, Israeli police authorities were searching for the bodies of 14 Jordanians reported to have drowned in the swollen Jordan River and been washed down into Israel territory. So far there have been no signs of the bodies.

Farmers To Hold Meeting In Israel

JERUSALEM—An international Farmers Convention and Festival is to be held in Israel next September, as part of the Tenth Anniversary Celebrations. Mr. A. Ben-David, Deputy Director-General of the Ministry of Agriculture, and Mr. Y. Tal, Director of the Foreign Relations Department of the Ministry, told a press conference in Jerusalem on Monday.

Mr. Ben-David said that our farmers will invite agricultural experts, veterinarians and farmers from all over the world to stay with them as their guests in their homes. It is estimated that about 500 delegates will come for the Convention.

A Chanukah party was held on Dec. 15 at Congregation Sons of Abraham by the BOPS, a Young Judaean group, under the leadership of Mrs. Samuel Grossman. A buffet supper was served and was followed by games, songs and dances. The proceeds of the sale of Chanukah candles by the group was used to buy toys for children in the hospital.

Dig For Potatoes, But Find Mosaics

NEW YORK—In Israel, they dig for potatoes and come up with ancient, beautifully colored mosaics, according to the Israel Government Tourist Office. Recently, a tractor driver of a "kibbutz," or agricultural settlement, in the Negev desert uncovered by chance a colored mosaic floor with beautiful designs. The Government Department of Antiquities was called in to proceed with excavations in the area. It was found that the floor was part of an ancient synagogue which the Department uncovered. The synagogue dates back to Byzantine days.

In Tel Aviv, on the other hand, a bulldozer was the cause of uncovering beautiful cosmetic vessels, jewelry and objects of blue and yellow glass which date back to the 1st century B. C. Thus every worker in Israel becomes an archaeologist and every tourist catches "the fever" and becomes an amateur in it too.

THREAT BY RABBINATE

TEV AVIV—Latest stage in the religious war against the breeding of pigs in Israel is a threat by the Chief Rabbinate to proclaim a "Cherem" against Kibbutzim which allow pig-breeding and which do not observe the Sabbath, and call on all religious Jews to boycott their products.

Gives Torah Crown To Jewish Museum

NEW YORK—A unique eighteenth century Polish Torah Crown has been donated to the Jewish Museum by Dr. Harry G. Friedman, noted collector of New York City.

The Torah crown is an important part of the traditional East European dressing of the Torah scroll, the manuscript version of the five books of Moses from which a prescribed portion is read at each Sabbath service.

The Museum's new acquisition was executed by George Kahlert, a Master of Breslau, Germany, in 1750. It is of silver gilt with cut-out applique and repousse work inlaid with semi-precious stones and stands 16 inches high. Biblical figure representations in relief depict Abraham and Isaac (the sacrifice of Isaac), Jacob (Jacob's Dream), Moses, Aaron, David and Solomon.

This is the sixth such Torah crown with figure decorations to be recovered. Of the five known remaining crowns containing the rare pattern, two are at The Jewish Museum, two are known to be in Warsaw, Poland and one has been lost.

A Hebrew inscription encircling the base identifies this crown as having come from Lissa, Poland, a former Jewish metropolis of Greater Poland and well-known center of Talmudic learning whose scholars were known as "The wise men of Lissa."

Bigot On Trial For Danger To Bonn

BAMBERG—Arthur Erhart, publisher of the anti-Semitic and neo-Nazi monthly "Nation Europa," went on trial before a Bamberg court Monday on charges of publishing literature dangerous to the Bonn Government and slanderous of the president of the German Parliament, Dr. Eugen Gerstenmaier.

"Nation Europa" has published numerous anti-Semitic articles and questions estimates that six million Jews were martyred by the Nazis. Erhart served during the late World War with a special S. S. unit which fought partisans in Poland and the USSR and exterminated thousands of Jews.

A libel action against the monthly publication "Deutsche Afrika-Orient Information" has been filed on behalf of Eric Ollenhauer, leader of the Social Democratic Party. The publication, considered a sounding board for former Nazis, stated in a recent issue that Dr. Ollenhauer is attorney for Israel and that his wife is a Jew who recently served as a volunteer in the Israeli Army.

Meanwhile, in Dusseldorf, a group of former Nazi organizations have formed an "action committee" and are preparing to launch a lobbying campaign in behalf of compensation for "victims" of denazification procedures.

The Nazi actions unit called for elimination of all legislation in post-war Germany which "discriminate" against former Nazis and annulment of all sentences imposed on convicted Nazis.

After the committee reports by the respective chairmen, it was announced that further plans have been made for a rummage sale to be held on March 25 to 27 to benefit the National Cancer Service of the United Order True Sisters, Inc.

The presentation of the initial grant for indigent cancer patients of the Miriam Hospital to Dr. I. Herbert Scheffer, executive director of the hospital, was made by the co-chairmen of the National Cancer Service of the Providence Lodge No. 48, Mrs. Leonard Abrams and Mrs. Leonard Engle. Russian Jewry Under Restraint

LONDON—Continuing efforts by the World Jewish Congress to send to the Soviet Union a delegation headed by its president Dr. Nahum Goldman to discuss with Soviet authorities the various aspects and problems of Jewish life in the USSR, it was declared here by A. L. Eastermann, political director of the World Jewish Congress.

Addressing the opening session of the 10th biennial convention of the British section of the World Jewish Congress, Mr. Eastermann said that in the forty years of the Soviet regime the position of Russian Jewry had not improved and that it was suffering from restraint and discrimination and was practically cut off from the Jews of the rest of the world.

"Not the least of our anxieties," he stressed, "is that the restraints upon the Jews of Russia may be related to major international policies of the Soviet Union so fiercely concentrated in the Middle East.

Canadian Parliament Gets Shechita Bill

OTTAWA—A resolution aimed at ending shechita, Jewish ritual slaughter of food animals, has been introduced in the Canadian Parliament by J. A. McBain.

The resolution, which would place the government on record as favoring legislation to ensure humane slaughter, is a private member's bill and is unlikely to receive government support. As a matter of fact, since the Jewish community is prepared to battle the resolution it is highly unlikely that the government will even allow it to reach the floor of this extremely busy session. The community does not expect any major drive against shechita at this time.

Protest Uprooting
Of Jewish Graves

DUSSELDORF—A protest against violation of Jewish graves at concentration camp cemeteries and proposed abandonment of cemeteries which the Bonn Government had pledged to maintain, was presented to the West German Government by the Central Council of Jews in Germany.

The protest was initiated by a development which brought much chagrin to the Jewish community—the disinterment of Jewish victims whose remains were shipped to a common cemetery at the site of the former concentration camp at Flossenburg.

The Jewish graves were disturbed when the remains of French deportees murdered in Germany were exhumed for shipment to France under a pact between the two countries.

In the process the Jewish graves were violated. The council noted that the action violated Jewish religious regulations and that Jewish organizations were not consulted in advance.

CITRUS BUSINESS SLUMPS

TEL AVIV—A recession hit Israel's staple industry. Citrus fruit yield declined and the fruits are selling for lower prices in Europe. Of the total earnings of $105,000,000, fresh citrus fruits brought in $46,200,000 and processed fruits accounted for a few million more. Citrus fruit exports from Israel this year will be approximately 7,500,000 cases.

Unions Urge Protection of Israel

ATLANTIC CITY — The American Federation of Labor-Congress of Industrial Organizations, at its convention here last week, adopted a declaration asking the United States to use its influence in the United States to provide protection to Israel as a country surrounded by enemy nations.

"Shifting from appeasement of Nasser to the appeasement of King

Saud hardly constitutes an adequate policy for the Middle East," the declaration read. "There are elements in this region more vital and more combustible than oil." The declaration then urged the United States Government:

1. To propose within the United Nations the convening of an emergency conference of all countries in the Middle East for the purpose of eliminating the disputes in this explosive area that now threaten the peace of the entire world.

2. To seek immediate establishment by the United Nations of an initial fund of $500,000,000 to be extended for the solution of the Arab refugee problem.

3. To take immediate and positive steps in concert with the United Nations to prevent outbreaks of aggression in the Middle East and to lay the basis for peaceful relations among the countries of that area based upon the following principles: mutual respect for territorial integrity and sovereignty; non-aggression; non-interference in internal affairs; equality in relationships with one another, and regional economic cooperation and development.

In another resolution, the AFL-CIO convention greeted the Histadrut in Israel, expressed "pride" in the friendship and support which has marked the relationship between the United States and Israel, looked forward "with confidence" to an extension and deepening of this friendship "so that Israel may continue its dynamic progress in peace and freedom," and called upon the United States "to take all measures to ensure the economic growth and the independence of Israel."

Great Books Series
Opened To Public

The Jewish Community Center's Great Books Discussion Series has been opened, at no registration fee, to all interested adults and young adults, it was announced by Norman Tilles, chairman of the JCC Adult Activities Committee.

Lawrence Sass has been appointed discussion leader for this adult educational series, which is conducted on alternate Wednesday evenings at the East Side Center.

For two hours, every other week, the program's participants gather around a table to discuss the reading assigned. There are no special requirements except an interest in the issues which underlie events, great and small, in the world and in our daily lives. Assigned readings for the series cover a variety that ranges from Homer, Sophocles and Plato to Swift, Mark Twain and Shakespeare.

Participants are required to read the required subject in advance and may obtain their source materials from the public libraries, from their own bookshelves or even in paper backed editions generally available.

Next program in the series will be conducted on Wednesday evening, Jan. 8, beginning at 8:30 o'clock. Subject for the evening will be Plato's "Meno".

News copy for the Herald must be in these offices by Tuesday noon of the week publication is desired.

The People of the Book

The following excerpt from an introduction to a pamphlet compiled by Dr. Emanuel Gamoran in observance of Jewish Book Week and published by the Union of American Hebrew Congregations is worthy of reprint as our editorial for this week:

For centuries the Jewish people have been known as "The People of the Book." Until now they deserved that name of honor. There is perhaps no other characteristic so outstanding of a people as is the love of learning in the case of Jews.

From the days of antiquity we were commanded to teach our children and to study the Torah at all times of the day and night. It is doubtful whether any other people on earth can match this quotation concerning the duty to study taken from Maimonides, the great Jewish teacher of the Medieval period:

"Every man of Israel is obliged to study the Torah, be he poor or rich, well or afflicted, young or very old and feeble; even a poor man living on charity and going about seeking alms, or one who has the care of a wife and children, must set apart periods, day and night, for the study of the Torah. And thus he must do until the day of his death. For whenever he fails to devote himself to study, he is sure to forget."

In more recent days in Eastern Europe, there was only one aristocracy among the Jews. It was not of wealth or of power. It was an aristocracy of learning. Nor was it assumed that learning was for the few. It was an aristocracy to which all were to aspire, and which was open to all who would willingly enter it.

It would be unfortunate if, in our own day, the Jewish people were to become no longer deserving of the title, "The People of the Book." It would be more unfortunate if that were to happen in a land of freedom, where opportunity for study is practically unlimited.

It is incumbent upon us to live up to our traditional ideals, not only for the sake of the values inherent in them, but also for the practical consequences that may ensue. At no time more than today has it been necessary for a Jew to be well informed in the history, in the literature, in the ideals of his people, in order to know what to answer to our detractors.

Historian Recommends Seven Books For Jewish Leaders

CINCINNATI — Warning that "unless professional Jewish leaders in America acquire a more adequate understanding of Jewish life and its aspirations, American Jewry has no significant future," Dr. Jacob R. Marcus, noted historian and Professor of History at Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion here, released a "must" list of basic books for every communal leader to read and know.

Puts Bible First

Dr. Marcus, director of American Jewish Archives, a research center on the College-Institute campus here, put the Bible first on his seven-volume "required" list and recommended as a preferred edition The Holy Scriptures (Jewish Publication Society translation; 1955 reprint.)

Other books on his 'shelf for leaders' are: For a knowledge of the history of the Jew for the past 3,500 years: History of the Jewish People (latest edition) by Abraham Leon Sacher.

For an introduction to the Talmud, basic literary and spiritual work of the Middle Ages, when present-day traditional Judaism was shaped: Everyman's Talmud (American edition) by A. Cohen.

For a knowledge of the social, cultural, economic and religious life of medieval Jewry, which profoundly influenced European, Israeli and American Jewish life: The Jew in the Medieval World, a volume published under Dr. Marcus' editorship.

Jewish Life in U. S.

For an understanding of Jewish life in the United States, center of half the world's Jewish population: History of the Jews in the United States (1949) by Lee J. Levinger.

For a survey of what the Jew has achieved for the culture of the society in which he has lived during the past 3,000 years: Jewish Contribution to Civilization by Cecil Roth.

For a study of Judaism as the religious growth and spiritual experience of the Jewish people, The Jewish Religion by M. Friedlaender.

Making his list public, Dr. Marcus, who is president of the American Jewish Historical Society and a former president of the Central Conference of American Rabbis, commented: "Any Jew who has read these books and understood them will have an adequate concept of the place of the American Jew in world Jewish life and of the goals and aspirations of world Jewry."

JDC Leader Dies During Meeting

NEW YORK—Funeral services were held here last week for Mrs. Morris Carlton Troper, wife of the JDC leader, who died suddenly last Thursday evening at the annual dinner meeting of the Joint Distribution Committee at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, a few minutes after her husband collapsed from a stomach disorder.

Mr. Troper, brigadier general in the U. S. Army during World War II, recovered, but his wife thought he had been fatally stricken. "If he goes, we want to go together," she shouted in despair. A few minutes later she died. She was active in JDC work since World War I and in the program of the New York Federation of Jewish Philanthropies. She was born in Hungary 60 years ago and came to this country in her early youth.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Two Stories, Bitter and True

By BERYL SEGAL

Two stories, both of the same kind, neither very pleasant. But they must be told so that we may ponder over them, be saddened by them, and perhaps find a moral in them.

The first story was told by Dr. Jehoash Gordon, chief medical officer of the Ministry of Health, in Israel, when he spoke here to the medical staff of the Veterans Hospital.

The Jewish boys in a public school, in Warsaw, Poland were tortured by their Polish classmates. After a lesson in Stalinism and the glory of the new world to come, they amused themselves by taunting the little Cohen and Goldberg kids. The two philosophies apparently do not contradict one another. Not in Poland, at least. You can be a "world liberator" and a Jew-hater at the same time.

One of the boys was especially cruel in his taunting and mistreating of the Jewish children. He would beat them and kick them whenever a victim happened to cross his path. One child was beaten so badly that the teacher had to report it to the principal and the principal called in the father of the hoodlum, who was a prominent physician in Warsaw.

The principal was apologetic lest he might be suspected of being sympathetic to the Jewish children, an unpardonable crime in Poland, and he said to the physician:

"You see, doctor, I don't like Jews any more than you do. As far as I am concerned they could stay out altogether. But as long as they are allowed to come to school together with our children, I am responsible for them. I don't want any killings in my school. Will you, please, doctor, talk to your son. Let him restrain himself. One of these days he will beat a little Jew to death before we can stop him."

The doctor, to the principal's great amazement, did not resent the lecture, as he expected. On the contrary, the doctor walked out of the office very dejected and promised to talk to his son. The principal can rest assured that it will not happen again. A strange reaction, the principal thought.

In a very short while after this the eminent physician left Warsaw for Israel. The boy is now a rehabilitation problem in the schools of Israel. He must be adjusted to accept the fact that he is Jewish, and also to cleanse him of his guilt feelings if and when they awaken within him.

The other story was sent to me by Rabbi William G. Braude, who is in Israel for a year's study at the Hebrew University. In his recent letter the Rabbi enclosed a clipping from the Hebrew newspaper Maariv. The clipping contains, in the words of the Rabbi, "a story which you may find useful for one of your columns".

The story is told by a headmaster of a school in Israel. About seven months ago a new pupil entered the school, a child of the new immigrants from Poland. His name was Yurok. He looked very pale and sickly, and upon inquiry the mother told of the child's suffering at school in Poland where he was hunted and beaten by his class mates because of his Jewishness.

The child was transferred from school to school, but everywhere he had the same experience. He was tortured and beaten and humiliated, until he fell sick and scared of facing people and afraid of every child he met. At the first opportunity the parents left Poland to save their child.

It did not take very long for the youngster to become well-adjusted to new surroundings. He became a normal child again, playing, making friends, mastering the language, and also gaining in strength. As new children from Poland came to the school Yurok acted like a native and introduced them all around and made them feel at ease.

To Yurok all that happened in Poland was a bad dream, to forget, and never to talk about.

One day a new boy came to school, another child of the new refugees from Poland. Yurok took one look at the new boy and fell to the ground in a faint.

When he was revived and brought home, he refused to talk. He just stared, and the fear returned to his eyes. This fear, the mother knew so well. The same old fear of the hunted boy in Warsaw.

When told of the circumstances of the fainting, the mother became suspicious and she asked:

"Where does this new boy come from?"

"From Warsaw."

"What does he look like?"

The teacher described the new boy.

"And his name is Jon?" she asked.

"Yes, John Mayewski."

The mother clapped her hands and she turned pale as a ghost, and she exclaimed:

"Jon Mayewski. He is the one."

She buried her head in the pillow and she cried bitterly:

"My God, I suspected that. He is the boy that made life miserable for Yurok in Poland. He tortured him more than all the others. This true Pole, this Jon Mayewski, God Almighty, he too is Jewish?"

No comments are necessary for these two stories.

To the hundred and one problems facing Israel, add this job of rehabilitating and readjusting these young victims of their parents' folly. They were so sure that their children would never find out about their origin.

Why bother telling them? Let them be true Poles. And they did. They out-Poled the Poles in their hatred for Jews.

(Mr. Segal's opinions are his own. His views are not necessarily those of this newspaper.)

Need Jewish Communal Personnel

NEW YORK — The need for Jewish communal personnel — rabbis, teachers and shochemim — in many countries of Central America was emphasized by Dr. Israel Goldstein in a report to the Western Hemisphere executive of the World Jewish Congress which was made public here last week.

Dr. Goldstein, who is chairman of this WJC regional executive, made his report after recent discussions with a number of leaders from Panama, Colombia, Nicaragua, Guatemala, Venezuela and the Dominican Republic. All these communities, Dr. Goldstein stated, are anxious to obtain personnel from abroad—from the U. S., Israel, and the larger Latin American Jewish communities such as that in Argentina. Morocco was also mentioned as a possible source of rabbis, teachers and other communal officials.

The WJC leader voiced a plea for more extensive action to aid Latin American communities maintain their Jewish identification. Some assistance in the sphere of educational equipment has been sent in the past year by the WJC to many small communities in South and Central America. Educational aids such as those used in the United States—textbooks, readers' workbooks, alphabet blocks, coloring cards and books, films and film strips and records—have been dispatched to Barbados, Bolivia, Colombia, Costa Rica, Curacao, the Dominican Republic, El Salvador, Ecuador, Jamaica and Surinam.

A number of other small communities are scheduled to receive supplies in the near future.

Fall Guy Moving Up

This is the season when sports writers everywhere post their endless ballots for the best performer in every field, and the worst, and the most unusual happenings on the field, ditto off the field, comebacks, disappointments, ad infinitum and often ad nauseum.

This column has a candidate for a new classification of contest: to wit, the biggest fall guy in baseball. And the man I would honor as the outstanding fall guy of 1957, in the minor leagues, is Andy Cohen.

The saga of John McGraw's one-time Jewish gate attraction grows more interesting with the years, and this year was no exception. As a fact, 1957 has been so rollercoasterish in its involvements that Andy still must be somewhat dizzy.

- Just a year ago, the Indianapolis Indians of the American Association hired Cohen to be their manager for 1957.
- Just a week ago, he was named as manager of the Denver Bears in the same Association.

All of these three events have to do with Andy's being a fall guy, and it seems possible that he is doomed to more of the same next year. But maybe—just maybe—all these happenings have been for the best, and the name of Cohen still may one day grace the manager's office of a big league club.

It was in this column's very first essay of 1957 that the prospect of Andy Cohen becoming the first Jewish manager in major league baseball was raised. Now, in the very last story of the same year, the proposition is still an intriguing one, although on the face of things, there has been no advancement during the year. At the start of the year, and at the end of the year, he was named to head different clubs in the same league. Just a stalemated situation, it would appear.

Indeed, it seems at first glance far more likely that Cohen will continue to suffer unfairly in comparison with others. This has been his fate since he first broke into big league baseball thirty years ago.

Then, as you will recall, Andy was hailed as the worthy successor to Rogers Hornsby, who had just been traded by the Giants to the Boston Braves. Cohen was being exploited more as a gate attraction than as a legitimate big leaguer. McGraw was dangling him in the face of the large New York Jewish population in an attempt to boost gate receipts.

Well, nobody ever was a worthy successor to Hornsby, the greatest right handed hitter in the entire history of baseball. Cohen suffered, of course, in comparison. He was the fall guy—brought up before he was ready, and dumped a few years later because he had not been ready, because he was unable to perform the impossible.

The searing episode seemed to set the pattern for Andy Cohen's entire life.

Almost three decades of knocking around in the high and low minors, as a player, coach and manager, followed, before the Chicago White Sox took over the Indianapolis franchise last year and hand-picked Cohen to lead the club.

There was just one problem. Andy's predecessor, Kerby Farrell, had just completed a spectacular year with the minor league Indians. The team had won the pennant and the Little World Series, and several of its top players already had been taken by major league clubs.

In this situation, there was no place for Andy to go but down. The team did not prosper, and his contract this past fall was not renewed.

For the second time, at least, he was the fall guy — looking bad, through no fault of his own, because of what someone else had done before him.

But while Cohen's record was somewhat tarnished, his reputation as a manager and a handler and developer of ball players was not damaged. And so now he is the new manager of the Denver Bears, top minor league farm club of the New York Yankees.

This, you might say, is real progress; this is the road up; this is the end of the dreary years of frustration and disappointment. The Yankees hire only the very best they can find, their farm teams are usually well stocked with good talent, their managers are paid well, and they are attractive to other big league organizations that are always on the prowl for topnotch men to run their clubs. Maybe this is it; maybe the next move will be to the major leagues.

But wait a minute! The tale of the Fall Guy may not yet be finished. The jinx that has followed Andy Cohen may trail him still. More trouble may be ahead, and 1958 may be another year of disappointment!

Cohen steps in at the Denver helm at a time when the Bears appear to be headed downward. This (Continued on Page 11)

 past season, under Ralph Houk (recently promoted to the Yankee Stadium coaching lines), the Bears were the best team in the league over the second half of the season; they narrowly missed winning the pennant, but cleaned up in all the playoffs, including the Little World Series.

Here is 1957 and Indianapolis all over again! Twice in two years Andy is called upon to head a team that is on the top, and headed down!
 Look at what the new manager is losing from the 1957 club before he even reports: Norm Siebern, the league's most valuable player and leading hitter, scheduled to open in left field for the Yankees; Marv Throneberry, powerful first base man who led the league in home runs and runs batted in for the third straight year, also to the Yankees; Johnny Blanchard, heavy hitting catcher, the league's ace receiver, slated to become the Yanks' number three backstop; Ryne Duren, the top pitcher in the American Association from the time he reported from Kansas City after the Billy Martin trade last summer (a smoke-baller whose fast ball was unhittable last spring, Duren was sent down by the Yanks to gain control—he got it, and is said to be sure of beating out several of the present Yankees for a starting role); Fritz Brickell, shortstop, who is slated to take the place of Tony Kubek, if he goes into the Army, or Bobby Richardson, if he is traded; Harry Chiti, who was to be Denver's top catcher next year after his transfer from Richmond, but already drafted by Kansas City.

This rather lengthy recital of losses should give you an idea of the enormous problem facing Andy Cohen as he takes over the minor league champions. Again, he appears set for the role of "fall guy" if his team, which must be restocked with Class A players for its rebuilding job, fails to win.

But here a break appears in the clouds. The Yankees don't expect Cohen to win. They choose their leaders carefully, mainly to develop their up-and-coming young players. Minor league championships, while welcome and frequent, are not a necessity, especially in the rebuilding stage. So Andy is not on the spot. He can work relaxed, confident that the ax will not fall because of where he finishes.

 Another good break. Cohen is extremely popular in Denver, where he managed two Class A teams to pennants in 1952 and 1954. There will be no heat on him in that quarter.
 For these two reasons, plus the fact that the Yankees picked him despite his failure at Indianapolis, Andy Cohen appears to be better off by far than he was a year ago.

Praise Swope For Technion Aid

NEW YORK—Gerard Swope, former president of the General Electric Company, who left the bulk of his estate to the Haifa Technion, Israel's Institute of Technology, last week was termed "the greatest American benefactor of the Technion" by General Yaacov Dori, president of the institution, who is now on a visit to the United States. Mr. Swope's bequest to the Technion was estimated at several million dollars when his will was made known recently.

"The officers and governors, the faculties and students of Technion-Israel Institute of Technology, and the officers, directors and members of the American Technion Society are proud and profoundly grateful that Gerard Swope has made the Technion at Haifa the chief beneficiary of his will," Dori's statement said. "This is but a continuation of Mr. Swope's deep interest and great benefactions to the Technion, and more especially its students, during the last several years of his life.

"It emphasizes his far-sighted and statesman-like vision of the vital role of the Technion, its scientists and research facilities, not only in the economic and technological progress of Israel, but of the entire free world, of which Israel is an integral part. For the scientific and research facilities and services of the Technion have been and are now availed of, and gladly placed at the disposal of, the defense forces of the United States—especially the Air Force. Mr. Swope is undoubtedly the greatest American benefactor of the Technion," the statement declared.

Lebano-Americans Welcome Druze

DETROIT — Mr. Kamal Mansour, a prominent Israeli Druze, who recently toured the United States from coast to coast, was given a warm reception by the Lebanese-American community in Detroit. A banquet in his honor, arranged by Mr. Chekri Kanaan, publisher of the "Lebanese Gazette" and the "Morning Tribune," was attended by the leading representatives of the large Maronite, Lebanese Catholic colony in this Midwestern metropolis.

Mr. Mansour stressed the vital need for a common front of all the non-Arab "minorities" whose very existence is being threatened by Pan-Arabism.

In reporting on conditions in Israel, the Druze spokesman stressed that all minorities enjoyed full rights of citizenship and were represented in parliament, in government positions, etc.

Commenting upon Mr. Mansour's statements, the "Lebanese Gazette" writes that peace and prosperity cannot be restored to the Near East unless it be realized that Israel has come there to stay.
