Blames Jewish Character For Birobidjan Failure

PARIS — Soviet attempts to establish an autonomous Jewish community have failed because Jews are too intellectual and individualistic, says Russian Premier Khrushchev.

The conservative newspaper Le Figaro last week quoted Khrushchev as conceding in a recent Moscow interview that efforts to set up an autonomous Jewish region at Birobidjan in the Soviet Far East had failed because Jews who settled there did not stay.

The Soviet leader attributed the failure to "historical conditions."

"Jews have always preferred to work as artisans. They are tailors; they work in glass or precious stones; they are storekeepers, pharmacists or joiners."

"They do not like collective work and group discipline. They are individualists."

"Jews are essentially intellectuals and their interests are too diverse and often too opposite for them to be able to satisfy them in a region where they would find themselves all together, face to face," Khrushchev said.

"A real Jewish cultural community is no more realizable than a political community. Jews interest themselves in everything, go deeply into everything, argue about everything and end by having deep cultural divergences," he said.

Soviet 'Verbal Trick' Cited

MANCHESTER, England — The Manchester Guardian recently said the evidence of Russian anti-Semitism comes to light from time to time and is always followed by indignant denials from the Soviet authorities.

"A simple verbal trick enables the Soviet rulers to practice anti-Semitism and, at the same time, to deny its existence," this liberal daily commented.

Jews whom they dislike are "Zionists," and against these the ancient and odious methods of anti-Semitism can be used with ideological impunity."

SECOND TIME

Rep. Celler, Col. Yoffe To Speak

A highlight of the forthcoming Dinner celebrating the State of Israel's tenth anniversary, on Sunday evening, May 4, at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel, will be the dual keynote addresses made by New York's Representative in Congress, Emanuel Celler, and Israel's emissary to the United States in the Israeli birthday fetes, Colonel Avraham Yoffe.

Congressman Celler, staunch advocate of liberal immigration and civil rights legislation, has been a member of the House of Representatives since March, 1923, and is presently Chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives, having previously occupied this chair from 1949 to 1952.

The second guest speaker, Colonel Avraham Yoffe, Commander in Chief of the Officer's Training School of the Israel Armed Forces, was named by Premier Ben-Gurion as his special emissary to the United States in the American celebration of his country's tenth year of independence.

Reservations to attend the dinner may be made through the Israel Bond office, 32 Custom House St., at $5.00 per plate, served in accordance with dietary observances.

Surrealist Bar On Edge Of Negev Proves Successful

BEERSHEBA, Israel — A former American soldier and his Parisian wife have built a surrealist kind of thirst quenching establishment here on the edge of the Negev Desert.

Astonishes Town

It has astonished the Biblical town of Beersheba, a large part of Israel and, at times, Leon Hellman, 37, late of the U. S. Army Medical Corps and Elizabeth, N. J.

Its name is the Last Chance Bar.

A bar normally isn't something one writes newspaper articles about. But the Last Chance has attracted so much surprise attention that the abstemious state of Israel finally has given it sort of official notice.

Visiting newspapermen, arriving in Tel Aviv, are handed a press brochure containing, among other things, a description of Hellman's establishment.

Perhaps it's because of the way it looks: like a surrealist's nightmare. It's in a white house on a side street. The courtyard is decorated with an empty picture frame, old bellows, bed springs, the mask of a horned woman and a Turkish divan.

Might Be Hellmans

It might be the Hellmans themselves. He is tousle-haired, articulate and built like a welter-weight. She, formerly Betty Knouth, is an ex-correspondent of a Paris newspaper, granddaughter of the Russian composer Scriabin, member of the Jewish underground.

Hellman, who served as a medical corpsman in the Philippines, settled here in 1952.

Princeton Inter-Club Committee Praised For Anti-Bicker Stand

PRINCETON, N. J. — Princeton University's Jewish chaplain and its president Robert F. Goheen, praised the Inter-Club Committee's decision to assume the responsibility for ending the controversial "bicker" system.

Under the traditional "bicker," sophomores are selected to join the school's eating clubs. It is held once a year.

Twenty-three eligible students, all Jewish, failed to make it in February after one sophomore charged that the system was designed to route Jewish boys to the poorer clubs.

Said the Inter-Club Committee last week:

"(We) disapprove on moral grounds of racial and religious discrimination.

"The committee has a moral responsibility to do everything within its power to eradicate discrimination wherever it may exist in the club system."

The statement represented an about-face from one issued by ICC president Steven C. Rockefeller, son of Nelson Rockefeller, at the time the controversy broke out in February. The Inter-Club Committee then took the position that individual clubs had the right to be selective in picking their members.

Goheen at the time backed up the ICC in the main and said that charges of religious discrimination were exaggerated.

Peerce Broadcasts To Soviet Jews

NEW YORK — Jan Peerce, American opera star, broadcast greetings in Yiddish to the Jews of the Soviet Union on the eve of the Passover. His message was beamed to all parts of the Soviet Union by Radio Liberation, the free voice of former Soviet citizens, via powerful transmitters in West Germany and the Far East.

In his message, part of Radio Liberation's special program devoted to Passover, the noted Metropolitan Opera tenor recalled his visit to the Soviet Union in June, 1956, and the "extraordinarily warm" reception accorded him by Soviet Jews who packed the Moscow Synagogue to greet him as a representative of American Jews.

"There were perhaps 5,000 Jews in the synagogue that Sabbath day when you invited me to pray with you," Peerce recalled. "It was an episode I will never forget. I hope that in a short time, with God's help, we will meet again. And I want you to know that we here in America remember you — and will continue to remember you — as I hope you remember us."

Radio Liberation, which broadcasts exclusively to the USSR in Russian and 17 other Soviet languages, devotes considerable attention to religious holidays of all faiths in its round-the-clock programming.

Shipped Planes To Israel; Cannot Regain Civil Rights

LAS VEGAS, Nevada — Hank Greenspun, publisher of the Las Vegas Sun, has been turned down for the fifth time by Washington in his fight to have his civil rights restored — rights he lost by running guns to aid Israel's fight for independence, reports the National Jewish Post.

Devout Jew

Editor Greenspun is a devout Jew with the courage of his convictions, says the Post.

Indicted By U. S.

After World War II, Greenspun, an attorney in New York, came to Las Vegas. He was indicted under the neutrality act for shipment of planes to Israel. He drew an acquittal in federal court. He was re-indicted for sending arms and munitions to Israel. Greenspun pleaded guilty, was fined $10,000, which was paid by Friends of Israel.

Crime Of Principle

"If it can be called a crime, it is one of principle and not one for personal gain," Greenspun told the National Jewish Post. "Being stripped of my civil rights, I am not permitted the God-given right to vote or hold office."

Among those who have advocated Greenspun's pardon are the late Judge Pierson Hall of Los Angeles, Governor Charlie Russell and Mayor C. D. Baker.

Owner of KLAS-TV Las Vegas, Greenspun met his wife, after the war, in a Belfast, Ireland, synagogue.

Advice From Pop

Editor Greenspun's father, Samuel, 69, well versed in Hebrew history and literature, bombards Hank with daily suggestions.

"Pop" furnishes plenty of ideas and I love him for it," Hank told the National Jewish Post.

Can Sue For Use Of Word 'Jew'

KARLSRUHE, Germany — The West German constitutional court has ruled that any German Jew or Jewish organization may bring suit against a person who slanders the Jewish people as a group or uses the word "Jew" in a derogatory fashion.

The court ruling came in the case of a German who insulted the Jews as a people in a message on a postcard. He was prosecuted by the state of Hesse and the Association of Jewish Communities of Hesse, and was convicted. On appeal, however, an intermediate court held he had not insulted the Jewish people, but subsequent legal steps led to the latest ruling.

So. African Jews
To Present Town

JOHANNESBURG — South African Jewry will present the core of a town in Israel to the Israel Government during the next six months.

Ten years after laying out the basic communal buildings, parks and 900 homes, the South African Jewish Appeal, the Union's Zionist Federation and the South African Jewish Board of Deputies decided to give the town of Askelon to the Israel Government as a gift of South African Jewry.

In the flush of enthusiasm following upon the proclamation of the State of Israel, the South African communal organizations organized a company to plan, finance and build a "garden city" in Israel as a demonstration project for future urban development in the Jewish State. "Afri-dar," as the town planning and housing company was called, drove through with its plans even though the final costs were three times the original estimates.

Net operating earnings of Industrial National Bank totaled $263,169 for the first quarter of the year. President T. Dawson Brown announced last week. Gross earnings were $5,253,516, an increase of $489,837. Operating expenses totaled $3,744,397, with the increase of $433,827 being due in large measure to higher interest costs of $346,000. Operating earnings before taxes were $1,509,119, up $56,010 from last year.

JDC Helps Jews Bake Own Matzoh

PARIS — Reports that the Joint Distribution Committee had sent 10 tons of matzohs to the Jews of Poland were denied here by Charles Jordan, JDC director general.

The JDC contribution to Polish Jewry's Passover celebration this year, Jordan revealed, was matzoh baking machinery which was used by a group of Jewish bakers in Wroclaw. They baked matzohs, under the seal of Warsaw Chief Rabbi M. Berkowitz, for the entire Jewish religious community of Poland. In addition, Jordan pointed out, the JDC provided funds to the religious community to pay for matzohs for Jewish families who could not afford to buy them.

"We have shipped 163,000 pounds of matzohs and 39,000 of kosher fat to Jewish communities in 11 countries," Jordan said. "Poland, however, was not one of them. We decided that providing the means for Polish Jews to bake their own matzohs was preferable and should also help the organized Jewish communities."

Of the other JDC Passover work, Jordan disclosed: 22,000 pounds of kosher fat had been sent to Australia, as well as 2,000 bottles of Passover wine and 500 pounds of special flour for ultra-orthodox Jews who bake their own matzohs. Wine was also shipped to Italy and West Germany.

JDC is a constituent agency of the United Jewish Appeal.

Mrs. Joseph J. Seefer

Judge Frank Licht

Mrs. Seefer's role in the life of the Jewish community has historic import. For example, she organized Roger Williams Chapter, B'nai B'rith, and for three years was its first president. During her five years as president of Miriam Hospital Women, the hospital opened its Summit Avenue plant. Under her leadership, the hospitality shop was opened, the volunteer organization set up.

For years Mrs. Seefer was the lifeblood of the JCC Women's Organization and the YWHA which preceded it. She was president of the former for two 4-year terms, of the latter for two years. Today she is chairman of the B'nai B'rith-Pembroke Scholarship Fund, and twice headed the GJC Women's Vital Gifts.

One of the true leaders of the Jewish Community of Rhode Island, Judge Licht continues to reflect credit on himself and that community through his personal efforts and achievements.

Only last week Judge Licht was master of ceremonies and general chairman of the celebration in honor of Israel's tenth anniversary. But his activities encompass all other phases of Jewish life. He is a vice-president of the GJC, and formerly headed the Initial Gifts Division. He has served in every capacity in both the Zionist District of Providence and the R. I. Zionist Region, including the presidency of both. He is a board member and officer of other organizations.

Allow Renewal Of Lake Huleh Project

JERUSALEM — The United Arab Republic has agreed to Israel's completing a drainage ditch in the Lake Huleh area over which the Israelis and Arabs duelled with tanks and artillery last week.

The UN made a new survey of the disputed area after the clashes. The area lies along the Syrian border.

Work on the Israeli reclamation plan began again last week under armed guard and UN supervision.

Illusion and Disillusion

(You are asked to believe — because it is true — that this column was written Sunday night, the day before the unofficial start of the 1958 baseball season at Washington.)

Somewhere in the dim past, I seem to recall an old saying to the effect that a man who refuses to see is indeed blind; and of course, there is the old one about not being able to see the forest because too many trees are blocking the view. Something like that.

So I feel like shrieking to the high heavens when I read the reasoning behind some of the forecasts made by baseball's true experts anent the 1958 baseball season. But why shriek, when this space is available?

Some of these guys are blind, as far as I am concerned. Maybe I'm the one that's blind — that possibility has to be considered; but based on certain beats I've scored, I'll risk my offbeat hunches against the "experts'" crystal balls, and give them odds.

This is not a suspense story, so here is the American League forecast right off — New York, Detroit, Boston, Chicago, Cleveland, Baltimore, Kansas City, Washington.

Don't get me wrong — I don't really think that much of the Red Sox' chances. It's just that I cannot conceive that the White Sox are a pennant threat or even a remote contender. I don't see much hope for Boston, but even less for Chicago. You might say I am splitting the first division into two parts — the Yankees and Tigers leading the way, and much farther back, the two Sox floundering just ahead of the resourceful Frank Lane and his Indians.

I am really amazed at the illusions so many writers have sketched in front of their own noses. There are so many factors they have missed, so many legends that have become accepted as facts, so many important considerations ignored!

Let's start with my fourth place pick (even I agree with the general consensus for the second division) and work up. Which brings us to . . .

The White Sox

Manager Al Lopez has been talking about his "best" pitching staff so long and so loud that everyone believes him. Not a single baseball writer discusses Chicago without mentioning the best pitching staff in baseball, the fastest club, the best defense, the weak hitting.

This column says "Nuts!" to all these propositions . . . every one.

First, the pitching. Donovan and Pierce are terrific, agreed. But the other starters are: aging and slipping Early Wynn, whose days of glory will be spread considerably farther apart from now on; Jim Wilson, whose effectiveness usually fades around mid-season and then returns only occasionally; Bob Keegan, strictly an in-and-outter; and Bill Fischer, a sophomore whose record guarantees nothing.

This is the best starting staff in the league? Not by my standards! I'll take the Red Sox staff any time, despite Ray Moore in the bullpen.

And here's something. Al Lopez is not overly considerate of his men's arms and futures. I think he ruined Mike Garcia by pitching him every third day for weeks on end some half dozen years ago. Bob Lemon's troubles may stem from the same reason.

Now Billy Pierce is getting it. The "best" pitcher on the "best" staff showed a profit of eight games last year (20 wins, 12 defeats, for a percentage of only .625), allowed almost a hit an inning (that's not good) and posted a 3.26 ERA (good, but nothing to rave about — and not among the best in the league, or even close).

The fastest club? Sure, Aparicio and Rivera can run — but not until they get on base, which they don't do often enough. Billy Goodman is no speed merchant, Ron Jackson is downright slow, Lollar can't run. Last year the White Sox ran and got away with it — they had little else in the way of attack. But don't forget that Mino, number two in the league in stolen bases last year, is gone.

So this is the fastest club! Why, the Yankees could steal two bases to every White Sox attempt to steal if they had to play that way!

The best defense? Bah! Not at third base (Goodman) and first base (Jackson), not in left field until and unless Smith shakes his leg miseries, not in center (Landis and Francona are good, but many center fielders are better). The Red Sox, by the way, hint they will hunt Goodman ragged — and they have seen him play third base! Chicago, further, is not conditioned to withstand injuries or slumps. If one regular has a sub-par year, or is out of the lineup with injuries for an extended period, the whole team is through. This takes the club out of my class of contenders.

Strangely, I don't think Chicago's hitting will be as bad as it is painted — but neither will it be good enough to prevent what I expect to be a collapse of the White Sox pennant hopes, somewhere around August 1 at the latest.

If these opinions are wrong, this column is going to look awfully silly . . . in which case I will admit my errors, and yet stand stoutly by this analysis.

The Red Sox

Boston had a great spring, piled up a big lead over the other clubs (why, the Yankees didn't catch up until opening day!). Yet, the Sox do not shape up as a solid contender.

First and foremost, all the fans and all the writers are expecting too much from Ted Williams. Last year when everyone was razzing him and calling him a has-been, I cautioned he would yet serve the club well. Now everyone expects the guy to play in at least 130 games, hit well over .350, and come close to matching last year's pace.

Why, that's ridiculous! Ted is almost 40 years old! Anything he does has to be considered in the light of a pleasant surprise. Certainly, it can not and should not be expected. Muscle pulls and the like could hobble Ted for long stretches. Defensively, he is bound to hurt (away from Fenway, anyway).

Red Sox fans are likely to be further disillusioned with their "best outfield in baseball". Piersall is all right, but Jackie Jensen is hardly a sensation at bat. Imagine a slugger like that hitting only .281 for the season! Well, that's what he did last year. And those 103 runs batted in! Considering that he finds Williams on base just about half the time (plus assorted other runners) when he comes up, it is annoying that he doesn't sock in 150 or more. And, ah, those double plays in the clutch!

You Sox fans didn't know, did you, that several Boston players are critical of Mike Higgins for using Gene Stephens as Williams' "caddy" and not playing him as a regular in place of Piersall or Jensen, whichever is not going well. Well, it's true.

And who but the stubborn Texan would install the still-green Bud-din at short the day after he got out of the Army and keep him there despite his obvious inexperience, lack of leadership, erratic fielding, unproven hitting ability. Don should be worked into the lineup gradually, with sparkplug Billy Klaus providing the glue and cement until the younger man develops satisfactorily.

Higgins (this is the Sox number 2 handicap, right behind Joe Cronin) is proud of Pete Runnels because of his hitting and versatility; but just a year ago, or less, the same Higgins couldn't find a place for another player who is just like Runnels and more of a sparkplug, too—Billy Goodman.

And Higgins includes Willard Nixon among his top starters. That in itself should tell you all you want to know about Boston's pitching. In eight full years, Nixon, who will be 30 in June, has won 68, lost 65. His best year, 1955, showed a 12-10 record, and never has he exceeded 12 wins. Only twice has he been under 4 ERA, and then not much under. Potential? Sure, but let's see Willard prove it first. Boston would be better off with Will in the bullpen.

The only thing that bothers me is, should I put the White Sox ahead of the Red Sox because of Higgins' continued stubbornness and stupidity? Actually, I consider these two teams a toss-up. I'll stick with the Red Sox for third, though, because—believe it or not—I like Boston's pitching over Chicago's, and its superior depth, and its hitting advantages (Williams and the Wall). Aside from those two factors, the Red Sox figure to have a fairly weak attack.

Probably my most surprising observations—about the Tigers and the Yankees—will have to appear next week, ten days after the start of the season, even though that column is being written right now.

With a 12-Point Mortgage, Your New-Home Happiness Is Protected All the Way!

When you buy or build a home . . . you'll be living with the mortgage you choose for many years ahead. That's why — before you choose — you owe it to your future peace of mind to ask questions like these:

"Is the schedule of mortgage payments clearly spelled out so I can understand it?"

With the 12-Point Plan, yes! You repay in comfortable monthly installments, each the same in amount. Right from the start, you know the exact date the loan will be completely paid off.

"How are the interest charges figured?"

With the 12-Point Plan, on the unpaid balance only. Result: you pay less interest each month.

"Can the interest rate be increased during the term of the mortgage?"

With the 12-Point Plan, no! In fact, you get automatic rate reductions of $\frac{1}{2}\%$ each at stated intervals.

"If I want to pay part or all of the mortgage ahead of time, is there a penalty?"

With the 12-Point Plan, no! Old Colony wants you to get every saving possible, always.

"Can the mortgage be called while my obligations are paid up to date?"

With the 12-Point Plan, no! You're protected all the way. There are no unpleasant surprises hidden in fine print.

Other questions? See Old Colony now for details on the 12-Point Plan, also liberal FHA financing!

ADL Calls Ku Klux Klan Ineffective

NEW YORK — A detailed report on the current status of the Ku Klux Klan last week declared that it has exhibited a strong capacity for "breeding violence" but has shown "little effectiveness socially or politically" since its re-emergence in 1955 as a result of the tensions over school desegregation in the South. The report, published by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, describes the Klan as "operating in a piecemeal fashion without any real leadership."

According to the best informed estimates, the ADL report said, "the U.S. Klan Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, headed by Eldon Edwards of Atlanta has somewhere between 12,000 and 15,000 members, while the North Carolina Klan has 2,000 to 5,000 members. Edwards is said to be a 'loner' and is estranged from other Klan organizations because of his refusal to give an accounting of the money which he has collected. Two years ago Edwards was reported to have had 24 Klan units in South Carolina. Today, he is said to have six of the 24." None of the seven other Klan organizations in the South, according to the League, "is believed to have more than 1,500 members."

In presenting the report, Henry Edwards Schultz, ADL national chairman, emphasized that although the Klan as a tool of violence has magnified the problem of law enforcement in the South, "the recent recurrence of bombings in Nashville and Miami will only aid in hastening the KKK's ultimate doom."

'Strong Contributing Role'

"It is not known what, if any, links the bombings of the Jewish Community Center in Nashville and the Temple Beth-El annex in Miami have to the KKK," the report said. "But the Klan has played a strong contributing role in the creation of a climate of violence. These recurrent outrages, if KKK members are not involved, are indirectly aided and abetted by the Klan, which has posed a challenge which is not being ignored by law enforcement authorities in the South."

The ADL report stresses that "the South has greeted the Klan's revival with intense hostility and aversion." In virtually every Southern community the Klan has been identified as a tool of violence and lawlessness and as a movement that constitutes more of a police problem than anything else, the report states.

Purchase Of Israel Bonds . . . The Meaningful Way To Celebrate Israel's Tenth Anniversary

The Providence campaign, to help ensure a "second decade of economic independence" for the State of Israel, will be inaugurated on the night of the community-wide Dinner, Sunday evening, May 4th, at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel, commemorating Israel's Tenth Anniversary.

The Dinner, beginning at 6:30 p.m., will launch the 1958 Providence bond drive, the central source of capital investment funds to advance Israel's economic strength and development. Co-Chairmen, Dr. Ilie Berger and Stanley Grossman said that the occasion will be a highlight of this campaign, adding that other functions were to follow during May and June, climaxed by a city-wide BIG Day.

Max Winograd, prominent attorney and communal leader, will be the Dinner Chairman. A full women's activities program is being directed by Women's Division Chairmen, Mrs. Perry Bernstein and Mrs. Samuel Michaelson. A Sponsor Tea, an Israeli Fashion Festival, a Chen Celebration Day, are a few of the events on their agenda.

Guest speakers at the Dinner will be, Congressman Emanuel Celler, of New York, and Colonel Avraham Yoffe, hero of the Sinai campaign and Prime Minister Ben-Gurion's personal emissary to the United States for the 10th Anniversary celebrations.

The Providence Israel Bond leaders are in accord on the key tasks that Israel must carry out on her road to economic independence.

"Israel Bonds are not a subsidiary element in Israel's struggle for survival and progress. They are central and indispensable to the realization of its goal of economic self-sufficiency," the leaders' combined statement declared.

"As Israel celebrates her tenth anniversary — and as we join in this joyful occasion, we must not forget that Israel still needs our help through Israel Bond investments. Providence, we all feel confident, will respond in the fullest measure."

Pearlman, Dr. Joseph Smith, David Cohen, Lewis Korn, Charles Swartz, Israel Resnick, Harry Chaet, Marvin Brill and Raymond J. Surdut.

Bond Committee Lists Ten Reasons For Buying

Coincident with the commemoration of Israel's 10th Anniversary the Providence Bonds for Israel Committee enumerated "ten good reasons why you should buy Israel Bonds," in this summary detail:

1.—To strengthen the country's economy as the firmest basis for security and independence, particularly in the face of continuing hostility on the part of some of the Arab states.

2.—To develop new industries and enlarge existing ones.

3.—To expand agriculture to meet the needs of Israel's growing population which last year reached the 2,000,000 mark.

4.—To intensify the exploitation of natural resources, including oil, phosphates, copper, potash and other minerals in the Negev.

5.—To increase production of the copper processing plant at Timna, making copper available as an export commodity.

6.—To promote increased trade with the countries of Asia and Africa through the development of the Elath Harbor.

7.—To provide for the mass settlement of the Negev as an area of immigrant absorption.

8.—To make possible a new harbor at Ashdod on the Mediterranean—the terminus of the oil pipeline from Elath.

9.—To help construct 30,000 new housing units each year to accommodate the 80,000 immigrants during 1957 and an estimated 50,000 expected this year.

10.—To consolidate Israel's economy and increase her export trade to make the next ten years the decade of economic independence.

STANLEY GROSSMAN

Bonds Co-Chairmen Ask For "Economic Armor" For Israel

In a joint statement issued by the Co-Chairmen of the Providence Committee for Israel Bonds a stirring plea was made for uninterrupted economic support of Israel — as a tribute to the people of Israel on their celebration of the first decade of independence and achievement.

"We, representing the Jewish Community of the City of Providence, pledge our resources and our devotion through the Israel Bond campaign to the paramount task of providing Israel with the economic armor to assure her economic stability, security, and development in the face of unceasing Middle East tensions.

"In the knowledge that economic aid to the State of Israel will strengthen democracy in the Mediterranean area, we welcome the growing recognition of the American people of the role of Israel Bonds as an investment in democracy and human courage and as a token of partnership with the people of Israel, whose stirring progress in the building of a new nation has demonstrated their capacity to develop a stable and productive economy.

In the year of 1958, when so much depends on Israel's capacity to meet the problems of continued immigration and the need to withstand the threats of Arab hostility, we call on the good friends of Israel, in our city, to mobilize for the fullest response to raise a maximum amount in the sale of Israel Development Bonds.

Anniversary Fete Guest Speakers, Dynamic Men, Diverse Personalities

The presentation was made by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt. The Jewish groups among the 32 organizations include the American Jewish Committee, American Jewish Congress and others.

entitled "In Your Hands," Ambassador Gunewardene said that the Declaration of Human Rights "stands out as perhaps the greatest achievement of the United Nations to date" in promoting and encouraging fundamental freedoms.

Stressing that the "destiny of human rights is in the hands of all citizens," Mrs. Roosevelt said:

"It is our hope that 'In Your Hands' may inspire them to strengthen their relations with one another; to acquaint themselves with the Universal Declaration of Human Rights; to discuss it with their neighbors; to examine their own practices in the light of the standard it has raised, and to improve these practices wherever it is needed."

The Drift of Saudi Arabia

Although we know what happens in Saudi Arabia is not of paramount importance in the United States, or in this community, recent developments in that country may have an eventual major repercussion all over the world.

It will be remembered by the reader that President Nasser's United Arab Republic has recently been formed, and now counts three nations as its supporters, and as component parts. They are the countries of Egypt, Syria and Yemen. Yemen's adherence is somewhat limited and of less value than what might now be shaping up in Saudi Arabia.

The latest move in Saudi Arabia was a demand by King Saud's brother, Crown Prince Feisal, who insisted that he be given control over foreign and economic affairs in Saudi Arabia. Crown Prince Feisal is known to be pro-Egyptian in his leanings, and it is thought that this is the first step in possibly bringing Saudi Arabia into the United Arab Republic.

This is a blow to the hopes of Jordan and Iraq, who have joined together in the Iraqi-Jordanian Federation, a rival Arab federation to Nasser's U. A. R.

The danger is that Nasser's U. A. R. may win over Saudi Arabia, and if this is true, the position of Jordan and Iraq will be greatly weakened. It was even hoped, for a time, that Saudi Arabia, led by King Saud, would join with Jordan and Iraq in the rival pro-western federation.

What must be remembered is that if Nasser is able to eventually unite most of the larger Arab countries, pressure will become quite great in the others for complete unity. And the complete unity could come at the price of Nasser's presidency.

Once Nasser is in firm control of all Arabs in the Middle East, the western position will be a precarious one. Nasser is a gambler and a dictator in disguise, with unlimited ambition, and might one day be the man who will plunge the world into another major war.

Gives Report On The Hungarians

VIENNA — A little over a year ago, a history-making exodus came to a close as armed communist soldiers raced into place along Hungary's common frontier with Austria, effectively sealing off any further attempts of escape by Hungarians.

Of the 172,000 Hungarians who escaped into Austria, there were some 18,500 Jews among them, nearly all of whom turned for emergency assistance to the Joint Distribution Committee.

Today, of the 2,400 Jews still remaining in Austria, 1,250 are receiving JDC assistance. The majority of them are now housed in two Austrian government camps where they are likely to remain for a long time to come, because prospects for their emigration are now very poor.

One of the camps — a huge, rambling compound of three-story red brick buildings — is located in Korneuburg, 20 miles north of Vienna. Here, 480 Jews are housed in small one- and two-family rooms or in large dormitories.

Employment Is Morale Factor
So far, there has been no noticeable breakdown in morale. This is due to the fact that almost all of the 200 employable adults in the camp are gainfully occupied, either in jobs in Vienna or Korneuburg, or performing a service in camp, or attending ORT classes.

However, the problem of morale remains an ever-present one for these Hungarian Jews, now in their second year of refugee camp life. It is a problem that is being tackled jointly by JDC, ORT and the United Hias Service, the international Jewish migration agency, all three of them beneficiaries of the United Jewish Appeal.

A second group of 450 Hungarian Jews are housed in Camp Astin in Linz, an industrial city in northwest Austria. The problems here are more numerous than those encountered in Korneuburg, since Linz has very little to offer in the way of employment. However, some diversion is provided by ORT classes, with almost 100 people enrolled full-time. Emigration is also proceeding at a slow rate.

Camp Astin's Jewish population is made up almost entirely of Orthodox people. In line with their religious requirements, JDC has made available to them the facilities and equipment for their own Yeshiva, a mikvah, a completely equipped kosher kitchen, and a synagogue.

An additional 110 Hungarian Jews are living in three small refugee installations near Linz known as Camp 65, and Camp Haid. These people are also aided by JDC.

JDC supplementary aid has also helped to send Hungarian Jewish children on summer vacations and has made available game-room and nursery facilities. Passover supplies have recently arrived in large quantities, which made it possible for the refugees to observe the holiday in the traditional fashion.

Blasts Ignorance Of Hebrew Lore

JERUSALEM—Leading Israeli attorneys who are candidates for appointments as judges have no familiarity with Jewish Scripture and some do not even remember names of the minor prophets, a Supreme Court Justice told a group of 73 lawyers newly admitted to the bar recently.

Justice S. Z. Cheshin told the attorneys he was ashamed by the fact that many candidates for the bar were unable to name any Hebrew book read in the past 10 years or any Hebrew writer earlier than Bialik "although they are most familiar with Greek mythology." The Justice criticized many of Israel's attorneys for their "indifferent" attitude to the nation's cultural heritage.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Patterns For Celebration

By BERYL SEGAL

The pattern is all set. In Providence and in Minneapolis, in Baltimore and in Boston, in Richmond and in Cleveland, the celebrations of the Tenth Anniversary of Israel will all follow the same pattern. A guest speaker, an artist, state and city dignitaries, notables of all descriptions. Speeches, greetings, hymns of praise, mutual admiration, credits to whom credits are due, and more speeches. A solid pattern of unimaginative, uninspiring sameness.

Oh, there will be variations, to be sure. A governor in one city, a senator in another, and a cabinet member in a third. A singer in one city, a violinist in another and perhaps a choir in a third. In New York, in Chicago, in Philadelphia, and in Los Angeles the pattern will be magnified, no doubt. More guest speakers, bigger auditoriums, longer programs, more colossal shows. A blown up pattern, but essentially the same.

Contrast this with the simplicity, the originality, and the meaningful moment when the Tenth Anniversary Year was opened in Israel.

A Reuters dispatch from Jerusalem tells us this brief story:

On the second day of Passover 25,000 pilgrims ascended Mount Zion to inaugurate the celebrations of Israel's Tenth Anniversary. Pilgrims from 70 countries and from all corners of the earth were among the pilgrims.

They were greeted on the hillside with the wail of Shofars (Ram's Horns), sounded by twelve Yemeni Rabbis. On the summit of Mount Zion, banners with emblems of the twelve tribes of Israel flew next to the national flag. Theme of the pilgrimage was the "Ingathering of the Twelve Tribes of Israel".

Note how charged with historical significance this simple ceremony was. What emotions each detail evokes in the hearts of Jews, and how deeply it reaches into the memories of an ancient people. Consider each step:

A pilgrimage. Not by car, not on horseback, not by any modern means of ascent did the pilgrims go up the mountain, but on foot. All 25,000 of them. So did their forefathers in the days of the Temple go up on pilgrimages three times a year on the festivals, coming up to Mount Zion from all corners of the land.

On Mount Zion. Not on the squares of Tel Aviv, not in the great auditoriums, not in the theaters, but on the mountain where stood the City of David at the dawn of the history of the people of Israel. There on Mount Zion stood the First and the Second Temples. There the prophets spoke, and the psalmists sang. Out of Zion will flow forth the knowledge of truth. Toward Mount Zion Jews turn their faces in prayer wherever they are. No, Mount Zion was not chosen by accident.

The wail of the Shofar. Not a host of voices. Not an assembly of instruments. Not a dramatic pageant. Israel abounds in all these arts. But the operatic singers did not come forth, and the Israel Philharmonic was not engaged for the occasion, and the players of Habimah and Ohel were themselves among the pilgrims. The lowly Shofar, the horn of the ram, was chosen to proclaim the great year.

Was it not the blast of the Shofar that announced the New Moon, and the joyous festivals when Israel was young? Was it not the sound of the Shofar that proclaimed the Year of Liberty throughout the land in the days of our forefathers? And is it not the Shofar that stirs the hearts of Jews on the solemn days of Rosh Hashonah and Yom Kippur to this day?

All the lofty ideals of a people are expressed by the wail of this simple horn, and he who has the ears open can hear them. The Children of Israel heard the sound of the Shofar when they stood at the foot of Mount Sinai. The Children of Mankind will hear the sound of the Shofar when the long awaited day of Peace on Earth will be proclaimed. No, the Shofar was not chosen by accident either.

Twelve Rabbis from Yemen. Not the Chief Rabbi of the land. Not the President, nor the Prime Minister. Not the dignitaries of Knesset, nor the important guests from overseas. Not the executives, nor the heads of mighty agencies. Who then was chosen to proclaim the year of rejoicing? Twelve humble Rabbis of the poorest in the land. The Yemeni Jews who were lost for nigh to two thousand years, and who suffered harshly at the hands of their Arab rulers in the desert kingdom of Yemen, and who were rescued and brought back home on the wings of modern eagles, these despised ones were now lifted up and put on top of Mount Zion. How symbolic, and how appropriate that the Rabbis of these Yemeni Jews stand up to blow the Shofar and to tell the world of the good tidings.

The Banners of the Twelve Tribes. No artists were commissioned to create the background for the occasion. No public relations crew was engaged to dress up the mountainside. No colorful festoons, no miracles of the electronic age were used to decorate the mount. But the standards of the Twelve Tribes, standards no one has ever seen, but which are described in the Holy Scriptures, were raised as witnesses to the rebirth of a people.

These banners which our ancestors carried with them in their wanderings in the desert to the Promised Land, were held aloft now that the promise was fulfilled once more. The ancient banners of wandering tribes, side by side with the new banner of a modern democracy. What historic relevance in this gesture alone.

No set pattern there. Nothing is commonplace. Here is a ceremony moving in its simplicity and stirring in its wealth of significance. Every gesture, every detail speaks of an ancient people remembering its past and yearning to renew its life as in the days of old.

George Jean Nathan Becomes Catholic Before His Death

NEW YORK — Drama critic George Jean Nathan, who professed deep scorn for religion and marriage, adopted both in the closing years of his life.

Nathan once said that only "aboriginals" believed in life after death, but it was disclosed after his death at the age of 76 that he had been converted to Roman Catholicism.

The Rev. Charles McManus of St. Patrick's Cathedral said he baptized Nathan last Oct. 9.

Similarly, after years of railing against marriage he had married actress Julie Haydon in 1955. He was 73 she was 45.

Mrs. Nathan also became a Roman Catholic a month after her husband's baptism.

Nathan, in his earlier rebellious times, had given it as his personal credo that pleasure was the only true aim in life, "the beautiful, transient award of travail and pain."

The priest who baptized Nathan gave him last rites of the Church before he died.

Nathan's parents, the former Ella Nirlinger of Fort Wayne, Ind., and Charles Naret Nathan, a Paris lawyer, were both partly Jewish, but the mother was a practicing Catholic.

Last week at a time kept secret at his wife's request, a solemn requiem mass was celebrated at St. Patrick's Cathedral for the man who wrote that — and changed his mind.

Black Anniversary

The unity of the three denominations on this score, later reflected also in the House of Commons, evoked a noteworthy statement from the then Foreign Secretary, Sir John Simon. The debate, he said, has expressed the general feeling of the country. It would be a fundamental error, he declared, if people in other countries assumed that this feeling was confined to members of the Jewish community or was stimulated by them. On the contrary, it was a spontaneous and inevitable expression of the principle of racial tolerance. Commander Locker-Lampson, a Conservative M.P., became chairman of a committee to study the Jewish position in Germany. Clement Attlee was among those who sent a message of encouragement to a protest meeting in London's East End on April 1. Ten days later, there was a stormy debate in the House of Commons because Sir John Gilmour, then House Secretary, had banned the exhibition of anti-Nazi posters. Winston Churchill was one of those who protested most outspokenly.

Goebbels, in an interview with the London Observer, said that "the German people were not prepared to let the Jewish question rest . . . unless they were again provoked by world Jewry." An official German communique of April 4 stated: "The government has noted with satisfaction that the boycott in reply to the anti-German campaign had its effect abroad . . . and will thus not be resumed because it has become superfluous." Nevertheless the Volksischer Beobachter of that same day announced fifteen boycott meetings in all districts of Berlin and Julius Streicher promised that all "Aryan" shops would receive signs to mark them as such.

In Italy Mussolini granted an audience to the Chief Rabbi of Rome, Dr. Sacerdoti, who described to him the plight of German Jewry. In his answer Mussolini "expressed confidence that those deplorable conditions would soon revert to normal." Dr. Benes, Foreign Minister of Czechoslovakia, pleaded for extending the protection of minorities to German Jews. In New York the American Jewish Congress convened a conference attended by 1,500 delegates representing 600 Jewish groups which handed a mass petition to the U.S. government and the League of Nations calling for action on the crisis of German Jewry.

Soon, however, public interest in German "domestic affairs" — as the dangerous phrase ran — died down, and an abortive debate at the League of Nations in Geneva on the violation of minority rights in Upper Silesia was the last attempt to discuss the Jewish position in Germany before an international forum.

The German Jews had not only to brave the attack from without, there was also the danger from within — the danger of a mass panic, of a moral collapse on a gigantic scale. Yet the unexpected happened: although assimilated, westernized, rooted in their surroundings, German Jews found tremendous strength in their newly discovered Jewish substance. As a result, they preserved their dignity and self-respect. The front-page banner of the Judische Rundschau of April 4 became their motto: "The yellow star: wear it with pride."

Unprecedented activity began in the Jewish cultural sphere. Jewish schools were founded; evening classes sprang up; a Hebrew movement was started; a Jewish theatre came into being; large numbers of Jewish books and newspapers were published and concerts and lecture halls were thronged. Simultaneously, economic self-help on a large scale was set into motion, and emigration planned and organized, aided by professional training, hachsharah centers, etc. More and more, the internal political frictions and factions disappeared and a united front, embodied in the Reichsvertretung der Juden in Deutschland, in which all major organizations were represented, carried forward a Jewish revival under the very shadow of the swastika.

Few could foresee the terrible turn which Hitler's war against the Jews would take within a decade. One of those who was able to perceive the latent significance of the boycott was the late Eleanor Rathbone. At a protest meeting in Liverpool on April 5, 1933, she declared that even if the persecution of the Jews would cease it would have fulfilled a purpose — to teach us to see in the "outbreak of temperament" of the German people a serious menace to the world. Perhaps, she ventured, the sufferings of the Jews at that time would save the world from future and even greater suffering. They were warnings that must be heeded, she adjured the world. Unfortunately, the warning was not heeded.

Computer Indexes Dead Sea Scrolls

NEW YORK — A data-processing machine, known as the IBM 705, which has completely indexed all major portions of the Dead Sea scrolls now available in published form, was displayed here last week at the headquarters of the International Business Machines Corp.

Indexing alphabetically all of the 29,245 words of the scrolls under study would have been a time-consuming task. But with the IBM 705, each word was placed on a punch card under the joint direction of the Rev. Roberto Busa of the Jesuit College of the Aloysianu min Gallarate, Italy, and Paul Tasman, an IBM engineer.

The cards were then shipped to New York, where the machine converted the data into two reels of magnetic tape and turned out the final alphabetical summary lists.

News copy for the Herald must be in these offices by Tuesday noon of the week publication is desired.
